Sidney Twp. Employee Miraculously Escaped Death at Rail Crossing

Team and Wagon Struck By Oncoming Express

FREIGHT PASSES

Driver Does Not Notice Express Until He Has Driven on Track

A sad tragedy was enacted on the closed crossing at the entrance of the city Thursday evening, when Mr. Thomas Sigsleton, of Sidney township, and in charge of the Sidney employes, met his death in the path of the oncoming passenger train which leaves Belleville at 4.41 at the north station, and had the rear end of the engine struck his team while himself and the horses were thrown to the ground violently.

The load must, it seems, was held up some few minutes, opened for the passing of a freight train at the crossing and as the van pulled away and left the train apparently upon his started up the team and commenced to cross the track before the passing freight, evidently had driven out on the passenger train warning whistle and the oncoming train was not observed. However, luck was evidently on the side of the unfortunate man and his horses, for instead of pulling across just as the train and was demolished and swung around the side of the engine of the locomotive. No medical aid was required however and Mr. Sigsleton, although dazed considerably, managed to walk home and join his family of the accident.

TORNADO HITS ALABAMA TOWN

Injured and Homeless Are Housed in Barn For Present

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 3—A tornado and flood waters have combined to strike death, injuries and suffering to two states in the South.

The windstorm swept into the rural community of Robinson Springs, Ala., 15 miles from Montgomery, and killed three negroes, injured fifteen others and wrecked scores of homes.

Meanwhile the Tallahatchie River continued to rise in the Mississippi Delta County, and a number of towns in a wide area were threatened with complete evacuation.

The tornado struck Thursday, but news of it did not reach Montgomery until yesterday, because of the isolation of the community. The injured are being cared for in a barn until better provision can be made for them. Doctors from nearby towns are caring for the injured.

FEW MEN DRIFT INTO SHELTER TO SPEND LAST NIGHT OF YEAR

Night Cook Waits But Finds Not Many Weary Wanderers to Sup Bowls of Hot Soup at City "Dugout"

"402" comes flying down the hill with a heavy drag at her heels and a "still" "feather" plunking and shrieking into the still night air for the first time in 1931. Apart from the first one at Sidney and down into the town, and "402" she blows! The Irishman who sees in coffee especially at night, cooks over at the dugout under Memorial Hall, keeps the coffee hot for the weary transients, moves towards the sizzling soup kettle with half a dozen bowls under his arm, fills them and places them out in a row on the table. Then he sits down and doesn't or no men who have been hanging about the streets looking for who drop off somewhere about Cannifton and Sidney and Thurlow their way down into town for the bowl of hot soup and coffee to follow. Later on when "402" hits in for the night there will be a busy night ahead of her.

Then only a short time past ten o'clock and the first arrivals were sleeping quietly after having absorbed a bowl of soup and some bread to go with it. Some citizen also who prefers to remain anonymous left a considerable quantity of apples, cheese, milk and honey for the morning's breakfast, so at least the night cook started right as far as breakfast was concerned, and seemed a very busy man most of them.

Depression Bids Self-Development

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. Jan. 2 (CP)—"This world depression and unrest accounting already in turmoil are developing a spirit of personal self-reliance throughout the masses, a solid common-sense in matters of income and expenditure, both public and private, and a policy of co-operation based on the fundamental principle of interdependence of all ranks and classes, rich and poor, high and low, employer and employee, capitalist and those without a privilege in the world to preserve," declares Richard Squires, Premier of Newfoundland, in a New Year's message today.

"The world reverses of recent years which, in my judgment, have reached the climax, will undoubtedly revive those sterling qualities of pioneer achievement which, coming from the East have, during recent centuries, created this great Western world and will unquestionably in the decades to come recreate from the economic debris of the present a far greater East and a far greater West separated not as in the past in point of geographical distance, but in terms of interdependence of days rather than in knots or miles.

"Premier Squires, sending the message through the Canadian Press, included his best wishes to the many readers served by Canadian newspapers and paid a tribute to the part of the Canadian Press and kindred agencies which, he declared, "have been particularly valuable in developing inter-Dominion, inter-provincial and international knowledge which constitute the solid basis of peace both internationally and industrially."

ALBERT HAINES WINS JUDGMENT

Judge Finds Company Assumed Risk of Weather Conditions

Of interest to farmers and canning factories was the case heard before His Honor Judge Deroche last Thursday, the hearing of the case occupied the better part of the day as both parties concerned produced a number of witnesses on their behalf.

Albert Haines contracted with the Quality Canners, Trenton associated with Canadian Canners, to pack corn, (the seed being furnished by the company), and sell the crop to the company at $10.00 a ton. This contract specified, that the company should be the sole judge of when the crop was fit to pick for canning purposes, and when ready to pick, when a Mr. Minaker, field-man for the company visited and said that crop was not fit to pick and told Haines not to pick until the following Wednesday.

Haines obeyed the instructions, Minaker turned up at noon on Wednesday and said that owing to the hot weather the corn was ripening fast, urday and Sunday the corn had been subjected to frosts and was unfit to accept the crop.

Haines brought action for the value of the crop.

His Honor Judge Deroche held Haines was entitled judgment to the amount of $160.00 as the company, through Minaker, knew that Haines assumed the risk of weather conditions by the commissioner in reporting for working before Wednesday.

Mr. A. L. Cameron appeared for the plaintiff, while Mr. D. Graham of Trenton, appeared for the defendants.

SANKEY MADE A VISCOUNT

Many Honored in New Year List of His Majesty

(BY THOMAS T. CHAMPION)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The conferment on Sir John Sankey, Lord Chancellor, of the viscountcy, three baronetcies and 21 knighthoods, including one for the Archbishop of Canterbury, highlighted the New Year's honors list made public Thursday.

Of the list interesting, even if it contains few surprises. Among the minor conferments is that of Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire upon Queen Marie Tubou, Queen of Tonga, the "friendly island" of the Polynesians. Women, however, do not sit in the House of Lords.

John Sankey was raised to the peerage upon becoming lord chancellor in the first Labor government, in June 1929, after a distinguished career in the King's Bench.

Peerage Conferred

A peerage is conferred upon Rt. Hon. Sir Lawrence Dundas, chairman of the Independent Labor party from 1918 to 1926, who supported Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in the formation of the National Government last August.

A second peerage is conferred upon Lt.-Col. Rt. Hon. Wilfrid William Ashley, Conservative member of the British House of Commons, Minister of Transport in the last Baldwin government, created Lord Ashley in chairman of the Anti-Socialist Union.

A peerage is conferred upon Rt. Hon. Walter Gulmess, former Minister of Education in the Baldwin Government.

A peerage is conferred upon Rt. Hon. Leif Jones, who was at different times Liberal member of the House of Commons for various ridings in Saskatchewan and Ontario, Cornwall, in a Conservative interest elections.

Also this peerage is that conferred upon Rt. Hon. Sir William Mitchell-Thomson, member of the House of Commons for South Croydon and Government whip in the last Conservative Government. Sir William was chief civil commissioner during the Great War of Jerusalem.

These elevations to the peerage involve the creation of two baronets, Wilfrid Ashley in New Forest and Mitchell-Thomson, in Croydon South.

VOTE ONE-THIRD OF LAST YEAR

Toronto Elected Practically Same Board and Council

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)—With a total vote estimated at nearly one-third below the high of a year ago Toronto electors on Friday returned three of the two years members of the Board of Control, displaced Albert Hacker for Samuel McBride's one-time mayor and almost solidly reappointed the present council of aldermen.

The most wintry weather of the season, coupled with the lack of a mayoralty factor in the elections, undoubtedly was the cause of the vote which fell below the heights reached in the past few years. It did, not affect the results, it was believed, because all sections of the city showed a proportionate decline in the number of votes polled.

James Simpson, widely known Laborite, led the vote, followed in order by George Ramsden, McBride and W. J. Robbins. All except McBride were members of last year's council. Claude Pearce, placed fourth after Hacker, was not by a comparatively small margin.

Robbins' success in the vote is shown by a comparison with last year's figures. Simpson headed the poll with 43,010 votes. Last year Hacker with 43,783, placed fourth. Ramsden, second, polled 51,843 to lead. The latter dropped 13,000 votes to 38,300 this year in second place. McBride, third in order this year, polled 31,630 as compared with Simpson's third place figures a year ago of 48,105.

MARKET DRIFT LOWER LEVEL

Stocks Throughout Whole Range One to Four Points Lower

New York, N.Y., Jan. 2— With many of Wall Streets most active operators preparing to observe the week-end holiday, the stock market drifted lower in the New Year's first session today, with the volume of leading stocks declining 1 to 4 points. The turnover was moderate, 750,900 shares and there was no particular desire to sell. Sharp declines in prices were attributed in brokerage circles to the week-end holiday during during the abbreviated holiday session than to pressure of selling. Bonds were steady with better resistance than industrial which showed a slight reaction. Rails and Steel which gave way 2 points or more.

American Can reached to a new low, losing 4 or more points as it neared its Dec. 1931, Belleville record. Eastman Kodak and Montgomery Ward Machine was relatively steady, selling about 2 points below the previous close.

Wall Street was again disposed to look upon the business situation outlook as moderately encouraging. Statements of several executives lent encouragement to belief that better operating conditions would exist during prospective wage and rate readjustments.

Notwithstanding the Atchison was an exception on the carrier list, declining 4 points or so. But New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, New Haven and Erie lines within a point or so of their Thursday prices.

Rails in New York commodity markets were closed.

It is pleasant to turn from con temptible strife and the perplexities of political existence, to the peaceful repose of private life.

In this world none of us can have everything our own way.

WINE AND BEER OR IS IT HARD LIQUOR?

Hard liquor is losing its popularity among those who have been in the habit of stocking their sideboards for the holiday cheer such as beer, wine and ale is generally supposed to bring, and in its place wine and beer are fast becoming the favored drink according to latest reports on the vagaries of the celebrating public.

Whether or not this can be laid to the fact that it is as well as many other luxuries have felt a decided drop in favor of things less expensive is a question that we cannot hard to answer, but the fact remains that the consumption of hard beverage has undoubtedly decreased in favor of that of stronger liquor.

SQUARE MEALS, NEW BASKETS

A square meal after weeks in which such a thing as a square meal was more or less a stranger, was the first thing which impressed itself upon the unconscious nose of the boys from Belleville on their arrival at the transient relief camp at Haileyb, just in time to welcome the New Year with a pot roast dinner, a letter received from one of the labor contingent the previous day morning; the boys found everything in the camp brand new, even the blankets, and the mattresses were scrumptious. A large sign, "Betterdays" at the front of the buildings is an evidence that the boys are proud of their old home town.

The younger men had been conquering the festivities of New Year's Eve and were not in the very best state of condition for the fray. Although they managed to hold the brilliant ones very closely at volleyball they were forced to take a defeat, two games to one. In basketball, however, the score of 18 to 4 shows indicates how one sided was the married men had too much vitality for their younger opponents.

CLANGING BELLS AND MERRIMENT GREETING 1932

Worshippers and Merry-makers Welcome New Year

TONE SUBDUED

Young Mr. 1932 came into Belleville Friday morning during the big thaw and to the coolest and quietest reception this town has accorded for some time. It was as you like it. If you like theatres or one of the numerous dances. They were there. If you like to stay home and reported a complete sell out. Dance halls had great crowds. Cafes and other places were attended with regard gathering and everybody had their quota of folks at watch night services and the determination to stay awake and see the new year in. But there was not the usual enthusiasm and feeling this year that have characterized other years that predominated and the outstanding cheer that has been in evidence in former years was not in evidence. There was a good time to be had by those who wished it, but they were quieter about it this year. The spirit was subdued. They were more apt to be conservative in their actions and speech and were not so demonstrative as other years when large crowds gathered on the streets and many had whoopee with tin pans, whistles and other noisemakers. This year the streets were deserted. Even the weather was against the usual large crowds of those who did not seem to bring in the New Year in the usual fine fashions. A direct count on the main street of the city at 2 o'clock failed to reveal the total of some half dozen people who wandered aimlessly about during the last hour of 1931.

Inside the different places of entertainment the spirit was confined down to the more vociferous blowing of horns, throwing bunting balloons and the blowing of horns and whistles at the usual midnight hour. Paper hats by the hundreds were dispensed as were by the revellers. Streamers of colored paper were festooned from galleries and balconies throughout the hall. Outside the cold wind blew over deserted streets, the snow was of a color and sparkle and warmth. In the churches the watch services were arranged for the throngs who usually attended. Large congregations gathered in loops and bounds to welcome in the hour of peace and tottering old fellow with the scythe, steadily grew weaker. Finally he fell and died. Then throughout the land approached the new baby, the hour and minute of the hour denoting the birth of the new year. Hymns were sung while the dins and blare and gaiety went on inside to the grand climax, outside all was quiet and full of dazed church bells of the city also ushered in the new year in their own different fashion.

Inside, darkened chest worshippers knelt silently in darkened churches in reverent worship while the new day was being slowly born. A hush had come, and people in the places of worship as if the occasion were one of too much dignity to be observed by lights—and only the sonorous tones of the clanging bell of the cathedral broke the silence. The old year had passed—the new had come, and slowly the dim streets filled with homeward bound revellers. It was then that different restaurants and cafes experienced their busiest business. The majority of them were packed and jammed with diners and others who were loth to go home even if there was little else to do, and it was not until daylight that the last belated reveller started his homeward journey.

In Johnstone's Academy several hundred people were merry on the occasion and the hall was crowded. Dancing and down-town interest helped to swell the large attendance, besides those who came merely to watch the others participating. The early part of the day which broke shortly after they had all joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne," while the new year's day was being ushered in. A pipe band marched to the hall at Bridge o'clock and took part in the 1931 welcome.

At both the Belle and the Capitol Theatres seats were at a premium and several who arrived later in the evening were unable to get a seat in the fact that all seats had then been sold. There was a long delay of either the managers to allow them to stand in the aisles. As in the rest of the gatherings noise makers and favors, as well as every manner of paper hats were dispensed by the management to all who entered and which were worn by all the guests. Several hundred balloons were also liberated during the course of the performance of the entertainment and could be heard long after the first had been let loose. Staff at the Belle Mr. Johnstone's Kiltie Band and Mr. Johnstone's Kiltie Band and Mr. Johnstone's troupe of child dancers she has been engaged in teaching. Between the acts their appearance on the stage and were roundly applauded time and again for their real talent they displayed. Syncopated music from the roundly applauded especially that of the very popular "Singing Dakers."

HALF HOLIDAYS START JAN'Y 6TH

Merchants Will Observe This Day For Eleven Months of Year

The first Wednesday half-holiday of the year 1932, will be observed on January 6th, by the local retail merchants.

At the November meeting of the Retail Merchants Association, a motion was adopted, by a large majority, to close the retail stores in Belleville every Wednesday afternoon except the months of December.

Mr. Charles E. Hanna, president of the Belleville Retail Merchants Association acted in the proper manner in calling the Whyte Hardware Company, would observe the half holiday in the winter, this issue is not carried out strictly as it will be the first Wednesday turned down by the ... members," said Mr. Hanna, when interviewed by The Intelligencer.

Mr. Joseph Delaney, a member of the association, informed the Ontario Intelligencer that it was the intention to observe the spirit of the movement, at the November meeting to the last letter.

Nearly all the retail merchants in Belleville are of the opinion that one or no business would be hurt if this idea is carried on. The plan gives the merchants and their staff a half holiday each week the year around. The local chain stores have that idea but will fall in line and follow suit as the other merchants lead the way.

Quite naturally there would have to be a change of store hours upon each Wednesday afternoon and this will likely be arranged by the drug store proprietors of the city.

The Belleville banks were considering closing for half day during Saturday throughout the year, instead of Wednesday, but, if the merchants close on Wednesday the banks managers and the Retail Merchants Association that they will support the general Wednesday half holiday.

The public, it is contended, will soon become acquainted with the rule and do their shopping and trading accordingly so as to co-operate with the merchants.

NO FIRE CALLS ON HOLIDAYS

Remarkable Record of Belleville Fire Department

History was made, records were broken, and the wish of Fire Chief Wm. Lynch, was fulfilled, when the local fire department did not receive a single call during the New Year's festivities. This feat, added with the Christmas Day record, is a solid week of no fire calls for Belleville.

The fire department have not had one single call during the two holiday periods, which have just terminated. This is the second time in the history of the department due to the season's decorations and the spelling and threatening homes. But due to the cooperation of the citizens and the fire department there were no holiday calls this season.

Fire Chief Lynch feels assured that the citizens with to co-operate with the department and all the many warnings have at last borne fruit in establishing the record record.

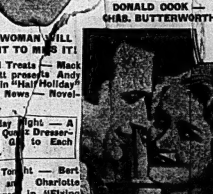
94 MEN TAKEN ON PUBLIC WKS.



Thirty-five of These Are Engaged in Shovelling Snow

With the added force of the thirty-five men, who were engaged this morning clearing the sidewalks and crossings in the outlying districts of the city of the heavy snow, which fell throughout the greater part of the night and all day today, the number of men employed throughout the morning reached the highest number yet—ninety-four.

These thirty-five however, will work all day but will probably finish up early this afternoon when the greater part of the work will be done. Whether or not they will also be cleared of snow was undecided last night when Mayor Ellis morning, but it is expected that if the snow keeps up some work will be required to clear portions at least of the street to enable shoppers to have free access to the crossings, which at present are a fool deep in snow. Sonorous Bells Chiming Whistling, Tooting, After moment of Waiting

A chill North wind blew down a deserted Front Street Thursday evening, silent and lonely except for the occasional passing of the few citizens who slowly sauntered along, and a dozen or so cars parked here only at the east curb. A quietness pervaded throughout the city, broken only by the faraway honk of a motor horn, the distant rumbling of the few revellers on an adjoining street.

Trees above floated down the soft strains of a dance orchestra in one of the hotels, and the faint hum of conversation and laughter from behind pulled down over the eyes. Over the residential section of the city was the loud beating of a drum. Then from farther down the hill air like the penetrating music of the bag pipes, and shortly after the skirl of pipes and the tall figure marched a contingent of players headed by Mr. Johnstone, who went in his kilts over the length of the street. Windows in upstairs flats were thrown open, and from doorways there erupting heads over which bow dills and wraps were hastily pulled, the strains of "The Duke of the Highlands" floated out to the ears of the passing throng by the pipers who had now formed a circle and for the short time to the booming of the big drum and the rattling of the smaller ones, the musical selections of the bagpipers. Then the band moved on, and the throng followed, to watch them pass. The music faded in the distance. Windows were again drawn down, and lights flashed off.

Again quietness descended and enveloped the city. It lasted just for a few moments of that fateful hour —1931 had yet time to gather its belongings and go on its way into the world to anxiously awaiting his departure. A few more pleasant hours along with the driver huddled down behind great coats, and the dawn stood a blue-coated policeman in silent inspection. Then the early morning clock slowly pointed off the dragging minutes on its cracked face.

A faraway whistle cut the air in the direction of the railway station. A church bell clanged accurately. One, two, three, four, five, six times in the opening note and a few more joined the chorus. A second 1931 was silent, hesitatingly silent. The world seemed to be in a puzzled mood. A horn shattered the intense silence and from the darkened tower of the city hall came the fifty-sixth New Year's greeting to Mr. and Mrs. Citizen. In the bell tower rolls from the same old bell that has stood there for 56 years, not so long. The bell that has signalled seconds of years, the coming of kings, and the calling of vehicles flowed out to all.

The noise grew. A giant, tumultuous shout from the depths of a distant chime wide open. A few autos hoots attended as the cars sped past, and the sharp, shrill signal blinked momentarily and turned direction at times. Then there could be heard the din of locomotives in the yard blending in a weird musical medley. A passing freight train at the lower end of the city added its whistle and pulled down and a screaming passenger train with its

At The Belle

JOHN BARRYMORE COMES MONDAY IN HIS MASTER ROLE

Each lofty ascending the Belle Monday evening will be presented with a Rose Quartz Dresser-vase Kingston, the gift with the compliments of the Management.

To remodel a human being is a difficult and dangerous business—yet so to do is the blazing and thrilling theme of "Svengali," the central character in the most powerful and unusual picture of the year—"The Mad Genius," in which John Barrymore is starred and in which he comes to the Belle, Monday, for two days. Matinee Monday.

Playing with the vital forces of life and love, Svengali attempts to build a great genius out of the human clay of an outcast lad he has kidnapped—Svengali himself with his own demoniac mind the natural human instincts of his victim, to triumphs only to fail.

Mr. Barrymore reveals by the part Having turned definitely to character roles, that of Tarazkov, so he says, offers him the opportunity of a life time.

"The Mad Genius" is the strange by melodramatic life story of an impressario of the Russian Imperial Ballet—played against darkly colorful European backgrounds.

Marian Marsh plays the leading role opposite Barrymore — with Donald Cook, Charles Butterworth, Luis Alberni and Carmel Myers and many others.

A funny Mack Sennett comedy entitled "Hold Your Man," featuring Andy Clyde and a host of Sennett funmakers, the popular Mack Sennett News Reel, and a new novelty are announced for exhibition on the same program.

Jamesy Fakers Bookings

An excellent list of Feature Picture Bookings are announced for exhibition at the Belle during January including: John Barrymore and Marian Marsh in "The Mad Genius," Richard Dix and Virginia Cherrill and Elizabeth Allen in "Shadow Of Doubt," Clive Brook and Victoria Osborne in "Husband's Holiday," Charles Bickford and Karen Morley in "Over the Hill," Tallulah Bankhead and Irving Pichel in "Her Man Gobey," the year's greatest thriller, "Frankenstein," and Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper in "The Champ". A selected program of short offerings will be presented with each feature attraction.

At The Capitol

TWO FEATURE FLAYS AT THE CAPITOL

Today The Capitol offers a full two-and-a-half hours program comprising mystery and comedy.

The first feature, "Murder At Midnight", will please everyone.

Although the modern detective story was an outgrowth of the writings of Mrs. Wilkie Collins and Conan Doyle, this form of literature is not new. It is declared by some to be only stories of deduction and detection of crime appearing in the Arabian Nights Entertainments. Herod Gotus and in the Arcadi. Aesops fables abound with them.

The coming of talking pictures to the screen has stimulated interest in mystery stories. The new medium of entertainment, combined the full length novel into an hour or more of time, has proved to be a combination for thrilling theatre-going audiences.

Several excellent mystery-detective stories have reached the screen lately. Among these is "Murder at Midnight."

In "Murder at Midnight" the villain is slain by the detective's butler, his maid and his lawyer are in turn suspected of the deed. The maid and the butler are each mysterious characters, and the attempts of the lawyer and the brother-in-law. An expert criminologist and a police inspector are swept up in the guilty person—with the final exposure of the real criminal.

Picture Slim Summerville and Harry Langdon, the one with his moist mirth-provocative actions, the other from two years obscurity men hired by a rum running gang to "bump off" a rival leader and you have the theme of the plot of this hilarious satire.

Seldom have audiences been offered funnier situations than those revealed in the timely satire on gang life in America. The story deals with an exciting adventure in the lives of two knights of the road" who take leave from a sidetrack prison and are swept up by a storm of circumstance which involves them in a whirlwind succession of unexpected events. They become unavoidably affiliated with a gang of rum racketeers, and the most hilarious incidents that might be expected follow in rapid succession.

Langdon and Summerville make a team which has seldom been equalled on the screen. Perfectly cast for their roles, Harry and Slim walk with dignity and assurance to make "See America Thirst" the most distinctive comedy of an unusual type that has appeared.

Bessie Love, who plays the part of the secretary to the district attorney's office by posing as a cabaret dancer, is a lively factor in the picture.

The ceremony took place in a chancel formed with palms and ferns, interspersed with chrysanthemums, white chrysanthemums, and silver cedar. Rev. F. C. M. Dunn, Moderator of the Toronto Presbytery, officiated. The ushers were Dr. Harry Robbs and Mr. Gordon Johnston, both of Toronto.

At the reception which followed the ceremony, the bride's mother and sister-in-law received the guests, the former wearing black lace and chiffon, with white carnations, and smart black hat, and the latter a frock of apple-green lace with hat and shoes to match. Upwards of hundred guests were present from London, Barnia, Galt, Belleville, Kitchener, Brantford, Hamilton and a number from Toronto.

Tough For Cattle and Married Folks, Prediction

MANY TO SUFFER

Predicts Also as to Outcome of Coming Election

Hoboken, N.J., Jan. 2— (UP)— Prof. Gustave Meyer, who declares himself as the nation's "economist and American scientific astrologer," cast his eyes heavenward New Year's night, added up the rows of figures and reported that 1932 is going to be a tough year for cattle and married people.

In scanning the planets for his annual first-of-the-year forecast, Professor Meyer considers that Japan and China are going to have much trouble in the next few months and that Japan will get the best of it in the long run. He feels that prohibition is going to have a "terrible time" during 1932, that prosperity is coming back to stay, that Colonel Lindbergh and Henry Ford will be married before the end of February and that next Fall there will be plenty of rain, earthquakes, floods, cloudbursts, earthquakes, bank failures, broken banks and stomach troubles.

The professor's forecast covers virtually every phase of human philosophy, history, contemporary poetry, husbandry, agriculture, mercantilism, stock operation and marshmallow roasting.

Those who will suffer during the year, according to the professor, are theatrical people, hotel and restaurant people, steamship people, hair trainers, and all other side show fakirs.

Those who will enjoy good luck are the Greek gods, scientific people, astrologers, mining men, oriental state agents, President Hoover, soldiers, diplomats, and all the unemployed.

Cholera says the professor, will break out in the navy during April and May. The coming presidential campaign, Professor Meyer has a strange feeling, will find Democratic Party, he feels, can win only in the event Calvin Coolidge is nominated as a "soaking wet."

JIM THE CONQUEROR

by PETER B. KYNE

"Permit me to return to the business at hand. Gentlemen, you ride on the Los Algodones and file my telegraph instructions to the conductor. Do it at once. I have no time to waste. I'm in a hurry."

"Now, then," Bishop continued, "I'll say nothing. There was an unending feud between Hilgenes and the Agrinns several years ago, which grew more and more bitter, and finally the feud declined to a point where the Hilgenes would kill a man on sight. Well, the Agrinns always replied with a polite offer to bear half of the expense of burying the lands it held in fee conformable to the state lands and their current treasas. Since this constituted a fair and reasonable , bay, legal, method of adjusting trespass disputes between individuals, the reign of Hilgenes lasted always held that the State should also accept his proposition.

The state, considering this, directed that the experts of fifty counts of Texas should be selected on the hypothesis that any revenue derived from trespass fees in reason of the sale of grazing permits on the disputed lands of state since, with the Hilgenes family controlling the situation by force and ambushes, no man would be foolish enough to seek a grazing permit. Pending the adjudication of the state's claim to the disputed lands, the Hilgenes family would always have the right to graze cattle, and Miguel Jaimes would have the right to graze his goats conjointly to the water; also he negotiated to supply herders to whatever flocks and herds might wheresoever they wandered over the disputed lands.

Of this situation wily old Tim Andrews took full advantage. Always in ordinary years he would not have risked such an adventure, since nobody knew better than he that a dispute over water and grass in the desert was a dangerous matter to adventure. But his own range had been overgrazed by his own herds for years; in his part of the country, he was known to be a man who would never rest ready for markets, nor was he ready to accept the market price for his cattle when he had to. He had to maintain them, and in his dilemma he was compelled to take the risks of the earliest laws of human nature, which are always paramount to laws defined in taking desperate measures.

He was familiar with the law of trespass. If the cattle of the lands did not fence them, he could not recover damages from the owner of loose live stock that wandered upon his lands. Therefore Jaimes could not afford to fence the small acreage around springs and waterholes and Andrews knew it. Any springs along watercourses, some of which were dry in the summer. If he did his own live stock could not drink at the springs, and if Andrews knew, Don Jaime might have his herders attacked by scattering quantities of salpeter on the dry beds his lands. They were his lands by right of occupancy and use, even if he desired. Salpeter will not poison water, but it will drive it away; however, when Andrews figured the area of the springs in his own range, he would have to scatter sufficient salpeter to make a menace, he knew Don Jaime would suspect that it was merely deceit.

It would require too much salpeter and too great a labor bill to scatter it over the lands in sufficient quantities to do its work.

Andrews knew Don Jaime, he can but one risk, and that was a battle to keep his sheep, not from drinking at the springs, but from drinking Don Jaime's water. Andrews' herders were armed cowboys and many watercourses to guard, and Andrews knew that Don Jaime's guard (they all; perhaps if Andrews appeared with a strong armed guard of his own, Don Jaime would not force the issue. Under the circumstances Andrews was compelled to accept the risks, because the stakes, the possession of the lands, the arrogant man and because of Don Jaime's contempt for Andrews refused to it as Mexican blood, repudiates a definitive of Indian) he would not attempt to take advantage of the ruggedness and the natural qualities of the Hilgenes family. In such case Andrews knew that Miguel Don Jaime was too yellow to back his play.

All these things Don Jaime Miguel Hilgenes considered as he gazed over the country from the top of the crook, had been sacred to four generations of Hilgenes. He had his own real advantage, one legal right. He had a title to the land which would hereafter be sufficient to protect him from any opportunity to drive him off his land or long enough they would perish from lack of water. Therefore he knew that if while driving them off he and his men were attacked by the sheepmen, the sheepmen would drive stock they would be clearly with their legal rights if they defend themselves.

Don Jaime smiled. "Thirst doubtless will be a factor, but cause is just," he soliloquized. "Well, Senor Andrews, you have the surprise of his life trying to blun this evening. He'd stated to everything to a know—and I'm going to take the trick with a few surprises.

He decided to bear off to the right and give the sheep and their herders a wide berth, for he had not the intention of cogging to grips with the sheepmen while they were on their lands and in defense of his inalienable rights. He rode along the hogback at a walk for half a mile and then turned down a long draw into the valley below, through which the white road to Los Algodones wound off into the haze. At the mouth of the draw he paused and dismounted, for the configuration of the land revealed the fact that his wide clinch was loose; it had slipped out over the horse's withers.

In the primary, or nominating ballot, each member was entitled to ten nomination. This last election surpassed all in previous years in the number of members who have named. No less than eighty-five different members have participated in this honor.

The election for the Chamber of Commerce directorate is one of the most democratic ever devised, since every member has the opportunity to name a candidate, this privilege obtains or factions getting control.

While there has been much good-natured rivalry for these offices, active canvassing has not been favored and the honor has always come to those who have been elected as a spontaneous tribute to their popularity.

MANUFACTURE, DISTRIBUTION OF SPRAYERS

Co. have contracted an exclusive franchise to the Pruitt Machinery Co. Ltd., of Toronto, representing Pruitt products. There will be no new company as stated, but a change in the location of the manufacturers and sales departments of the Pruitt Machinery Co., Ltd., and the Friend Sprayer Co. of Friend Co. (formerly conduct from Niagara Falls, Ontario, to New York as stated) will be taken over by the Pruitt Machinery Co., who will be entirely responsible for "Friend" interests in Canada.

W. C. Hall, formerly manager of the Belleville branch of the Pruitt Mfg. Co., at Niagara Falls, Ontario, is a member of years has been retained by the Pruitt Machinery Co., and will be in charge of the sprayer and tractor sales branch department.

Letters to The Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

With your permission I am answering a notice in Dec. 26th issue of your paper regarding the constitution of the Belleville and D. L. P. and T. to a year book organization now existing advocating the passing of a new type of which certain members of this city have been solicited.

The Belleville Ratepayers' Association, i.e., the B.L.P. and E. is controlled by Tammany and has always been connected with this citizens' organization. The drop in the city's assessment values, the result of energy expended by the Conservative Association of Engineers, Tradesmen, Dispatchers and Operators. An organization duly registered and chartered at Ottawa and this book is a business directory to be delivered at every seasonal on the Central Region at account of the men moving from one terminal to another. Let us all the American friends will scrutinize the book when published and see to it that the members and their affiliations with the Belleville and local merchants and taxpayers in each town, in fact, everywhere in Canada, will look back to Belleville merchants who have every right to the financial trade and not condemn those who are evidently exciting it to their own. I may add for the men and information who has so long by consolidated its efforts to do so over of an affiliation of the "All Canadian Congress of Labor." Thanking you for your favor and kindness in allowing this space.

I am,
Yours,
"A Member of a Canadian Union"

His Estate is Now Improved

A estate-aged man entered the city's lodge for transients New Year's Eve and was immediately conducted by the attendant as having been an inmate of the lodge for a few nights previous. He explained that he had not come to spend the night and had been fortunate in obtaining work on a farm and that he had called only to make a friendly call. To show his appreciation of the service and attention which he had been given him at the lodge, he presented the attendant and the other inmates with cigars and cigarettes and whatnot them all a "Happy New Year".

WHEAT DE BETTER

...s Are On Wheat Harvest to Be Reaped

SYDNEY, N. S. W. — Improved prospects for wheat and wheat industries are not all that is desired, but they are sufficiently encouraging to cause considerable optimism in trade circles.

All eyes are on the wheat harvest to be reaped, from which New South Wales, on the official estimate, will garner 50,000,000 bushels. This is the calculation of the marketing branch of the agricultural department, and government estimates are usually conservative.

Though prices are moving upward, there will probably be fluctuations, but there is every reason of a higher level, and the real encouragement comes from the world position in regard to surplus stocks. The visible supply of the world's wheat is 200,000,000 bushels less than at this time last year, and there is a large surplus, which cannot be disposed of quickly, but the best factor is that world consumption is much greater than was estimated last year.

If the crop in Canada and the United States is below expectations next June, the 1932-33 crop in Australia should show a good market at near normal prices. In view of the present advice and the general belief that there will be only inconsequential setback, a price of three shillings a bushel for the new crop is regarded as not out of the question. In which case the government would not be called on to pay the bounty.

The situation, however, has again been reviewed by the ministers of agriculture, and the hope is still expressed, for the purposes of the bounty, to increase the maximum ... a price from three shillings to three shillings six pence.

The bounty will be paid on wheat and the equivalent in flour exported and also on wheat fed to stock consumed within the commonwealth.

On the basis of three shillings a bushel, New South Wales wheat growers, from a crop of 50,000,000 bushels would be worth $37,500,000. Australia's crop estimate is from 175,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels, the requirements for home consumption about 50,000,000, leaving a surplus for export of approximately 130 ,00,000 bushels.

On the foregoing figures, the exportable wheat surplus of Australia may be worth nearly $100,000,000.

Whangpoo River Full of Bacteria

VICTORIA, B. C. (By The Canadian Press)—Far more bacteria in the water of the Whangpoo River in China than the water sent out by the time this water passes through the waterworks and becomes available for drinking purposes in Shanghai it grades higher than Canadian quality of water, according to C. D. Pearson, chief engineer and manager of the Shanghai Waterworks system, who passed through Victoria on a visit to China on his way to New York and London.

Mr. Pearson is the man who is responsible for the purity of Shanghai's water supply, which meets the requirements of 1,250,000 people. He has seen the population of the city works rise from 7,000,000 gallons a day to 62,000,000 gallons, as at the present time, since the plant was opened by Li Hung Chang in 1899.

The bacteriological count in the Whangpoo's turbid stream is assured, by chlorine treatment, even after it passes through the filtration processes similar to those in use on the Mississippi and Hudson Rivers, it is ready for drinking.

The filtration and chlorine system is operated with British capital.

FARMERS STAY ON THE FARM

Advice Given By Premier Tolmie of British Columbia

VANCOUVER, B. C. — Farmers should stay out of business if they really want to enjoy life, Premier S. F. Tolmie, himself a veteran farmer, told a gathering of technical agriculturists here a few days ago.

"Running the country isn't nearly so interesting as running a farm," said the Premier, "and the reward in genuine satisfaction and contentment are far greater in the farmer who can watch his stock and his fields prosper than to the administrator or politician whose happiness is always dependent on the whim of the public".

Premier Tolmie, however, was speaking in semi-serious vein and he admits that he sometimes gets a "kick" out of politics. But that he wouldn't probably get a greater "kick" out of life on the farm.

Addressing a party meeting in Nanaimo recently he said, "If you ever want to choose between the two, let be only too glad to stand aside and return to the bulls where I belong."

Dr. Tolmie says that politics has taken thirty pounds from his weight, although he still tips the scales at two hundred and forty pounds. He attributes his weight to the "good times" suffered by farmers when he was a young boy on his father's farm in Saanich, Vancouver Island.

"Markets were so bad in those days," he recalled with a smile, "that everything we raised that couldn't be sold had to be eaten on the farm. So, of course, I had to eat a very great deal to keep the surplus down".

GOUT IS VERY STUBBORN DISEASE

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D. Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

There are people who believe they are suffering from gout when actually they are not, while there are those also who do not suspect they have the disease from which the ailment is called by a different name.

The point is that rheumatic pains, especially if in a joint of the extremity when confined to the toes, are often thought to be gout. In fact, many other disorders are thought to be gout, and sometimes are referred to as a "uric acid diathesis", or an excess of uric acid in the blood.

Just why uric acid accumulates in the joints of some persons and not in others is not yet known. And not only does uric acid exist in the blood of such persons, it likewise accumulates in the tissues forming sodium urate deposits, which are known as tophi.

The physiological chemistry involved in the production of tophi by kidneys and liver no doubt play an important part. But the purin-forming diet naturally is an essential factor either in the production, prevention, or temporary relief of gout. It is probable that somehow the food elements necessary for nutrition are burned for energy purposes and that the waste products in the residue waste products is not normal.

At any rate, heredity seems to be responsible for the gout in many cases recorded, the disease exists in the blood stream long before it affects the patient. Males seem to transmit the disorder more often than females.

Too much alcohol, especially fermented liquors, is responsible for the illfated spirits; has been considered the most important factor in the production of the disease. Any shock or sudden injury or even an accident may precipitate an attack in a person who is susceptible.

Three forms of gout are distinguishable; acute, chronic and cases in which no joints are affected.

In acute cases, the patient first feels twitchings of pain in the joints of the feet or hands, then a sensation of nervousness may be accentuated. The inclination to sleep vanishes, and not sleep, becomes irritable.

Usually the attack starts during the early hours of the morning when the patient is awakened by some pain in the joint. Sometimes enough the pain is confined very often to the big toe and more frequently to the right big toe rather than the left. This pain may be excruciating and soon the joint becomes swollen, hot and tender.

Patients usually start to feel as though squeezed in a vise. It becomes dangerous to touch the joint, stretched to the limit. A rise of the temperature is noticed, sometimes a swelling. The patient may feel pros trated with pain for hours.

Later on, towards daylight, the pain grows less and the joint less swollen. During the day the patient may be fairly comfortable although the pain and the swelling may persist still. But the next night the agony may start all over again, only to be repeated for from five to eight successive times.

In chronic cases, the attacks are increased in frequency and more joints of the feet and hands become involved. The irregular types may be real gout or merely rheumatic conditions concerning which much added knowledge is necessary.

Open air life with plenty of exercise is desirable, no alcohol, and the proper diet.

In Abyssinia, the fields are still ploughed with a blade fastened to the Holland Storeliner dies, and nearly all letters re brought by hand. The paper carried in the split end of a stick.

MARKETS WILL DICTATE POLICY

Whaling Industry Has to Compete in World Market

VICTORIA, B. C.—The vagaries of international exchange and world markets will dictate the policy of the west coast whaling industry this year.

Whale products, like pulp and paper and similar products, are in competition with the world market. The output of Scandinavian countries, whose exchange has been favorably depreciated since Britain abandoned the gold standard, flooded the whaling industry in British Columbia are now studying the far reaching effects of this situation before they determine whether or not they will send their vessels to the North Pacific to hunt the big mammals.

In normal years the Consolidated Whaling Corporation, largest concern of its kind on this side of the world, operates eleven whalers and a whaling tender in the west coast whaling grounds, but last year owing to a general decline in prices whaling operations were suspended.

The catch in an average year amounts to about 300 whales. Chief products are oil, fertilizer, meat, whalebone, meal and fertilizer. The various by-products and refined products from these commodities number more than a score because almost every part of the whale carcass is utilized.

Officials of whaling masters and biologists are speculating on the probable effect of the depression on whaling. A prolonged suspension of whaling operations will naturally result in the marked increase in destruction of the North Pacific.

Whalers have been doing out in accordance with the predictions of oldtime fishermen. These men claimed that there will always be whales in the sea because, the cost of whaling will limit the catch. Indeed, as the schools gradually become depleted and the discriminative will become unprofitable, thus always leaving a sufficient number of whales to continue the species.

WHEAT CROP NOT UNIFORM

This Is Due to Wide Variety of Conditions

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—Yield of the Australian wheat crop is expected to be extremely variable in different districts this season, and this is due to the variety of conditions.

Frost damage, the prevalence of black stem rust and lodging of grain are all important factors in the situation.

For reasons of economy—to avoid the use of superphosphate, and in order to fallow crop land cheaply many crops were sown very early. Others because the season was not early-season varieties were in many cases planted out of season, as it was impossible to get the land worked in time.

Some satisfactory crops were seen which had been sown without super, and with only two cultivations after fallowed crop land. Generally, however, these will be payable in spite of the low prices.

In the famous Gilgandra district hail storms have caused severe damage. One such storm left a track over five miles wide and it could be traced for more than 40 miles. Many fine crops on some farms were entirely ruined by hail, and most of the cutting off the plants a few inches from the ground, as though they had been roughly mowed with a sickle. The area of crop completely wiped out by the hail has been estimated at between 14,000 and 15,000 acres, in which the biggest yield in four out of six years. It is a very early maturing, and has shown great resistance to rust.

Consider now few things are worthy of anger, and then wonder why so many fools should be wroth.—Dodsley.

Commonplace thought it may appear, this doling of one's duty endlessly is the highest ideal of life.—Smiles.

It is a curious method of promoting temperance was once in practice in Holland. Storeliner dies, and there was supposed to lead to people taking too much before they died or are taxed.

Strangers Call

by Edythe Squier Draper

Sheriff William Bruen, otherwise known as "Don't-call-me-Bill" abruptly halted his perambulating feet. His monstrous form swelled impressively. He stared at an auto mobile, an unfamiliar automobile, drawn up to the curb in front of Snider's Pharmacy.

"Bill!" Don't-call-me-Bill muttered. "Never seen that rig before."

His mountainous shoulders squared pompously as he chewed the end off a fresh cigar and clamped his big teeth into it viciously. The car he noted, was empty of passengers. His gaze sought its license plate.

"Ohio, huh? Must be strangers about."

Probably inside Snider's getting a soda, he thought. Well, they might as well know straight off who William Bruen was. They weren't no bedraggled tourist gazed for in the whole of Cedar County.

He cursed mightily as cool cider-ey, tightened his cravat noose-like and pulled down the wide brim of his weather-proof fedora to a sharper angle. The salient ears below the hat's brim reddened; the bulging yellow eyes grew fierce. With an aggressive protrusion of jaw and cigar he yanked open the Pharmacy screen door and strutted inside.

"Hello!" he bellowed. The door clattered shut behind him.

A middle-aged man, neatly dressed in tan serge, intercepted himself in the revolving file of picture postcard racks. The blonde, blue-eyed youth in shirt sleeves and apron belted the soda fountain looked up, startled.

"Yes, sir. Is there something—"

"Whose you? Don't-call-me-Bill demanded pugnaciously.

The attendant looked flabbergasted.

"Me? Why, yes sir. I'm Frank Green."

"Snider's hired ya, eh?" The sheriff turned on the prospective purchaser of postal cards. "And who're you?"

"Did you address me, sir?"

"Don't be sassy you! I'm sheriff here ... William Bruen my name, and don't ya go to callin' me Bill!" The man's face paled slightly as he smiled tolerantly. He extracted a tooth brush from his breast coat pocket.

"Very well, Sheriff. I am Gerald McNutt. My card. Stopping at the hotel across there."

He handed a card of the law at the card.

"Stock broker, eh?"

He lighted his cigar from the counter lighter and blew a cloud of smoke.

"Either of you know whose car that is?" He nodded with his head. his head toward the parked automobile.

Both expressed ignorance of its owner.

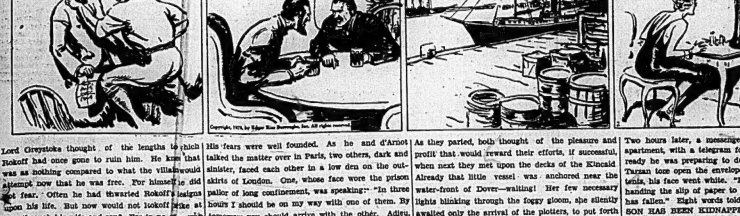
"Huh. Where's Snider?"

"He went down to his farm this afternoon, sir," the clerk answered.

"Farm, eh? Well! Well, gimme a pint of vanilla. Those paper pails I'll in the dinner pail. Got any?"

The Sheriff slouped to the door. "I find whose car this is, buzz me."

Don't-call-me-Bill trundled across the street, leaning on the curb-stone and look enormously important. He felt the eyes of the entire village and the brother were following him. He felt the eyes of the entire village and the brother were following him. He felt the eyes of the entire village and the brother were following him



TILLIE THE TOILER

BRINGING UP FATHER

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 2.

Lord Greystoke thought of the lengths to which Rokoff had once gone to ruin him. He knew that was as nothing compared to what the villain would attempt now that he was free. For himself he did not fear. Often he had thwarted Rokoff's designs upon his life. But now would not Rokoff strike at him through his wife and son? For in no other way could he inflict greater anguish.

His fears were well founded. As he and d'Arnot talked the matter over in Paris, two others, dark and sinister, faced each other in a low den on the outskirts of London. One, whose face wore the prison pallor of long confinement, was speaking: "In three hours I should be on my way with one of them. By tomorrow you should arrive with the other. Adieu, and good luck!"

As they parted, both thought of the pleasure and profit that would reward their efforts, if successful, when next they met upon the decks of the Kincaid. Already that little vessel was anchored near the water-front of Dover—waiting! Her few necessary lights blinking through the foggy gloom, she silently awaited only the arrival of the plotters, to put forth into the Atlantic.

Two hours later, a messenger arrived at d'Arnot's apartment, with a telegram for Lord Greystoke. Already he was preparing to depart for London. As Tarzan tore open the envelope a cry learned its contents, his face went white. "Read it, Paul," he said, handing the slip of paper to his friend. "The blow has fallen." Eight words told a tragic story: "OUR SON HAS BEEN KIDNAPPED, COME AT ONCE. JANE."

And so here he was at ...eresa's, and his heart was beat...g madly for her!

After the last guest had gone, Theresa slipped her arm through his. "I'm starved," she declared. "Aren't you?"

She led the way to the porcelain and nickle kitchen, and like hungry children they rummaged in the ice box. As he sat beside her at the table, white table, munching cold chicken laid between slices of bread and drinking milk, he realized that this domestic scene had helped him to make up his mind. He knew now that this gracious, lovely girl should be his wife.

"If you feel equal to getting up early, we'll have a round of golf before breakfast," she suggested, as she cleared away the scraps and opened the back door.

"Fine," he answered, but she wasn't listening.

"Beat with you," she cried, suddenly.

Paul looked over her shoulder in time to see a gray kitten scampering away. "Vera's cat was trying to get in," she explained. "Probably it's hungry. It's a wretched little beast".

"Don't you like cats?" he asked in surprise.

"Do you?" she countered, smiling up at him.

"I love you, kitten," he affirmed, and reached for her.

After he was in bed, Paul found his mind returning to Betty, who was poor, but exquisitely pretty. She was the daughter of a country doctor, and started as secretary to a specialist. Paul had spent the previous week-end down visiting her father's old brick home, "Chimneys", and enjoyed every minute of his stay. On Sunday morning they had eaten a huge breakfast of sausage and hot cakes, racing to see who could finish the platter first; they had taken long walks through the autumn woods, and he had confided to her his professional ambitions.

"It must be great to be an engineer," she had said, and her brown eyes were alight with eager interest.

Pitting Betty to a country week-end, Dr. Sales arranged a possum hunt for him.

Paul roused from a pleasant half-doze as he remembered that possum hunt. He and Betty had walked miles, stumbling excitedly through the dark, mysterious woods, guided by flickering lights and eerie noises. Then had come the brisk chasing of the dogs, when they treed the possum. Betty had turned away and shuddered. "Poor creature," she had whispered. He sighed—half-dozing. Next he thought of her feeding the cats. There were four yellow-and-white ones.

"I'm desolate because I can't have a kitten in my apartment in town", she mourned. "Daddy has to take care of my pets for me."

He drowsily recalled Theresa's annoyed "Beat with you!" and his sleep-drugged mind knew vaguely that all this thinking was supposed to lead somewhere; but where he did not know, So he sank deeper into slumber and dreamed that he was playing golf with Betty, while Theresa chased gray kittens across the links.

Next morning the sun was bright and the air invigorating when Paul hurried out to keep his engagement with Theresa. A few minutes she appeared, wearing a russet knit suit, jaunty cap, and looking radiant. A proposal was on the tip of his tongue, but something held him back.

"You are beautiful this morning" he said, and let his eyes finish the message.

She flushed and busied herself selecting a club. Her ball flashed surely across the green, and then she was no more time for romance. He played a fair game, but she beat him easily, and laughed at his obvious discomfiture.

"You'll improve with practice," she consoled him. Then changing the subject abruptly, "Have you tried selling your book?" she inquired.

"Never," he answered, emphatically. "I'm an engineer, you know."

"But there is no money in that," she answered carefully. "And what happen to know that Vera's husband can use a young man of ability."

They walked slowly back to the house, and Paul mind was in a pantry. The wide lawns, the pretentious home, were all as one forbidding for they would have to be lived up to. He had hoped his ignorance, that Vera's influential husband might help him get established; but Paul would not be swamped up in a bonding house. Would Thedena be content with what her husband could give her, or would she expect him to get rich the quickest way? One doubt assailed him. Then he reassured himself. Theresa was lovely; she could not be ruthless or even unkind.

They had reached the side verandah and started up the low stone steps. "Me-ow!" a ball of gray fur wailed.

"Golly, I almost stepped on it!" He stooped to pick up the mite, but Theresa was quicker than he was. She snatched it with what seemed needful

$300,000 Storm Damage Reported in W. Ontario Sleet Causes Havoc

Little Sleet But Heavy Snowfall in East Ontario

TORONTO IS HIT

Telephone and Electric Services Are Interrupted in West

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 2—Swept by one of the worst sleet storms in its history, Western Ontario today fought through a maze of telegraph and telephone wires to resume communication with other parts of the province. A terrific gale, accompanied by snow, hail sleet and rain swept through the area during yesterday, levelling poles and tearing wires from their insulators. Icy highways added to the difficulties of repair gangs, and motor traffic was practically at a standstill.

Early reports that began to trickle in from centres which had been completely isolated earlier, Most of the reports were similar; high winds, sleet, wires down; poles down; trees broken. But not a single injury as a result of the storm had been reported early today. Estimates of the damage varied from $100,000 to $300,000 with the latter figures being quoted efrnest.

Every Line Broken

Hamilton reported that every line in a radius of 25 miles had been broken by the weight of ice and sleet. Along the Caledonia highway particularly, miles of wire was broken. The same condition prevailed to the north and lines to Galt, Guelph, Windsor and other points were down. Scores of farm homes were without power and it was feared the service could not be restored for several days.

Hundreds of trees were stripped of their limbs and many more snapped off under the load. Heavy losses were reported in the fruit area. The storm cut a swath about 15 miles wide from Toronto to the Windsor-Sarnia line. One hundred telephone poles collapsed in the short stretch from London to St. Thomas. Many cars were ditched east of London, but conditions were slightly better around Chatham.

Toronto District.

Toronto and district also suffered heavily. Between Erindale, Milton, Brampton and Georgetown the telephone company were faced with considerable damage to its many fallen poles. Just outside Brampton, 27 poles in one line collapsed. The company reported the breaks were so numerous that no estimate of their number could yet be reached. Crews were busy repairing them as they found them; and it might be days before the service was fully normal.

North York township was without power all yesterday and last night. Hydro commission linesmen performed heroically in an effort to restore the service.

Beamsville, also described high by conditions as the worst in years. At one time ten automobiles were on the general highway of water covered the road in low spots. Stranded motorists occupied every available shelter.

At Mackenzie in Home.

From Caledonia came word that fifty telephone poles were down in a single farmhouse, afraid to travel further on the perilous highways.

Guelph was in darkness for many hours and telephone and communication was entirely cut off. More than 150 telephone poles were strewn along streets and roads, the wires and cables lying along the highways added to the danger of motoring. According to officials, it will require more than a month to clean up the debris and have telephone and telegraph services.

ONE KILLED IN A DISPUTE

Sault Ste. Marie Jan. 2.—A boyish argument with the firing of a single shot, and the death of Joseph Kurilovich, 19 years old, here yesterday. The bullet, fired by a 15 year old youth, penetrated Kurilovich's stomach, and he died in the General Hospital a few hours afterward. The other youth is held in the police jail.

The argument began when Kurilovich and a group of foreign born boys from the West End were hurling dead rabbits. The 15 year old boy, who had been standing along and drenched the fire with water. Challenged to a fight by the latter hour and he would be there.

Both appeared at the park at two o'clock. Kurilovich started the fire again, according to the statement given by witnesses to the police. The other youth, the dead enemy, had reached beneath his coat, obtained a sawed-off rifle and fired at Kurilovich, the bullet striking him in the stomach.

Belleville Digs Itself Out of Foot of Snow—Is Still Fall

ROADS VERY HEAVY

Narrow Escape From Sleet Saves Services

Belleville and the surrounding district is digging itself out of the heavy sleet snow fall yet experienced this season. The first day of the new year finds some 6 foot deep in the more sheltered districts and piled high in drifts out in the open. The district through which the north western gale carried it in its sweep from the western section of the province. Further west considerable difficulty is experienced, especially as a sleet storm and high winds which resulted in interrupted services to traffic of all kinds. Railroads in some places have been reported clear. Hillcullies and roads have also been impassable for all varieties of motor traffic. Both heavy and district fortunately escaped the more vigorous force of the heavy sleet storm by a narrow margin as the heavy snow at times threatened to develop into a finer sleet owing to the force of the wind and the fact that the weather turned somewhat warmer, but later on the cold wave again made its appearance and the snow underwent change.

No interruptions of any sort have been reported in this district and mail services are being conducted without necessity of having the snow mechanically removed on the roads which will be used by either the trucks or the railroads. Railway officials report all clear; different rural deliveries and transportation companies state that they are running on schedule. The Tweed stage in particular will follow the usual routine as formerly.

Locally nearly all manner of conveyances for public service, from cars on runners and a city force of men are hard at work clearing the sidewalks and crossings for the use of pedestrians who find it difficult to become accustomed to the snow on short notice. The weather is rapidly moderating and sleet or rain may be expected momentarily, however, snow in large heavy flakes still continues to fall in ever increasing amounts. The market this morning was very small and only those rural residents who live on the more travelled roads have had the hardihood to use their cars in coming to town. Many others have remained at home for the holidays and the jingling bells which drawn behind the heavy draught horses presents a truly old fashioned wintry appearance.

POTATO GROWERS GET GOOD NEWS

Movement in Great Britain to Have Embargo Lifted

Saint John, Jan 2.—T. W. Caldwell sailed from Saint John today on the Canadian Pacific steamship Montclare, too late to hear that English interests were through in favor of lifting the embargo on Canada potatoes.

F. P. J. Sclanders, Commissioner of the Saint John Board of Trade, said this information from the old Country was highly gratifying.

"It really means that the ground is being favorably prepared for the removal of the embargo and information and for the efforts of Hon. Robert Weir, the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, to have it removed.

"The circumstances are very propitious, and the situation looks decidedly hopeful."

Opinion in Britain

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Coincident with the coming to England to T. W. Caldwell of Ottawa, seeking removal of the 1925 embargo on potatoes from Canada, strong representations in favor of lifting this ban are being made by British shipping, trade and agricultural men. They contend Britain this year is faced with the probability of a serious shortage of home-grown potatoes and they also point to the new duties on foreign grown potatoes from foreign countries.

Monarch Prays for Prosperity

LONDON, Jan. 2.—A prayer for the return of prosperity, together with the peace of the world and the strength of united purpose, was uttered today in a New Year's message from the king to the people, in the form of a prayer of the citizens of London, presented by the Lord Mayor.

"We live in times fraught with difficulties," the king said in his message of thanks, "and during the anxious days through which we have been passing the courage, determination and sacrifice of all classes to restore the fortunes of the country have truly filled me with admiration."

DEATH A PUZZLE

Mystery enshrouds the death of John J. Visser, vice-president of a Chicago auto sales firm. Police believed that the banker shot himself after a quarrel with Antonius van Worden, an investor, during which it is claimed he attacked the latter with a lead pipe. The theory is that Visser, believing himself to have killed Worden committed suicide.

FINLAND WET BY LARGE VOTE

Vote For Repealing Prohibition Law is Almost Five to One

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan 2—Finland on Thursday rolled up a huge popular vote in favor of repealing the national prohibition law. Official returns from urban and rural districts showed an almost five-to-one ballot for repudiation of the dry laws, which have been in effect for 12 years, running almost parallel to the length of prohibition in the United States. Forecasts of a heavy dry vote in the farming districts failed to materialize to any material extent.

The complete unofficial returns showed a vote of 76 per cent. in favor of abolishing prohibition, while about one per cent. voted for modification to permit manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

The figures were:

Repeal	457,697
Prohibition	46,660
Modification	3,142

In both rural and urban districts the vote for light wines and beer was negligible.

The most surprising feature of the referendum, according to the returns from farming areas in the Gulf of Bothnia, dry area supposed to be comparatively strong. Official returns from 80 rural communities disclosed a vote of 78,953 for abolition of prohibition as compared to 18,581 for the dry laws under the present laws.

The vote for light wines and beer was slightly higher in the farming area, totalling almost one per cent of the total vote.

In Helsingfors, where 83,642 voted for repeal and 13,406 voted for prohibition, the vote for moderation was only 563.

Great Victory for Repeal

The Helsingfors press unanimously hailed the referendum as an overwhelming victory for repeal. The newspapers said the Labor party, which has been strongly dry in its platform and in the activity in Parliament, had voted largely wet on abstention. The agrarians, also dry in policy, appeared to have followed a similar trend.

Right electric light bulbs have been put on a Los Angeles speedway to enable auto racing at night.

JUDGE M'LEAN SETTLES SUIT

Lawyer and His Honor Act Part of Good Samaritans

KINGSTON, Jan. 2.—In division court Thursday Judge L. H. McLean, K.C., in Picton set a new fashion in judicial procedure when he put on the table $5 bills and paid $5 per for the defence, W. F. Nickle, K.C., to pay the costs of plaintiffs in a case where illitarats disputed over the sum of ten dollars. The defendant in the case was a shell-shocked soldier who experienced difficulty in finding the right point in the case intelligible to the court. Both parties settled out of court and did their utmost to make him feel at ease and Judge McLean, when he reached a point where their claims approached within ten dollars.

"The case is settled on that basis," announced Judge McLean. "it will cost you five dollars and Mr. Nickle will put up five dollars."

His Honor took a five dollar bill over the bench to the clerk of the court and called the next case.

Rumors that the Welsh Guards, of which the Prince of Wales is Colonel, were to disband, have been denied.

LIBRARY CORNER

The philosophy of a world-renowned physician is given in the volume "The Student Life and Ideals of Sir William Osler. Born seventh in a struggling Canadian family in the "backwoods of Ontario," his early life was very humble one. Of this family of nine, the eldest was to become a Justice of Ontario, the youngest, Osler's brother, the Right Honorable Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Dominion Bank of Canada and a director of the Canadian Pacific Railway and himself the Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford. His education was acquired at Trinity College School, Weston, Trinity College, Toronto. McGill University where he acquired a lectureship and later a Professorship in Physiology. His outstanding work gave him the honour of membership of the Royal College of Physicians. As he progressed, he was offered the Principalship of McGill but refused. His death in 1919 brought to a close a life of great achievement in the medical field. The four essays collected in this volume are: "Aequanimitas," "The Student Life," "Man's Redemption of Man," "A Way of Life," and "Science and Immortality."

"History of Palestine" by Anrelo S. Rappoport covers, in parts one pre-Israelite; Palestine; in part two, Palestine from the conquest of Canaan to the conquest of Rome; and in part three Palestine from 70 A.D. to the present (1930). Rappoport in his introduction describes Palestine as "a country that represents the birthplace of religion, which for centuries has been the cynosure of the eyes of humanity." As the seat of the League of Nations mandate for Palestine is given in full in the last chapter. A map of modern Palestine and a table of contents are included also. Students of Biblical history find this book to be very valuable.

An informal little volume of delightful essays in the belief that the Americans are becoming "a genuinely vocal race, pronounced people" has been written by Robert Emmons Rogers in "Speaking of English Literature at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "How To Be Interesting" sets forth the popular style the use and development of the voice in speech and the attainment of culture through conversation. All are clever, interesting and interested. The author describes the book as one that "does not guarantee to do anything for you. It is not based on any system of self-culture, nor does it, by personal observation and practice, claim authority." Decidedly effective. No one who after reading it finds that he is still uninterested has any legal grounds for recovery.

Sketches of the life, folklore and superstitions of the Breton fishermen as well as of the history of the chief fisheries are given by Peter Le Huray in "Mariners of Brittany." The author experienced great difficulties in procuring material as the average Breton has both a prejudice and fear of revealing himself to a stranger, and about such trivial things as the measurements of his boat. Mr. Anson, an artist as well as an author, effectively accompanies with his subject and presents Brittany by both pictures and words. His pen drawings of harbours and boats are fine examples of accuracy and grace.

$100,000 in Gems Booty in Holdup in Mayfair

Bandits Yank Hat Down Over Eyes of Manager

STREET ROBBERY

Large Touring Car Used By Thieves to Make Escape

20 SECONDS

None of Passersby Can Give Good Description of Men

London, Jan. 4 (AP).—In one of the most daring holdups which has occurred in London in many years, several men in an automobile today robbed the manager of a jewelry store of $100,000 worth of gems in the heart of Mayfair.

They drew up to the curb in Regent Street as the manager was walking to his shop from a bank not more than fifty yards away, carrying his firm's most valuable jewels which had been stored in the night safe overnight.

They simply yanked his hat down over his face, threw him to the sidewalk, seized the gems, washed back into the car and sped away.

It was a big touring car but the holdup took only about twenty seconds and none of the passersby could provide a good description of either the car or the robbers.

Don't Shovel Snow Away

"When shovelling snow from your sidewalk, don't throw it into the street, but throw it onto the lawn. When you throw it out on the road it is of no benefit to your lawn or to the road-bed. The snow on the road-way is much better without it."

The above advice was made this morning by a prominent horticulturist who says that he has followed this practice for some years with excellent results.

NINE PERSONS DIE VIOLENTLY

Weekend Toll in Ontario Heaviest in Some Weeks

DROPS LAMP CAUSES BLAZE

Heavy Fire Loss Suffered By Village of Heworth

Owen Sound, Ont., Jan. 4—Four buildings on the main street of the village of Heworth were destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss of several thousand dollars. Had it not been for the heroic work rendered by the Owen Sound fire brigade, which responded to the call from the village, it is possible that the loss would have been even greater.

The building destroyed were a grocery store owned by Messrs. Allison and Gordon, in which the fire started, the Masonic building, with a fire upstairs, a small shoe repair shop, and a large building owned by Mrs. Johnston.

The fire started when Miss Allison dropped a lamp. She thought she had put out the fire but on returning to the room later found the whole place in flames.

Hundreds of Tons of Snow Dumped in River

Tons of snow are being removed from the downtown district this morning and are being dumped in the river at the embankment just below the lower bridge on the west side of the river.

Fifty-odd men and twelve trucks, under the supervision of the department of public works have been engaged at the task on Front Street since early last hour this morning and a number more are at work in the outlying districts clearing the snow from crossings, city property and sidewalks. The work is being done on both sides this number of men on snow removal. Some fifty five men are still employed on the water works main, and a few more on the open air rinks of the city, which brings the total up to some one hundred and twenty-five men. This has been the largest force of men employed by the city for a considerable time, and breaks all employment records so far this season.

POLICE SEEK PERPETRATORS

Attempt to Bomb St. Louis Mart Bring Police Into Action

Chicago, Ills., Jan. 4—The police of four cities today sought the perpetrators of three bombings and an attempt to dynamite the St. Louis Mart, a 30-story structure in the heart of the industrial district of the Missouri metropolis. No one was killed or injured.

None of the bombings, however, had any apparent connection with the recent widespread plot directed against Italian citizens.

The bombs were exploded in Coeur D'Alene, Idaho, Trenton, N.J., and Chicago Peace Day last night.

At Coeur D'Alene two dynamite bombs were thrown at the home of County Commissioner Emmett M. Barnes. The bomb one failed to explode, and the second struck a small tree and exploded with terrific force before reaching the house. Barnes left in charge of unemployment relief expenditures in county roads, but could give no explanation of the matter.

The Mayor's Address

Mayor Tice, at his inaugural today, spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

I must first of all express to the voters of the City of Belleville my deep sense of gratitude and heartfelt appreciation of the great honor conferred upon me when they elected me to the highest official position within their power to bestow. At the same time I wish to pay tribute to the retiring mayor for the clean and honorable campaign he carried on in the election contest and to compliment him upon the success with which he presided over the city's affairs during what has undoubtedly been the most important and constructive period in our history. He served the city loyally and well and has given of his best to the public.

The municipality will have enlarged representation on the aldermanic board this year because of a gratifying increase of population which makes necessary the addition of another member to the former group of twelve.

It is a satisfaction to note that so many members of the new council are men of civic experience. Of the thirteen aldermen-elect no less than ten have previously served the city in the municipal council. I can safely predict that all the departments will be capably administered over and maintained because of the wisdom gained from this practical experience and because of the ripeness of judgment and fine ability of the personnel of the council.

YEAR OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

The past year has been one of notable civic achievement. We have witnessed the completion of a new filtration plant by which our citizens will be furnished with an adequate supply of pure, palatable water and with no increase of rates to the water users. A scheme of improvement is being carried out around the pumping station which will result in a park of real beauty spots of the city. The council of 1931 also authorized the installation of an auxiliary watermain as an economy measure with unemployment relief and also to serve the useful purpose of reducing the fire hazard.

The sale of our gas plant to the Ontario Hydro Gas Company might be interpreted by those without knowledge of the facts of the case as a repudiation of the principle of public ownership and therefore perhaps be the cause of criticism. But even the most casual examination of the circumstances and circumstances has unanimously convinced our citizens that the sale of this plant is in the interests of the city, relieved of an enormous debenture debt and a recurrent annual deficit and is supported of a

ENCYCLICAL IS DISCUSSED

Primate Appreciates Moral Appeal But Not Methods

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 4.—(By the Canadian press)—Archbishop C. O. Worrell, Primate of the church of England in Canada, in a statement today commemorated on the Christmas Day Encyclical of Pope Pius XI. The Pontiff's encyclical called for a reunion of Catholics and Protestants throughout the world.

"That a United Christian Church be devoutly desired by all true believers in Christ as the thing most needed to day and the end of the business into which it has fallen—alike in Roman as in Protestant Communities—is the belief of every bishop said.

"The church can never be accomplished by the absorption of one body by a dictatorship which results on imposing long-restained and fully developed tenets as the condition for union. Leaving out those who have time at their disposal to study controversy upon Pope Pius' recent encyclical, I have just a word to say, and that a word addressed to, for it I am alone responsible," said the Prime in issuing his statement. "I have neither inclination nor leisure for a controversy which might well be provoked by discussion at this point involved. In passing I must thankfully express my full indorsement on much of the contents of his encyclical, and that for the sake of for his appeal for the high principles of moral life. I regret I cannot agree with him in the methods he proposes for their safeguarding."

The archbishop's statement on the encyclical follows:

"Rome and Reunion"

"The encyclical is a combination

Following a family quarrel at 40 Camilton Road shortly after ten o'clock Monday morning, Mrs. Eva Accara, wife of Michael Accara, was wounded in the back twice by Antonio Accara, 70, her father-in-law who shortly after the affair was arrested by the police and taken to the police station for incarceration. Mrs. Accara was rushed to the Belleville hospital after she ran to the home of Mrs. Wm. Myers, 39 Camilton Road, where she collapsed. Dr. Robertson attended the woman at the hospital and stated that her wounds were not serious, although the knife penetrated as she was from loss of blood. The woman bled profusely before entering the hospital.

It is understood that Michael Accara and his wife have been living for some time at the home of his father, and at times there have been wordy differences among the two families. Today Michael was at his employment at the C. N. R. and Mrs. Michael Accara and Antonio were alone in the house. What caused the discussion leading up to the alleged stabbing at the time was not ascertained but apparently the man picked up a knife lying on the table and while Mrs. Accara's back was turned, he plunged it into her back. Apparently it was a straight thrust or more serious results might have followed. It is believed a struggle ensued and that she was stabbed again in the back by a pair of scissors. The woman then ran screaming from the house to that of a neighbor, Mrs. Van Meer, who in turn notified the police.

Sergeant Detective Trusiach rushed to the scene in the ambulance and learning of the stabbing, rushed on ahead to the hospital and later returned to investigate the affair. He arrested Antonio Accara, after he received a short statement from Mrs. Michael Accara, the wounded woman, and also obtained the knife and scissors that were said to have been used in the stabbing. At the police station, Antonio Accara, it is alleged told the police that the quarrel arose from the fact that Michael Accara would not allow his wife to come into the house on Camilton Road. The police will continue their further investigation into the affair and Antonio Accara will appear in police court on Tuesday charged with stabbing. There is no fear of the woman's life as the condition of Mrs. Accara as the physician in charge states that the wounds were not of a serious nature, although she bled profusely.

DAIRY STARTS REBUILDING

Trenton Company Replacing Plant Recently Destroyed

Trenton, Ont. (Special) — Old Man Winter who has been a hold out up until the New Year has certainly made up for lost time with a vengeance in the storm here and in the surrounding district. Also some of the day was that of cars being pushed, snowed and pulled out of drifts. Not so many years ago cars were rarely seen in the winter season. Then sleighs, cutters and bells came back into their own, on Saturday, in the town and country.

A pair of horses stepping down the road, heads up and bells all a-jingle and you cuddled down to, to the manner born, you feel a great deal more like life and living than all the high powered cars of eight cylinder cars of today.

In early days the favorite sport was that of "hooking rides" with the butcher, the baker, the grocer or whoever would offer, to ride. Of course we must not advise with the times, still it does no harm to go back into the memories of a few years ago.

The fish shanties are beginning to make their appearance on the bay and soon a small village of shanties will be established. Some who go to fish, and, others for sport and those who wish a quiet spot to read and relax, use them in winter days.

A strong thru the bush now would help one to appreciate and marvel at the wonders of nature. The dress of the trees in winter has now replaced by a cloak of snow. The color of the landscape is enhanced by the white intermingled with the green. The trees that stand pop up from nowhere with his great ears tilting to catch the strange sounds, that are not heard in great hops thru the snow. It is then one's fancy takes flight and one we hear so much about and one is truly glad to be able to enjoy life which is nature-in itself.

Besides the fact that the snow is enjoyed by the young folk it is a decided boon to some of the more unfortunate, for instance, the town immediately set a number of men to work to clear the streets and hauling the snow away.

The Trenton Dairy Co. Ltd., which was burned by fire some time ago are rebuilding on the old site. A more modern and up-to-date plant. The building will be a 1 story brick building and the building will be somewhat larger than the old the dimensions will be 51 x 46.

Mechanical refrigeration will be installed to replace the old method. All new and modern equipment will give the plant a production of approximately 12,000 lbs. of cream per day.

They hope to be operating in their new plant by the 1st of March.

The trial of our chicken thieves took place yesterday, one Hawton Jr., who was on parole received a sentence of not less than 2 months or more than 2 years in jail.

Mr. Woodcock received the same sentence in the absence of the man charge with which, he was now on suspended sentence for. It is to be sorry, also that of stealing chickens, the two accused were run concurrently. Mr. Foshay, John Turnbull's and his wife Louise were released on a suspended sentence and bound over in the sum of $100.00 for one year. They also had to make restitution and pay the costs of court.

LONDON, Jan. 4. — (Canadian Press Cable) — London's policemen from today completely alter the system of uniformed patrols in an effort to baffle the criminal who familiarizes himself with the Constable marching his beat. It was an ironic coincidence the change was effected at the same time as robbers snatched gems worth $100,000 from a jeweller as he walked along the street.

TWO ARE SHOT AT PRACTICE

After Accidental Wounding of Friend, Boy Shoots Self

Collingwood, Ont., Jan. 4 (By The Canadian Press) — A double tragedy overshadowed George Gordon and Lawrence Hawton, 18, to Collingwood hospital today and both were reported in a precarious condition. The two youths lived on adjoining farms in Nottawasaga Township.

The shooting took place in the bush near the home of Hawton, The lads, who have been lifelong friends, went out together yesterday with a shotgun and a .32 rifle to shoot at a target. In some way the shotgun in Hawton's hands discharged and the shot struck Gordon in the side.

Hawton ran towards his home about three-quarters of a mile to get help and on the way became so grief-stricken over the wounding of his companion that he turned the rifle on himself inflicting a wound in the chest.

The double shooting was discovered about an hour after the time the shooting is believed to have taken place. A 12-year-old brother of Hawton heard feeble cries and called his father. After a search the two wounded boys were discovered.

Police are investigating the shooting. The story of how the shotgun discharged and the wounding of himself was told by Hawton before he lost consciousness.

MAYOR TICE

to be accomplished in the coming year. A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Alderman Armstrong and Ald. Hill for the splendid address for which the Mayor replied stating "that he did not think a Mayor ever came to office with a better council than the one elected for the ensuing year."

No Snap Judgments

Under the head of motions at the close of the business session, Alderman Armstrong presented a motion, seconded by Ald. Woodley, "that any persons or delegations desiring to address the board to the council shall appear before the council while in session and not before the head of general business and that they shall appear before, after hearing same, the council shall refer the matter to the committee for further consideration." Ald. Woodley speaking to the motion declared that this procedure would do away with snap judgment in the committee room and every question could be fully discussed before a decision was made. Alderman Armstrong, Woodley and Marshall spoke in favor of the motion along the same lines as Alderman Woodley. Opposed the motion thinking it was in the best interest to hear the delegation in committee. After discussing put, it was carried, only Alderman Walker opposing.

Chairmanships

In the committee of the whole with Alderman Woodley in the chair, the chairman of the various committees of the council were appointed. There was no change from the list that was published after the caucus of the new council held on Thursday evening last. Alderman Woodley was again elected chairman of the committee and the following were elected to the respective committees: Public Works, Alderman William Donaldson, Waterworks, Alderman Reynolds, Ald. Harry Hill. Market and City Property, Ald. Woodley, Armstrong, Ald. Marshall. Harold A. Armstrong, Industries, Ald. Armstrong, Ald. Hill. Printing and Stationery, Aldermast Harry A. Morgan, Alderman Harry A. Morgan, Power, Alderman A. E. McMillan, Tourist and publicity, Alderman Reynolds. Sanitary Appointments.

The board of the election of the chairmanships the council went into the matter of salaries and a number of appointments were made. Mr. Frank Bateman, city clerk, Morley P. Duff was re-appointed to the Library Board, Mr. Ald. Bateman, Mrs. Ald. Bateman and Charles N. Sulman were appointed to the Board of Health, Charles N. Sulman taking the seat left vacant by Alderman and D Snell and John Lafferty were re-appointed to the Police Board and Messrs. J. Agnes McFeeand Ex-Ald. F. Russell Wotten were appointed to the Board of Public School Trustees in place of the retiring members, Ald. Bateman and Education.

Before the council adjourned, Rev. Dr. Baker and Rev. Dr. Seymour Symons, on behalf of the clergy to leave the council chamber due to other appointments and before Mr. St. Michael's Academy in its magnificent new building, the linking up of our paving sys, across the Bridge street and Front street north, the more adequate illumination of our principal thoroughfares and other items of progressive endeavor. They have all made important contributions towards making Belleville a city in which every resident can take pardonable pride and establishing for Belleville a reputation for worthy civic enterprise and all that makes urban life worth living. Belleville is growing.

The year before us, however, is one of extreme difficulty. It is a proposition that we all hoped, a year ago, would now be pretty well lifted and is still with us and more severe than ever. Many citizens find themselves with sadly depleted incomes. Many more are out of work and the consequent distress is being compelled to seek relief.

Our immediate need, while not dangerously large, as is the case with several other municipalities in Ontario, has nevertheless reached a total such as should give us the gravest concern.

I will therefore do my best to carry out a policy of the most rigid economy in the affairs of Belleville is in the fortunate position of having no debenture maturities to completion the major proportion of all the improvements essential to cities of our size. Some of these, such as our water works and electric light utilities are self-sustaining services that do not impose any monetary obligations. Other items such as sewers, sidewalks and pavements, are being paid for by frontage taxes. Still others must be entirely provided for out of the general tax. But, taken collectively, they make up an extremely serious total of civic responsibility.

Unavoidable Taxation

It should be remembered also that many items of civic taxation or expenditure are entirely outside the control of the council. The cost of construction and maintenance of all provincial highways for instance, in two of our principal roads. Then there are the roads under the Suburban Area Commission towards which the city contributes 25 percent. And then there are the assessments of which we have advanced enormously within the period of inflation since the war.

I do not recommend the dangerous and short-sighted policy of starvation of the civic services but I do say that everything, in every department, there should be the strictest economy and before a single dollar is expended the urgency and necessity for such expenditure should be clearly understood. By such careful and cautious supervision of the affairs of state we hope to bring about some relief for the all too heavily burdened rate-payer.

Interest in Civics

In conclusion, I appeal to every citizen to take an intelligent interest in the affairs of the city. The members of the council are now your masters, but your servants. They cannot act without the co-operation by way of helpful suggestion and constructive criticism. I will work with them in harmony and co-ordinate our efforts we can make of Belleville a still better city and a home that will bring about a realization of our highest civic ideals.

Wishing for all citizens happiness and prosperity throughout the year that is before us and hoping I may prove worthy of the trust you have reposed in me, I am

GEO. O. TICE.
Mayor and Chief Magistrate.

Sleeping on Stone Floor of Tent on Top of House in Bombay, When Taken Viceroy Pens Stern Rebuke to Mahatma, Gandhi Responsible

NO DICTATION

Gandhi and Nationalists Held Responsible For Consequences

Bombay, Jan. 4 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi was arrested early today, for the second time within a year and a half, and Nationalist India once more prepared a campaign of civil disobedience.

President Vallabhai Patel of the Indian National Congress party was taken into custody. Both were arrested under Bombay regulations of 1827, and the warrant stated that they were being arrested to "prevent, avoid, and to check for "good and sufficient reason."

Gandhi was arrested as he was sleeping on the stone floor of a tent erected also on the roof of his tenements. He received the warrant from the head of the Bombay police with serenity, and smilingly handed it to his brother Hindu without comment, this being his day of silence.

Four minutes later Gandhi was whisked through Bombay's dark, quiet streets toward Yerwada.

Gives Note to Correspondent

As the prisoner's car sped, he was flanked by Mrs. Gandhi and Miss Madeline Slade, an English journalist Press correspondent through the darkness of the night, a resounding whack on the back. He put his clenched arm around him and handed him a hurriedly penciled note. Then he entered the swift automobile which the police had waiting for him.

Vallabhai Patel, shortly after his arrest, appointed Babu Rejendra Prasad to direct Nationalists as President of the Congress.

Viceroy Lord Willingdon's drastic move was made after eleventh-hour attempts of moderate Nationalist leaders to bring about a compromise had failed. Gandhi postponed the scheduled fast in which he had embedded, in the hopes that he could come to an agreement with the Viceroy over the new ordinances against agitation.

Sir Tej Bahadar Sapru and M. Jayakar, delegates to London Round Table Conference, were understood to have telegraphed the Viceroy, seeking a compromise.

Is Held Responsible

British authorities served an ultimatum on Gandhi at 3 o'clock this morning, once more warning him that he and the Indian Nationalist Congress would be held responsible for any revival of the "non-violence" conflict.

"We are prepared to deal with the movement with all the resources at our command," was the injunction of Lord Willingdon.

It was learned that a special ordinance of extraordinary stringency will be promulgated, declaring and declaring the Nationalist Congress an illegal organization.

One of the severest provisions of the ordinance will make it a crime offenses for anybody to contribute funds to the Congress. It is believed secretly aimed at wealthy Bombay mill owners and merchants, who heretofore have been the Congress' liberality with money.

Before his arrest, Gandhi said he wished "to assure the government that every endeavour will be made on the part of the Congress to carry on the activities without violence and in a strictly non-violent manner."

Gandhi's Comment

"It is hardly necessary to remind me that the Viceroy and I, as his humble representative, are responsible for all the consequences of our actions," said Gandhi.

Montreal Experiences a Marriage Slump

Montreal, Que., Jan. 4— (CP) — Montreal is experiencing a marriage slump the worst since the world war—with the issue of licenses and certificates down 10 per cent for the first 9 months of the year.

Dr. Cogaon of the city's statistics department, states that there were 560 fewer marriages this year that last. The total to the end of September was 4,439. In the last three months of 1930 about 1,203 marriages took place but during the same period this year it is estimated that there will be 1,000.

There have also been a great many cancellations of licenses and certificates, presumably prospective brides and bridegrooms are putting off the happy day until the skies are brighter and money is a little more plentiful.

GRAPPLE WITH BIG PROBLEMS

President Beaty Speaks Optimistically of People's Reaction

Montreal, Jan. 4— The following New Year's greeting was issued to the employees and employers of the Canadian Pacific Railway by E. W. Beaty, chairman and president:

"It is a matter of deep regret to me, as I am sure it is to all the officers and employees of the company, that I am unable to be under normal conditions to which I called attention in my last New Year's greeting, but have continued during 1931 and that the company, its officers, employees and shareholders have had to make sacrifices in an endeavour to meet them.

"Two things, however, are combining—First, that the Canadian people are grappling with these problems with characteristic courage and sanity, and, secondly, that the loyalty of the officers and employes of the company to its interests have notably remained unshaken but has been emphasized by the difficulties and they have had to face.

"I am, naturally, optimistic about the future of the country, and I am convinced that before the end of the incoming year, it will be my privilege to send you a message which will record a definite improvement in the economic conditions of this country. In the meantime I wish you, individually, all happiness in the confident hope that 1932 will mark the beginning of an end of the period of sacrifice and hardship through which we have all passed. Good luck to you all."

THREE BANDIT BROTHERS KILL SIX OFFICERS

Three Other Wounded Before Men Escape Through Tunnel

STORY OF CONFLICT

Slayers Hunted By Posse, Bloodhounds and Airplanes

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 4 — Harry Young, ex-convict, and his two brothers, Paul and Jennings, who killed six members of a sheriff's posse while resisting arrest, were hunted by vigilantes, ex-soldiers, police and bloodhounds today in the rugged Ozark county south and west of Springfield.

It was learned that the Youngs escaped through a tunnel leading from the basement of Dan Young's farm house to an orchard 300 yards away after three officers were wounded in the of the officers who had surrounded them late yesterday.

Sheriff Hendrix and other officers went out to make the arrests.

The sheriff, expressing misgivings at what might be in store, divided the men into five groups as they approached the house, which stood out in a cleared space on level ground. He took command of one squad and led it to the front door. The other men circled around to the rear.

As Sheriff Hendrix raised his hand and knocked on the door, a shot came from inside. The officer reeled and fell.

"They've got me — you'd better run," he cried. At the same moment, machine guns went into action from the rear.

The front door was split by more bullets. The sheriff was struck in the forehead. The others in his party dragged him to safety and began firing one by one as they fled.

The desperadoes had the advantage, for they could see the officers, silhouetted in the moon's light, meanwhile left none unscathed.

House Was Stormed

The police were soon attracted and summoned reinforcements, watching the building meanwhile to guard against escape of Young and those who were with him.

Ignored Experts and Made Millions Out of Cataract

John Dickenson Brought Power From Niagara to Hamilton

Hamilton, Jan. 4—John Dickenson is dead—the last of Hamilton's "five Johns," in men who amassed fortunes by ignoring the advice of the greatest experts of their generation.

When the late Lord Kelvin and other experts laughed at their "hare-brained" scheme to bring electric power from Niagara Falls to Hamilton, and when electricity itself was regarded by many as an impractical toy, the five Hamilton Johns put their money into what was later the Hydro Electric and Transmission Company, and became wealthy men and leaders of the community for the rest of their days.

Their audacious and successful experiment marked the beginning of an era of industrial expansion and prosperity for the Hamilton district, and like the five Johns for the vast network of power lines and electric railways which spread in later years across the entire Niagara Peninsula.

The pioneer of power died at his home on the Caledonia highway in Glanford Township Sunday in his 85th year.

He had been in failing health for several months and his condition became critical a week ago, when pneumonia developed.

The deceased was associated with the late Sir John M. Gibson, John Patterson, John Stuart Gartshore and John Moodie in the promotion of the Cataract power enterprise.

Mr. Dickenson outlived three who were associated with him in the Cataract undertaking and held the great portion of his shares until the Hydro purchased the power system and subsidiary companies at a figure exceeding $20,000,000. He had also served as president of the Hamilton and Brantford and Hamilton, Grimsby and Beamsville radial lines and was a director of the Hamilton and Dundas Radial Co. The last ceased to operate several years ago and the other two radial lines in which he was interested have been dispensed with, and bus service is now given. The late Mr. Dickenson was also interested in the Hamilton and Barton Incline Railway Co., which proved a profitable venture for more than a quarter of a century. It, too, Motor cars and electric railways are declining two weeks ago to close its railway.

John Dickenson was born in England and came to Ont. country when a lad. With his parents he settled on a Glanford farm as he was 74 years had lived in the house in which he passed away. He attended the Glanford township public schools and served his time as a house master's apprentice. After spending several years at the trade, he engaged in the contracting business for himself and had a successful career. He erected several of the large buildings of the Ontario Hospital on the Mountain and also built the Ontario Hospital at Mimico.

Ten Year Naval Plan is Considered by States

Seven Hundred Million Expenditure on New Warships

REPLACEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—Talk of arms limitation mergers today with the announcement of plans by the program for $700,000,000 worth of new warships by the next decade.

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Committee said he would introduce measures for the 126 new vessels costing $616,250,000. All of these ships, he explained, would be emphasized, will replace over-age ships.

Meanwhile, officials considered subjects likely to come before the U. S. delegates in their preliminary talk Tuesday on the February Geneva conference.

Vinson's 10-year program, drawn with the assistance of officials of the Navy General Board, also calls for the completion at a cost of $91,500,000. These include seven 8-inch gun, 10,000 cruisers, a controversial type which Great Britain has built, armament meetings and due to figure in the new conference, considered the navy has somewhat modifications have contended for smaller type cruisers.

At the same time, it was emphasized that there will be definite changes now on the ways. Anti-rolling tanks are being added, additional armour is being placed, and the anti-aircraft guns are being changed and given more protection.

Disarmament discussion centred about the scheduled arrival in New York tomorrow of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, one of the United States delegates, who will come to Washington Thursday. Here he will meet Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia; Mary Emma Woolley of Mount Holyoke College; Norman Davis of New York, and state and navy department officials to decide what policies will be pursued at Geneva.

The other two United States delegates named so far, Minister Hugh P. Wilson, alternate, and Ambassador Hugh R. Gibson, will join the delegates in Switzerland. Both have been in the United States recently discussing disarmament questions with the administration.

The house Democratic program is about like this:

Pastor Twice Halted on Way

TORONTO, Jan. 4—Rev. William M. Hayler, formerly of Woodberry Down, London, preached his first sermon as pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church yesterday.

The new pastor was, about three minutes late in arriving—but in that time he found, he admitted, "the spirit of Toronto." A pedestrian in the car went wild. The car was stopped by two employes in Meech's butcher shop. They jumped to the motorphrey's undertaking parlors. An ambulance was called but Hood was not alive when it reached the Toronto General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson of Belmont Street were walking north on Yonge just as the point where the car went wild.

"For God's sake, step back!" Jack son muttered to his wife as she grasp ed her elders arm to pull her from the path of the car. It passed within ten feet of them.

Paralyzed with fright the man and woman stood in their tracks watching the fury course. Both were horrified when they saw Moody swept away.

Did Not Dare Follow

When the car turned the corner they did not dare to follow to see the result. They proceeded to the home of friends a few blocks away.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Jackson shaken by their experiences, were seeking the company of friends in an effort to efface the memory of what had happened. Other witnesses were similarly affected.

Their investigation by Detective Herbert Gadd and Sergeants Horton, Hodgson and Cameron, with Acting Detective Theodore Hellner, age 55, of Symington Avenue, was that Hellner was in charge of manslaughter. The only explanation police could offer for the accident was that Hellner was extremely fatigued from loss of sleep.

MAN CARRIED 175 FEET AND KILLED BY CAR

Auto Crashes Front of Store in Toronto Saturday Night

DRIVER ARRESTED

Others Escape Death as Auto Charges Yonge St. Block

TORONTO, Dec. Jan. 7—An uncontrolled auto went berserk on Yonge Street Saturday night, invaded the west sidewalk and left pedestrians frozen with horror as it collided against store fronts, swept a man off his feet and carried him strapped, half-conscious, over the headlights, a distance of 175 feet before veering around the corner of Gibson Avenue and crushing him to death against a Hydro pole.

Charles E. Moody, aged 46, was making the return trip to his furniture store at 1070 Yonge street, when the car rode up over the curb and dragged him off his feet.

The car continued on its wild course, shattered the front window of Meech's butcher shop a few doors down, demolished the porch of a Gibson Avenue and suddenly swerved West into Hydro pole.

The left fender and lamp, which Moody was dragging, crashed against the pole with such force that the pole was bent. Moody was extricated by Detectives Hellner, by two employes in Meech's butcher shop, Tony Gaetano and Mr. Humphrey's undertaking parlors. An ambulance was called but Hood was not alive when it reached the Toronto General Hospital.

Five Desperate Men Escape at Vancouver Auto is Used in Flight

Pre-arrangement is Suspected in Plans for Getaway

DETAILS UNKNOWN

Fourteen-year and Eight-year Men Among Those Who Escape

Vancouver, Jan. 4—Under cover of darkness and rain, five convicts held in Oakalla prison near here, made a successful break for freedom and late Sunday night were still at liberty. The escape was made at 7 o'clock. Five of the escaped men were being held in Oakalla jail pending their appeal from sentence meted out to them in the Fall Assizes here and in New Westminster. They are:

William Bagley, under sentence of 14 years with 15 lashes for robbery with violence of the Harris-Hoi Sprngs Hotel, April 27 last.

Frank Sorge, alias Sawyer, under sentence of eight years for breaking and entering and being in possession of burglar tools.

Gordon Hewett, under sentence of two years for robbery with violence.

William W. Lake, under sentence of one year at Oakalla and two years in New Westminster Penitentiary.

Norman A. Moore, awaiting sentence after conviction for breaking and entering.

Details of the jail break were lacking at the office of Percy Ashable guard and constable was at once put on the trail of the convicts.

It is believed the prisoners saved their way through bars of the prison by means of an automobile secured by pre-arrangement.

Bagley is well known to police on both sides of the international boundary. He previously had served a term in the penitentiary at New Westminster for participating in a jail break. He is originally from Vancouver Island, a number of years ago. He was found guilty in November at the New Westminster Assizes of participating in the Harrison Hot Springs Hotel robbery, coast of here April 27, when the safe was blown, telephone wires cut, high way bridge blasted, and a running gun fight took place between provincial police and Bagley and two of

ASSASSIN'S TARGET

According to disclosures made in Moscow, the recent attempt to assassinate Hiram W. Hubbard, Jr., assistant Ambassador to Russia, was the result of a plot to promote war between the Soviet and Japan. The "Red" press has repeatedly asserted that "capitalistic and imperialistic" powers were doing their utmost to bring about such a clash.

companions. After an automobile chase by police the robbers disappeared. Bagley was arrested by United States border patrol officers near Sumas three days later. Later he was surrendered to British Columbia police.

Sorge has served prison terms for four convictions here, in Nanaimo, and at Seattle, Wash.

Premier Visits Old Farm He Worked on as Farm Boy

Lostermouth, Scotland, Jan. 4.—The plowmen would take down his volume of Burns and read it to us as we lay on the straw. Are you still reading your Burns?"

For two hours in the chill of a Scottish Winter the Prime Minister and his daughter, Joan, trudged through the muddy field clearing and joking with the friends of his boyhood. The fields, where he used to work adjoin the pasture which he uses now as a landing field.

It was in the gathering dusk that he read out the list of prizes, one for the oldest plowman, one for the best looking one and one for the plowman with the largest family.

of a new method of preserving honey as an opaque, grayish-white instead of a golden liquid was announced at Cornell University.

The new product called crystal honey, has a slightly different flavor. It neither drips nor spreads sticky stears and has been approved by the university to the honey industry.

The discovery is the accomplishment of a young Canadian, Dr. E. J. Dyce, who made a gift of the process to Canadian honey producers and to Cornell. He developed the process as part of the thesis for obtaining the degree of Doctor of Philosophy and worked under Professor H. Dr. E. J. Fitzhugh, professor of agriculture.

RIGID ECONOMY

Mayor George O. Tice in his inaugural address to the council today pointed to the difficulty of the task facing the present city body. He says, "Many citizens find themselves with sadly depleted incomes. Many more are out of work and others normally independent are compelled to seek relief." This is apparent to the most casual observer of conditions. Mayor Tice goes on to remark that the debenture debt while not dangerously large as in some other municipalities in Ontario has yet reached a total calling for the most careful consideration and enforcing upon the council "a year of most rigid economy." As he points out fortunately the most important works have been achieved, and the city is well advanced with its improvements.

What the council feels most is the obligation resting upon this body which is entirely outside its control, highways, suburban area roads, schools.

Urgency of the expenditure must be shown before money is laid out, the mayor makes this clear. He is careful to add that no shortsighted policy will be followed such as starvation of the city services.

Mayor Tice has struck a note which will find an echo in every part of the city. In his appeal to the citizens to take an interest in affairs he is appealing for what will bring the realization of the highest civic ideals.

THE SNOW AND THE SHOVEL

Coming of snow puts the oldtime Christmas cards which were sent out for Christmas in a proper light. Many of these signs of the ancient type of winter seemed sadly out of place on Christmas week with an almost entire lack of snow but with the coming of winter's storms and snow, people can look over these cards and feel that they are apt, people can recall the pleasures of the oldtime winters when the mode of locomotion was slow, very slow, when the sleighs jazzed their way across the landscape like a flash of lightning, when highways were not permanent roads but rough lanes with almost the suggestion of highwaymen hidden in the shade of trees in the ancient woods. The storm has added to the suggestion of experience and created a new emotion, the old disgust with the shovel has been stirred up with all its force. Thanks, to the shovel, we are not allowed to forget what winter is and was.

Coming on its way to us with all the marks of the oldtime winter storm New Year's set a record for the heaviest winter with the heavy fall of snow. The charm of the bare countryside and the streets dusty and indifferent have soon gone under the incessant dropping of snow flakes. So much for the transforming power of colder weather. But once we have had a touch of this winter surroundings we shall not mind winter so much.

Whatever the present winter has in store for us, the fact stands out that we have had the most remarkable of seasons dating back from last spring. Some have been led to believe that a new cycle has set in which may last for twenty years with warmer weather in winters. That must be left for time to show but meanwhile the people will enjoy what the winter brings.

NOT MODERN METHOD

New Year's boxes containing bombs which were sent to representatives of the Italian government in the United States on the eve of New Years prove that the day of family and peace is not yet here. Assassination is not a sign of the peace which is dear able between nations and individuals.

Out of the turmoil of wrong ideals political and social as well as individual come these smoking bombs. They do not emanate from the minds, filled with thoughts of justice and fairness, they are not the expression of a heathen principle which the world ought to have left behind generations ago.

RINGING IN THE NEW

"Ring out the old, ring in the new" runs the line of Tennyson, which challenges the world plans to betterment on the stepping stone of the past. "Ring out old shapes of foul disease"; that is what the Associations for the Advancement of Science and Boards of Health are doing. "Ring in the Christ that is to be" is the task of individual and church, it is even the task of government to bring in those conditions of life which are not ideal in the sense that they cannot be achieved but ideal in the sense that they are absolutely the need of the human body and heart.

BEYOND THE SUN

By Barbara Young

Behold this vast incalculable ray,
Brighter than stars, more luminous than suns,
More distant than all space beyond all space
In its beginning, if indeed there be
Birth or beginning to that principle
Man's mind hath ever conjured, nay, nor guessed.
Perchance, with all his weighty conjuring
This side the glimmering secretive Veil.

Behold this ray, ineffable, informed
Beyond the sun, beyond these measure?
Of skies and firmaments and fashioned voids;
This uncrested, all-creating volt,
This unthought word; this might without a name,
That shook Old Chaos into rhyme and rhythm,
No single atom looted or laid waste
Unto this hour.

What hath God Wrought, indeed—
Himself, and light and law and life and love,
These from the mist that moves beyond the sun.

WINTER IN THE EAST. Summer in the West. Listening in to the football game New Year's Day, played at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, California, the difference in climate was warmly emphasized by radio announcers who twitted eastern listeners upon the reports which had reached the coast of snow and ice. While in the east the sun beamed down on the great Rose Bowl at Pasadena in true California fashion, after the annual tournament of the roses which is one of Pasadena's big advertising and tourist attracting events. California was built on publicity and the go-getters out there do not skimp on expenditure to put their projects over big. Result is they clean up big. Take this big football game for instance, played every New Year's Day at Pasadena, with a California football team and an eastern team. West vs. East. Friday it was the team representing Tulane College, New Orleans, vs. University of Southern California, the latter winning by a score of 21 to 12, while over eighty thousand people sweltered in the sunshine and enjoyed several kinds of hysterical excitement. University band of 150 pieces provided all kinds of music, while Tullane footballers, band of fifty pieces, fifteen hundred rooters and the Mayor, Chief of Police, Chief of the Fire Department and various other civic functionaries from New Orleans. Mayor of New Orleans, by the way is E. Sims Walmsley, whose name suggests that he might be a relative of Bay of Quinte pioneers, a distant relative as it were. Mayor Walmsley spoke over the radio and of course predicted victory for his team. Belleville once had a Mayor Walmsley so New Orleans is quite all right in following the precedent.

JIMMY SIMPSON, newspaper writer, labor leader, lecturer, politician, more or less radical, has been elected head of the poll in Toronto for Board of Control. As Jimmy gets up on the high places his right seems to clear and his former radicalism is getting smoothed out until it is not nearly so pronounced. When theory meets practise there must needs be some equalizing, and it is to Jimmy's credit that instead of getting more radical as the years go by he becomes less radical, that is aggressively so. Strange, when folks wake up to the fact that there is plenty room in the old world for difference of opinion, which is what makes horse races and things worth while generally, there is less aggressive forcing of opinions on the other fellow. When we get to know each other the sharp corners turn in and the hand goes out in friendship and understanding, while acrimonious argument gives place to a smiling understanding and tolerance of the other fellow's viewpoint even if it is different from ours. David Harum's philosophy still holds good, a difference of opinion is what makes horse races a reasonable amount of fleas is good for a dog, keeps him from brooding on being a dog.

MAKING OF ALMANACKS

There is no more useful device under the domestic roof than the almanack. As a handbook it holds its importance next to the clock. The almanack has become a household cariouche. It is a very ancient institution. There is reason to believe it derives its name from Arabic, signifying a reckoning by the month. And the name may remind us how the long arm of coincidence reaches back to the Mohammedan days when first the Magians began to study the stars. For the almanack-making enterprise took its start from practice of divination which a very long time was the favorite pursuit of those who believed that human events and destinies are ruled by the stars. It is a primitive notion whereof many well-known terms in our dictionaries, and also popular proverbs, are still the witness, and in particular the tables comprised in our almanacks. There are good grounds for believing that as early as 300 B.C. the secretary of Ageus, king of Sparta, compiled a tablet of festivals connected with the round of the seasons and the chief offices of state whenacover men paid due attention to the signs of the zodiac and forefront the good omens for the transaction of business and the avoidance of unlucky epochs. Superstition? Yes. It has a hard hold upon the human imagination still appears upon the modern almanacks that have a pamphleteer format. What were the first almanacks were used in some parts of England about the end of the seventeenth century. They were blocks of heavy pasteboard upon the four edges by the days of the year, and upon the plane were decorated with hieroglyphics of salts' days and church festivals, together with the days of the month indicating the patron saints of nations and also the rising and the golden cycle. Manuscript almanacks of the fifteenth century are in the British Museum and in the libraries of Oxford and Cambridge. One of the most remarkable of these is the manuscript ascribed to Roger Bacon, the famous alchemist of the thirteenth century. It is dated 1292 A.D. A transcription of this manuscript in 1386 was published in 1812 at Hackney. The earliest English calendar known in the British Museum is dated 1431. The first printed almanack appeared in 1457, but the most important of these antique prints is that of Regiomontanus of Konigsberg, which appeared in Nuremberg in 1472, precisely a quarter of a century earlier than "The Kalendar of Shepheards" which was the earliest almanack printed in English by Richard Pynson in 1497.—Montreal Gazette.

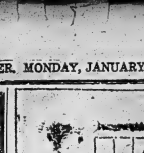
MAGIC

One of the savants attending the session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dayton, Ohio, last week, declared he had been looking into what he calls the "magical" beliefs of people and reporting his findings.

Among the "magical" beliefs cited in a despatch from Dayton are motion pictures, fine music and beautiful home surroundings. These make good people moral and virtuous; that "fish is brain food"; that "candy is economy;" that "the great majority are sure to vote on the right side of public questions"; that "the most intimate ability to tell right from wrong", and that "most men and women are 'made for each other' in marriage".

Our first reaction on reading these magic beliefs is to doubt the prof. how he reaches the conclusion that they are magic beliefs. So far as we are able to make out there is only one superstition among them, and that is the one regarding marriage, and for obvious and ghostly reasons.

As for the others, who started them? Not the people. Regarding the innate perfection of the human masses, this magic belief is the very foundation cornerstone of democ to say the sheet anchor, of this thing called democracy. What started the rumor about fish being "brain food"? Probably the predecessor of the Vitamin Boys. In any case, it has plenty of company, i.e., that stomach is the best food for a child who does not like it. As for tasteful home surroundings producing moral and virtuous people, all we can say is that if that is magic, so is the belief that slums produce handicapped humans.—Ottawa Citizen.



SIR GEORGE FOSTER

It was Sir George's fortune—good or ill—to be in the forefront of many a well-fought battle. From none he took his ease. But the passing of the kindly years obliterates them and in the quiet afterglow of the day he was happily able to turn his still vigorous mind and his great talents to the furtherance of those causes in which he was ardently interested. Our country has made almost unbelievable material progress during his life-time, but it is to be congratulated perhaps even less on this than on the fact that there have always been men of outstanding brain, energy and enthusiasm to serve it when service was most greatly needed. One such has just died.—Montreal Gazette.

The traffic light on the four corners shot from red to green and the car that had been waiting impatiently shot forward and shoots across the bridge. Another car shoots after it and shoots up the hill just after the first car had shot over the top, just out of gunshot. They shoot along the highway and a rabbit, that had been shot at upon that instant by a man who was out shooting, shoots across the road and the pair were shooting by.

The first car shot over to the edge of the road to escape hitting the bunny and the strain made a tire shoot out. The pole line shoots the car against the curb and it shoots off the road into the ditch. The second car shoots along just at that moment and the driver yoo-

WORLD SUFFERING FROM OVER-PREDICTION

Montreal, Que. (C.P.) The world can be said to be suffering more from over-prediction than over-production, this opinion was expressed in an emphatic manner by Dr. J. E. Latimer, professor of Agricultural Economics at Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, in a recent address delivered here on "Some Aspects of the Agricultural Situation."

Farming was not in quite as sorry a predicament as some other industries because the volume of business was fairly well maintained, Dr. Latimer observed. As an industry, however, it had small purchasing power for manufactured goods at present prices, availing more or less a re-adjustment of prices before entering the market as a buyer. This was largely from compulsion, he continued, but also partly from resentfulness at the present price discrepancy. Hence there was the alternative still open to many industries of either lowering their prices or taking their punishment in unemployment, Dr. Latimer said.

Many Poachers Are Caught By Police

Montreal, Que. (CP) — According to a report made by L. Pepin, Inspector of the Province of Quebec Association for the Protection of Fish and Game, returning from an inspection trip up north, many lakes have been found with holes cut through the ice where poachers have been fishing against the law. Six were caught in the act, most of them had no money to pay for fines, they being members of the large family of unemployed which overflows the borders of large cities and settlers out in the wild.

Sacrifice Clothes for Indigent Men

Montreal, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—Recently it was decided to do away with a group of paper figures of the Fathers of Confederation in the Chateau de Ramezay Museum by the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal. The dusty, moth-eaten clothes that cover the figures of these old political leaders are to be handed over to the indigent old men of the Refuge of Notre Dame de Bercy.

High good-humour, prevailed at the meeting at which the decision was made. Members conjured up pictures of some hapless indigent Brown's pants and a four button coat for Alberto and another in the smart duds of Sir Hector Langevin or the good grey suit of Sir F. B. Haviland. The big question before the house however, was Who will wear Sir John A. MacDonald's Ascot tie?

PLAY GAME FOR CHARITY IN PICTON

Belleville Intermediates Journey to Picton on Wednesday

COUNTY LEAGUE

Wellington and Collegiate Tie, While Milford Beat Bloomfield

Picton, Jan. 4 (Special)—Prizes Edward County Hockey League opened New Year's night with five hundred fans present despite the fact that roads were heavy with snow and more was falling. Many parts of the county were represented and the rural districts had a larger quota than the town.

The opening encounter was between Wellington and the Collegiate which resulted in a 3-3 tie. Wellington scored two goals and Hyde one, as if this would mean victory for them, but the Collegiate staged a rally and netted one. Encouraged by this they put forth efforts into tieing the score at least, but in doing so left little defence for the goalie with the result that Wellington scored a third. Another great battle ensued with all the Collegiate men up and two more goals were scored. Another attempt to tie the score. Though both teams did their best there was no scoring in the last five minutes of this game.

Charles Bedbrough handled the ball to the satisfaction of all.

The second game was between Bloomfield and Milford. Three-quarters of the game passed without any scoring, then Milford netted one in the second third and until the end, but there was no more scoring and the game ended 1-0.

This game was well handled by Referee Brock Hudgins. The ice was in fair condition.

Charity Game

On Wednesday evening Belleville Intermediate O.H.A. team play a picked Picton team. Wellington and Bloomfield players will play a game also. Mr. Hare is donating the use of the arena and the teams are giving their services free. The proceeds will go to the Central Relief Fund.

Coach "Bonnser" Sidney announced over the week end that he had procured an exhibition game for this intermediates in Picton on Wednesday night. The management of the Picton club called the local management on the telephone and inquired if they would come to Picton and play a game for the Unemployment Relief Fund in that town. The local management were only too glad to assist in this work and assured that they would not only accept their invitation but assured them that all the local regular players would make the trip on Wednesday night.

This game should just about run back as one of the finest opening league fixtures with the Campbellford club on Friday night here. Most of the local players have returned home after visiting their friends and relatives over the holiday season and will put in a few days practice before they usher in the current league fixture Friday night. The "Northerners" have been playing good hockey of late and the past two weeks under the watchful eye of Bill Whitby of Toronto. The management of the Hydro town team are very much pleased over the new prospective chances in the O.H. A. race. They made no mistake when they engaged Bill Whitby as coach of the team.

The B.A.A.A. will make the draw for their asteroside at the opening game. The winning ticket will be drawn from the large box which will be displayed on the ice surface next week-end to Wednesday night's game. The lucky ticket will be the winning ticket out of the box has not been announced at any time previous. All present ticket holders should be present on that night to win the coveted car they commenced to work for.

We notice that there is a proposed girls' hockey league being sponsored in Peterboro. The idea might go over big in Belleville too. If such a league could get the following that the girls' softball league received, they would have little difficulty filling ends meet. Perhaps the girls' league could stick quite as profidently as a boy, but then we must remember that the girls first started to try and play hockey, they were not nearly as active and athletic as they are today. Practice makes perfect is the old saying and it applies to girl athletes as well as boys.

Coach Ralph Morden has started to line up his basketball team for 1932. The local basketeers will be grouped with Kingston Y.M.C.A. Queen's, R.M.C. and possibly Napanee this year. Belleville have quite a few real fancy basketball players and as Coach Morden can get them all out to practice he feels assured that the locals will make a real showing in the league this year. They were barely nosed out, so to speak, by the fast R.M.C. team last season, but they will never "let up" again as they did for a few minutes in their final league game with the eastern lads last year. The local basketeers have learned their lesson of standing games as they come to them. Experience is a great teacher.

Norway will send a powerful team to compete for international honors in the third Olympic winter games at Lake Placid, N.Y., next February. Probably the best known member of the Norse contingent is Sonja Henie, Olympic and world's champion figure skater.

IRAK WILL BECOME SEPARATE NATION

New York, Jan. 4—The New York Herald Tribune publishes the following copyright item from Geneva: "The League of Nations Mandates Committee has advised of 1932 by presenting to the world a new independent nation, Irak, or Mesopotamia, as it once was known has reached full national status under British tutelage, so that the League expects to declare it of political age this month. Great Britain has asked to be discharged from its responsibilities over the country under the League mandate inaugurated ten years ago."

MURDER AND SUICIDE IS THEORY OF POLICE

Minto, N.B., Jan. 4—Bearing fatal and other wounds, the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Parent, elderly Belgian residents of Harcwood Ridge, Sunbury county, were found at their little homestead, four miles from here yesterday. The couple had been separated by domestic difficulties that took them to court last August, and according to information given police by Alex Colgahan, aged 28, hired man on the farm, the trouble was in the form of a murder and a suicide.

THAT DELAYED PENALTY RULE

The delayed penalty rule in the National Hockey League has been mystifying many fans this year and I've received a deluge of letters on the subject. "Can a team have three players in the box at one time? If not why don't they do it?" "How can a youthful reader, Norquay Scott. The rule is clearly set out. The penalty time of the third penalized player does not begin until the penalty time of one of the two players already penalized has elapsed. "Nevertheless," the rule states, "the third player penalized must at once proceed to his penalty box, but may be replaced by a substitute until such time as the penalty time of the penalized player commences." Actually the whole team of six players might be individually penalized if they are not required to play less than two men short at any time. Next!

Have you any hockey questions or hockey information that you would like discussed? Just write Jimmy Thompson at this newspaper, and if acceptable, he will be glad to devote a column to the subject with suitable acknowledgment.

HOW CANADA DEVELOPS HOCKEY STARS

The reason Canada can develop enough hockey stars to supply two or three continents with material, is because they train 'em from the cradle up. Take, for instance Fred Robertson, star defenceplayer with the Toronto Marlborough in the O. H. A., and one of the likeliest looking amateur players that ever peek'd up puck. After playing for a few years with Toronto Parkdale, Fred started an organized hockey career with a church team—from which church emerged. Fred started with the banner team, moved up to midget, then juvenile. After that he graduated to the Toronto Canada Packers junior team, and is now in senior company, and one of the smartest defence player in the whole senior O. H. A. Not until this season did Fred Robertson make his real form. He has always been a good defence man, but this year he has displayed everything a good player needs—speed, power, cleverness and courage. And of course, Fred possesses more of the latter possibly than any of the other three. He never lets up. Win, lose, or draw, Fred is always a fighting man. And he is noted around the O. H. A. circuit as one of the cleanest players in the league. Evenstempered, quiet and considerate, he can take a whole lot of punishment without losing his head. Fred plays a double schedule this year, playing as well with Eaton's in the Mercantile League. One thing to be noted about Freddy, is that no matter how tough the game he always shows thows up for work, and he punches his clock at eight o'clock next morning, and works the whole day through, even though there is another game in the evening. He is popular everywhere, and deservedly so.

As amateur teams from Vancouver to Nanaimo begin the stretch-run leads into the national championships, Jimmy Thompson will tell you about some of the leading players of contending teams in each section. Here is my special favorite: Just write Jimmy at the Ontario Intelligencer.

SEES PERIL IN RURAL STATES

10,000 Communities in U. S. Without Single Church

Toronto, Jan. 4—"Among these various states I cried that the city's streets again," sang the great congregation gathered in the Metropolitan Church last evening to hear the Rev. John McDowell, D.D., of Pittsburgh, tell them that "notwithstanding all that we have done, there are ten thousand communities in the rural life of the United States today without a church of any kind, without any organized religion. Think of what that is going to mean to what it means today, and what its reflection will be as a national life of tomorrow."

Dr. McDowell continued a reference to what he termed "the challenge of the most religious section of North America" by declaring: "I cannot speak of course, for Canada; but tonight I can think and speak with a heavy heart of the loss to religion in the life of the United States. We have some thousands of villages without any permanent religious life or leadership. We have 13,400,000 little people under the age of 14 who are receiving absolutely no religious instruction as they enter the threshold of life. What does this mean for the future fathers and mothers of our democracy? Finally, we have approximately 50 per cent. of the 120,000,000 of our population who are not registered with any organization bearing the name of God. They are left to grow up godnighty -God pleading for [illegible] ness for such conditions as these."

Today was the first day of school after the holidays, and Miss Kitty said, Good morning, boys, I'm glad to see you all back and I hope you all had an Enjoyable Christmas vacation and I hope you all helped to something useful during your vacation by making a nice New Year resolution. I'll begin with you Benny, you have been absent a lot lately and I'm not to be too hard on you, because I'm sure the way it is better to make a resolution even if you only manage to keep it a little while than not to make any at all. But of corse we ought to keep it as long as we can, so for that reason it is wise to make a resolution that will not be too hard to keep, and then we will have more confidence in our own powers in resolutions of the battle. Now I wunt every boy and girl of not make a resolution before New Years to make one this now, because it is never too late to make a resolution, remember, take an easy one. I would suggest, for instance, something concerning over eating, which is very common at New Year time a few moment and then let me hear a few resolutions, and said.

With pritty soon Puds Simkins raised his hand, saying, I resolve to stop eating after this as soon as it starts in here."

Well, I must say that swt to be an easy one, Miss Kitty said, I think it would be much more [illegible] to resolve something about not eating between meals, and he said Billy Morrison raised his hand, saying, I resolve not to eat any meals between meals, and then every time Im ready to eat I will go back to the loo box and eat so much it will reely be a meal.

I didn't quite mean that, now who else? Well, Herbie? she said. Hearing Herbie Clarke's name he said I resolve not to spoil my appetite for meals by eating too much candy, and not to spoil my appetite for candy by eating too much at my meals.

O well, let's go on to logarithy, Miss Kitty said, Wich we did.

SKI-JORING GAINS SWAY

Enthusiasm of Devotees Bring in Many Amateurs

Taking advantage of the recent heavy fall of snow, local ski aspirants were to be seen, in large numbers, indulging in their favorite pastime over the week end. They were especially noticed performing on the outskirts of the city where they had much room for efforts and longer ski-runs to enjoy themselves on.

The most populated section was, perhaps, in the vicinity of the Oak Hills where a number of local youths and maidens took advantage of the prevailing conditions and staged a real up-to-date ski meet.

Skiing is one of the most thrilling sports in existence and carries with it an excitement which never fails to interest the younger generation. Skiing is dating back to the Norse in Canada, of late, for a number of years ago the only place one could see or indulge in this winter sport was at the larger centres such as Montreal, Ottawa or Toronto. But during the past few years the winter enjoyment resulting from the thrills of skiing has developed on to that one may now see ski-joring in the smaller towns and cities of Canada.

Ski-joring was originated in the northern countries of Europe and consists in the long narrow blades as the proverbial duck to water. In Sweden, Norway and other northern European countries the main means of individual transportation, in the Winter, is by way of the ski over the deep snow of that time of the year.

Although there is no ski club in Belleville, skiing aspirants are in yearly increasing in numbers because Belleville might be to advantage to form a ski club in this city as the local enthusiasts warrant such an organization.

HAWK MAKES SPARROW MEAL

Latter Fearful of Bird Soaring Above Tower Taken in Swoop

Above the snow capped roof of the city hall at three o'clock Sunday afternoon a small hawk soared and dipped in widening circles as if intent on some object invisible to the ordinary observer.

A sparrow on a ledge half way down the tower huddled in a small feathered ball, hunched up against the cold, though the sun was shining brightly, and surveyed the white landscape with little beady eyes, unaware of pending tragedy. The city was quiet. A passing car whirred by and a tram-car freight whistle broke the afternoon stillness. A small group of children chattering noisily, wailed for another straggler who was slowly getting left behind in the air and poise, preparatory to a sudden swoop by planned once again at the brown bird who had now secured a more momentarily in the air and poise, preparatory to a sudden swoop by planned once again at the brown bird who had now secured a more comfortable perch on the ledge.

A flash—a dash of brown—a startled cheep from an unsuspecting sparrow, a rush of wings, an upward soar by the sparrow hawk, and still wriggling in its extended talons, the sparrow beat futile wings as the bird of prey disappeared across the roofs of the adjoining buildings. The little drama was over. Silence still lay over the city and peace was restored by with silently ruhning motors—and somewhere a quivering sparrow formed a meal for a hawk who dined leisurely and well.

WHEELS CHURN THRU DRIFTS

Cars Have Difficulty in Getting Away From Curbs

Engines raced and auto wheels spun wildly as numberless drivers attempted to back out their parking spaces on Front street Saturday evening while the snow which lay in thick piles along the curb clung tenaciously to the wheels and under parts of the cars. Time and time the drivers found it necessary to ask passing pedestrians to help them get their machines out; others were forced to journey to nearby garage and supply stores and invest in the latest new chains for the wheels before the cars could be moved. And more assorted to make-shift expedients of the type of rope which were wrapped around rear tires.

In outlying districts no accidents or stalled motorists have been reported as the heavy snow was soon packed down by the steady stream of traffic, and outside of the deep ruts which had formed already in some sections, the casual trips to the country made by many residents over the week-end were greatly enjoyed, which enjoyment was heightened by the beautifully clear and sunny weather. With some drivers the strong sun which shone out of a clear, blue sky and created a dazzling brilliance on the white snow, proved too strong for their eyes and colored glasses were in great demand to lessen the glare.

Once I thought city folks were brighter than the villagers, but the reverse is true.—Ruth Chatterton.

Spring-like Weather in Britain is Flood Cause

Scotland Hard Hit By Waters Driving People From Homes

AT SUMMER HEAT

40 Hours of Warm Rainfall Descends on Deep Snow

CLYDE SWOLLEN

Railway Lines Under Water and Lower Glasgow Flooded

London, Jan. 4—Spring-like weather, coming on the heels of bitter Winter in Europe today, developed several areas with costly floods.

Scotland was particularly hard hit. Swollen rivers flooded Glasgow and other areas, driving people from their homes and causing considerable damage.

The high-end temperature in the London area was more like Summer than the highest in many years.

In Scotland forty hours of warm rainfall on top of the recent deep snow swelled the rivers. Small streams became great torrents and large ones many times. The Clyde was swollen dangerously and rolling with great force. Trades was hit in the low places where railway lines are under air.

The low parts of Glasgow were flooded deeply, many houses were washed away, the stock-in-trade of furniture was floating in the streets, rendering considerable losses to the residents.

Embarrassing Moments

Home For Your Child

The past year has been one of changes for many families, changes in standards or living which have, in some cases been undesirable even a change in residence—the picking and occupying of smaller and less pretentious quarters.

Through all this has been heard the well-worn parents as to the effect upon the children, and that in most instances it has come upon one's youngsters. However, it is my personal opinion that the child often haven't suffered (I am not speaking now of extreme cases where hunger and want have been present) if the family spirit has been here and has been held intact.

To illustrate what the word "home" means to a child; I met recently a young man (by the way a lady where we came from?" No what then? "Where is home? The child turned round eyes upon her, then swung them to his daddy and mother and almost breathless "Home is here. This is our home."

It was so obvious that where Mother and Daddy were, where the three laughed and ate and slept and kissed good night, was Home and that the child was not dependent on home as being a certain town in a certain place. Home was where the family was.

And I think every child feels that way; which should take a load of worry and regret from the minds of parents who connect such a "home" with a place having more furniture, more rooms, fancier food, newer clothing, memories of more pretentious days. For the child doesn't build that lovely word "home" around a picture of chairs or lunch or clothes, but around the people who he builds it around the basic principle of human love and mother and himself.

You may have had to take one room, yet that is still lovely home to your baby if you've taken into that one room the spirit of home, the gift of love, the faith which is optimism. No matter what you've lost financially, you can still give your child that, and it is all he asks to be happy.

CANADIENS STILL STRIVING TO KEEP THE CHAMPIONSHIP

At The Belle

JOHN BARRYMORE IN "THE MAD GENIUS"

Manager Feehan of the Belle Theatre is pleased to announce the opening of "The Mad Genius" starring John Barrymore and featuring Marian Marsh and Donald Cook in the leading juvenile roles.

Mr. Barrymore considers the role of Tsarkov the mad genius of the Russian Imperial Ballet, the most weirdly dramatic role of his entire career. Tsarkov, embittered because of a physical blemish which prevents him personally becoming the embodiment of the dance—kidnaps a homeless lad, pours into him all the fanatical ambition he has vented in himself—dominates him body and soul—and finally banishes the dancing girl whom Peter loves.

Tsarkov's ruthless selfishness finally alienates the lad who has become the world's greatest dancer —then follow scenes of tremendous power in which figure a dragging crazed ballet master—and a strangely glittering concourse of persons and situations—which lead inexhaustibly to its fearful and end.

Others featured in "The Mad Genius" are Carmel Myers, Charles Butterworth, Luis Alberni, Andre Luget, Boris Karloff, Frankie Darro and Mae Madison.

Andy Clyde in a highly amusing comedy entitled "Half Holiday," the popular Pox News, and an interesting Novelette will be exhibited on the same program. Each lady attending the Bells Tonight, will be presented with a beautiful rose Dresserware gift with the compliments of the Belle Management.

At The Capitol

"MURDER AT MIDNIGHT" HAS UNUSUAL PLOT

The New Year's Eve Frolic hostess a terrific crowd who thoroughly enjoyed "See America Thirst," and the management of the Capitol to decided that lots more in Belleville would also enjoy this rich if given the opportunity.

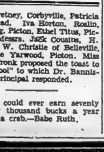
Hence its appearance on the big feature program now playing to capacity houses at the Capitol.

"See America Thirst" is a comedy of ludicrous hooligans, and the heroes are the famous Harry Langdon and Slim Summerville.

Pitched off a freight train, these two get mixed up with two ducks, one policeman, a truck load of booze, a bagful of money, a band wagon, two rival gangs of bootleggers, and a girl, Beatle Love.

The outcome is they are mistaken for Shivering Smith and his henchmen, Dunkiard Casey, and paid a huge sum of money to dispose of the rival gang by Spoonoff. The whole thing is a shocking pandemonaical, that it achieves where most alleged comedies fail. It creates unending laughter, and should most certainly be seen by the whole family, because it is utterly harmless clowning.

The serious side of the program is devoted to a most absorbing drama, "Murder at Midnight," and in this we have story, acting and treatment which arises far above the usual.



The cast includes Aileen Pringle, Alice White and Hale Hamilton, and they succeed to lead the players into unfolding a mystery which will keep any audience guessing right up to the last foot of film.

The programme, coupies two and a half hours well spent, is made more than complete by the Pathe Sound News, an issue containing some wonderful shots of how the Rakimas live.

Readers are advised to watch these columns to-morrow when a preview of the new musical comedy, "Her Majesty, Love", commencing Wednesday at the Capitol will appear.

"Her Majesty Love" stars Marilyn Miller, of "Sally" fame, W. C. Fields, Ford Sterling, Harry Ezrel and Ben Lyon, and will prove to one of the season's greatest hits.

Nobody could ever earn seventy or eighty thousand bucks a year by being a crab.—Babe Ruth.

Poet's Corner

BY THEIR FRUITS

A queer old man was Christopher Jones—
Minded his business, never threw stones;
Quoted Euripides; lived in a shack;
Planted petunias in crevice and crack;
Joked with the children, bragged of our street;
Wore a felt hat in sunshine or sleet;
Whistled and sang; wondered when he would;
"Wouldn't be rich," said he, "if I could."
Knew the book name of all of his bones—
A queer old man was Christopher Jones.

When the street 'got fix, "I'll nuss 'em," said he;
"A right good task for a man like me,
Kinless and homeless." So up and down
The burdened street of our little town
Went Christopher Jones—nor man nor child
But raised his head when the old man smiled.

Christopher Jones is laid on his bier,
And this is how people mourning are setting queer.
Sadie Seagrave, in The American Boy.

DOWNTURN ON TORONTO EX.

Expected Revival of Form Fails to Make Appearance

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 4—Those who were looking for a revival of the trend in the Canadian security markets with the turn of the year were sadly disappointed this morning. Toronto Stock Exchange markets yesterday opened with the tunnel uniformly downward with losses of fractions to a point applicable to all sections of the list.

Brazilian opened soft and before midday was selling at 11, a full point under when it had left off last year; Can. Bud was down a point to 13 1-2 before it steadied and Dominion Steel off nearly the fore it met support at 9 to 9 1-8.

Ford, Walkers and Gil were all down fractionally. B.-A. Oil sold at 9, Imperial below 19, International Pet. at 9 1-8.

Dominion Stores at 17 was down a full point, Canadian Dredge went down 1 to 13, building products lost 1-4 and Can. Malt 1-2.

Although the minimum prices for bank stocks were lowered five to ten points this morning there was no trading in this section the first little couple of hours.

FEAR MUST BE DISPELLED

Pres. Hoover Urges Quick Action on Emergency Project

Washington, D.C. Jan. 5 (AP) — President Hoover in a surprise special message to the United States Congress today urged immediate action upon his emergency economic proposals.

Mr. Hoover declared emphatically the need is "even more evident" than when it was first laid before Congress.

Soon after it reached the Senate and House, reading of the document was begun. The chambers began to be filled when word spread of the session.

The president pleaded that there be no partisan action, but that there be unity in swift adoption of his plan.

"We can and must replace the unjustifiable fear in the country by confidence," the message said.

Bishop Seager Steps Into New Duties Tho Fire Disarranged Plans

Leaves Motorat Toronto and Proceeds to See at London

AT ST. PAUL'S

Pays Tribute to Archbishop Williams' Place in Church

LONDONS, Ont., Jan. 4. — Road conditions from Friday night's sleet storm upset Bishop C. A. Seager's plans for coming to London to assume charge of the Diocese of Huron, but his Lordship, abandoning his motor at Toronto, reached this city early Saturday morning on the Canadian Northern Railway. He was accompanied by Mrs. Seager and other members of the family are to follow. The Bishop was greeted by Very Rev. Dean Tucker of St. Paul's Cathedral, and proceeded to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Carling of 36 Grosvenor street.

Wrecking of a truck and its trailer near Toronto and the resultant burning of the latter's household effects have unsettled Dr. Seager's plans to some extent as once into occupancy of the official residence, "Bishopsview".

Sunday morning Bishop Seager made his first appearance as Bishop of Huron in the church at St. Paul's Cathedral, where he was greeted by a large congregation.

Bishop Seager, in his inaugural address, said: "I am glad indeed to you that my heart is full for the expression of confidence you have placed in me. I am needy indeed to you in the name of Jesus Christ, and say that I am highly honored to be called to the See of Huron—a See which, since the distinguished clergymen of the Anglican Church have served.

"I am hoodwed to follow a man whom I considered to be the greatest Bishop the Church of England in Canada ever had—Archbishop Williams—who has so beloved and honored. I cannot take Archbishop Williams' place—I can only take my own.

In speaking of his plans for the future, Bishop Seager stated: "I hope to be among you for the rest of my days." He emphasized the need for unselfishness, and putting in its place love for their fellow-men. This alone would rectify the present unsatisfactory conditions, he stated.

THREE DROWN AS RESCUERS SWAMPED

Marshfield, Ore., Jan. 4 — Three men were drowned Sunday when the Coquille river steamer Telegraph wrecked off the coast. The wreckage of the Coonet was wanted to the beach 300 yards north of the Coos Bay Jetty last night. Within ten feet of it was the wreckage of the coast guard lifeboat.

Captain Hollis and four lifeguards tried to save the crew of the Coonet when her distress, from engine failure was observed.

Twice the lifeboat tipped over and the second time the engine was silenced.

The guardsmen clung to the wreckage of their craft and were washed to the beach.

MAN STABBED IN RELIGIOUS QUARREL

Toronto, Jan. 4.—An argument over religion precipitated a scuffle in a George street rooming house Saturday night during which one of the participants was stabbed in the abdomen by a pen-knife allegedly wielded by James Campbell aged 32, of George street.

Reginald McIntosh, aged 38, of 34 George street, was indulging in an argument with several friends who were drinking with him in the rooming house, so police say. Campbell came in and the argument became more heated.

Suddenly, when McIntosh disagreed with him, Campbell, so police allege, rushed toward McIntosh with an opened pen-knife and inflicted a flesh wound in the abdominal region. He was rushed to St. Michael's Hospital, where attendants later said the wound was not serious.

NEW CAR CAPABLE OF 100-MILE SPEED

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—A new type of automobile is being produced in a factory near Garden City. It is a small car, extremely streamlined, with motor mounted in the rear and capable of more than 100 miles an hour.

The new auto is streamlined like an airplane body to reduce wind resistance. Mounting of the motor at the rear has aided in streamlining the front and also has made possible the use of a drive shaft about one-fifth the length of that of the standard automobile. The short drive shaft cuts down loss of power in operation.

The car has no running boards, and the mudguards and headlights are built into the body. Even the door handles snap into grooves.

Authority must in the final resort rest upon force: but the force I would provide would be internationally owned.—The Aga Khan.

Arrest Refused Welsh Ex-Soldier

Montreal, Que., (By The Canadian Press)—Arrest's not something to be avoided, if it privileges not easily attained—especially when a free passage to England for the Christmas holidays is suspected. That was the experience of John Wells, self-confessed fugitive from the justice of Glamorganshire, Wales, who left into police headquarters here recently. He wanted to be arrested pending standing against him for the non-payment of alimony.

The Montreal police, having no warrant for him referred him to the immigration authorities. There he explained he had entered the country illegally. The officials of Immigration officials refused to believe the story and referred Wells back to police headquarters went Wells. Unable to do anything else for him police went to work and some food and suggested the Mearpe refuge as a place to spend the night.

Many Shoes Needed For Montreal Horses

Montreal—(By The Canadian Press)—In these days of motors, horse-shoeing has practically become a lost art, but in the city of Canada, in Montreal, however, there are to be found a few independent blacksmiths besides those employed by the large dairies and as the railways and breweries who do their own work.

According to the proprietor of one of these establishments which is situated rapidly on the hard city pavements. From three weeks to a month is about their usual duration. Some horses, particularly the heavy draft type, are quite hard on their footwear and frequently require a change of steel orfords after two weeks. Generally, so long as the door-to-door deliveries of milk, baking, laundry and grocery concerns continue will remain an integral part of the city's commercial life, he believes.

DRILLING IN NORTH PUSHED

Lignite Fire-Clay Deposits Probed By Diamond Drills

Toronto, Jan. 4.—Announcement was made over the week-end by Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, that further diamond-drilling would be done on the lignite fire-clay deposits at Blacksmith Rapids with an early object to ascertain more definitely the quantity there available, and, incidentally, the policy the Government should adopt in the handling of the same.

Mr. McCrea's statement in this regard follows:

"A geological survey during the past summer discovered an outcrop of fire-clay in the bed of the Abitibi River, near headquarters. This outcrop may be the same fire-clay as was indicated in Hole No. 6, which is within a short distance of the T. & N. O. Railway. Two tons of this clay were shipped to Burgess, Ohio, for tests, and the results indicated a high-grade fire-clay. This occurrence of fire-clay has created a lot of interest among the ceramic manufacturers of Ohio, Ontario. Several applications have been received for the fire-clay deposits, but the Government feels that they should have some further information as to the quantity before disposing on what policy to follow.

"Mr. Croasdale, engineer for lignite was of a pressing nature, and when Dr. Bruce Malloch, miners of the Clyde and Cart Rivers created the worst flood conditions ever to prevailed in the district.

Rain has been falling since Friday morning and a flow of 2,000 cubic feet has been recorded last night.

No loss of life has been reported. Low-lying streets were flooded to a depth of six feet, and the water reached the first floor level in many the east end of the city, marooning families.

AUTOIST HAS RUN ON TRACK

Almost Has Meeting With Approaching Flier

Paris, Ont., Jan. 4.—While hardbitten trainmen's jaws fell ah auto mobile roared up the C.N.R. track at the Park Junction Saturday evening and disappeared down the Park.

The strangest "train" ever to pass that signal or take a switch in these parts was only a family-railroad inventory in disguise although the dazed railwaymen realized this it was heading up the track on which, at any moment, the Montreal express was expected down. Pandemonium reigned while engineers gasoline speeders and automobiles roared off. Some took up the pursuit along the track. Others phoned up policemen in the cars and started up the road for the next crossing. Still others speeded off on the railway line hand-car in hand train further up.

The track pursuit failed. The auto-auto beat the road-autos to the crossing. But somebody did flag the express for them.

They found the Four-Cylinder limited intact. It had stopped right across the Grand River trestle and was standing there. Just ahead of the flagged express was a Ford coupe, owned by J. H. Smith of Brantford, was arrested. And his auto was dragged by a railway hook to the nearest gravel-pit siding and ditched.

JAN 4 - MR. AND MRS. - IT'S NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 2.

Almost, frant'; with grief, Lady Greystoke quickly related to her husband, upon his return to their London home, all she had been able to learn concerning the theft of their child. As they were planning the wisest course to pursue, the telephone rang. A strange man's voice told Tarzan he knew where the baby was hidden. And, for a price, he would betray his confederates.

As a result of this conversation, Tarzan late that night was alone to a squalid den beside the waterfront of London. As he paused within the evil-smelling room a muffled figure, brushed past him, whispering: "This way, my lord." In the gloom he did not recognize the man. "Where is the boy?" he questioned. "On that small steamer whose lights you see yonder," replied the other.

His guide led Tarzan into a small boat and pulled rapidly toward the ship. They climbed upon the deserted deck and the man pointed to an open hatch. "The boy is hidden there," he said. "I will stand guard while you fetch him." All Tarzan's thoughts were occupied with the hope that soon he would again have his little son in his arms. Quickly he swung himself down into the darkness below.

Scarcely had he done so than the heavy covering fell clattering above him. Instantly he knew he was the victim of a plot. He waited for what might next befall him. Soon there came to his ears a sound that caused him to go cold with apprehension. The ship was moving! Then high over the noise of the propeller, clear and shrill from the deck above him, rang the scream of a frightened woman.

FAME'S END

by Ethel Willis Hewitt

Lydia Holt sank into the heavily curtained window seat with a sigh of content. She was alone—but that didn't matter. This was the happiest night of her life. The dream of a whole life time had been realized. There was fame, and glitter, and glory, Sylvia, her little girl—her baby, she had seen her with the world at her feet. This night marked her first concert on Broadway, and a contract for her first American concert tour, waiting to be signed.

Somehow, just at the moment, the joy of it all seemed too much to bear alone. After all the struggle, the heartache— this. She buried her face in thin frail hands. Milton Drake had carried Sylvia off, as soon as they could get away, from the adoring crowd just for an hour. he had told Lydia. It must have been way past that hour, when Lydia watched them come slowly up the garden path.

A tall, dark form, with the slender radiant figure pressed close beside it. Something in their nearness gave Lydia a queer sense of shock —as if something in her didn't always known it would be so. They paused at the wide stone steps, silent. Milton seemed to go when Sylvia laid a slim hand on his arm and said something, and turning, he covered her hand with his. Then somehow, they were in the broad, low living room, Sylvia, in his arms, sobbing, and he ,trying to comfort her.

Lydia drew back a hand clutching her heart. Why should her baby be crying her heart out in Milton's arms? Why, on this, of all nights? Perhaps after all—but then Milton raised her face to his and kissed away her tears.

"Oh, my dear—my dear, don't ask me—not now. We'll have to wait." She was still sobbing and pressed a wet cheek against his.

Milton held her off, suddenly, and looked down at her.

"I'll wait, of course, but we'll be losing something—something beautiful and precious, that we won't be able to capture again." There was a heart breaking husk in his voice.

They looked into each others eyes for moment, silent, all the world holding still for their purpose.

"I know it, dear, don't I know it?" Sylvia cried in a small, agonized voice.

She seemed to press closer to him —so close, that for a time neither could speak. Lydia's tongue dried she pressed thin, trembling hands against her heart. She wanted to cry out. To tell them to stop—for God's sake, but that wasn't the way to do it. Sylvia was talking again in a little broken voice.

"You see I couldn't—couldn't do that to her, not just now. It's meant so much to her. She's worked and slaved and sacrificed, for this night. Last night I saw her, her face buried in the faded little party dress I wore to the first recital at singing school. She was saying:

"I knew you could do it, darling. Now you'll never have to go through the hardships I did to get to the top. Thank God I could save you that."

Sylvia paused. Lydia saw her look up at Milton with tear wet eyes.

"Milton, when I saw her—like that, it nearly broke my heart. Knowing that she was counting on me like that, for a lost dream, and that you—that we," her voice choked down in a sob.

They stood there tense and silent, clinging to each other. Lydia trembled. They were splendid—so young and untried. Why should they consider her? Often, young love didn't consider anything. Maybe that was as it should be. What right had she to come between them with her plans for Sylvia's future? After all her plans were only human. Frail, uncertain—probably misguided.

Shamelessly, she looked at them dimmed eyes. They were close in each other's arms, where the moonlight slanted in through the wide window. Something of the miracle in the divine plan that held them together, touched Lydia, filled her with awe. Her plans for Sylvia—what could they possible hold, compared to this?

Almost at the hour of her triumph a divine plan was making itself felt, leaving her life stripped of its purpose— her hands empty, and yet—Milton's voice, low and vibrant, broke the stillness.

"Sweetheart, we'll wait, but not too long—not too long," he repeated, unevenly.

"We want a home, and there'll be—". That was lost against Sylvia's mouth, but Lydia knew what it was, knew because it was happening to her child.

She looked, blindly, out of the window, up into the star studded sky, feeling weak and helpless, but the cold hand no longer clutched her heart, she knew what she had to do.

Long after they had gone, she sat silent, very still. When the moonlight that slanted in through the open window, faded, and the faint gray of approaching dawn took its place, she went up to her room, a little older, and more lonely, but a great deal wiser.

At breakfast, she looked at Sylvia, frail and beautiful. Faint, purple shadows beneath lovely eyes that reflected none of last night's glory. Lydia longed to take her in her arms, but she didn't, she busied herself with her grape fruit.

"I suppose everything's settled between you and Milton?" she asked casually.

Sylvia raised startled eyes to hers.

"Settled—how do you mean?" she asked, guardedly.

Lydia smiled.

"You love each other, isn't there usually something to settle under the circumstances?" Her voice was warm and comforting.

Sylvia flushed and crumbled a bit of bread between unsteady fingers.

"Of course, we care for each other but there's nothing to settle, that is, not for a long time there's my career. Why last night—last night—", her voice broke.

Lydia grasped desperately at words.

"Yes—last night brought the world to your feet. Last night—settled your future. Now, there's Milton to reckon with—and love. You'll marry him, of course." There, it was out. It couldn't be unsaid now.

Sylvia looked at her with wide, startled eyes, unbelieving.

Lydia didn't wait for her to speak.

"I know, all along I've wanted you to reach the top—to have Broadway at your feet, but once there, you don't have to stay. there are other things more important in life than a career—for you there seems to be Milton and love." Lydia managed that splendidly.

The next instant Sylvia was sobbing in her arms. Strange that tears border so closely on joy and sorrow alike. She cradled her child's dear, shining head, holding her close. What if her heart were breaking Sylvia's soft young body—that was life.

Sylvia raised her wet face.

"Are you sure you wouldn't rather I'd go on with the career—you can wait." There was the little girl note in her soft voice, but the eyes that met Lydia's were no longer the eyes of a child. Looking into their clear depths, Lydia understood and caught her child to her desperately.

"Darling, you don't know how hard waiting will be, besides there's no need, it won't leave me too lonely. there'll be—" again the words were lost against Sylvia's mouth.

She was so sweet and soft and lovely—her baby, he whom Milton wanted her. She was glad she could give her up, when it would be so easy to keep her all to herself, just a little longer. Holding her there, Lydia knew, that because she was able to do this, her hands wouldn't be empty long. There'd be Sylvia's babies to love—but not too dearly, and plan for—but not too eagerly.

SNOW WORTH THOUSANDS

Provides Protection Against Severe Weather and Storms

"This snow which has fallen in the Prairie provinces has now covered the surrounding territory with a mantle of warmth has been worth an incalculable amount to the farmers of the country. It is going to be in a arriving just in time to do the most good," was the opinion advanced by many prominent agricultural men when interviewed this afternoon by The Intelligencer.

For some time past the seedings which have been made now cover a depth of being spoiled by the frost owing to the fact that the warm sun of the past few days has melted the snow and the frost has newly developed the seeds into tender shoots, which were spreading underneath the ground. The frost which has customarily followed in the evening was a menace to the planting which had been done, and it was feared that unless the snow fell and checked the growth that tender shoots would perish. The barley ground is now replaced by a covering of snow however and all danger seems to be past. The newly-seeded areas, it is now believed will not be touched by frost.

Slain Sheriff's Widow Joins Manhunter Posse

Houston, Tex., Jan. 5—Jennings and Harry Young, Missouri slayers of six officers, accepted their mother's advice and shot themselves today rather than submit to capture by officers who surrounded their place of refuge.

Jennings Young was dead when officers broke into the house in the Houston East end and Harry, his younger brother, had a bullet wounds and was near death. Harry was taken to a hospital.

Both probably had been wounded in a gun fight with the officers before they turned their weapons on themselves.

The police received a tip early today that the Youngs would be found in the house, where they had rented a room, after they had been trailed across Texas from Springfield, Mo.

The first final act the Missouri desperadoes followed the advice of their mother, Mrs. J. D. Young, which was printed in the Houston morning paper, Mrs. Young at Springfield, Mo., said yesterday she hoped they would end their lives rather than submit to arrest.

A picture in the local paper of Harry Young, recognized by J. F. Tomlinson, a carpenter, who had rented the room to the brothers, led to their being trapped. He saw the picture last night and took his family away to spend the night elsewhere and reported his suspicions this morning.

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 5—A woman has joined the manhunt in quest of vengeance on the sharpshooting Young brothers, who were sought in Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas today for the massacre of six officers in the Galt-Kansas City murder.

Mrs. Marcel Hendrix, widow of the Greene County Sheriff, took over temporarily the duties of the office left behind by her husband when he left Saturday on a warrant upon Harry Young, 26, a slight, blue eyed ex-convict named by a coroner's jury as the leader of the killers.

Officers believed the leader to be hiding in Houston, Tex., the home of his bride of three weeks.

Voters of Port Erie, a new municipality created by union of the old town of Port Erie and the town of Bridgeburg, failed to elect a leader equally between Harry Hall, former mayor of Bridgeburg, and W. J. Hanley, who received 546 votes. It is expected a recount will be made by the town clerk. Failure to break the deadlock the deciding vote will be cast by the Reeve Bailey.

GANDHI'S TRUST

Says Followers of Prince of Peace Cannot Be Behind Others

(By JAMES A. MILLS)

BOMBAY, Jan. 5 — Mahatma Gandhi sought today to enlist the Christians of India in the civil disobedience movement which is in Christian "struggle of peace."

In his appeal to Christians Gandhi said: "I have full trust that in the present struggle you will not be a struggle which is essentially based on peace."

He urged Christians to adopt the spinning wheel and homespun garments and to renounce drink.

In a farewell telegram to Lord Irwin, former Viceroy of India, with whom he concluded the Delhi Pact last year, bringing temporary peace in the conflict, he said: "Pray believe me, I tried my best, but failed. Nevertheless, I do not lose hope and, God willing, I shall retain the same spirit you have actuated me during that sacred week in Delhi. I shall not believe you are defeated."

Madelina Slade, his faithful disciple, went today with Mr. Gandhi and Devdas Gandhi to the Mahatma's shrine of brotherhood and love at Ahmedabad to pray for the release and India's emancipation.

Police have established their headquarters of the congress committee at Patna after arresting Rajendra Prasad, president of the nationalist congress, and six leaders of the provincial congress. Prasad had just been appointed to succeed Vallabha Patel as president of the national body when Patel was taken to jail with Gandhi yesterday.

Dr. M. A. Ansari was appointed president to succeed Mr. Prasad. He is the third president to fill the office in two days.

Gandhi issued a series of instructions for the conduct of the "war," all based upon his doctrine of "non-violence" and chief of which was the continuation of the boycott against British goods.

NO TRACE OF ESCAPED MEN

Two Are Captured Who Claim They Are Responsible

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 5—Despite an intensive search, prosecuted throughout the mainland by provincial, city and municipal police no trace of three of five convicts, who broke jail at Oakalla Sunday night had been discovered this morning, more than 36 hours after their escape was discovered, the possibility developed that William Bagley, Frank Borge and Gordon Parsons, the latter named men, may have made good their escape by sea.

Yesterday afternoon William Lane and Norman Moore who also escaped from the prison Sunday night, were recaptured in the northern part of the city. They offered no resistance to the officers. "We did our best, but fate is the jailbreak conspiracy," Lane told Chief Constable Mackay of the Bagley going through the 14-inch hole, which they had cut in the wall and waited for 20 minutes to forward before or they went out. We met the other three afterward, but decided to go our separate ways. We haven't seen them since and have no idea where they went."

The guards at the jail have been suspended as a result of the affair, said Attorney-General Pooley. Pooley has ordering an immediate and searching investigation into the jail-break which police officers describe as the most daring in British Columbia penal history.

MISLEADING SAYS HEPBURN

Ontario's Deficit Will Be More Than Million, Says Leader

(BY J. M. MACDONNELL)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, Jan. 5.—Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader, will be misleading the public regarding the forecast of Hon. R. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, that Ontario's deficit would not exceed one million dollars, Mr. Hepburn said, did not give a true reflection of the province's financial position.

Predicting the floating of a $40,000,000 loan before March 31, Mr. Hepburn said this sum was necessary to meet the deficit and "last year." The true financial position of Ontario, he said, included a expenditure of about 100 millions and revenue of 75 millions.

Charles A. Seguin, Conservative M.P.P. for Prescott, said the Ontario government realized retrenchment was necessary, and had effected twenty-five millions from its list of expenditures. Seguin was the guest of honor at the Toronto, but at the same time provincial leader, Hepburn, in a continued, highways and other work must be paid for and would therefore not be considered unemployment relief, Seguin declared. A minimum bond issue of $10,000,000 was necessary.

"Have a stout heart," was Mr. Seguin's advice to the people. He warned them other classes had been hit by the depression, and it was impossible to make fish of one class and fowl of another in the matter of taxation.

On the subject of retrenchment, Mr. Hepburn asked why Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, received a salary of $25,000 and his associates $10,000; why the provincial cabinet and legislature, and the salaries of why Hydro Commissioners were paid $40,000 a year.

Other speakers were E. O. Bertrand, K.C., Ottawa, who said Bert. Gouiet, Liberal M.P. Russell and Gordon Belanger, Liberal ex-M.P.P. for Russell.

ISSUES LETTER

Directs Letter to Clergy of His Own Diocese

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON, Jan. 5. — (Canadian Press Cable)—The Archbishop of Canterbury, today vehemently pronounced the desire that clergy in his diocese should not conduct marriages for any one of the parties had previously been divorced, or where one of the parties had not been baptized, following this today, in a pastoral letter setting out the vows which the Church of England calls upon the bride and bridegroom to make.

"Having taken such vows before God and in the presence of witnesses, duty and honor demand they should be kept at all costs, the letter said. "If you are not prepared to keep them, the responsibility it is open for you to be married not in the church but in the registry office."

The letter calls attention to the pause in the marriage service for heritage and the gift of children. "Deliberate action upon marriage with the intention of refusing to have children cannot be right," Hisspeech declared.

The Archbishop intended the letter to be taken as addressed to the clergy and people of his own diocese and not to the ecclesiastical province of Canterbury as a whole it is assumed.

Marriage Laxity

LONDON, Jan. 5—The archbishop of Canterbury on announcing on what he described as the "increasing laxity on the subject of marriage" in the Church of England, today enjoined the clergy to exercise care in solemnizing marriage ceremonies and outlined a series of questions to be answered by couples before banns are published.

Intending to be said should solemnize no marriage for "any person who has previously been married and divorced, if the former husband, or wife is still alive." Neither, he said, should they marry anyone who has not been baptized, in that case the ceremony of marriage in the registrar's office is available.

He also objected to the marriage of persons within the degrees of relationship prohibited as prohibitive by the prayer book. This was interpreted to be directed at the legislation in the recent marriage act of weddings of persons who became "relations" through marriages between their families.

Small Damage in Early Morning Fire

Fire caused about one hundred and fifty dollars damage about nine thirty this morning to the house of Edgar Shipley, 77 Lindsay street. The reason believed that the fire started from a live coal falling from the basement into the flames while working his way up through the floor into the sitting room.

Most of the damage was smoke damage," stated Fire Chief Lynch, who with the department soon had the fire quenched.

Fewer Accidents in Belleville District

According to the provincial statistics a total of 32,984 accidents was reported to the workmen's compensation board in 1931, a decrease of 16,779 from 1930. Fatal accidents numbered 338, a reduction of 161.

The total benefits of $6,021,292.10 were awarded, as compared with $7,432,016.82 in 1930.

According to the information received the accidents locally, were also somewhat lower during the year 1931. Mr. Chief Lynch especially emphasized this statement going so far as to state that 1931 was a record breaking year, for accidents, in quite some time.

This is thought to be the result of the workmen being a little more cautious at their daily labors. The management of the various industrial firms are of the opinion that the workmen are beginning to see the advantage of being careful at their work. And the seeming dire hazards of institutions, placed in the factories by the Compensation Board, are being adhered to much more strictly than here-to-fore.

This morning the total number of trucks engaged in the removal of the snow from the down town district reached the new total of twenty-one. This with the fifty or so men who are engaged in loading and unloading the trucks which are being dumped off the embankment into the river, and with a number more of the men who are still in the outlying districts of the city clearing private walks in front of the vacant houses and on city property, as well as the water main construction work, brings the complete pay roll up to a new record of one hundred and thirty-one men.

Today however, will probably see the last of the snow removed from the down town section as the men were getting caught up at last with the high piles, which were heaped along the main streets, and even the side streets were fast being cleared off. This work does not come under the relief scheme and the men are not chosen according to the registration list kept in the city hall, but are picked up from in front of that building by the foreman of public works in the morning, when they are needed.

Only one member of the last year's council, Wesley Gray, Deputy Reeve of Thurlow Township, survived the onslaught of those, who were seeking re-election to the county council for the ensuing year. In the list of their reeves and members of the county Henry Hazlett of Carlow Township, but another Carwarden, Judson Gunter, returns to Shire Hall. The biggest upset was in Sidney Township, where both Reeve William Rodgers and Deputy Reeve Mallory Morrow were defeated by large majorities A. L. Burns, a former deputy, both reeve of Tweed and Fred R. Mallory were returned reeve and deputy reeve respectively. E. J. Reid, reeve of Bancroft, fell by the wayside, while Reeve Gunter scored a decisive victory.

There will be many new faces around the county council board in January, when the inquest meeting is held. W. Burkhardt dropped out of the contest in Bangor, Wicklow and McClure, and William Davis moved up from the council to contest the reevership against W. Tulley and was successful by 70 majority. Henry Hazzett was defeated in Carlow Township by James Fenmore the race being close, Fenmore winning by 14 majority. In Tweed village, W. H. Sayers and A. C. Blakely contested the reevership when W. S. Gordon, the sitting reeve of last year dropped out. Sayers won by 14 majority, the count took place in Thurlow Township, when Earl Denyes and Wesley Gray contested the deputy reevership. Returns showed, that the two men were running neck and neck in the polls. Ballots and when the final returns were completed it was found they were a tie with 193 votes each. Further investigation showed, that a mistake had been made at two polls in giving the returns and the final count was Gray 525, Denyes 523 a majority of two votes for Gray. It was one of the hottest elections held in that old township in many years, although the vote was small due to the bad roads, caused by the recent fall of snow.

The vote in all the municipalities where elections were held on Monday was not large and this was due to the bad roads and the bad weather conditions. The vote results in the various municipalities are listed below:

REEVE, DEPUTY, BOTH LOSERS

Ameliasburg Township Ousts Both By Large Majorities

Ratepayers in the historic township of Ameliasburg in Prince Edward County asserted their right of franchise and when the smoke had cleared, both the reeve and deputy reeve of last year had been defeated and two new men elected to fill places. Earl Bonter, reeve, went down before Judson Gunter by 81 majority, while Frank Tuffel defeated Herb. Walker for deputy reeve by 176 majorities. Barker, Peck and Broad were elected to the council with Hillenbrand. Calnan being left at home. Ameliasburg township taken all in all, was a dull affair yesterday was no different. The vote taken at the polls was large and until the last minute voters were being lined up over the voters' list at the Rosemore poll which is a heavy vote for that division.

No time was lost in conveying the man to the hospital where he was immediately upon arrival every effort was made to have the man made as comfortable as possible.

CANON SPEAKS UPON HEALING

Guild of Health Aims Outlined at Protestant Federation

Toronto, Jan. 5—Canon C. W. Hedley, president of the Toronto branch of the Guild of Health, spoke yesterday at the meeting of the Women's Protestant Federation held at Cleanerell," Mrs. A. E. Goodcrham's residence.

Canon Hedley outlined the story of spiritual healing at the hands of Christ and his apostles and through various movements to the present time. He indicated the aims of the Guild of Health to carry out such means of healing on lines scriptural and in accordance with Christian faith and practice. He showed the underlying principles of the Guild.

That Christianity had a gospel not merely of salvation of men's souls for the hereafter but of divine power of healing all the ills of human life here and now:

That God was not the author of the ills of life, although they were turned to good by God:

That, as Christ of old taught a way of life and healed all manner of disease, so to-day that power was active for all who accepted that way of life.

Mrs. C. H. Rogers, president, was in the chair at the largely attended meeting. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Leila E. Parker and the vote of thanks was expressed by Mrs. Lincoln Hunter and Mrs. George H. Griffin.

Policies, not address, members suggested the forming of a prayer circle within the Women's Protestant Federation, for Guild of Health work.

McBride, now of Owen Sound; the Masonic building and the store beneath it, occupied by Mrs. Hepworth and the grocery by Ray Cutting; a small building formerly occupied by John Prairie, and used as a shoe repair shop and a larger building, on the corner owned and occupied by J. BRIDGE GAME ENDS FRIDAY

Only 21 Rubbers of the 150 Remain to Be Played

(By Tom O'Neil)

New York, N.Y., Jan. 5—Sir Oulbertson's side was 16,853 points ahead in the great contract bridge match today, with only 21 rubbers remaining of the 150-rubber series. Sidney S. Lenz, Culbertson's chief opponent in a test of bidding systems which began December 3 and which will end next Friday night, said he still had a bare chance to win. Neutral experts regarded it as virtually impossible.

Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggtet, Jr., gained 3,385 points in the seven-hour session ending early today. They won six of the nine rubbers played. The score now is for Culbertson and 58 for Lenz. The points became 112,026 and 85,-215.

Deaths, Injuries and Arrests When Nationalists Demonstrate

GANDHI COMMANDS

Orders Strict Boycott From His Cell—More Leaders Arrested

By JAMES A. MILLS
Associated Press Staff Correspondent.

Bombay, India, Jan. 5—The renewed civil disobedience campaign by Indian Nationalists, brought to a head with the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, resulted in the blood Monday.

In a clash between police and Nationalist demonstrators at Allahabad, two men were killed, one of them trampled to death. Many others were injured and 30 were arrested.

The British Government prepared for the renewal of the campaign by a group of new ordinances, one of which authorized a declaration that the working committee of the All-India National Congress was an organization which threatened the law, and could be so treated.

At Cawnpore, rioters armed with lathis (staves) twice charged crowds of demonstrators.

Meanwhile, in his cell at Yeroda jail near Poona, the Mahatma issued a set of commands to the Indian people, directing them to with draw every bit of co-operation from the Government, to discard foreign cloth and, above all, to boycott every article of British goods, for "the boycott is the weapon which will bring England to her knees."

THORNTON AT RAIL PROBE

Commission Resumes Private Hearings of Road Presidents

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Jan. 5—Wm. Henry Thornton, President of the Canadian National Railways, under examination, the Transportation Commission resumed its inquiries Monday afternoon. Sir Henry Thornton, Sir Henry occupied the major proportion of the day and continued the close of the session Vice-President Hungerford of the Canadian National Railways was before the Commission. The evidence of Mr. Hungerford will be resumed tomorrow morning.

Mr. Alfred E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will give further evidence.

Mr. Justice L. P. Duff of the Supreme Court of Canada presided as Chairman of the Commission. The meeting today, held in the Railway Committee room at Ottawa.

While members of the Commission are reluctant to make any statement as to the progress of the inquiry, it was learned in official circles that a despatch published in Toronto yesterday to the effect that the inquiry body would shortly prepare an interim report was rather prem ture. The Commission has only really got started on its investigation, but expectations are that some time during the coming month a preliminary and interim report will be prepared.

GANGS STRIKE AT OSHAWA

Body Shop and Paint Room Gangs go on Strike

Oshawa, Ont., Jan. 5 (By The Canadian Press)—Several hundred employees of the Canadian Motors factory here went on strike today, this gum said work following a dispute with the management over wage schedules.

The strike followed a demand by the workers in the body shop and in the paint room for a higher rate of wages. The management met this demand with a refusal and that consideration would be given. The employees found this not in accordance with their views and went out on strike.

The strikers held a parade through the street with placards headed by Edward McDonald, Maynard Hamilton and Harold Gordon. After the parade McDonald addressed the gathering of strikers.

Between 400 and 500 men are affected by the strike. Officials of the company refuse to comment on the men's action and were still in conference this afternoon where they could not be reached for any official statement.

Making of Wine in Homes Unmolested Except for Sale

Toronto, Jan. 5—Because the commissioners of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario have the manufacture of home-made wines is a long-established custom and not a deliberate attempt to evade the Liquor Control Act which makes such action a technical offence, prosecution of these offences will not be undertaken unless, in the opinion of the police, it is done for the purpose of sale.

As a result of a recent case in Kitchener, the above decision of Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the board, was announced yesterday. In the Kitchener case the police had discovered an amount of home-made wine which they believed in excess of the quantity possible for the family requirements, and prosecuted one of time. As a result the wine was seized and destroyed.

In his statement yesterday Sir Henry pointed out that during the period of the Ontario Temperance Act and at present under the Liquor Control Act, the manufacture of rhubarb, dandelion, elderberry, cherry and similar wines and cider was and is illegal. The board, however, does not believe that such manufacture is other than a technical offence and will not prosecute unless it is suspected that the wine or cider is being manufactured for other than personal consumption.

A MATTER OF TIME

Time has passed. We are in a new year but time is unending. What time is philosophers argue over and perhaps never reach a conclusion, but it is man who marks off the spaces by months and years for his convenience and the seasons help him in the division of the year as do the aspects of nature, the flight of the birds and so on.

Some people treat the "old" year unmercifully. What they mean is not the year 1931 but the conditions which prevailed in that year and even these ought not to be attacked so viciously for the old year and its conditions are innocent of the charge—it is man who is to blame for the turmoil.

NOT AS BAD AS IN 1893

It is a cheering note that is sounded by the New York Times that the depression which prevails over the world is a pall is, while greater than those of 1921 and 1907 not to be compared with that which struck the world in the year 1893. Concerning that latter as it took place thirty-nine years ago most people know nothing of it except from hearsay. The Times says of this 1893 panic as a year of trade:

"The three years following that panic witnessed complete paralysis of American trade; imminent insolvency of the United States Treasury, because, by the end of the margin of a day, from lapse to a depreciated silver standard; receiverships for one-fourth of the country's railroad mileage; nation-wide strikes of employees, sometimes amounting to industrial insurrection, and almost entire prostration of our banking system. Well might it have been used to say in those days that America had no financial future. This depression has not repeated the aftermath of 1873, when steel production halted for over five years, when it was calculated that one-fifth of the investment in our railways represented receiverships or foreclosures, when failures of the largest New York banks were numerous and disastrous, when labor demonstrations reached the stage of bloodshed and when the real estate industry was a wreck. To extend the comparison of 1857 and 1837, when internal trade in the United States was almost stopped, would be superfluous. It may have been hard in 1931, there is still some comfort in making comparison with those older hardships."

HOW TO SETTLE THESE THINGS

Rev. Harold S. Clugston, of Toronto, addressing the Gaelic Society on Sir Walter Scott, the centennial of whose death will be marked this year, said that in the "Fair Maid of Perth" Scott offers a clue to war problems which might be looked into by the League of Nations. Two clans came to the North Inch and settled a dispute by selecting thirty men from each side who fought the issue out on the inches of Perth. Mr. Clugston suggested the league delegates fight it out next war in this style.

Sir Walter Scott might also offer a clue to the difficulties of Ireland. Sir Walter Scott was bankrupt but he refused to pay off his creditors a mere fraction of the debt, but assumed it all, wrote two hundred volumes in seven years and worked down his health in trying to pay off the indebtedness in which he was involved. Scott refused to "horse" or "a trojan" to pay the debt and all but succeeded in spite of the staggering load. The present age could learn a lesson of going to work to payoff heavy indebtedness when individuals and governments have plunged into during the past decade. If people worked like Scott, things might be a little better at the present moment.

A GOOD "BLOW"

Belleville unemployed heroically faced the opportunity to go to work on Monday morning against the snowbanks.

The market square where the men met from seven o'clock onwards was a hive of activity, but the friendly voices as they men talked while waiting for the call to go to work.

There were earnest men, out of work, men of all ages, and many of them looked as if the present occupation was an unusual one to them, that it was but a chance in a time of need to go to work.

The snowstorm of last week was the best "blow" the idle men of the city have received.

TALKING OF WEATHER

Weather is still the most talked of thing the world over. Now it is the British Isles which have had heavy snow followed by forty hours of warm rain and heavy floods.

Was the first storm of the year on New Year's day a sample of what is to come? Plenty of snow with mildweather. Local prophets declare that the winter will be mild with plenty of precipitation.

A BIT OF SPANISH LACE

Aline Michaelis

My grandmother I never knew,
But she has left me these;
Her sapphire necklace, darkly blue;
Her scarf from overseas.

I have no picture of her face,
No child is left to tell;
But from this chain, this yellowed lace,
I know my grandam well.

I see her as a happy bride,
With joyous youth aglow,
And love forever at her side
In golden long ago.

I see her slender fingers lift
The sapphires from their case;
I sense her gladness at this gift—
The scarf of Spanish lace.

This grandmother I never knew
Still thrills me with her grace.
For she had eyes of Spanish blue
And skin like Spanish lace.

NEWSPAPER COMMENTATOR remarked that 1931 was remarkable among other things for the fact that Kipling's "Danny Dever" was sung over the radio on New Year's Eve. Well it was and probably be sung five hundred times this year... What about "Good Night Sweetheart?"

TYRONE POWER, noted actor, has answered the last curtain call on an earthly stage. Mr. Power will be remembered locally for his fine presentation of "The Drain Man" in "The Servant in the House", at Griffin's Theatre. He was also a member of the moving picture company which produced a capital and labor play at Trenton some years ago, some scenes of which were shot in Belleville. Tyrone Power was one of those fine old actor-actors, modest and unassertive in the extreme, always good if never great, a consistent artist who took his work seriously and always made a good job of it.

TORONTO ELECTORS have just had their annual election campaign. Elections are always held on New Year's Day in the Queen City and the preceding campaign is always made much of with speeches in every school and church hall and the newspapers making a hullabaloo, just as if it mattered much which of the candidates were elected. "Birdseye" Pirtle never had much municipal elections than Toronto, or keener individual interest. Toronto newspapers have a whale of a time, generally dividing up the votes of different tickets, one morning and one evening paper joining issue with the other two, and digging up Front Page stuff to get their readers excited. Looks like making a big fuss over small potatoes but all the commotion arouses the interest of the electors, the searchlight is turned on civic management and more efficient administration should be the result. It might well be said that of the Toronto civic elections, "a good time was had by all."

Dear Mr. Umpstead:—

Let's see. What'll I tell the old jackass. In reply to yours of the sixteenth we are surprized to learn the super-power two-for-used truck you purchased from us is not giving perfect satisfaction. We had to sell it quick before it fell to pieces.

As you know, Mr. Umstead, we inspect all used cars thoroughly before turning over the cars to the purchaser. Your truck was in excellent condition when we sold it to you. That's a swell dress you have on. New, isn't it?

It is possible your driver is at fault. Four miles to the gallon is very poor mileage for a truck in such good condition as yours. Four gallons to the mile would be about right. I never noticed before you had a dimple in your chin. Bring it around and we will have our expert mechanic make the proper adjustments.

Sincerely yours,

Just sign it yourself.

—Life.

OUT OF HARM'S WAY

The Mahatma Gandhi and his loin cloth have at last exhausted patience of the British Government and Lord Irwin's decision that the Indian National Congress have been taken into custody and will, no doubt, be treated as pampered prisoners for some time to come. The National Congress itself will be declared an illegal organization of Mahatma Gandhi has brought these penalties upon his own head, for he it was who did more than anyone else to hamper the success of the recent Round Table Conference in London. At that gathering he refused a proper recognition of the vast Mohammedan Indian population and of the 60,000,000 untouchable Hindus He considered himself to be the virtual dictator of Indian. He insisted upon terms which would have made the Hindus absolutely dominant in a land containing many nationalities and many religions.

In one breath he recited extracts from the Sermon on the Mount and in the next he predicted that the Congress would be the next world war. He spoke as though he would welcome the sacrifice of millions of Indian lives, if need be, in a persistent civil disobedience, at the same time knowing full well that, in the past, such organized rebellion against the Government would result in wholesale slaughter unless the Government put down lawlessness with a strong hand.

BRITAIN AT PRAYER

It is not without significance that the Prime Minister of Great Britain, after the opening of the present year, should have been the staging of a private act of united prayer. In so far as leadership of Church and State were ever to be accomplish its purpose, the British people must be willing to be led before God as a nation. The prayers themselves as suggested by the Archbishop of Canterbury and other leaders, were highly significant. In their broad, comprehensive, yet specific national and imperial shortcomings they summed the needs of the country on the appeal for Divine help.

His Majesty himself struck the keynote of the hour in his Christmas prayer when, in his own New Year message, he spoke as follows:

"It is in a spirit of confidence that I times the chimes of the clock in London, praying that under Divine guidance the coming year may bring the light of truth and the strength of united purpose to our lives and make for peace within the land."

There will tell what 1932 holds for the Motherland. But she has started a crucial year right.—Toronto Globe.

TROUBLED SOOTHSAYERS

A broadside of optimistic prophecies concerning the year 1932 was discharged during the last few days of 1931 by the City Editors of New York and Chicago, industrial kings and merchant princes. Financial observation that next year would see an upturn. In Canada similar predictions are made.

All will welcome these prophecies that may be realized and would only time can determine that. They will be welcome, however, only if it is impossible for business men to be sure that conditions will not get worse. Yet about these prophecies relating to trade in 1932 their hangs a significant note of doubt.

No prudent man will go far these days on the basis of two years have taught us anything it is that optimistic prophecies are dangerous. Not sure a year later when they haven't come true. They have also taught us that unexpected things can happen—and merely by some magic formula or simply by waiting can be relied upon for something to turn up. Prosperity will return when the steps have been taken to pave the way.

Business will pick up in places, what will suddenly be needed, and there may well be rises in stock quotations. But to expect too much. Fortunately, 1932 carries no signs abroad that at last statesmen have been successful in their efforts to an days beginning to roll up their sleeves to tackle realities.—Ottawa Citizen.

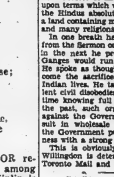
Heard On The Street

Possibly you are not one of those early risers who are to be seen Winter and Summer tramping around the streets and byways of the city before business breakfast constitutionals, but as the long rays of the sun are to be seen reflected back off the church steeples, the old watchworks standpipe and the tall factory chimneys that do the city so much harm, and the snow beats and swirls against them when perchance the sun does not shine.



Belleville has those men who for years have been observed to hit forth at the start of each new day and wander aimlessly, just absorbing the fresh air and the sights. They are doctors, lawyers, clergymen, a veterinary surgeon to be numbered amongst them; a lawyer, a retired cake captain—who generally finds his way down to the southern end of the Bridge and stands at the foot of the hill—and others on the morning rays.

The early bird is widely acclaimed as an early riser, but the bird who first finds himself in search of the worm is the bird who has caught them all, and experience has taught them well ever since.

They see Front street in the morning—as you would, too. If you cared to follow their example—and it took better than the wan beams of the day begins. Men with lunch pails under their arms. Hurrying to different factories, and jobs other than factory work. Men whose rough handiwork has made Belleville famous in the four corners of the earth. Others are standing in doorways in small groups and conversing in low tones among themselves. The sun has not yet begun to glow on the tops of the chimneys, smoke that hangs heavily in little swirls in the still air. Girls waiting, too, for trucks to come and take them to their jobs some few miles north of the city. Some few cars with their drivers sitting behind the wheel and with heavily bearded faces hurry by with heads down and overhauls showing under the coats. Others are about the same. Others that in the few shop windows whose lights have been left burning all night stab the unappealing darkness. Bakers' delivery trucks speed by. With sleepy-looking drivers at the wheel, and cosily pulled down over their ears. The clip clop of a cold horse disturbs the silence and the familiar jingle of milk bottles as they are left at the doors. Now was it O'Henry described it? "The cat was given lying dormant, slowly uncoils itself in cosy fashion and slowly prepares to partake of her first, frugal meal."

Butchers restocking counters with meat that had been left in the ice box overnight. Early morning pedestrians. Then the stores begin to open. Girls employed in small loft factories above the stores hurry by. Newsboys appear on the streets with their papers under their arms and wrapped around them. And fur trimmed galoshes affected notelessly. They go by alone or with a single companion. Silent. Not like the boys of a few years ago. Hailing each other from one side of the thress and fours, when they will chatter noisily of last night's happenings. Then the morning rush begins. Cars, trucks, buses. The street railway traveller pulls up in front of a chain store. And cheery, red-cheeked lads in pullovers and caps, who, while a hard bitten truck driver slowly and carefully tallies off the various articles that are to be delivered, hurry with their down dumps off several packing cases in front of a dry goods store. Then they disappear within and the truck driver straightens up and stands out in relief against the brilliance. Each hour of the morning has its different appearance and its different people. Then comes noon and he is the "eight o'clock shift". Later on will come the "nine o'clock brigade"—the shop owners, the bank clerks and the other clerks of smaller stores who are not so punctual as to hours of opening. These representatives are more talkative and saunter more slowly. Or even they might exchange pleasantries with each other. Then comes the "worm" has been taken. Again the grind of business commences for the day. Threatening clouds. Then darkness sets in and the lights flash on in the store windows commence to flash on and twinkle from the walks.

How Cub Reporter Used Up Everybody's Time and Harrassed the Overworked City Editor

The story of a cub reporter's first newspaper office in the year 1931 is told in the following dialogue between the editor of the office of any newspaper. The editor is seated at his desk which is covered foot deep and hard with wads, clippings, paste pots, rejected copy, paper, clippings and paper, clippings and pasteboard patches, letters from some folks who want to get their names in the paper—more from those who have to keep them out—bulletins, journals, old hats, a little stuff from the janitor, and a few cigarette butts more coming in over the machine. It is about ten thirty in the morning and the editor is apparently suffering with hang-overs and won't be down that way. Telephone hangovers, he has a headache and the composing room is after him for copy. He's yelling in his ear because there is no" copy". For that he threatens to discharge the whole staff. Another shooting craps because they have nothing else to do and another reading the morning paper. The morning edition was so late it missed all the trains, he'd had a fight with his wife that morning over the housework she had refused to do, and the baby is still lie in his desk drawer; and he woke up so late he didn't have time to shave. He didn't have time to fast. And in ten minutes his boss would probably be up from downstairs yelling why the this, and why the that—and he'd lose his blankety blank—blank. Oh, yes. He felt fine.

Enter Cub Reporter.

Cub: "My I do seem a bit late th—morning don't I? I hope you will remember that fact when you are good enough to dig up yesterday about the new road work? Well, I clean forgot all about it. Just thought of it". Editor: "Well, well, well, you are a little late, aren't you? But never mind. Late party last night I suppose?"

Cub: "Well it was a little late. You see we went from Marge's over to—— and we did stay quite late. Bridge, and I always go to bridge parties."

Editor: "Say, I'll bet you had a lot of fun. Hope you enjoyed yourself. Have a smoke"—hands out cigar.

Cub takes the cigar and seats himself in chair opposite editor's desk and lights cigar with a match.

"Yes, we did have lots of fun. And that reminds me, I have to get back to Marge's early."

Editor: "Oh ahead, boy. I suppose you did feel a bit upset up today. Why not take it easy for today at least?"

Cub: "Oh, I don't feel so bad, boss—say you remember what I was telling you the beginning of last week—about how to make this paper better?—Hello! Oh yes, hello! Marge?—Glances at wrist watch. Yes I'll be over in about half an hour. Yes. Got to handle some important business first—Yes, the ed. wants me—some of the bigger stuff. What? Yes. Go out to lunch with him. Sure. The car ready. Dutch. What? No? No, I'll tell you all about it later, Wazzat? Naw. Bye."

——Turns around to editor who is holding his poor head in both hands and wishing he could crawl off in some hole to die. Editor looks up.

"Now as I was saying, the public that reads this paper wants more news and less boloney. Now you can get all the news they want nowadays over their radios and what I want you to do is to get out and want to chase after some of these fancy reporters you have around here and who are all about fifty times better than them to go after these human interest yarns more. I'll just speak to the boys about it and tell them to get out and tell them they've got to get on their toes more than they've been doing. We want real stories! Who wants to read about——"

Editor: "Great Stuff, boy! Just what I've always said. Human interest stuff!"

Cub: "——and who wants to read about electric power and all that stuff. Who cares about the standards and all that stuff? Nobody! Not a single person! Maybe a few old doderers. But just let's put a real crackajack human interest yarn in about dead pages and watch the people eat it up".

Editor: "Yes, yes, that's the stuff! And by the way, I'm pretty well rushed today, do you suppose you could see——about that big deal that's coming off——"

Cub: "You forgot the date I just made with Marge. We're going to the——and I promised her that if you what I can do. Stall want to go over to the big deal with you and I can take a few notes and get a scrap of paper or so and put down a note or two and you can look it over."

Editor: Bless me, I'd clean forgotten that date you just made. That will be a nice entertainment up there. Won't it?"

Cub: "Say, why don't you come along?"

Editor: "Well, I'd like to, but I think you are I'm going to be terribly busy this morning. However you run along and don't bother with the old notes. Well send another man over to——and you can meet us shows up."

Cub: "Not at all. It won't be any trouble. I'd just as soon."

Editor: "Well then since you insist on doing it. It would save me a lot of work if you could, and I could send a reporter over and get the dope on the big sale through at the garage but I hate to have you say though, it isn't very important, but some of the big shots are going to be there and I wouldn't want to have no news in the paper, and maybe they haven't got the dope on the deal yet. You will have to put it up or two in about it, anyway nobody should be interested in safe blowing but those old fellows anyhow."

Cub: "Oh, I'll have no trouble getting the dope. Leaving off to lunch. Don't worry about the notes on the other, boss. I'll take a few down and type them off on the way home. They will be pretty few though and you'll have to rewrite them and take up the thread of the story yourself because I won't have much time tonight. Another party going on that I just made be at."

Editor: "That's nothing, boy. We'll be glad to rewrite them."

Cub: "Well, Toodleoo. So long, old man."

Editor: "So long, old boy. Have a good time", then to himself "the last of the big coat sleeves as the cub disappeared around the corner of the hall. Boy, that fellow's going to be a dandy reporter in a few months. He's got ideas."

"NO CASE AS BAD AS MINE"

Now 77—and Fitter Than at 50

HAS TAKEN KRUSCHEN FOR 22 YEARS

"I have been 6 years thinking of writing these few lines. It may seem strange, but I have been reading your papers this last 6 years to see if there was any case as bad as mine has been. But I have not seen one. I used to have sick headaches and rheumatism so bad at times that I could not walk without two sticks; could not walk round the house without holding on to it. That was when I was the other side of 50.

"Now, if I live till next March I shall be 77. I have taken Kruschen Salts for over 22 years, and I am in good health, better now than the other side of 50. I don't have any rheumatism, haven't had for several years. So if anyone can give Kruschen Salts a good name, I can. I don't feel any older now than I did at 50, and I can walk 4 miles an hour without any bother to me.

It is common knowledge that rheumatism is associated with an excess of uric acid in the system. Uric acid is present in the crystals and it is only the pain of rheumatism is caused by those "needles" settling down in the joints, muscles and tendons.

Kruschen is a powerful solvent of these uric acid crystals. It swiftly dulls their sharp edges, then flushes them out of the system. Your pains ease; swellings subside, knotted joints become loose. Afterwards, the "little daily dose" of Kruschen so stimulates the liver and kidneys that regular and complete elimination is ensured. Your health is then yours. Mischievous uric acid never gets the chance to accumulate again.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 40c. and 75c. per bottle.

AWAKENED MAN CHEERS SERMON

Embarrassed Churchman Apologizes For Outburst

Montreal, Que. (CP) — Gevevieve Lapointe Saffroy writing in the Montreal Daily Star describes the sermon which aroused applause in church in local annals.

Rev. Father Hogan, of Ste. Anne's Presbyterian Church, preached at the Ascension of Our Lord in Westmount. Suddenly a voice cried out, "Amen!" says, ended his sermon with a "Amen!" emals people cheered. As his voice died away a vigorous round of applause broke out. The congregation was a peer in the rear of the church. The congregation was startled first, then amused at the unusual occurrence.

Later in the morning the man who aroused the enthusiasm of the parish priest that he had fallen asleep during the sermon and then begun to waken during the peroration of the preacher. Upon the first bulletin of returning consciousness, he thought he was in a theatre and, impressed by the concluding remarks of the preacher he felt his appreciation could only be expressed by applause. When he realized his mistake he was overcome with embarrassment.

Not that the man in this case was the only one to be moved during a good sermon. The incident reminds one of some of the amusing or accidents attributed to Rev. Father McShane which was alleged to have occurred during the sermons he followed the war. Father McShane is said to have preached a sermon during the hard times then prevailing. The sermon ended with Father Patrick's Church always open, and they could draw on it as they needed to do so. "Sundays excepted, of course," the preacher added. For on that day the pews are reserved for our regular sleepers."

WOMEN REGAIN LOST STATUS

New Amendment to Naturalization Act in Force

Ottawa, Ont., Jan 5 (By The Canadian Press)—Under the terms of the anomily whereby a Canadian woman marrying a foreigner loses her nationality without acquiring the nationality of her husband, will be lost after the 15th inst. when the naturalization act amendment passed last session, will come into force by formal proclamation.

Since some time there has been a great deal of difficulty over this situation particularly resulting from thousands of Canadian women marrying married to United States citizens. When they sought passports from either country they were unable to secure them.

Under the new law the Canadian woman thus married can, on a declaration retain her British citizenship.

SCHMELING TO DEFEND TITLE THREE TIMES

Will Meet Walker in Miami on February 26th

THEN DEMPSEY

If Manassa is Defeated, Max Will Tackle Sharkey

By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, N.Y., Jan. 5— Max Schmeling, who came over here for the first time four years ago with one ill-fitted suit and no special prospects of making concert engagements, is back again, ready to undertake a fistic programme that will earn him $1,000,000 in the next nine months.

He's a far cry to that lad of 1928, when Schmeling, then an unknown German heavyweight, first arrived in New York. Since then he has won the world's heavyweight championship and successfully defended it against Young Stribling. He also has made a fortune, which he may double before the year is out.

Three Fights Planned

Del Manta has three title defenses in mind for this season against Mickey Walker, Jack Sharkey and Jack Sharkey but the chances are he will find the game will not be to his liking after he has won in the style to which heavyweight champions have become accustomed.

Schmeling's first defense will be against Walker at Miami, Fla., late in February, probably Feb. 26. Articles for this match have not yet been signed but Jack Dempsey, manager of Walker, was expected to come to terms within the next few days.

Believing he will have no serious trouble in disposing of Walker, Schmeling is looking ahead toward a possible meeting with Dempsey in June, probably in the Yankee Stadium here.

If Dempsey is ready to attempt a come-back at that time, then Schmeling, in the event of a victory over the old Manassa mauler, would be ready to step Sharkey a "shot" at the title.

But if Dempsey would rather wait until September then Schmeling will wait for him. There will be no match in June and Shar key will have to wait another year for a chance at the title he lost to Max by hitting him low in their famous four round bout in the Yankee Stadium on June 1930.

Schmeling, now weighing 192 pounds, appears in excellent condition. He will start his first exhibition tour in Paterson, N.J., Jan. 7 and expects to start training about Feb. 20th at Palm Beach for the Walker match.

DISPUTED GOAL WINS FOR MARLBORO SRS.

Coach "Bezmor" Helwig pulled a pleasant surprise on the local ball birds last night. He invited over three new defence men for the fame to look over. Bill Hanford of Marmora; Erank Dorey of Deseronto, and Art Dempsey of Belleroville, were the three new faces seen. Shannon looked the best of the trio, but Dorey and Dempsey might feel the ice more after get accustomed with the artificial ice and the strange surroundings.

"Bezmor" intends taking at least two of these boys to Picton on Wednesday night. Gerald McMeekin will be back for the game Wednesday, he is keeping in condition by working out with the Owen Sound Greys while visiting his parents in the "ad home town."

Both the juniors and the intermediates had a real workout last night. The juniors are on their league schedule next Monday night in Campbellford. The intermediates entertain the Campbellford intermediates on Friday night. This game is one to watch as they are fighting as hard as to give the hockey fans in the northern part of the country a chance to get in on the battle. It is expected that one of the largest crowds of the season ever seen in the Belleville Arena will witness the paying off of the lid of the current hockey season when the Hydro Tows come to town. They are bringing a large following for Bob Hastings, we understand.

Mayor Tice has been chosen to draw the winning ticket for the B.A.A.A. car on Friday night. The sale of tickets has been a little more brisk of late and it is expected that a number of tickets will be sold before the drawing Friday night. The winning ticket will be drawn at random for between the second and third period... Don't crowd, boys.

We regret to announce that Joe Graboski, Oshawa's smart forward pass guy, had the misfortune to lose his right eye in practice last Saturday night at the Motor Town. The Oshawa juniors were presiding when the unfortunate occurrence happened and it was all due to an accident, we are informed. Graboski fell on one of his teammates stick, and it resulted in the loss of his eye. The sympathy of the sports fans in Eastern Ontario goes out to Joe Graboski, who was one of the finest forwards in the province.

Roger Baker, while announcing in his sport column of the air had slight fright when he told the sporting fraternity that Larry "Slip" Cayer had been traded by the St. Louis "Flyers" to the Buffalo "Bisons" for Bill Debree of the Buffalo club. "Slip" is a well known hockey player in Belleville, was the leading goal getter in the American Hockey League for 2 years ago and will become the property of the Buffalo club tomorrow.

How many know that 'Babe Ruth is facing his 19th season, Burleigh Grimes his 18th season and Danny Vance his 21st season in baseball. Grimes is behind old Jack Quinn racing his 26th season, an ark that is still doing duty.

After hearing of these veterans still carrying on, we wonder what some of the old timers do mean when they say they are getting "too old."

Gabby Street, Cardinal Manager, is feeling pretty good about his 1932 chances. He says; "I don't see who it is going to stop us. We finished far in front and I can't make myself believe that our team will be way weaker. I expect the Giants to give us a stiffer fight but we should with out!"

BABE RUTH IS IN CONDITION

Expects to Have Best Year With Little Cut in Salary

New York, N.Y., Jan. 5— Babe Ruth's a perfect 43 right now and is better physically than at any time in the past four or five years.

So says Art McGovern, who has been helping Ruth keep in trim for nearly two years. The Yankee slugger weighs 223½ pounds and measures 4 inches around the waist. This compares to the 45 inches nine years ago, when there was a danger of him eating himself out of the big leagues.

The Babe has a new contract to sign with the Yankees this year and is busily engaged these days in thinking up arguments he says he should not be forced to accept any reduction in the $80,000 salary he has been getting. Jacob Ruppert, Yankee owner, has said he never will go above $80,000 but in all seriousness is that the Babe will be signed at a figure little under that.

BANKRUPT BALL CLUB PLACED ON MARKET

Chicago, Ills., Jan. 5—The bankrupt Toledo Baseball Club of the American Association which for six years ago for $175,000 will be sold to anyone by the highest bidder.

The Toledo club was thrown into the hands of receivers last season and several efforts to sell it, at a figure near the original cost, failed.

Windsor May Cut Tax Rate in 1932

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 5.—Mayor Reid, Jr., today told the new city council he believed Windsor would be able to cut the tax rate and still meet all obligations this year at the inaugural session of the new council yesterday.

Provision has been made for reduction in expenditure of about $800,000 in a programme of economy and retrenchment, he said. Assessment had advanced from about $260,000,000 in 1928 to $300,000,000 in 1931, he declared contending there should be a revision of assessment and some reductions.

Free Calendars Scarce This Year

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 5.—Free calendars are scarce this year. A policeman explained, when Magistrate Arnold complained in court that not one calendar adorned the walls of the room. The magistrate was in a standing mood when the time came and he had to figure out with paper and pencil the date of the defendant's next appearance.

"Can't collectors and arrest some insurance agent or bank official?" observed Mr. Arnold. "We must have a calendar."

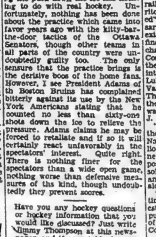
SPORTS



By JIMMY THOMPSON

LET'S HOPE SANTA DOES

William Duff has written all the way from Mt. Chatsworth, Ontario to ask "What relation has shooting the puck down the ice ti do with real hockey when the opposing side is being pressed around their goal like Jimmy Ward and the defending players forced to pass it to their partners man made instead of flipping the puck from one end of the rink to the other? This question is common in hockey and from a spectator's viewpoint "it does look bad." The answer, William is that shooting the puck down the ice has nothing to do with real hockey. Unfortunately, nothing has been done about the practice which came into favor years ago with the kitty-bat-in-door tactics of the Ottawa Senators, though other teams in all parts of the country were quite doubtedly guilty too. The only censure that the practice brings is a derisive boo of the home fans. However, I see President Adams of the Boston Bruins has complained bitterly against its use by the New York Americans stating that it counted no less than sixty-one shots down the ice to relieve the pressure. Adams claims he may be right in his retaliate and if so it will certainly result in many of the fans spectators' interest. Quite right. Nothing more than defensive measures of this kind, though undoubtedly they prevent scores.

Have you any hockey questions or hockey information you feel you would like discussed? Just write Jimmy Thompson, care of this newspaper, and if acceptable, he will be glad to discuss the question in the subject with suitable acknowlegment.

WHEN IS A STICK NOT A STICK

Recently a rather peculiar situation arose in a game in Montreal between the Maroons and Les Canadiens. The latter, playing two men short were hemmed in their own end of the rink. Jimmy Ward, Maroon defenceman with the Flying Frenchmen stopped a hard drive with the end of his stick. Instead of spitting horizontally, the puck took about two or three inches clean off the end of the stick. Immediately his team-mates called to him, not to touch the puck, since the ruling states that a "player shall be meted out to a player who with not in possession of his own stick" takes part in the play. The final rule in the hockey book states that a player must have "a complete stick." But unfortunately, the puck was shot directly at Burke again, and in order to save another goal on Hainsworth, Burke shot the puck down the ice with his broken stick, immediately referee Cooper Smeaton penalized Burke for having taken part in the play without a complete stick. Which, of course, brings up the question "When is a stick not a stick." Cecil Hart, manager of Les Canadiens protested that Burke should have been given time to get himself with a new stick but Smeaton wasn't having any.

RAILWAYS ARE REFERRED TO

Judge Censures Tactics of Invasion of Territories

Ottawa, Jan. 5—Caustic comment by Judge Frederic A. Gill of the two great railways of Canada "to invade territory which is the other's" was offered with the consequent "unnecessary duplication of railways which is bound to result," in his opening finding of Mr. Justice Fullerton chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, in the application of the Canadian National Railways for interchange facilities between its Lake Line Canard line and the Canadian Vancouver and Lulu Island Railway. The Chief Commissioner dismissed the application, and his judgment was concurred in by Commissioner Mr. Boucher.

"It is impossible for me to accept the suggestion that the Canadian National Railways expended a million dollars merely to create a paper new line, which at present does not possess a single industry, with the sole idea that they were to sit down and wait for industries to be built along it," says Mr. Justice Fullerton.

"No doubt they have, and sometime in the future industries will be located here but in the meantime the purpose clearly is to secure a share of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's business.

"I might add that tactics of this nature by no means peculiar to the Canadian National Railways. The invading Canadian Pacific Company is equally an offender as anyone who has any knowledge of railway construction (e.g. in the Drumheller Valley) will testify. The efforts of one railway to invade territory which the other has developed is responsible for a great deal of the unnecessary duplication of railways which exists to-day. Needless to say, nothing, in my opinion, encourages the possibility of economy in railway operation by branding of interchanges.

"The application will be dismissed."

Louis De Socio, 12, dragged his brother behind him. It touched the third rail, and the shock knocked Louis unconscious. He fell across, the tracks in the path of the approaching train, a sheet of blue flame playing over his body.

The other boys tried to pull him away. They were shocked and burned when they touched him.

Seeing that the youth was bearing down upon them, they decided to rescue him or perish in an easy cost. Again they took hold of him and pulling together, despite the burning electricity dragged him away from the third rail and fell face down in the cinders good by.

At The Belle

VEHICLE YIELD WITH MELODIES

When "Delicious", the new Gaynor-Farrell musical romance comes to the Belle screen, tomorrow, it may solve the most perplexing problem the motion pictures have had in recent years. The question is whether people will go to see a picture place on the screen, on which has been the concern of artists, composers, and Hollywood technicians since the lack of movement in the air interfered with them from public favor.

All were agreed that the public wanted music with its screen diet, but none had a constructive idea to offer until Guy Bolton appeared with the original screen story of "Delicious" incorporating many unique ideas for music. For Pitts Sanborn considered it the perfect vehicle for Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell.

George Gershwin, perhaps American's most popular living composer, and his equally famous brother were immediately consulted and to create the words and music to serve as a dramatized accompaniment to the story. The success of the venture depended upon weaving the songs and music so skilfully into the romance that the story action would not be incorrupted, the greatest weakness of the first musicals.

Works of careful creative planning went by, during which time David Butler, director of the picture, let musical hits as "Sunny Side Up" and "Just Imagine" conferred sadly with author and composer in order to frame a perfect continuity for the highly interesting story and the fascinating tunes.

In the end Gershwin discovered Bolton's script a perfect job of weaving in which Gershwin George and Ira Gershwin had cleverly interwoven the music and lyric of six sensational songs which included "Delicious", "Somebody From Somewhere", "Chinkichoka, Chinki Chinki Chinki Chinki Wah You," "Earelli," plus the new musical sensation, New York Rhapsody.

At The Capitol

MARILYN MILLER, LEON ERROL IN "HER MAJESTY, LOVE"

Manager Holmes of the Capitol Theatre, is happy to announce Wednesday as the opening date for "Her Majesty, Love," latest starring vehicle for Marilyn Miller, the beautiful lady of the twinkling toes who caught the world by storm by her impersonations of "Sally," "Sunny" and "Rosalie" in "Peter Pan."

While Miss Miller's role in "Her Majesty Love" is conceded to be her most quite different from any of her previous ones. As Lily Turner, the capricious German housemaid who evolves into a baroness, Miss Miller is given an opportunity to display her amazing versatility.

Those who have seen the picture would not be Marilyn without the light fantastic. Lily Turner, the serious minded genius interludes of the light comedy and mimicry for which she is famous. There are seven songs—as contagious as the radiant personality of the singer.

You'll agree that "Her Majesty, Love" is a delightful play as you've seen. The incidental music of the Rudolf Friml-Herbert Stothart department of the lady of the silver heels and the picturesqueness of the backgrounds add to the gaiety of the story. The famous Capitol dancing organizations take part in cartoon scenes. They are Gus Arnheim's Cocoanut Grove orchestra from the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles and Ravena's South American Tango Band.

Four of the screen's funniest comedians are in the cast, Leon Errol, Fred Sternard, Chester Conklin, and W. C. Fields. Others are Harry Bostock, Maude Eburne, Jason Robards, Jean Hall, Mae Madison and Don Novis.

Leon Errol is the "Lord of Misrule" in "Her Majesty, Love."

Of course no picture would be named and thrilled at the Capitol over the week end unless "Her Majesty" Love" and "Somebody From Somewhere," "Chinkichoka, Chinki Chinki Chinki Chinki Wah You," "Earelli," plus the new musical sensation, New York Rhapsody.

Napoleon Highway Opens in June

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The troublesome matter of the Napoleon highway has been settled, and the Napoleon highway, running from the Gulf of Juan to Nice will be opened in June 11, it was announced yesterday.

The new highway, according to the Government's plans, was to be resplendent with posts set at kilometre intervals, each bearing at the top a Napoleonic eagle.

This announcement aroused a storm of protest from political factions opposed to the Bonaparte tradition and, until the opposition was overcome, Gaston Gerard, Under Secretary of State for the Bureau of Tourism, was forced to delay operating of the road.

Yesterday, it was said, the opposition had suddenly collapsed, and the eagle will perch on the posts as originally intended.

JIM THE CONQUEROR

by PETER B. KYNE

"Here's a card that says: 'In case of death or accident please notify my next of kin, Miss Roberta Antrim,' etc. Well, it sort of looks like God Them's made a mess of things. He was too old to have attempted to do this job himself. His eyes probably were so dim as they used to be, and when a fellow takes to bushwhacking he ought to be reasonably fast and accurate with his rifle. When he borrowed my rifle you sort of spilled old Dan's beans, Don Jaime."

"His sheep we still have with us, also his foreman and shepherders," Don Jaime announced thoughtfully. "I suppose his sheep are now the property of his next of kin, and Heaven forbid that I should wage war on a woman. How am I going to think well defter the war of the water-holes. The sensible thing to do now is to wire Miss Roberta Antrim to get down here on the job and take charge of her late father's affairs. Uncle Tom. She's a lady. She'll probably listen to reason and we'll get rid of these stinking sheep without additional bloodshed. They'll ruin a lot of the range in the interim, of course—oh, let 'em graze. We'll get our money back or they'll die and that would be putting a thing to rights. Nevertheless."

"Whatever else we may be, let us hope, we be gentlemen," said the ranger, agreed humorously. "Well now, the next business before the meeting is to call Old Tom's horse, drap Thomas across the saddle and lead him to Los Algodones and deliver him to the local undertaker. The remainder of this affair will close the investigation. Who should get to a doctor, It's ten miles to your ranch and ten miles to Los Algodones, I'm in command! All aboard, I suppose Algodones, away!"

They had proceeded but a short distance along the road to Los Algodones when they were overtaken by a man driving an old automobile that had been converted into a truck. The latter ride his horse in to the middle of the road and held up his hand. The vehicle stopped. The ranger looked the driver over.

"I know you," he announced. "Are ye't you Ted, Mexican cantz cook?"

The man glanced from the ranger to Antrim's face, with a startled, limp body hanging across the saddle his dark skin paled as he saw that dead man's head bundled up in his slicker.

"What's happened?" he cried "That dead man's my boss, ain't he?"

"He used to be. He rode out of his range to kill Don Jaime and, from there, you may remember. Well, his mission was a failure. Instead of Don Jaime, waylay and murder him, he died very hard to succeed as you may judge from the appearance of Senor Higuenes, but somebody else murdered him before he got to now he's on his way to the undertaker. I suppose you're bound for Los Algodones for supplies?"

The man nodded, his eyes stiff on all that was near to the man who had paid him well for doing very little work.

"Well, suppose we dispose Antrim's body on your cross Don Jaime will ride on the seat beside you. We'll sit on back with the corpse and lead those two horses. You got a gun on you?"

"Yes, I do."

"Give it to me. You might be tempted to use it on Don Jaime. Hop out now and pay the lady and gentleman for the use of your late boss."

"I don't think I'll go to Los Algodones—all alone," the man said, his eyes on the ranger. "The boys might—"

"You'll go. I desire it, my friend. I don't feel like having your friends ambushed at the edge of town on the Rancho Valle Verde until I get Don Jaime's then," Hobart answered. "Get out of the car, please." The man did so and lifted Don Jaime down from his horse and deposited him beside the driver, after which he seated himself in the rear of the car and held the leading ropes of the two horses. At a speed of seven or eight miles an hour the party proceeded to Los Algodones, where Hobart turned Antrim's body over to the undertaker and made his report to the sheriff, having first seen Don Jaime in bed at the hotel with a doctor in charge of him.

About an hour later a coroner's jury trooped into Don Jaime's room and listened to the story of the killing. The ranger added his testimony, and the foreman of the jury called at his fellow jurors.

"Don't seem to be anything mysterious about this case, boys," he announced. "All those in favor of the verdict that Jim Hobart was justified in using his right hands. All up! We, the jury, find that Jim Hobart came to kill death at the hands of Don Jaime Miguel Higuenes and that said Higuenes acted in self defense and cannot be charged with any crime worse than justifiable homicide."

The jury retired, and Ken Hobart returned to his employer.

"Well, I've wired my resignation. It ought to reach the governor before the office closes, and his wire of acceptance will come to me in your care. I've hired an automobile and I'll be ranger until my resignation is accepted and I leave Arizona," he said.

Don Jaime held out a telegram to him. "I left your wire at the office Ken. The doctor has sent to Tucson for a surgeon to operate, and as soon as she arrives I'll go out to the ranch and recuperate. All I require is a little rest. Old Tom's gone, bless his heart. Anything can happen in this market, and I'm in no hurry what to do. I'll pretty badly when I get back and find your face gone the other night," he went on. "I had intended to ask you to be best man. What happens to me doesn't matter, but a woman ought to be in the case."

"You darling! I don't want to be best man. I'm going to be something of life; I want adventure and romance, and it isn't found in Glenn Hackett's set."

"There are larger states in the Union—there's plenty of room for romance there. How about this Rancho Valle Verde?"

"I'm afraid I might not care for that after you've left it, Don Jaime, up my mind never to become interested in Latin. They're so explosive and emotional, and when they kiss each other—the man, I mean—they always kiss me, an American would find humorous."

"However, I'm your legal representative will have to go to Texas and do something about those sheep."

"But I do not know that I am help to you. I'll stay on the ranch until a will is unearthed or the executors and duly established. Glenn brought up that point yesterday. I'm afraid he no will I shall, of course, as Uncle Tom's heir, file a petition for letters of administration, Ken, and I'll be glad to have Senor Higuenes it seems to me I ought to be appointed, being kin."

It was a week before the expected telegram from Jaime Miguel Higuenes. Having received it, Ken hastened it to Crooked Bill, "Rancho Valle Verde Cattle Company, Texas.

Dear Miss Antrim:

"Received your telegram of a week ago I regret to report that on the 31st inst. your Uncle, Thomas Higuenes was the victim of a homicide that arose due to your uncle's alleged trespass on the Jaime range on lands not owned by him, ranging his sheep. Your uncle and his employees came ten miles from Los Algodones to antagonize, one Jim Higgins, employed as the valley in the Jaime interest. Any affray. From the testimony of Higgins, Senor Jaime was shot by a ranger who arrived on the scene immediately after the commission of the sole incident, it appears much as I regret to say as Mr. Jaime's death was very much the aggressor. The fact Higgins was wounded three times by your relative and was forced to defend himself in position to return the fire. The ranger found the dead man and the body of your uncle to Los Algodones. Further and in fairness to the coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

"In accordance with your telegraphic instructions I have seen to it that your uncle received Christian burial in Odd Fellows Cemetery.

"Being at this time confined to my home with a slight disposition, I directed my general foreman to look upon your uncle's foreman in charge of some eight sheep on the range and inform him that it was your wish to take charge of your uncle's estate, that he continue to carry on the sheep business, being a hot reasketcrat. He mentioned having a conference with your uncle to participate to a certain extend in the matter of sheep grazing and stated that he was not taking orders from your uncle. My manager thereupon showed him his authority from me, conveying your request that I act as your representative temporarily. This written display of authority had the effect that he took into the matter. Three days ago I received a letter from the official informing me that the Federal Trust Company, of El Paso, had forwarded a will to be filed for probate at Los Algodones. From this will it appears that you are the sole heir and executor with the Federal Trust Company, from executorship, however, may cease, at your request, at any time the trust company shall have been paid certain charges, which I will explain to you when you arrive.

"Your uncle's estate consists of 1,000 head of sheep and 1,000 head of cattle, the latter ranging on the Rancho Valle Verde, which is owned by the estate. The sheep are ranged on lands owned by the estate and on lands leased from the state. The sheep are in charge of a foreman named Jim Higgins, employed as the valley in the Jaime interest. Any affray. From the testimony of Higgins, Senor Jaime was shot by a ranger who arrived on the scene immediately after the commission of the sole incident, it appears much as I regret to say as Mr. Jaime's death was very much the aggressor. The fact Higgins was wounded three times by your relative and was forced to defend himself in position to return the fire. The ranger found the dead man and the body of your uncle to Los Algodones. Further and in fairness to the coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

"In accordance with your telegraphic instructions I have seen to it that your uncle received Christian burial in Odd Fellows Cemetery.

"Being at this time confined to my home with a slight disposition, I directed my general foreman to look upon your uncle's foreman in charge of some eight sheep on the range and inform him that it was your wish to take charge of your uncle's estate, that he continue to carry on the sheep business, being a hot reasketcrat. He mentioned having a conference with your uncle to participate to a certain extend in the matter of sheep grazing and stated that he was not taking orders from your uncle. My manager thereupon showed him his authority from me, conveying your request that I act as your representative temporarily. This written display of authority had the effect that he took into the matter. Three days ago I received a letter from the official informing me that the Federal Trust Company, of El Paso, had forwarded a will to be filed for probate at Los Algodones. From this will it appears that you are the sole heir and executor with the Federal Trust Company, from executorship, however, may cease, at your request, at any time the trust

"You will, doubtless, have to employ a local attorney. If desired, I shall be happy to recommend one who has served the Higuenes family ably and faithfully for forty-years, Don Prudencio Alviso of Los Algodones.

"I regret to state that I have very little confidence in the integrity of your foreman, Bill Dingle, and suggest that you take steps to count the sheep immediately. The count will be the first to be made by me back to doubled legal right to do so. Upon the request of the local attorney for whom you will engage I will spend the time to do this for you. I advise prompt action.

"If I can serve you further, do not hesitate to communicate with me.

"Well?" Roberta smiled at Crooked Bill folded the letter and laid it on the floor.

FIRE BURNS HOLE IN HOOF

Log Chateau at Lucerne, Que., Somewhat Damaged

LUCERNE, Que., Jan. 5.—(By the Canadian Press)—Fire that spread from the fireplace in the log chateau of Mrs. Frederick Lewis burned a hole in the roof of the hotel. Heavy damage was done by water to the furnishings, but the fire was confined.

Christmas decorations were being burned in the fireplace which became overheated. The blaze originated through admitting woodwork and then burned through the roof. Fire-fighting apparatus was necessary to the hotel was brought into play and the chateau was confined to the area about the main chimney. Great quantities of water were poured into the building and severe damage, as yet unestimated, was done to furnishings.

Some 40 guests were in the hotel, but were conducted from the building without panic. An early estimate of $25,000 as the amount of the damage was stated to be exaggerated.

Young Electric Wizard Suicide

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 5.—John A. Hill, 19, who had invented a wireless electric remote control at the Armstrong Cork Company led to the resignation from the institution about a year ago, was found dead in his room with a bullet in his head today. A verdict of suicide was given by the coroner who said a tube from which a deadly gas had been released was found in the youth's hands.

Young Cygon's case at the Naval Academy caused much attention. In announcing his resignation, academy officials said that in the course of electrical experiments he had established some control of his elevator, clocks and lighting systems of Bancroft Hall and had arranged things so that he could cut in on the direct telephone of the academy without the service of an operator.

There is never again going to be an era of prosperity just like that which the United States and Canada enjoyed before and after the war.—Lord Lothian.

Gayford and Betts Will Have Automatic Asst. on Trip

London (By The Canadian Press)—Similar radio operations mechanics are going to Cranwell aerodrome, Lincolnshire, to prepare a special station for the reception of messages, broadcast several times daily from meteorological headquarters in Western Europe and North Africa, which will indicate weather prevailing over the route to be followed by flyers Leader Gayford and Flight Lieutenant Betts—and their "robot" automatic assistant —in the attempt to fly 6,000 miles non-stop from Lincolnshire to Cape Town.

The data thus obtained, supplemented by daily information from the Air Ministry's weather office at Malta and from Nigeria and South Africa, will be plotted on charts and used in the compilation of a detailed forecast of wind and weather all along the route.

An important section of this material will detail velocity and direction of the wind at different heights. Air movement in currents, and the movement may be in contrary senses at levels sufficiently far apart. For example, when nearing South Africa the huge Fairey monoplane would be likely to meet head winds low down, but several thousand feet up a light favorable breeze should be found to assist the craft on its way.

Given the northerly wind hoped for at this end of the flight, fairly good conditions are likely most of the way to Cape Town. Selection of the best flying heights may give a following wind over a great part of the route. Over the Sahara desert a useful north-east wind blows steadily a few thousand feet up at this time of year, and may even extend its helping influence to the coast of Nigeria. Once south of the Congo, the risk of bad weather is negligible.

The Cape flight will be made either this month or February. Then when the full moon is there to light the way across the desert during the first flight of the great adventure, the giant 'plane, loaded with nearly four tons of fuel for the feeding of its specially tuned Napier 530 h.p. motor, will ascend from Cranwell and head south for Cape Town and midsummer.

WORRYING OVER MAN POWER OF CHURCH

London, (By The Canadian Press)—Anglican Bishops at home are still worried over the problem of man-power for the Church. Before the War there were 20,000 clergymen at work in England. A year after the War finished there were only 16,500. At the end of 1929 there were hardly more than 10,000.

The Bishop of Liverpool, Rt. Rev. Dr. Albert David ascribes the dearth of clergymen partly to the expense of training. Young men, too, hold the clergymen today burdened with continual anxiety about finance and engrossed in small parochial activities. His Lordship pointed out that not only are young men needed for the Ministry, but there is also a welcome for men of mature years. Indeed there was special need today of men who had begun their life in other spheres, and who had a knowledge and experience of the world which younger candidates could not possess.

The Bishop of Ripon, Rt. Rev. Dr. Edward Burroughs, whose diocese includes Leeds, pointed out that in that great City two priests and two deacons have to cope with over 50,000 people. One rector is single-handed with 13,000, and in many parishes of 10,000 or over no assistant priest could even be hoped for.

HYDRO AND GASOLENE MAY BE DISCUSSED IN ONTARIO HOUSE

When the Ontario Legislature meets on February 10th, it is quite probable that Hydro-Electric matters and gasoline taxation will be debated in the House. Names of Belleville Men Who Fell in the Great War

If Any Names Are Omitted They Should Be Sent in

Below are published the names of the Belleville men who, when on active service Overseas, sacrificed their lives during the Great War. This is the list, on hand to-date, with Mr. Fred Chamberlain, the secretary of the War Memorial for Belleville committee. Should any error in the spelling of a name occur, or any change with to be made, or any name added by relatives or friends to those now appearing, the secretary should be notified immediately at the City Hall, as it is the intention of the committee to commence the work of cutting the names on the shaft of the monument on the 15th inst., and it will, after that date, be impossible to add further names.

The city wants to do honour to all her sons who valiantly fell in the recent war, and it is only by the cooperation of all that the list of names may be absolutely correct.

CALL SPECIAL SESSION TO ACT ON RESULTS

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 5 —(AP)—The Cabinet decided late today to recommend that the President call a special session of parliament to act on the results of the prohibition referendum in which the count far indicates an overwhelming sentiment for repealing the prohibition laws.

If the president agrees parliament will be convoked January 19.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma still hasent found another cook yet, and tonite after supper she said to pop, A woman applied this afternoon, Willyum, and she reely seems to have exceptional qualities.

For Peet sake dont consider anybody elts unless they have a number one references, pop said, and ma said, Well thats exactly what this woman had most in her favor, in fact she is the references for for me to reed over again, and she's going to pop back tomorrow.

You say their good references? pop said, and ma said, Their reely perfect, I reed them to you.

Well, she is a jem, pop said one half of the certainty that Hannah Binks served in the cook and general house worker in our home for a period of 8 years and I never failed to find her faithful, dependable, neet, thorough, respectful and intelligent.

Thats not a bad report card, pop said and ma said, I should say not, here's the 2nd. one. And she red it, being, To whoom it may concern Hannah Binks was in my employ for 8 consecutive years and was a perfect plane and fancy cook, an excellent house worker and a wonderful laundress.

Not bad either, pop said, and ma said, and this is the last one, Hannah Binks worked for me 10 years without a single days illness or indisposition and I consider her in every respect the most perfect servant I ever had.

But ye gods, if she worked all those years for all those people she must be petty near old enough for a pension, pop said and ma said, Well, she would be younger without spanking pop, but her present appearance is the strongest thing against her. She's a regular mummy, and she has quite a pronounced growth of radio long on her chin, her chin, and she makes a kind of a whissling sound when she talks, owing to what seems to be an undersupply of teeth. So she mite be rather an impediment to have around the house, ma said.

She only has myself and Hemingway to visit house, bleeve me, pop said.

Herming he voted against her.

They have been ordered to be ready to rush to the park in case of any disturbance.

SUGGESTS DIET AS COLD CURE

New York, Jan. 5—Dr. Egon Ullman, instructor at Oregon State University, returned from Europe on the Hamburg American line steamer Deutschland, after spending several months in research work in Vienna. He told of a new treatment for colds and chronic sinus diseases, consisting of a steady diet of raw vegetables and the elimination of table salt, the food which he said was being used successfully by Viennese physicians.

The salt-free diet had been used for several years in the treatment of tuberculosis of the skin in the Austrian capital, Dr. Ullman said the raw vegetable diet and the elimination of table salt had been tried out "with indifferent results" in the treatment of tuberculosis at Saranac, N. Y., and added, "That it might be tried out for colds and sinus trouble is a possibility."

BRINGING UP FATHER

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 4.

For ten minutes after Tarzan's departure, Jane, Lady Greystoke, restlessly wandered about the luxurious livingroom. Her mind was in an anguish of hopes and fears. Her intuition told her that grave dangers were waiting now for both her husband and son. Perhaps that telephone message was but a trick to lure Tarzan into the hands of the implacable Rokoff.

The more she thought about it, the more convinced she was that Tarzan had been trapped. Summoning her maid and chauffeur, Lady Greystoke issued instructions rapidly. So it came that as Tarzan and his guide disappeared into the shadows upon the dark wharf, a heavily-veiled woman pushed bravely into the same vile den whose address she knew had been given to her husband.

Timidly she asked a girl some questions. A sailor, hearing the queries, said he had seen two men rowing towards a steamer. "Ten pounds if you will take me to it," cried Lady Greystoke. And thus Jane found herself upon the apparently deserted ship, vainly searching for her husband and child. One by one she opened cabin doors, only to find empty interiors. Nor did she note the sudden purring of the engines.

As she reached the last door upon the right, she was seized from within by a powerful, dark-visaged man and drawn hastily into the stuffy, ill-smelling interior. "Well, this is luck!" grinned the man. The sudden shock of fright that this unexpected attack had upon her, drew a single, piercing scream from her throat. Then the fellow clapped a dirty hand roughly over her mouth.

STELLA CONFESSES

by Rita Dever

Stella Hessler ran the dry ingredients for her cake through the sifter. Stella took great pains with her cakes, as she did with all things about her house. It was her boast that no other bride of less than a year in Hillsboro could manage a home as efficiently or cook as well as she. As she reached for her second mixing bowl in the perfectly arranged cupboard, she wondered whether Bill or her mother really appreciated her.

Her revery ended abruptly. The second mixing bowl was gone. And it wasn't just the earthen mixing bowl either; it was one of the delicate that Aunt Millie had given them for a wedding present.

Stella knew it couldn't be in the refrigerator. She had special dishes for that. She made a hasty survey of the orderly kitchen; perhaps she had already taken it out. The bowl was missing.

A horrible idea occured to her. But surely Bill wouldn't take one of the good bowls for his dreadful paints. With a rush, she flew up the stairs to the little room that was to be a guest room when she could get the new furniture. Just now it was what Bill called his "studio" and what Stella, condescendingly referred to as his "playroom."

Stella flung open the door and looked around. The room contained only a small deal table, covered with paint boxes and brushes, and a canvas chair, beside a huge assortment of card boards, cut in various sizes, old advertising posters, window cards and signs of all sizes and patterns. It was truly Bill's playroom, where he devoted his one hobby, sign painting, and it represented the only rift in the matrimonial harmony of the first year.

Stella never came into the little room, unless she absolutely had to, as it was the skeleton closet of her perfect home. Now she advanced without qualms. And there on the floor, beside the table, filled with discolored water, was the precious bowl.

So that as all Bill appreciated her efforts! That was all he thought about a nice house! Bringing one of the best china to spoil with his old paints! It was the last straw to Stella in the huge heap of indignities the room represented.

Like a little fury, she attacked the table. With a single sweep of her arm, she sent all of the paints flying into the waste basket. With equal dispatch, she bundled the card boards together, ripping them in half when they proved too awkward to handle. In five minutes, she had stripped the room. The last remained was the deal table against the wall, and the camp chair folded sadly beside it.

Triumphant, Stella descended to the trash barrel, awaiting the collector, with her spoils, and finally returned to the kitchen to await the rescued bowl. Now Bill would know he could not trespass in her domain, she thought confidently, as she proceeded with the cake.

Her mother would probably take Bill's part, as she always did about that silly sign business. But after all, it was her home, not her mother's, that he upset.

Stella had closed the open door on the cake as the telephone rang.

"Stella?" queried a familiar voice, as she picked up the receiver.

"Oh, hello, mother. I was just thinking about you."

"That's nice, dear," answered her mother, "but I haven't very good news for you."

"News! What about? Don't tell me Kitty Crane won't take that bridge club after all next week!"

"It's much more serious than bridge clubs. Your father just telephoned me. The Works have shut down the drafting rooms for a month."

"But, Mother, I don't understand," cried Stella. "They couldn't do a thing like that."

"Well, they have," her mother answered, "They have enough ahead to keep the shop working part time for eight weeks, and they are only keeping on some of the big fellows, like Carol and Hansen."

"O, Mother," wailed Stella, "we can't afford it. Bill's insurance is due this month."

"I'm afraid they are not going to ask you about that, child," sharped the older women gently. "But Bill is pretty resourceful."

"Oh, you and Bill," muttered Stella, as she replaced the receiver.

With an effort, she fought back the tears as she prepared lunch. Bill would be home soon. He had said things were quiet but surely he hadnt anticipated this. Stella set the table in the breakfast nook, listening every moment for the sound of Bill's old car. Old car! They would be lucky if they could keep that.

Lunch was ready, but still Bill had not come. Stella went into the hall and looked out the side window. What was delaying him? 1.15. Perhaps he was depressed. 1.30. Men did all sorts of queer things. 1.45. The old car rattled down the street. Stella hurried back to the kitchen. She mustn't look worried.

The next minute, Bill's cheerful, "Hallo."

"Hello," she echoed timidly.

"Oh, honey," he strode into the kitchen and kissed her, "I've just had the best break. The drafting room had a complete shut down this morning. For the younger fellows, it's liable to last for 2 months. So on the way up here, I stopped at Kruger's and saw Pete Reid, the advertising man. I go to work on Monday—and guess what I am to do?"

"What? Bill, what?" gasped Stella vaguely.

"Be paint SIGNS for the whole store."

"Oh," she echoed happily, then fearfully, "signs."

"Sure, you know, little advertising signs. What's the matter? You look scared stiff. You can't be sore now when I'm really going to make some money from the things. Now, let's have some lunch."

"The lunch is there on the stove," cried Stella nervously. "I'm going down the cellar for a minute."

Wildly she rushed out of the kitchen and down the cellar stairs. With trembling hands, she let herself into the room, to where the trash barrel stood. One look was sufficient. It was empty.

Perhaps it wasn't too late. She might yet be able to catch them. Pulling off her apron she sprang into the car and backed it out of the drive.

Which way did waste collectors go? How did they work? For the next half hour, Stella drove madly over Hillsboro. What did they do with the trash when it was collected? Perhaps they burned it. If she couldn't find the things, how could she ever face Bill after doing anything so petty, so childish?

The tears were running down her hot cheeks. It would be her last one if Bill never forgave her. After all, what harm were a few paints? Paints dotted Stella scolded aloud as she turned the car homeward. She may as well face it out now.

Bill was on the porch as she turned in the drive, but he was beside the car before she had it stopped.

"Where have you been?" he asked anxiously, as he opened the door for her.

"Oh, Bill," she sobbed, tumbling into his arms which seemed strangely rigid and impersonal, "have you seen the Bill room?"

"Yes," Bill answered solemnly, as he led her into the house.

"And did you see what I did?"

"I think I did."

"Well, Bill," Stella Stella murmured through her tears, "it was just because you used the blue delft bowl Aunt Millie gave us for a wedding present. I threw them all out," the confession ended in a wail.

"And then?" Bill was the lecturer now.

"I am so, so sorry. I have gone all over town trying to find the waste collectors, a-a-a-and I couldn't."

"No, you wouldn't," Bill agreed ponderously, "they quit all at 6 o'clock on Saturday. But the paints themselves were not important. They will give me a big professional set to use at the store. It's what you did that counts."

Stella nodded her head miserably.

"I know, Bill, and I wouldn't blame you if you sent me back to mother," she began crying again, "but I know when I was driving around that it was not my house, but our house."

"Do you know you know that now?" he asked eagerly.

Stella nodded penitently. With a laugh, Bill caught her up in his arms and kissed.

"And if you ever forget it," he said presently, "I shall throw out all your pots and pans."

"You may, Bill dear. It isn't pots and pans that matter. It's only you."

TELEGRAM'S EDITOR DEAD ILL FOR WEEKS

Irving E. Robertson, Last Surviving Son of Late J. R. Robertson

TORONTO NATIVE

Widely Travelled Before Entering on Newspaper Work

Toronto, Jan. 5—Following an illness of several weeks, the death occurred at 11 o'clock last night at his home, 118 St. George Street, of Irving E. Robertson, Editor-in-Chief of the Toronto Evening Telegram, and last surviving son of the late John Ross Robertson, founder of that evening newspaper.

Son of the late John Ross Robertson, founder of the Toronto Telegram, Irving E. Robertson was editor-in-chief of the newspaper since 1928. He became one of the management trustees of the Telegram on his father's death in 1918, and succeeded the late John R. Robinson as editor-in-chief when he died three years ago.

His strong personality, his unquestioned integrity, his effort his devotion to his craft made him a leading figure in Canadian newspaper life, and he included among his personal friends Canadian newspaper publishers from coast to coast. As an editor, he was known for his vigorous, alert and often skilfully satirical style of writing. He was an enormous reader, had a practical grasp of economics and was a fluent, pleasing conversationalist.

Director of Canadian Press.

He inherited from his father a keen interest in the co-operative news movement in Canada, which found final expression in the Canadian Press, of which he was a director. In the early days of the organization, when the financial footing was precarious, he fought almost alone for the principle that Government subsidies of any kind, maintaining the newspaper to be in fact any value to the people or Canada must be free and independent of all political activation. Thus he welcomed, perhaps more than any other member of the association, the withdrawal of the Dominion Government grant in 1924.

Born in Toronto, May 10, 1882, Mr. Robertson was the second son of his father's first wife, Maria Louisa Gilbee. He was the last survivor of three children of whom Helen Goldwin died in childhood, and John Ritchie ("Curly") died in 1919.

As a scholar he displayed marked ability. After attending Model School and Upper Canada College, he studied at the University of Toronto for two years. From Brasenose College, Oxford, he graduated in arts, with honors in classic and history.

MUNICIPAL DAY AT ROTARY CLUB

Mayor and Council Congratulated and Given Support

Monday was Municipal Day at Rotary, all the members of the 1932 City Council being present as guests. Aldermen Ackerman, Meredith and Sprackett who sent regrets. Reeve Tom Webster presided and welcomed the new mayor and aldermen also introduced Reid as was a guest. President Webster said that the Mayor and councillors were invited to show them that the Rotary Club was behind them, anxious to co-operate in all matters of general civic interest. He commended economy, and called upon office of the citizens willing to give their time gratis in civic government. Mayor George Tice was introduced by ex-Mayor Reid in a very happy manner, stating that their friendship had not suffered by reason of being opponents for the Mayoralty. Mayor Tice replied in similar friendly vein and eulogized the retiring Mayor for his good work as chief magistrate. Mayor-Aldermen McMillan, Woodley, Wallace, Armstrong, Marshall, Bennett, White, Hill, Morgan, Brickman, Inwith were introduced by Mayor Tice and given a Rotarian salute.

Charles Hanna, Municipal Solicitor Commissioner, was introduced and in turn introduced Commissioner Fairfield and Tice, also Commission Secretary Mrs. Hodgson.

Archdeacon Protherighan, of Grace Church, Brantford, and also of Toronto, was introduced as the guest speaker of the day by Harold Lowden, a former parishioner of the Archdeacon in Brantford. "The Art of Living Together" was the subject of the address and the speaker made it most interesting, his many touches of humor illuminating the serious phases as he covered the whole world of social and political relations, quipping out the many causes which militated against the "Art of Living Together," being one of harmony and goodwill, and the many obstacles which must be surmounted before the fatherhood of man under the fatherhood of God becomes possible.

FEW CHANGES IN COUNTY CRICKET

No Two-Day Matches to Be Allowed in England

London, (CP) — The only really important proposal for next season's county cricket that was carried at the meeting of the Advisory Cricket Committee at Lord's yesterday concerned residential qualifications. Worcestershire proposed that under certain circumstances a year's residence should be sufficient to qualify a player was carried. This means, it agreed to by the M.C.C., governing body of English cricket, that the Nawab of Pataudi will become qualified for that county during next Summer.

Commencing in 1933 counties will have to play a minimum of twenty-four matches to compete in the cricket championship instead of twenty-two as at present, the decision coming season. The scheme proposed by Somerset was turned down by a small majority. It must inevitably mean a return to the percentage system, which was abandoned after the end of the 1928 season. The opinion was expressed that this was a backward step, but a matter of considerably less importance than the financial position of the "little" counties, who experienced real hardship in financing more than twenty-four matches.

The proposal of Leicester that each of the first class counties should play each other—sixteen home and away games—in two-day matches was lost. The proposal to withdraw their proposal that points be awarded on a first innings and drawn games ignored.

By a large majority the committee agreed to continue for the 1933 season the experiment of not requiring spread against the light and dark leg-before-wicket shall rule. Whether three-day matches on which no play has taken place on the first two days should come under the rules relating to drawn games was a question that was referred to the consideration of the M.C.C.

The proposal of Notts with regard to the covering of wickets in matches beginning on Saturdays throughout the intervening Sunday was approved. The whole of the recommendations of the committee are subject to the approval of the M. C.C.

Adequate preparation against war does not mean aggression. — John J. Pershing.

CALLS PRINCE "HER" BOY

London, Jan. 4—Old Emily is 81, or 4 few years over, and old ladies of 80 may be forgiven an occasional liberty. So Old Emily modifies the Prince of Wales.

Once upon a time Old Emily was very much down on her luck. So much so, in fact, that she was one of the first cases to be dealt with by the Salvation Army when the women's social work was begun in Whitechapel. She did not think in those days, that the time would come when she would call the Prince "her boy."

They told the Queen about Old Emily, when her Majesty opened the latest, largest and best-equipped of the Army's shelters for homeless women in Fitch street, Whitechapel. But the Queen was already in the know, says the News Chronicle.

She met Old Emily once upon a time when she visited the famous Hanbury street shelter for the old lady's poor on the site. There, Ann Emily, just a little bit proud of her acquaintance with H.R.H. Prince, carved a certain treasured snapshot to "her boy's" mother. "I'll give you a better one than that," said the Queen. And a studio portrait arrived in Hanbury street a day or two later.

It is because the Queen is like that that Whitechapel loves her. Whitechapel cheered itself hoarse when the police had an easy job. They could have gone home and left the Queen to the Whitechapel women, who would have taken care that she suffered no indignities, and came to no harm. But because Whitechapel is Whitechapel, the man at Hanbury street might fancy himself in eclipse—and her visit to Fitch street might have the effect of putting the nose of Hanbury street ever so slightly out of joint—she sent great piles of gift cushions to Hanbury street so that, in a double sense, she might see her humble friends there at their ease.

There is a great deal that the wealthy can learn from the poor, to Dr. Kilmer. The couple had four

MOTHER OF KILMER DIES

Was Author of Memories of Her Poet-Son

New Brunswick, N.J., Jan. 4—Mrs. Annie Kilburn Kilmer, mother of Joyce Kilmer, was stricken today. She had been ill for a week with a slight cold for several days previously.

At the time of her death Mrs. Kilmer was engaged on a book entitled, "Flowers for His Grave, Culled by Her Mother."

Mrs. Kilmer was also the author of "Memories of My Son, Sergeant Joyce Kilmer," "Leaves From My Life," "Whimsies" and "More Whimsies."

She was a member of the Authors Club of New York, the Poetry Society of America and the Penwoman's Club.

Mrs. Kilmer was born in Albany, N.Y., and educated in Binghamton. In 1871 she was married children, all now dead.

A funeral service was held at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon in Christ Episcopal Church. Burial was in Elmwood Cemetery.

In September, 1903, Mrs. Kilmer read both part in the ceremonies dedicating Joyce Kilmer Square, Kilmer Highway, Avenue Q and East Twelfth Street, Brooklyn; Bayard Taylor Memorial, her son's grave in a French military cemetery, and erecting memorials to her son's best known poem.

Sergeant Joyce Kilmer of the 165th infantry was killed in action in France on July 30, 1918, in Ourcq Valley of the Country. He had been on the staff of the Sunday Magazine of The New York Times.

Dairy Commissioner Advises Dairymen to Improve Their Herds

New Zealand's Advantage More Apparent Than Real

EXERCISE CONTROL

New Zealand Leaves Canada Far Behind in Herd Improvement

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP) — The failure of Canada to keep up with New Zealand and Denmark in improving its dairy herds was impressed upon the annual convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario here today by Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner. Dr. Ruddick dealt with the situation in no uncertain terms. He said that in the past the last occasion he would have the privilege of speaking to the Association as Dominion Dairy Commissioner, for the reason that he shall reach the retiring age before another convention comes around."

Testing for Fat

The veteran commissioner added: "In view of this circumstance, I ask your indulgence if I depart somewhat from usual form of address to this Association, and deal with a number of more or less unrelated topics. Some of my remarks may sound like fatherly advice, but even so, I hope they will be taken in the spirit in which it is given."

Although the speaker did not make the definite statement, it is learned from the Department of Agriculture in Ottawa that Ontario and Quebec are both dairy provinces in the matter of testing dairy cattle for fat, as required by law. It is declared only about two per cent. of the dairy cattle in Ontario are tested. The same claim is made that British Columbia and Saskatchewan are the most progressive provinces in this connection.

Interbreeding

Dr. Ruddick told the meeting that Canadian dairymen were putting too much emphasis on the exaggerated claims of dairymen in Denmark and New Zealand while failing to improve their own herds. He went into the matter followed in New Zealand and in Denmark.

"I was much impressed," declared the Commissioner, "at the International Dairy Congress in Copenhagen last summer, with the amount of attention that herd improvement is receiving all over the dairy world. It is gratifying to find those who spread movements that we here in Canada seem to be ignoring. One of these days we will be forced to do so or we shall wake up to the fact that we are unable to compete with the rest of the world because of our relatively low herd averages.

Improving of Yields

"I don't wish Canadian dairy farmers to think that I am suggesting that they should be compelled to do certain things just because of a first class watch.

MASTER OF STAG-HUNT ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

Tame Hind Takes to Sea During Hunt to Escape Hounds

AMONG SHEEP

Hounds Scatter Sheep and Deer Runs Back to its Home

RYTHE Kent, England, Jan. 6.—The Master of the mid-Kent stag hounds and seventeen of the "field" were acquitted today of cruelty in hunting a deer until the magistrate dismissed the summonses against them.

Stag hunting was put on trial today before the Kent Magistrates. The Master of the Mid-Kent stag hounds and the secretary of the "field" were charged in 10 separate summonses charging that they "caused unnecessary suffering" to a tame deer by unreasonable hunting it," that they "caused the deer to be cruelly terrified," and last they "caused the deer to be cruelly ill-treated."

This was a sequel to a hunt last November when a tame hind named "Bridget" took to sea and swam far out from shore to escape the pursuing hounds.

Conveyed to Cart

Counsel for the Royal Society for prevention of cruelty to animals produced evidence to show that the hind was conveyed in a cart to the scene of the hunt and then after she was released she stopped to graze.

She was chased away and ran into the midst of her. of sheep where she stopped and, counsel said, the hounds scattered the sheep and the hind ran back to where she had been liberated. Once more she was hooed away, plodding off slowly, but the hounds took her and the ran six miles, where, covered with lather she plunged into the lee water to escape.

86 Year Groom with Family of Eight Weds Maid of 22 in Trenton Romance

Mitchell Revoy and Bride Happy Despite Great Disparity of Years—Miss Hood Visitor From Vancouver Met Her Husband to-be—Be Some Time Ago.

Trenton Jan. 6. (Special Correspondent).—Romance springs eternal in the human breast, so it seems. Mr. Mitchell Revoy, of Trenton, aged 86 years, was married on New Year's Day in Toronto to Miss Edna Mae Hood, aged 22 years. The difference in ages between the couple they both say they are very happy. Miss Hood, who is originally from Vancouver, B. C., visited Trenton some time ago where she met Mr. Revoy, when the romance began. They were married at the home of Mr. Chas. Deline of 195 Sackville street, Toronto. The bride was dressed in a blue silk dress. After a reception at the home of Mrs. Deline they returned to Trenton where they will reside. Mr. Revoy was married some sixty years ago; his former wife passing away four years ago.

Mr. Revoy remembers Trenton when there were but 16 houses here including the postoffice. He has been around here all his life except for a short sojourn in the United States, after the Civil War. He said that he had celebrated the confederation of the provinces in 1867 while in the city of Cleveland, which was then but a small village.

Mr. Revoy has a family of eight children by his former wife.

Bandits Tie Clerk to Chair in Shop and Rob Shoe House in Hamilton

Salesman Reaching For Shelf is Ordered to Put Up Hands

IS THEN GAGGED

After Thieves' Departure Clerk Frees Self and Gives Alarm

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 6 — After tying the clerk to a chair in a barber club gobbed Fyn's Shoe Store, on King Street, east, this morning and made their escape.

The bandits walked into the shop shortly after it had opened and asked to see a pair of shoes. When the salesman, George Hunter turned away to reach up to the shelf he was suddenly ordered to put up his hands. He wheeled about to find himself facing a levelled revolver. The two thugs hustled the youngster into the rear part of the store, put a bag in his mouth and tied him with a strong cord to a chair.

About three or four minutes after the men had rifled the till and disappeared. Carter wiggled himself free of his bonds and called the police. A search of the neighborhood failed to reveal any clues but a description of the men was supplied to detectives.

CUT IN TAXES IS POSSIBLE

Brokville Mayor Looks For Reduction in Rates

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 6.—Standing committees were elected by the Town Council at the inaugural meeting, as follows: Executive—E. W. Major, Chairman; H. R. Fulford, Vice-Chairman; Rev. R. Lewis, T. J. Dunn and G. Elmer Johnston (ex-officio). Public Utilities—Dr. D. M. Ross, Vice-Chairman; L. M. Wiseman, N. S. Cuthbertson and J. S. McArthur.

Mayor Frederick Wolthausen presided and called attention to the fact that Brockville will celebrate its year of 1932 being the year of incorporation as a town. He suggested that steps be taken to invite citizens of Brockville to a meeting where a committee may be formed to arrange a celebration for the year.

"Considering the surplus shown in the financial statement of 1931, taxpayers expect a reduction of taxes in 1932 and there is room for it," said the Mayor, "provided nothing unforseen happens and the spending habits of this town returned to the utmost."

Local Oracle Offers Bet on Mild Winter

The oracle in the city hall this morning sat on a high stool, perched on the corner of his seat with a thumbnail—glanced up out of the long window at the grey sky and pondered a little on the vagaries and whims of all weather in general and the prevalence and uncertainty of Belleville weather in particular. Yet there was one point he was unwilling to concede, and that he would be willing to bet on.

"Winter's fog will freeze a boy's ass in Belleville," he stated at the records. It's the first three days of each quarter that controls the weather for the three months which are to follow, and years and years of past performances prove it. Check up yourself some time and see. Furthermore I'll bet on it. I'll bet that we have a remarkably warm and open winter. For example, I'll bet that we don't have nine days zero weather for the next three months — and I'll make a real money bet if I can find any takers."

Wade Ankle Deep Through Melting Snow, Rainwater

Belleville and district is wading through water ankle deep this morning as the aftermath of the steady rain which has been falling over the territory since early yesterday afternoon. Sidewalks are flooded, and the streets are covered in places at some places, disguised by the thick layer of water, and basements remains in small discolored heaps. Not only pedestrians but also motorists are experiencing considerable difficulty in the navigation of the streets. In the city this is not so much because of the depth of the water as because of the fact that several leaks in the city's water mains are responsible owing to the frost escaping and the ground thawing, for the vehicles churning the water into mud and thereby making driving ticularly tenaciously and renders transportation anything but certain. London also, however, still continues to pour down the constant drizzle adding still more to the dampness of the territory and leading the foreman of public works to remark that everything will be fine if the weather should happen to play a trick by suddenly turning into a cold snap, and incidentally making skating rinks of all the roads and streets in the city.

Additional Touch in Sidney Harbor Bridge March Opening

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 6. (CP)—Negotiations are under way for a visit by the Graf Zeppelin to Australia to add an additional spectacular touch to the great ceremonies planned to open the formal opening of the giant Sydney Harbor Bridge on March 19 next.

The suggestion the Graf Zeppelin might be brought to Sydney was originally put forward by the Sydney Sun and unofficial indications were received from the controlling authorities of the Zeppelin to today stating the flight might be undertaken if the commonwealth government had no objections.

The company also seeks the approval of the New South Wales government, hoping to recoup the expenses of the trip by the carriage of passengers in Australia.

Christianity is Called Great Adventure of Ages

Bishop Defends Pronouncements By Church

LITTLE CHURCH

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—"Pronouncements have a right in the Church," declared Bishop Franch J. McConnell, New York, Methodist Episcopal Church, addressing the benedict meeting of the Committee on the Home Missions Council and the Council of Women for Home Missions, Bishop McConnell speaking on "The Place of the Church in Democracy," reminded his audience that many people said the church should not make its pronouncements in connection with such world affairs as war and disarmament. The church has always done this more or less, and will always do it, he declared, claiming that pronouncements by the church have value, including those relating to industrial problems.

Miss Mabel Cartwright, LL.D., President of the Auxiliary, Ontario Diocese, Church of England in Canada, presenting an address on "The Auxiliary at Life," deplored the idea of many that religion is one thing and the Church life another outside. The Christian religion was the great adventure of long ago, she declared, recalling the adventure of Creation, the adventure of the incarnation and the adventure of the apostolic men going forth on their mission. One of the great adventures of the day, she pointed out, was the adventure in community work in helping solve some of the problems, such as unemployment, the distribution of wealth, extending a

King's Gifts To The Chapel Royal Today

London, Jan. 6.—Today being the Festival of the Epiphany the King's gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh were ceremonially presented at the Chapel Royal of St. James' Palace by three officials of the royal household.

The gold of Ophir was furnished, as usual, by the yeomen of the King's Bodyguard in their Tudor uniforms of state.

This commemoration of the visit of the "three kings of the east" to Bethlehem has been observed by sovereigns of England from the remotest times. The ceremony is very simple and they are present except the participants.

Meal, Lodging That's All Must Face Tempest, Rain

Twenty-seven dejected and torn looking transients lined-up in front of their rest station on Front street this morning and surveyed a pouring sky, which continued to pour rain down to add to the dampness and slush which lay below.

Breakfast, their bowl of soup, was over. Their time was up. Inside the place there was warmth and dryness, and a comfortable bed to spend a rainy day. There was even books to read and a church to spend comfortably on and tell stories to one another. But a law as immutable as the law of the Medes and Persians decreed that they should carry on. Stop overs were not included in their itinerary. Nothing remained now but to shoulder the pack and hit the grit.

One by one they moved slowly away and tramped off to the north. There will be a freight car for them up here after an interval of crouching in the rain some place waiting for it. Tonight they will be in Kingston or Gananoque, the show is on and the actors must play their parts. Rain or shine,

EPIPHANY AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Special Ceremonies Observed at Parish Church on Wednesday

Special ceremonies were held in St. Michael's Church this morning to celebrate the Feast of Epiphany which commemorates the visit of the Wise Men to the crib of the Infant Jesus. The ceremonies were celebrated at five, thirty and at seven o'clock this morning and at half past nine o'clock. This being a holy day there was no classes held in the Separate academy.

October there is general observance of this feast day. In Montreal, government offices are closed, commercial houses, industrial firms, and city halls of the district are closed. It is interesting to note that this day—Le Jour des Rois, as the feast is named in French—marks the day of the annual visit of one of the bishops of Canada to the Montreal Star office he delivers a short sermon.

The epiphany is also the day appointed to commemorate the manifestation of the Lord's glory, according to the Catholic creed. This feast shares to a large extent with Easter and Pentecost the privileges of precedence for its offices and rites over those of Sundays, which may occur within its octave.

FROLIC NIGHT AT CHAPTER

Moira Chapter Hold First Meeting in New Year

Under the direction of its new officers for 1932, the Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M., held their first meeting of the year last night. Considering the adverse weather conditions the meeting was quite largely attended and considerable time was accommodated to the lodge room, besides the general business transacted there was also the order of the night.

After the regular lodge work the companions repaired to the banquet hall where they spent an evening of entertainment and refreshments. No speaker had been engaged but the usual toasts were proposed and responded to, except the toast to the visitors which was elaborated upon to some extent. The evening was interspersed in the telling of stories and humorous yarns by the different members of the chapter, which made the evening present being called upon to do his share in making the evening the long remembered one in Moira chapter.

The idea was something new and seemed to be enjoyed by all present. The meeting came to an end with the singing of the Junior Warden's toast.

Bandits Deliver up Bonds at Chicago Lamp Post Total Almost $600,000

Tip Sends Detective on Trail to Secure Booty

Eighty Thousand Miles of Territory Covered in Search

CHICAGO, Jan. 6—Detectives of Chicago's famous "secret six" trailed a gang of bank robbers through forty states and travelled 80,000 miles in tracing $1,500,000 loot from the Lincoln, Neb., National Bank, only to have $435,000 of the bonds bonds delivered to them Tuesday under a Chicago lamp post.

"We pulled the biggest job for eight months," laughed Investigator Roy Steffans, "and then they gave us all these bonds right here in Chicago. We're after the rest of the money now and hope to get it soon."

At 3 a.m., Steffans said, he received a phone call at his home directing him to visit an unidentified hideout where he believed he would find the bonds.

"Then go to that house or it's the spot for you," said the mysterious informer. "You'll find a note in the corner by your house."

"I thought maybe they planned to kill me and my wife and our two children," Steffans said. "I phoned Mrs. Steffans to stay in the house and hid the children. Then I called for Detectives Frank Roberts and Charles Tousinsky to hurry over with machine guns and bullets."

Tousinsky, Roberts and I went to the corner, and under a lamp post found a large envelope containing about 100 pounds.

"We ripped it into the house, opened it, and out popped the bonds worth two million dollars and any of us had ever seen before.

"We were so close on the trail of the robbers that they didn't even pick up a coupon from the bonds, which made the largest amount of loot ever turned back voluntarily by bandits in America.

"We turned over the original suitcase to William K. Barclay, director, and D. E. Love, general vice-president of the Lincoln Bank, who took the bonds home with them."

Steffans, Max Towle, Prosecutor from Lincoln, and Alexander Jamie, chief investigator for the "Secret Six", said that Gus Winkler, suspected robber who was released after he had proved an alibi, had nothing to do with recovering the bonds.

Winkler had sought to bargain with the Lincoln officials, it was said, he would obtain return of $400,000 in bonds if the authorities would agree not to prosecute him.

Steffans, Max Towle, Prosecutor from Lincoln, and Alexander Jamie, chief investigator for the "Secret Six", said that Gus Winkler, suspected robber who was released after he had proved an alibi, had nothing to do with recovering the bonds.

Winkler had sought to bargain with the Lincoln officials, it was said, he would obtain return of $400,000 in bonds if the authorities would agree not to prosecute him.

The Premier went to Ottawa last week to arrange for payment with the Dominion.

The treasury bills maturing represent a debenture issue of January 2, 1931, at an interest rate of six per cent.

FARMERS URGE RECIPROCITY FOR PRODUCE

Ask Outlet For Dairy Products Under Arrangement

Brockville, Jan. 6—A recommendation that the Federal Government institute reciprocal trade negotiations with the United States looking to the admission of Canadian dairy products to the American market on a satisfactory basis, and that in such negotiations should fall the British preference on iron and steel be increased to permit Britain purchasing reciprocally a greater quantity of Canadian dairy products, was adopted as a further meeting of the recently established Leeds Farmers' Protective Association held here yesterday with an attendance of about two hundred. Rural Communities Are Overchurched

TORONTO Ont., Jan. 5—(By the Canadian Press)—Declaring that rural communities in Canada were largely overchurched, Prof. J. H. Waits of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, addressing the Home Mission Conference here today, said the opinion that great sums of Home Mission money were going to support churches in areas that would easily be self-supporting, if it were not for denominational overlapping and rivalry."

"A community that could support one church adequately could not and would not support four churches," and as a result such a community has to be aided by the funds of the Home Mission Boards, he said.

The Home Missions Councils and Council of women for home missions are holding their annual meetings and joint convention here.

NORTH DEEP IN SNOWFALL

But Alderman Sprackett Makes Tour Through Heavy Road

Although snow does fie piled high in drifts and windrows throughout the northern territory, and roads in some places are indistinguishable from the fields, motor trips and motor trip even as far back as Wednesday last are not being seriously affected by the return of Ald. Sprackett, who on that day had been spent some few days back in that country on business.

Wednesday's cake is frozen over and the country is buried deep in snow, Ald. Sprackett reports, but not when asked today about his trip. The trouble, he says, is not so much the depth of the snow as the unevenness of the snow, which makes the road impassable, but on the whole the trip was enjoyable, and the novelty for him to transact his business in a sleigh was refreshing, becoming stalled at one of the more lonely spots at which there are so many in that particular part of the country.

CANDIDATES TO CONTINUE JOBS

Will Act as Control Members While in Civil Service

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP) —The Ottawa Evening Citizen says editorially there is a "strong indication" that Miss Helen Carpenter, successful candidate at the recent municipal elections for the Board of Control, will be permitted to continue their position in the Civil Service while they are sitting on the Board of Control this year.

Both are Civil Servants in the department of the Interior, Miss Carpenter, Secretary of State, and it had been suggested that they should take a year's leave of absence from the department without pay, while they served on the Board of Control.

The Citizens says that if the conditions for the leave of carry the two positions it would be for this year only, and that no such arrangement could be continued next year. The Civil Service Act says that action can not be taken until Prime Minister R. B. Bennett returns from the Imperial Conference, a matter will be considered by the cabinet.

200 DEAF NOT YET GETTING INSTRUCTION

Superintendent Fetterly Tells Rotary Club at Peterborough

Peterboro, Jan. 6—Somewhere in the Province there are two hundred deaf children of school age who have not received the benefit of training as the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville, Rotarian H. B. Fetterly, head of that institution, told the Peterboro Rotary Club in a most informative address on Monday luncheon.

Rotarian Fetterly commenced his talk with a brief review of the progress of education for the deaf, commencing with the first schools for this purpose two hundred years ago. The Belleville school, he explained, had been in existence since 1870, and while at first the manual language as well as the oral method was used in instruction, the latter had gradually expanded until today it is the only method in vogue. None of the teachers in this institution at present, he said, knew the manual language, and the pupils were taught entirely by the oral method. Mr. Fetterly explained how the young pupils are taught to lip-reading and then to say words. In their first year at school, he said, some sixty words and perhaps fifteen commands, and with each succeeding year the number in subsequent years was considerably increased. Fortunately, however, the education of deaf children was recognized by the Province as having been sufficiently important to have entered the school without any more discrimination than that they be at least 2 year old baby. In spite of this handicap deaf children have passed the same examinations as the age of sixteen years.

The use of the piano to develop a sense of rhythm was explained by Rotarian Fetterly, who also explained that deaf children soon learned to sing, and in fact sang in unison better than the average normal child. Deaf children, he explained, learned to sing, classes being able to render the National Anthem and "O Canada" in fine style before Christmas, carols were sung by the 240 children just as well as by any similar number of public school pupils.

The school was maintained by the Provincial Government, and the yearly fee for parents who could afford to pay was $100, which included the cost of board, books, etc. Where parents could not pay, the school authorities made allowance on a certificate from the rcevs or ministers, and the school was kept entirely by the government.

Rotarian Fetterly pleaded for Rotary assistance in locating the children who are in need of special education in the Ontario school and for sympathy and help for the pupils who graduated from the institutions. Those handicapped by deafness, he said, required more than the sympathy their condition merited.

RAIL PROBLEM IS DISCUSSED

C.P.R. President Beatty Takes Stand Before Commission

Ottawa, Jan. 6—President E. W. Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was examined Wednesday Tuesday afternoon's sitting of the Transportation commission. When the session was recently resigned session in camera last evening there was no statement concerning the matter.

An executive meeting of the Commission will take place today, and, while further evidence is expected to be given by officials of the railway, the witnesses to be called have not yet been announced.

A possibility exists that the members of the Commission may still hear evidence in the Montreal plan to proceed to the Maritime Provinces, but no decision in this regard is expected to be discussed by the Commission at today's meeting. Counsel Mr. Justice L. P. Duff, some time ago, indicated his desire to visit the Maritime Provinces has not yet been drafted.

Well-informed circles there is little expectation that the Commission will complete its investigations on its findings before the end of March.

ARRESTS MADE BY WHOLESALE

Government of India Begins Sweeping Round-up

Bombay, India, Jan. 6—The government began a sweeping round-up of India's Nationalist leaders today, under extraordinary powers to meet the civil disobedience campaign.

Vithalbhai Patel, former president of the Indian legislative Assembly and others prominent in the outlawed Indian National Congress were seized by the police, who move quickly from place to place.

The government previously had declared the Congress illegal, and to the entire Maiden Presidency its emergency ordinances outlawing the Congress affecting Congress party, led by the jailed Mahatma Gandhi, forbidding all contributions to its funds and prohibiting demonstrations and peaceful picketing.

Prominent Parsee Held

Among those taken into custody were E. F. Nariman and Nagindas Master, president and vice-president respectively of the local Congress Executive Committee. Nariman is considered the leader of the Parsee sect.

Bombay, Calcutta, New Delhi and Ajmer, Rajputana, are among the cities affected by yesterday's new government's stringent measures.

Many Indian leaders in Bombay were placed outside the law by the extension of the emergency ordinances.

Numerous arrests have resulted from the Congress party's defiance of modern's decrees, but equally important is the boycott of the British Courts and the Nationalists' revenue. In Bombay, Calcutta and small centers and merchants have been liberal in their contributions.

Haymows Ought to be Salted is Advice Given by Fire Marshal Heaton

Revival of Old Custom of Using Salt to Save Crops

BINDER TWINE

Inflammability of Twine is Discussed at Probe

Hamilton, Jan. 6.—Revival of the old custom of liberally using salt in haymows to prevent self-ignition of such crops were urged strongly yesterday by Fire Marshal E. P. Heaton at the Wentworth fire probe, which was resumed in the Dundas Court Hal. Mr. Heaton said the large number of barn fires every year during August and September showed convincingly that crops not thoroughly cured were a source of danger.

A new type of binder twine, which he said is impregnated with an insecticide fluid, also was advanced as an active source of fires during threshing operations, as such twine was asserted to be much more inflammable than the ordinary kind. It was suggested that the insurance companies should offer a bonus to farmers to do their threshing in their fields instead of in their barns.

Three fires were probed today the first to investigate a barn fire at Paul Murrex, near Ancaster, on Oct. 13; the one which destroyed the barn of Jas. Wright, near Lynden, on Nov. 10; and the one which destroyed the barn of James Mc Lotinville, West Flamboro', on Dec. 12.

The inquiry into the Ancaster fire has been caused by the new type of binder twine on the premises, and James de Lotinville's barn was destroyed by fire of unknown origin, ignition of green oats and hay.

L. A. Humphries, K.C., Crown Counsel, stated at the conclusion of to-day's session that he would hear evidence tomorrow in connection with the fires which destroyed the barns of Johnson Wray, Clarkson; Surerrus, near Greensville.

James de Lotinville, whose farm is on Concession 1, West Flamboro' Township, said the barn was destroyed by fire of unknown origin at 7.30 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 12. He had lived there for thirty years and was the owner's only source of insurance, and the fire was a heavy loss to him.

Mr. de Lotinville said that an oat-shed in the barn had been destroyed about three years ago by a mysterious fire. This occurred at 10 o'clock at night in the fall of the year. He declared some insurance for that loss. He also said to Mr. Heaton that his house was destroyed several years ago by fire, caused by a defective chimney. He was insured in that fire.

Opinion Given Upon Present Financial Situation

YOUNG PLAN

TORONTO, Jan 6. — Advices to the Canadian Bank of Commerce, which the Right Hon. Winston Churchill describes as "from reliable sources" that the present situation on war reparations in the interests of world business will be the result of the conference of governments at Lausanne starting on January 18.

The text of the memorandum to the European situation is as follows:

"The report of the advisory committee of experts on the Young Plan for International Settlements at the instance of Germany, in accordance with the terms of the Young Plan for Reparations, has been the cause of some disappointment in that it expresses no outright opinion as to whether Germany can meet all the requirements of the Plan. But the committee's terms of reference do not make it giving definite expression to anything but Germany's inability to meet the unconditional reparation payments and the urgent need for adjustment of all international and other war debts to the troubled situation of the world.

"Expert opinion thus confirms what has been believed by all students of the problem and accepted by all who are followed closely the course of world events. The report, however, has stirred up further debate on national rights and privileges and the attitude of the ultra-nationalists has made more difficult the task of the statesmen who are embodying every effort to breach the vicious circle which now encircles the world. Only a few simple facts and conditions in connection with reparations and inter-governmental debts need be considered in the solution of all the errors of the past, such as extravagance of some countries, Germany, for example.

"The Young Plan was drawn up in an economic atmosphere entirely different from that of to-day, and that is the apparent fact that it is not be continued under present conditions .The war, debt settlements and the Hawes - and Young Plans were supposed to be founded upon the principle of capacity to pay.

"Are the assumptions of each of the past two years to be overlooked and the principle mentioned replaced by that of inability to pay in fact? There is usually some justification for every earnest claim and the referee, the position of any one country in the international situation is not altogether wrong.

"Accordingly, if there is not room for confidence that payment then should be, in the interests of world business and prosperity, a postponement of the whole question of reparations and inter-governmental debts, based upon reliable sources indicate that another will be the result of the governmental conference to be held a few weeks hence."

MANY FACTORS AT WORK

From all parts of the country are reported this week turnovers in which sitting members of councils lost their seats upon appeal to the electorate. While in each riding there were no doubt many elements at work, some of which could not clearly be defined, one of the most potent influences was doubtless the unemployment situation and the general financial situation of the country as well as of the world at large. Nothing else would explain why so many municipalities turned right-about-face with one accord to give the seats to new men.

Such turnovers are frequent in the case of governments in times of stress and strain and proof of this in municipal government affairs is not lacking.

THE MAN AND THE PAPER

One of the most remarkable figures of the journalistic world has passed to the Beyond, C. P. Scott of the Manchester Guardian, whose career with this newspaper has brought him into contact with the whole world. Mr. Scott was not only a great figure in journalism in the extraordinarion of an attitude on all public matters which gave the paper the hearing of the civilized world and which allowed free expression of views because sincerity and true scholarship marked his every utterance. Back of this was the secret of the man's own personality and life. He was an individual, and his private life, his personal likes, his habits, made him one of those lovable figures like Dr. Johnson, to end up when one thinks of honored old age. He was simple in his tastes and sought not the world's applause because of the contributions of his own, while he gave every opportunity for the expression of the views of others.

He has touched millions through the Manchester Guardian. His life has not lost its influence even with his passing. It has been and will be reflected in the lives of millions of his fellowmen. He could be put down in the list of those who loved their fellowmen.

CANADA IN WINTER

Canadians have a climate of which they ought to be proud and of which they are proud, even though some of them are constantly hoping against the trend of the weather. But whatever weather comes this climate is one of the best in the world and those who do not appreciate it are not in step with the best feeling in Canada and elsewhere.

A land of winter sports and pleasures —what does that not mean to a Canadian? What would the phrase mean to those who live in a country where there is never a lake of ice unless it comes from a plant where it has been artificially turned out? How much does the winter with all its wintry aspect than mere soft weather which tries to resemble both summer and winter at the same time? Cook Canada for a winter. "Give us wintry winter because this is just another of the things for which Canada is famous."

The present winter so far is a little backward in its full expression of winter sport although many and snowshoeing have been added to the winter's activities beside the standby sports of hockey and tobogganing. But there is enough winter to make it winter all the same.

While winter is not a good travel period yet those who could afford to escape the winter climes ought to try Canada for the truest and the healthiest sport. Nothing can approach Canadian woods in winter time, rivers and lakes in rivers and the generally blanketted landscape. Tramping through the woods, tobogganing, curling, skating, all more or less new and alien to its guests and its natives for the development of a healthy interest in life?

The cream of it is not only the climate but with the people. They do not take full advantage of the wondrous opportunities afforded them for enjoyment.

SOMEWHAT MELODRAMATIC

Hitler's cry, "through hell, death, and damnation to victory" is an ugly and one would expect from a man who must impress mankind with his spectacular rise if he is to fill a large place in the world and perhaps see his party in the government of Germany. But it is probably a case of many words where more soberness would fill the bill as well as these striking words. Hitler takes himself seriously and his fellowmen do likewise. He is not the kind to laugh when he makes so melodramatic a speech as the "hell, death, and damnation speech" of a few days ago.

President Hoover has called for quick treatment of his emergency measures and calls on the United States to dispel the unwarranted fear which has taken possession of the country and the world at large. There is not much doubt that unwarranted fear has as much to do with the low levels of the depression as the unwarranted erratic optimism of 1929 had with the break in prices.

IF THEY SHOULD RISE
By Henry Gillen

If life flowed back and they should rise
From hillocks neatly spaded down,
With youth still sparkling in their eyes,
And wander up the road to town,
And see the stars and feel the sun
And touch a tree and press a hand,
And fill the urge to laugh and run—
I wonder would they understand.

How could they ever comprehend
The downcast mouth, the furrowed brow
The feeling we are near the end
And there is naught to save us now;
Would they sit down and join our bleat
About the little woes that rack,
Or tell us to get on our feet
And scale the heights by battling back?

Have we forgotten darker nights
When terror thundered through the skies,
When bugles sank and our delights
Were offered up in sacrifice,
When we were called upon to spend
Far more than wealth—our blood and bone—
Not for our own and gainful end,
But gifts on freedom's altar-stone?

God give us back the ancient fight,
Renew the spirit of the Auld Lang Syne,
Unfurl the flags, refresh the light
That swept the Argonne wood and plain
Arouse, you dead, all the marts,
To spin the wheels and stir the war stride,
So we may face with braver hearts
The days to be for which they died.

THE NEW CITY COUNCIL was sworn in for the first of the year, now they will be sworn in for a year, probably.

"INSOLENCE OF WEALTH and insolence of poverty," were named by a speaker in Belleville recently as potential causes of trouble ahead in the United States unless conditions which have resulted in millions being unemployed are remedied. Wealth is always a good mark for attack, and wealth can still be taxed and taxed, but wealth should also get credit for accepting the responsibility of great riches and trying to make the best of them for the good of humanity generally. One instance of wealth working for the general weal may be cited in the building of Radio City, within the metropolis of New York, with an expenditure of $250,000,000 and giving employment to the thousand people for several years. This is Rockefeller money taking in which some of the millions of Standard Oil will be used. The work is neither necessary or useful but it is a very great profit. It is rather the result of an ideal, a vision of a greater city within a city a show place for the world and a new pattern from and a place where art, science and commerce may meet on a high plane for mutual inspiration and the betterment of mankind generally. The ancients solved possible unemployment problems by the building of such monuments as the pyramids, art, science and commerce which have wielded an influence for good for many centuries and long after the structures have tumbled into ruins. Today great transcontinental highways are being constructed by labor which would otherwise be idle, and this great Radio City in New York is keeping five thousand workers out of the unemployed ranks. This is just one instance where wealth is benevolent instead of insolent, many more might be quoted. The "insolence of wealth" is a theme for something else again and a chapter by itself, suffice it to say that it is hard to be benevolent, unselfish, tolerant and full of good fellowship on an empty stomach.

LEGS AND THE BOY

As the cup was handed over into the youth's hands, there went up cries of "Speech! Speech!" and the hubbub broke out anew. Meanwhile the lad was able to collect his thoughts and, of course, catch his breath. Then he stepped up on a bench. There came an abrupt and eager hush!

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have won this cup by the use of my legs. I trust I may never lose the use of my legs by the use of this cup."—Christian Science Monitor.

MAINTAIN YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Whatever goes by the board in these times of stress and depression the man who is determined to fight along with the world back to normality will maintain his life insurance as the most precious asset he possesses.

Hundreds of thousands of families have lost their stocks, sacrificed their homes and lost deeply into their savings. The one real backing they now possess is their life insurance policies and the security those policies represent.

To drop them is to surrender the last line of defence.

For a man to face the world with an empty belly and a sad heart, so long as he has some little financial force behind him.

But it is a rare man who can face the world with an empty belly and a sad heart and nothing behind him but the fickle promises of chances.

It is a great temptation for those who are hard pressed to let their policies lapse with the idea of securing new ones "later." The danger is that we are all getting older. If those new ones are not taken out, it will be at a tremendously increased cost.

Maintain your life insurance if you maintain nothing else.—Vancouver Sun.

DICTIONARY INTERESTING BOOK

Compton Mackenzie is said to regard dictionaries as "the most meritorious reading in the world." If he were banished for life to a desert island and allowed to take a dictionary and work, he would choose without a moment's hesitation the Oxford Pocket Dictionary.

There is nothing new in this viewpoint. Though Mr. Mackenzie has stated it very well. We know of no keener delight than to find books to be enjoyed in pursuing the words of the English language. Americans have ever varying histories to their originals like Webster's.

Dictionary students have discovered some surprising things. One of these is that the dictionaries have very different meanings from those which the words in question have first included in the language. The history of words is often more interesting as an historical romance. We look to Compton Mackenzie to recommending as it readers of one of the most engaging hobbies in the world. It is a hobby of amateur men many modern pleasures in that it involves no expenditure. We have first overhead outlay on the purchase of a good English and American dictionary. This hobby includes the additional benefit that it equips the word addict with a fine and distinguishing literary sense. It is a splendid, and not at all expensive, multiavo. It is an investment which never pays dividends.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

GANDHI ARRESTED

The gravity of the news from India could easily be exaggerated. At the worst, it is highly probable that Britain's administration there faces crises which have not been seen arrested before, without untoward results. Lord Willingdon's task in the present time is quite likely to inflame the passions of the Nationalists.

It is always regrettable when imperial statesmanship is compelled to call force to their aid. But the fact that it is Lord Willingdon who has felt impelled to do so is itself a guarantee of Britain's good faith. Lord Willingdon is extremely liberal in his own views. He has opposed Mr. Churchill and the Tory party in their attempt to hamper the Indian people in their struggle for self-government.—Toronto Globe.

TIRED MOTOR DRIVERS

A Toronto citizen had an experience in a motor car a few days ago which will do him for a lifetime. He hired a driver from a garage to take him from a certain distance on a suburban highway. As everything was quiet ahead he started to read but was suddenly disturbed by the car swerving up and down the road. He looked up and saw one side of the road and then the other where it turned completely and landed on all wheels astride a deep ditch. Neither passenger nor driver had a scratch, no glass was broken and the car was not damaged.

As the driver repeated "I saw a rock," the passenger made a careful search for the rock on the road and in the ditches but could not find the slightest trace of any such obstacle. By this time two truckdrivers arrived on the scene and when they heard about the rock they both remarked casually that this was a common story with sleepy drivers. People when dreamy are liable to waken with a start and to imagine some obstruction in front of them. Motor drivers are not confined to motor drivers.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

CAMPBELLFORD DEFEATED 5-0 BY TRENTON

TRENTON WINS OPENING GAME BY 5-0 SCORE

Campbellford Victims of Well Organized Attack

ICE IS POOR

Both Teams Show Lack of Condition But Battled Till End

Trenton, Jan. 6 (Special)— The hockey season opened here last night, Trenton defeating Campbellford 5-0. Many of the townspeople seemed to think that the game had been postponed on account of the mild weather. But those that did turn out made up for the rest in their enthusiasm after the boys got going. The ice was very soft and bumpy, each caught handicapped both teams and giving them a chance to show what they could really do on fast ice. Both teams worked plenty hard but the Trenton boys outclassed the Campbellford team.

Young Bush and Eliasley of Campbellford certainly played their forward positions well and were in the play at all times. R. Oddie of Campbellford turned in a fast game despite the fact that they scored five times against him. Victor Willis playing centre was perhaps the most outstanding player of the night, although he failed to pick anyone as all the boys were right there. The reason for this it wasn't afraid to pass the puck handing out some assists during the game. Belleville juniors had better look to their laurels in their next game on the 14th with the boys as they are out to take them.

1st Period.

The game opened up with the boys passing the puck quite freely on both teams. In the first three minutes Lambert started up with the puck passing to Dolan, who in turn passed it back, Lambert scoring.

2nd. Period.

The Campbellford boys came out meaning to even up the score but were unable to get through Lambert and Rutten on the defence. Chambers in goal had a pretty soft time of it, but took things cool, when they came his way. It is plenty hard to get past Bucky Dolan, Kidd and Mattas were passing the puck and going right through. Kidd scoring in the last five minutes of play on a pass from Dolan. The second forward line then went on and could not be outdone forced the play to the Campbellford net, Jordan picking up a loose puck and scoring.

3rd Period.

The ice was very bad in the last period and passing was almost impossible. Young Dolan was floored by Hendy and came up fighting, which gave them both a trip to the penalty box. Willie who had been working hard shooting at the goal often, finally got his much deserved goal unassisted. On the face off Campbellford started to force the play but Dolan got away with the puck passing to Mattas who scored.

Campbellford:—goal R. Oddie, defence A. Lambert, L. Wilkes, wing E. Bush, J. Eliasley, centre G. Hendy, Alternates, E. Rushton, K. Oddie, P. Milne, Vic Cubit.

Trenton:—goal K. Chambers, defence H. Lambert, Rutten, wings L. Mattas, J. Dolan, centre Jack Kidd. Alternates V. Willie, P. Richards, D. Jordan, Milligan.

Referee—Bill Green, Belleville.

Penalties:

1st period, Bush, Campbellford, Lambert, Trenton.

2nd period, Bush, Campbellford.

3rd period, Hendy, Campbellford, Dolan, Trenton.

Final score: Trenton 5; Campbellford 0.

Fooling is beginning to run high in regard to Friday night's game between Campbellford Intermediates and Belleville Intermediates. Rumors are about town to the effect that the "Northerners" are coming to town with the classic band off the old band reel. We also are informed that they are willing to wager that their "pet chasers" will double the score on the locals. There is nothing antarctic about this rumor, but we will say that the Hydro Lore snappers are feel that they have a real team and after playing the Forthern intermediates to a tie, by the beaker town last week, they, quite naturally, think their stocks have risen considerably in hockey circles.

If the Campbellford fans come to Belleville on Friday night and want to make any such wagers as mentioned above we think that they will be amply supplied with takers. Belleville supporters have always been known to back their teams to the limit and after seeing the boys perform for the first time we think that they at least stand "a little show against a slightly (?) team from the north."

Coach "Rosnoer" Holway put the boys through a real hour's practice on Tuesday night in preparation for the game. Practice will be held on Wednesday evening in the Prince Edward County seat. All players are to be present on Tuesday evening and we might especially mention the newcomers Shannon and Davey. These two boys looked much better their second time out and it is expected that at least one of them will be given a chance at the initial game on Friday night. Tice and Hesbard are out to practice every night as are Wyer, Merrin, Morgan, Hall, Leachman, Si Denis, Campbell and McIntosh, who is back from his holidays.

It is likely that a Toronto referee will be appointed for the game here on Friday night.

In co-operation with the E.S.A.A. hockey teams, Managers Chris Holmes of the Capitol Theatre, is having 1,500 schedules printed and will pass them out to the fans on Friday night at the game. These schedules, which include both senior and intermediate league fixtures, can also be obtained at the box office of the Capitol Theatre. In obtaining one of these schedules the fans can acquaint themselves with the exact date of every game in which a Belleville team will be participating in their respective positions this year.

Although nothing definite has been brought forth in the organizing of a fancy and figure skating club for Belleville, it might be of interest to know that communications is being carried on with the Toronto Skating Club as to the possibility of engaging an instructor for the season. Each advanced pupil of the club may be engaged for the first season to teach the local beginners the rudiments of the art.

King Levinsky, conqueror of Tommy Loughran, is the heaviest of all the prominent Jewish heavyweights in ring history. Battling Levinsky was at his best at 174 lbs. While in the almon pure ranks he fought 79 bouts losing all of them.

German Fighter Asks For Postponement in New York

Leicester, Eng., Jan. 6 (CP cable)—Immediately after the defeat of Reggie Meen, British heavyweight, by Heinrich Muller, European heavyweight champion, here, Larry Gains of Toronto, British Empire heavyweight champion, issued a challenge to the winner. His names Muller, Primo Carnera and Max Schmeling himself.

Muller has replied by asking his manager to cable a New York promoter seeking postponement of a Madison Square Garden contract for three weeks so he can fight Gains. Muller, a German, won in the fourth round of a scheduled 15-round tilt, the referee stopping the fight to save Meen from further punishment.

SLEEPY CLAUDE KNOWS WHEN TO STAY AWAY

One of the most outstanding goalies in Canadian amateur hockey this year is Claude Harris who guards the nets for the Midland Flour Mill O.H.A. entry. There are few more spectacular goalies in the intermediate ranks and that goes for pro hockey as well. For Claude is a chap who is built for the type who sits back and says "let things come to him who waits." He gets right out after 'em. Anything from flying leaves to body slams is the reeting received by the unwary man who presumes to crash Harris' citadel. Claude has been playing goal long enough now to know what it's all about. In 1926 he was with the St. Mary's team in junior O.H.A. and the year following played on the champion Marlboro junior team. Since then he has been with the senior team of the same club. But Claude does not confine himself to hockey. In the summer he plays a mighty smart game of baseball, and in the fall cavorts as a secondary grass hound with the Balmy Beach team, Dominion champions in 1930. He is another of those Malvern graduates. Claude is perhaps one of the sleepiest goalies in hockey. He can go to sleep any time, anywhere without any trouble. On a trip from Toronto on motor car, sleepy Claude can always curl up in a knot, fold his head under his arm and slip off into dreamland even if the rest of the boys are trying to harmonize "Sweet Adeline" or what have you. O. H. Ent. Sec. To your question we must inform you that you must be a resident of the town or city in which you play since May 15th of the current year according to the O.H.A. constitution.

AMERKS SCORE 2 TO 1 VICTORY

Take Points From Canadians For First Time This Season

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP) Apparently tired of their showing in their last two appearances during which time they have failed to bag up a single victory, Eddie Gerard's skidding Americans astounded the hockey world last night when they stepped into Montreal and handed the world champion Canadiens a 3-1 overtime reverse.

It was the first time this season the New York club have succeeded in picking up a point from the speedy Frenchmen as in both their previous engagements with the Habitants they had witnessed a marked depression in goal scoring, having failed to register a single tally against Georges Hainsworth.

Two other matches resulted pretty much as expected. Toronto's speeding Maple Leafs, who are setting the pace in the Canadian group, paid their initial visit to Boston and held the Bruins to a 3-3 tie while New York Rangers maintained their unbeaten record against Montreal Maroons by beating the Canadian entry 2-0.

LONDON AND WINDSOR WIN

Both Clubs Strengthen Position in League race

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP) — A pair of "runaway" victories and one closely contested match, marked the three games played in the International Hockey League last night. Two Canadian entries, London and Windsor, both strengthened their position in the league race by downing Syracuse and Pittsburgh respectively, while Cleveland Indians broke out in a scoring splurge to hand Buffalo Bisons a 5-1 reverser in the Ohio city.

Injuries, the dreaded nemesis of all clubs, have taken their toll in the ranks of the Windsor Bulldogs but the absence of several regulars had little effect on their scoring efforts last night when they shut out the Yellow Jackets 6-0. The Londoners did not have matters so easy however, as they were forced to finish strongly to edge out a 3-2 decision.

The Tec's victory hoisted the Pressmen into a tie for second position with Detroit Olympics while the latter's defeat at the hands of Tulsa two points in the rear of Clem Loughlin's quad who have played three additional games.

JANET GAYNOR AND CHARLES FARRELL IN "DELICIOUS"

Kilts, a flaming-red tam O'shanter, a little scotch terrier, and a delightful accent begins are the chief properties of Janet Gaynor for her new role in "Delicious", Fox entertainment, who adopts her as one of their own.

Charles Farrell, co-star in the picture, also becomes acquainted with her on the boat, as does Hugh Brendy, who is seen as Farrell's valet. The romance which springs up between Janet and Charles on their first meeting is the motivating theme of the picture. Then the adventures, which include a strange misunderstanding between them and Janet's threat of a quite marriage, carry them ashore where their troubles are augmented by the prestigence of Virginia Cherrill to win Charles' affection and of Lawrence O'Sullivan, an immigration officer, to arrest Janet for entering the country illegally.

Spontaneous gaiety and much comedy are woven through the picture, which is led with a background of George Gershwin music. This includes six musical numbers by the famous composer, the words of which were written by his talented brother, Ira Gershwin. They are "You Started It", "Blah-Blah", "Blah With You", "Delicious", "Somebody From Somewhere, Sometime", and "New Sensation".

OUR LADY OF THE SILVER HEELS

"Silver Heels" I have always called her. It is by my own private pet name for her; and furthermore I had the courage to call her by it to her own face," writes Wilton Chalmers, biographer of Hollywood celebrities.

She laughed — of course she laughed — for she is Marilyn Miller, and Marilyn is a girl with a golden sense of humor.

"Why on earth do you call me that?" she asked.

"Well, it's a pretty name, isn't it? And it suggests dancing, doesn't it? That made it fit you. And once there was a famous race horse in England called Silver Heels — a genuine thoroughbred. So — of course —"

"But then she accused me of flattering her and I didn't know how to any more. Nevertheless I shall complete that statement which she completed for me: "Silver Heels was a thoroughbred — in Marilyn Miller."

Meeting Marilyn Miller in private life provides exactly the same impression as meeting her in a picture or a play. She is always Marilyn Miller. She is always entirely natural—which is a rare and refreshing characteristic in an actress.

It so happens that the present writer has followed her career more or less closely since, at the age of sixteen, she was premiere danseuse at the Winter Garden. The Ziegfeld Follies came later, then "Sally" "Peggy Ann," "Sunny" and "Rosalie" in their order of stage triumphs. She was the star of all of them. A little more than a year ago she made her debut in talking pictures, playing a co-star with Flint Hollonan which had already resulted in seven editions of "Sally" and "Sunny" and never ceasing dancing of all "Her Majesty, Love."

CANADIAN BONDS GIVEN HIGHEST RANK

Canadian Securities Alone Favored By New U.S. Corporation

RANK LOANS

Striking Recognition of Canada's Credit By States

Washington, D.C., Jan. 6—Striking evidence of confidence in Canadian securities was given by the United States Senate banking subcommittee today when it favored an amendment to the bill embodying President Hoover's proposed gigantic Reconstruction Finance Corporation, granting loans of hundreds to financial institutions of this country backed by the Dominion's credit.

Both Canadian Government and Canadian corporation securities are accorded this unique status. No other nation except Canada or foreign corporation securities are given the privilege of participating in the Corporation.

Quick Passage

The proposal, approved in bill form today by the sub-committee, seeks to authorize loans to the extent of $2,000,000,000 worth of credit into the financial and commercial arteries of the United States. The full committee later today is expected to approve it and insure goes to the Senate tomorrow. Quick passage is forecast.

The corporation would be established with a government capitalization of $500,000,000. Its purpose would be to extend loans and credits to banks, insurance companies and other bona fide financial institutions which can offer good collaterals. It has authority to issue bonds to the extent of $2,000,000,000, once the treasury is authorized, if necessary to back the bonds issued.

The amendment singling out reciprocal rights of Canadian securities and excluding those of other countries was that "no loans or credits shall be made by the corporation for the purpose of assisting in the carrying or liquidation" of such securities as colateral.

Senator Glass, Democrat, of Virginia, led a successful fight within the banking sub-committee to keep the federal reserve system clear of the proposed $1,500,000,000 in debentures of the corporation.

Naturalization Act Will Be Changed

OTTAWA, Jan. 6 — An act to amend the Naturalization Act, and the Immigration Act, in the matter of Canadian women, has been proclaimed in force, effective from on January 18 next. After that date a woman who marries an alien and does not thereafter reside with her husband, shall remain a British subject. Also a woman who is the wife of a married Canadian man who goes to another country and becomes naturalized on January 15 next, his wife will still retain her Canadian nationality.

This amending legislation, which was passed by the present session of parliament here, was a done of considerable debate in two meetings of the Imperial Conference, where divergencies of view were apparent, but which ended unanimously in the adoption of the Empire, but also between delegates of the British Government. It is known that not only the Irish Free State and the Union of South Africa were the countries to which the Canadian parliament has made, but also the British Foreign Office was opposed to it, while the Home Office strongly favored it.

The assistant general manager of the Belle Isle Bank walked into the vine-enclosed verandah where Jim Conquer entered the swinging hongue, while a nurse, almost old enough to be a governess, sat in an adjacent chair knitting.

"Well, how's our boss, Mrs. Cassidy? Is he getting well?"

"His wounds have all healed by first intention, Mr. Austin, thanks," I should say he'll be up and around in a week or two. Here's a letter for a month or two thereafter at any rate he knows me next week."

Dan Austin, the bank manager, had to be excused, read his mail, frowned, then entered the room where Jim Conquer lay on the cot. Miss Austrin has given the Federal Trust Company a check in payment of the draft drawn against the estate and that the bank had resigned as co-executor. Mrs. Cassidy wrote a note to the effect that Miss Austrin was a most crippled son and gave it to Robert together with the address. When he had gone Jim Conquer said to himself: for the journey. Mrs. Cassidy returned to her patient.

"What a charming man your Mr. Austin is, Mrs. Cassidy," she murmured. "When they hurry they're quite handsome."

A horseman galloped, three hundred yards distant, passed at great speed.

"Well my friend," Don Jaime greeted, "what's the matter with them?"

"Thirty riders crossed the Rio Oracle at daylight, Senor! They are rounding up several hundred of the cattle's worth, I should say."

"My thanks are due you, my friend," Don Jaime said, "you have not yet far. Who sent you here?"

"The American customs agent at Los Algodones Don Jaime. He told you send your riders to head them off before they reach the line. Agree with your cattle."

"Good!" Don Jaime said. "I have not forgotten all the Rainbow Verdugo. Forty men will be sufficient. I think. Return to the customs agent. Tell him my gratitude his warning and tell him my men will be there in approximately two hours."

The man galloped away. Don Jaime smoked contentedly, while Mrs. Cassidy watched him with curiosity. Finally he turned to her to announce his impending departure.

"Delay it until tomorrow, Ken," Mrs. Cassidy urged. "I want to have a job for you." And he recounted the tale brought by his visitor. He was forty years and over for the river. If this man's tale is true there is a job for someone and I think, however, he lies. Have Robert bring me the saddle and I will strut him to have them remain in the house. Their horses cost! I send him word that he is not going to be needed."

"A plant, eh?"

"I've been expecting reprisal, Ken. Now I am convinced. I had but forty men available, but would send two hundred if I had to. With them we shall see if what sheep."

Belleville Sargent Hardware Co'y. Instal Sprinkler

System Put In By Purdy Mansfield Co'y of Toronto

DETAIL OF SYSTEM

During the period of inventory and stock-taking of the Belleville Sargent Hardware and Lock Manufacturing Company Limited a complete sprinkler system has been installed in the building and properties of the company located in Belleville.

The system was installed by the Purdy-Mansfield Company of Toronto and is operated by compression and when one sprinkler opens the water is automatically sprayed through the pipes, to the open valve.

On the top of each valve is a gauge of light lead and when the temperature of the room reaches a certain degree the lead melts thus starting the system in operation. The whole system is operated by the temperature of the building and when the temperature of this build ing reaches a certain degree the system is put in operation to protect. The dry system, such as has been installed in the Belleville Sargent Company's building, is of the most modern type nature as to water cannot freeze in the pipes, when in outer buildings during the winter months.

Outside the building, fastened on the east wall of the factory is a large, fire alarm or bell, which also rings, when the system is in operation. The bell is about 15 inches in diameter and can be clearly heard for a number of city blocks. This alarm will inform persons near the building of an outbreak of fire in case its clerks has not been pre-discovered.

The Belleville Sargent Company has been operating after stock-taking, later in the week and expect an increase in business over last year.

COLORED LODGER TAKES HIS BATH

Last night a little color was added to the monotony of every-day-in-and-over night guests at the city's lodge for transients. The variation was chosen by the prisoner who selected man named James White. He was a cheerful soul, was fifty years old and had served overseas, being decorated. He was on his way to seek admission to the military hospital at Kingston. When he learned that the lodge provided for the luxury of a hot shower bath he decided to take advantage of it.

RUSSO SURGEON STUDIES HERE

Ear Specialist is Allowed to Leave Russia for Research

Montreal, Jan. 6—Following many years of effort, Dr. A. Andreeff, noted ear specialist of Leningrad, Russia, has succeeded in obtaining permission from the Soviet government to leave Russia temporarily to carry on a year's research work in Montreal under auspices of McGill University, working in conjunction with Profs. Penfield and Cone of that school, J. B. Collip on the causes of deafness.

The arrangements were made at the university today that Dr. Andreeff and family will arrive from Russia soon and would arrive here shortly. He says here will be at least a year and is made possible by a special grant of money by McGill for the carrying on of research work on the ear.

To obtain permission to visit except another university in Russia, it is reported, was made at the time Gill staff acquainted with the problem, Dr. Collip, of Heath College. A teacher may not accept a position in Russia without first obtaining the permission and authority of the government.

After many months of weary writing and interviewing before Dr. Andreeff was finally decided, a final word being retained by the Soviet Commissariat of Education, of the Soviet Government.

Dr. Andreeff was selected to assist Dr. Collip at McGILL in research, explained, because he was an assistant for several years of the world-famous Russian physiologist, Pavlov, whose latest work on conditioned reflexes is regarded as being extremely important in the study of deafness.

British Isles Swept By Lashing Gale

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(AP)— The British Isles were swept by a strong gale, with much rain and mild temperatures today, while great seas dashed the coasts, especially on the west and along the channel, interfering with shipping.

No casualties were reported although two small boats were sunk at the mouth of the Thames. The crews were rescued.

A violent storm was reported approaching Great Britain from the Atlantic and winds of hurricane force were expected. Serious floods continued today in Wales, and in North Wales was flooded and many buses rendered uninhabitable.

Letters to The Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:
Dear Sir,—

Allow me space in your paper to express my appreciation of one of the editorials that appear from time to time. One translating the Bible" called it. I am pleased lovers of the old Book. One paragraph was so full of meaning for waiting for some one to give just tribute to the modern translation, as compared with the King James version.

The supremacy of the King James version of the Bible is admitted and he is a bold man who will dare to intrude his modernisms into the sacred version. But it remains for the scholars and churchmen of the day of King James. If ever a translation was inspired it is the King James version. For it contains the riches of all the ages in religious thought. Every word of it from fitted for the food of the souls of men. It has grasped the spirit of the original Greek and interpreted it in English (rhythmical prose which has passed into the currency of the language."

Another:

"To surpass the English Bible as it is known, is absolutely impossible. Never again will a group of men have the genius to meet in one common cause to render into the vernacular of English the words of God. Never will there be lived in the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth and King James, when the finest flower of English was spoken and written. Never will the genius of Shakespeare and Milton speak as of English idiom expression. No one will contend that the Victorians or the Georgians or Edwardians know their English as perfectly as men of the days about the opening of the seventeenth century."

Another:

"The people though they may be charged with neglecting to read their Bibles will not easily take over the new versions."

The following paragraphs explain why the old King James version is prized by so many who can never

CAMPBELLFORD READY FOR OPENING BELL

First Group Game Will Be Played in Belleville This Week

NEW PLAYERS

Both Teams Have Added to Their Player Power During Year

Well, hockey fans, the season for the winter pastime is ready to have the lied pried off and Friday night the opening gun will be fired. The opposition is Campbellford, a team making their first plunge into intermediate O.H.A. and from all accounts that have come straight out of the woods, they will be one to be watched in the coming campaign. They have been looking hockey seriously in the north country and according to reports have been in mid-winter condition it is expected that they will give the locals a fraction for the decision.

Campbellford has turned out some real stars in the game gone by and it is understood they have a few oft this year which will be the real wind to take another peak. The nucleus of the team has been playing together for some years but they have added a couple of new players that will make all the difference in the world. The most important addition will be Ken Davis, who wore the Belleville spangles last. Winter, and his presence at the point position and there is none better in this district, will be the nail which is going both ways. Harry and Fred Graham has been developed by the northern boys, and no one can excel the former at the point for defence. McCabe, Cowell, McArthur are still with the team and the latter is a veteran but he seems to still to be reckoned with and he will cause the locals plenty of worry in sixty minutes of play. A few new men will be on hand also but these added and with all the team has in the way of forwarse for this group.

Belleville will have Bill Rankin, Stew Pender and Harold Legate have not been sleeping and they have rounded into a fast combination and the able direction of "Bouncer" McMullin, former O.H.A. star, better goalie in these parts than Les Weir, Fred Hollinshead and others are ready and they will be going at high speed from the opening rush that they are ready for the bell. The hockey club has tried to sell the game to the fans and for years they have tried to gather a team that is satisfactorily represent the sport city but a team cannot be put on the ice without cash. The hockey good, clean hockey and every man, on the team is a gentleman on and off the ice. Give the boys a hearty hand and show appreciation by attending on Friday night and let the boys know every sport fan behind them in the season's grind.

A Cold

Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of Aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve you cold at any stage. And Aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer from these things have found winter comfort in Aspirin. At drug stores everywhere.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 5.

Tarzan lay in the darkness of the hold, ignorant of the fact that his wife was a prisoner in the cabin almost above his head. For weeks that seemed like months the little steamer forged on—the two prisoners knew not where. Then one day Tarzan was ordered to come above. As he swung himself on deck he noted over the starboard bow of the Kincaid a strip of land.

The vessel lay at anchor a few hundred yards from shore. Almost down to the water's edge ran a dense tropical jungle. Around him stood a half-dozen armed sailors, commanded by an unkempt, swarthy officer. Tarzan fully expected to see Rokoff, but it was the officer who spoke. "Lord Greystoke," he said, "your child is not on board. We have orders to set you at liberty here."

Tarzan listened with amazement. "Be quick," continued the fellow in broken English, "remove your clothing. Here you will not need it." And, as Tarzan hesitated, a revolver was pointed at him and slowly he obeyed. A boat was lowered and, still heavily guarded, the ape-man was rowed ashore. There a note was thrust into his hand and he was left marooned—upon a jungle island.

As he watched the departing vessel, Tarzan saw a man appear at the rail, call his name, and with a laugh of derision hold high the figure of a little child sick with horror, he realized the full measure of Rokoff's revenge. It numbed his senses completely so that he failed to hear the movement of that hairy thing behind him, creeping stealthily towards him as a cat upon a mouse.

"Where There's a Will--"

by Roma Rudd

A hammock is meant for swinging. Placed in a dark angle of the porch on a cool June night heavy with the scent of honeysuckle, it is meant for dreams. Gladys was doing neither. Sitting straight, tense, in the very centre of it, she was listening... listening with all her senses for tell tale footsteps that would soon be approaching. Her heart-shaped face showed strain and worry where a shaft of moonlight struck it. A young chap and his girl passed down the street, bending toward each other and laughing. Then a group of boys, making the night ring with their ardent young voices. Then.... the footsteps she had been waiting for this past half-hour. But as they came nearer, slowly, the look of worry did not leave her face, and she caught her underlip between her teeth. The gate clicked, and the lagging footsteps came up the walk. Jim sat down beside her in the hammock, and ran his hand through his hair.

"What luck, Jimmy?"

"Rotten, dear. There are just no jobs to be had. The Dayton Agency had an ad in this morning and you should have seen the line-up! Two hundred men and one job. I didn't even wait."

"Oh, please, Jimmy.... don't feel that way. Things can't always stay like this. You'll get a job Monday or tomorrow.... things might crop up all of a sudden."

Jim put his arm around her and there was silence for a minute.

"Gladys, you're a darling to take things this way. I wish I could be as good a sport as you are. But when I think that we were planning to be married this month.... and then I lost my job.... and now ...."

"Jimmy.... there must be something. You're an expert radio man.... they must need people with your knowledge some place."

Jim gave a short laugh.

"Sure, they need men me, but they want me to pay them for the privilege of working! As a matter of fact, I've been offered a job today but I didn't think it was important enough to mention to you. I stopped in at the Eureka Radio on the chance that there might be something. Henley you know, left last week.... got an offer from the Radio Association in New York. Old man Campbell hemmed and hawed around, and finally told me that they really weren't thinking of replacing Henley because business wasn't so good, but if I wanted to come to work they'd give me twenty-five a week. Twenty-five a week! And in slow times I used to earn seventy-five! Why, they were paying their servants five. Campbell was sore as blazes when he left. And as for me replacing him.... they've got to. They can't get along without a man to do his work. But they know damn sure hard, and they expect people to jump at the chance of earning twenty-five a week."

"But Jimmy.... you didn't turn it down!"

"No but I'm going to. He told me to think it over, and to come in Monday morning if I wanted the job."

"Well, you're going in Monday morning."

"But darling.... how can we be married and live on that?"

"Jimmy, don't let's talk about it now. Just promise me that you'll go in Monday morning. Something may happen by then."

"Alright, I'll go in. But you don't expect Campbell to have a change of heart between Saturday night and Monday morning, do you?"

Gladys only smiled, and snuggled closer to him.

It was a disappointed Jimmy who called next afternoon, to be told that Gladys was out.

"But Mrs. Baker, she didn't say anything last night about going away today!"

"I don't think she knew she was going herself till this morning, Jimmy. She said if you came to tell you that she was sorry, and that she'd see you tomorrow night after you got back from the Erie."

It was a wet Monday morning, dripping and cold. Jim shuffled over the letters on the table by the door. Nothing for him, of course, in spite of the letters he'd written for jobs. Hold on.... there was one! His heart jumped into his throat as he looked at it. There—in black and white—the envelope was marked "Radio Association of New York". And it was addressed to him, in James Thornton! He tore it open feverishly, and there fell something slimp inside of him. The letter inside was addressed to the Eureka Radio Company, and asked for particulars as to the length of service of Robert Henley who had just been engaged by them. Might as well take it along... he was going to the Eureka anyway. He'd throw the letter at Campbell just as he'd throw Campbell's offer of a job. But it was strange that that letter should have been addressed to him.

Jim shook the rain from his hat and walked straight through to Campbell's private office in the rear of the Eureka building. And as he entered Campbell looked up at him with a peculiar expression.

"Sit down, Thornton. Here have a cigar. I want to talk to you. I've been talking to Emmet and Bailey and we have decided that there is a definite place here for a man of your ability. We are prepared to offer you one hundred dollars a week."

Jim felt his jaw sagging and it was only with great effort that he kept his face from showing his surprise.

"Very well, Mr. Campbell, those terms are satisfactory. I accept the job."

"Fine, Thornton. I am sure we will get along well. Incidentally, this is a letter that came for you, and was addressed to us by mistake. But please understand that it had nothing to do with our decision. Nothing at all.

He passed Jim a letter.... on the letterhead of the Radio Association. The letter he should have gotten at home. This time it was addressed to him and said that if he were interested in a salary of seventy-five dollars a week, to come in for a talk. And it went on to say that Thornton's tremendous field ahead for radio men of his ability. Jim looked up.

Now Thornton don't make a mistake. Radio-land is a growing town, and we need you right here. You'd simply be a cog in the wheel in New York. Why, you might be a partner here some day.... why not!"

Jim stayed.

* * * * * *

It was September, and an autumn moon hung like a yellow lantern in the sky. A hammock that showed signs of use rocked slowly on the porch of a spick-and-span new bungalow.

"I've often wondered, dear, what ever made old Campbell come around. Talk about your modern Mirabeau!"

Gladys laughed and covered her face.

"Gladys! Do you know anything about it? You do! Tell me!"

"Jimmy-boy, I promised myself I wouldn't tell you till we'd been married at least a year, and this is only three months. You won't think your wife is a dishonest terrible woman, will you, if I tell you, to remember that Sunday afternoon you came over and found me gone?"

"Yes." Jim leaned forward.

"Well, I went in to New York and went up to the offices of the Radio Association. They were having their Sunday auditions. I filled out a card, and told them I was a singer.... that I wanted to try my voice. They told me I'd have to wait a while, so I went into the reception room and took a couple of sheets of their stationery, and two envelopes. Then I went over to Jane Emery's apartment and used her typewriter to write the letters.... and I mailed them in the wrong envelopes. That's all there was to it.... except that I wonder what the Radio Association thought when a promising young singer ran out on her audition."

Women Fliers are Killed Plane Crashes Against Mountainside in Fog

Bodies Discovered in Wreckage as Fallen Plane is Sighted

GUELPH WOMAN ONE

Sister at Guelph Refuses to Believe News of Tragedy

NEWVILLE, Pa., Jan. 7.—Reports reaching here from searching parties said the bodies of Mrs. Ruth Stewart and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, missing aviators, had been recovered from their wrecked plane by J. Paul Lokus, Philadelphia autogyro pilot, and were being brought here. Lukens led a group to the scene of the crash after sighting the wreckage early this morning.

Shelton, who accompanied the women from Pittsburgh in a second plane carrying Mrs. Stewart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Woerner, said Mrs. Stewart, the pilot of the lost ship, had been crushed by the engine when the ship dived, nose downward, into the mountain-side on Mount Stanford, which is situated in the same mountain line.

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 7.—Word of the death of Mrs. Debbie Stanford, of Guelph, who was killed when the plane in which she was travelling from St. Louis to New York, crashed, was received by friends here with a sense of profound shock. Her sister, Mrs. Alice Reilly, refused to believe yesterday that Mrs. Stanford was in the plane, and it was not until toward noon that a telegram arrive informing her of her sister's death, that she credited accounts of the ill-fated trip.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 7.—From out of the wild country around Sterrett's Gap of the Blue Ridge Mountains came reports today that a plane believed to be that of Mrs. Debbie Stanford, Guelph, and Mrs. Ruth Stewart, which was reported to have disappeared from sight here on Tuesday, had been sighted.

AVON RIVER OVERFLOWS

Many Dwellings in City of Stratford Are Flooded

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 7 (CP) Swollen by recent heavy rains the Avon River yesterday topped its banks and flooded the fields and back yards of nearby buildings.

Ducks swam over the gardens and around the houses near the river where the water was from one to four feet deep.

Flood gates at the upper and lower dams were opened and officials hoped the water would recede within a few hours.

WORKMAN USES A CONVEYER

Presence of Mind in Explosion Probably Saves Life

Collingwood: Ont., Jan. 7 (CP)— Presence of mind saved the life of Lindsay McClure local machinist, when an explosion occurred yesterday in the Collingwood Terminal's elevator. McClure was working by one of the bins when a blast, followed a burst of flame, blew out two steel frames, buckled others, and pushed up the tops of several bins. Hurled onto a frame supporting a conveyor belt running the length of the building, McClure threw himself prone and the belt end was carried out of danger.

"PAY US OUT OF TREASURY"

Farmer Legislators Make This Request in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., Jan. 6.—From the state capitol what is perhaps the most direct plan of farm relief ever to gain the serious attention of a legislature in this country.

"Pay us," say the farmers, "out of the State Treasury."

Weary with unfilled relief promises, tired of what they call will-o'-the wisp plans, which never get further than resounding arguments in Congress, the farmers of the State have frankly asked for a subsidy.

QUICK ACTION PREVENTS LOSS

Car in Act of Dropping Into Space When Brakes Applied

Quick thinking on the part of Borden Elliott, of 34 Bridge street, prevented what might have been a very serious accident yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Elliott, who was driving a parcel of flowers for Dorothy F. Quick, Florist, to the Belleville General Hospital, drove into the hospital parking lot, and was attracted by the shouts of an unknown woman. Upon investigating the cause of the trouble, he saw a car slowly creeping down the incline of the hospital driveway. By running ahead of the car Mr. Elliott managed to get the car door open and apply the brakes, just as it reached the point of a 12-foot drop onto the C.P.R. right-of-way, south of the hospital.

Mr. Elliott was unable to ascertain the name of the occupant or the driver of the motor of the car, but any event the quick thinking and prompt action of this man saved someone considerable damage to the car. Mr. Elliott backed the car up to its original position and applied the brakes so that no further damage might result.

Merchants' Association Rescinds Decision of 11 Months' Observance

DEBATE SPIRITED

Vote Finally Carried By 16 to 12 to Close During Summer

With only one afternoon of the contemplated closing of the stores for Wednesday afternoon behind them, the recent motion regarding the adoption of closing every Wednesday afternoon throughout the eleven months of the year was rescinded this morning at a meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association held in the board room. The motion was submitted, discussed at length and finally adopted after a vote of sixteen for it and twelve against.

The recent motion was rescinded after being moved by Mr. Chas. Wood and seconded by Mr. Chas. J. Symons. The new one recommended for the consideration of all the members present, was then submitted by the members themselves carried without further debate by Mr. Woodley and Mr. Lister after which this present one, and Mr. Symons seconded it.

President Outspoken

The meeting was probably the largest and most heated held for some time and considerable interest was shown by the members present. In his opening speech to them, Mr. C. E. Hanna, president of the association, deplored the lack of unified effort, absence of harmony and the spirit of dissension which seemed to be present, and who also threatened to resign the position unless there was more unity shown by the members in their dealings, owing to the good and the welfare of the association.

It was the opinion of the members without exception that the old motion which had been passed should be given a fair trial by the store owners, and that the association should be given more support by the latter, but it was noticeable that there was a complete lack of organization among them; some of them closed their stores, others did not. Those who did keep open would have done so throughout the year, except for the warmer months, and it was not fair to the rest of them that the stores have that advantage.

Therefore it behooved them to either support the old motion and carry the new one in or compel all owners to close their stores

Moscow, Jan. 7 (AP).—At least fifty persons were killed and scores were wounded in a train wreck fourteen kilometres northwest of Moscow, Saturday, it was learned today.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Jan 7.—(AP) —Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, veteran British Liberal leader, arrived with his wife and daughter today on the steamer Rajputana from the west coast of Africa and he did not spend the worse night he ever spent aboard a ship during yesterday's storm.

The steamer was buffeted all day by the hurricane in the Bay of Biscay. Except for that experience, he said his trip was delightful. He looked extremely well but refused to say anything about the political situation except to remark that his views as expressed during the election campaign last November are unchanged.

Miss Megan, Mr. Lloyd George's daughter, said the improvement in her father's health was "amazing".

Several crafts were damaged by the terrific storm of wind and rain which swept the Atlantic and Channel during sea yesterday, strewing a path of destruction in its wake of wreckage and causing severe floods in low-lying areas.

The main proposals of the report are: Creation of a system of central licensing commission; experimental expansion of state ownership of public houses; more rapid reduction in the number of licenses; effective control of clubs, and a general closing time of 10.00 p.m. There is also a suggestion for a system of education in the schools on the subject of alcohol.

Damage estimated at between $800,000 and $750,000 is expected to result from the conflagration still raging on Dundas street, main thoroughfare of the Western Ontario city.

Half a dozen firemen were injured during the first five hours of combat with the flames. Most of the injured men, including Chief Frank Taylor, suffered from a number of the fire fighting crew, which numbered every available man in the district, called from the hillers of aerial smoke which filled the downtown section early.

Early Morning Blaze

Shortly after six o'clock this morning, the blaze broke out in the three storey establishment of T. F. Kingsmill Company, Limited, on the London dealers. Frenzied efforts of the fire-fighting personnel kept the flames from extending into nearby stores, although eight establishments suffered either smoke and water or smoke damage. The Kingsmill store was destroyed.

Millions of gallons of water were poured on the fire as 3,000 spectators crushed against the police cordons thrown up about the blazing building. Four high pressure guns shot each 1,000 gallons a minute into the building, and as many other hose lines were kept in action. At noon, fire chief Ned Greene said he hoped that though the fire was under control it would not be extinguished until late in the afternoon.

In addition to the destruction of Kingsmill's old landmark, smoke, smoke and water damage was suffered by the Dry Goods and Ladies Cloakery Stores. Other establishments suffering from smoke were Dominion Underwood Typewriter, Toledo Scales, N. J. Young, Hunt the popular Hatters, Shops and Crafton's. Fronts of two Dundas stores were damaged when crushing crowds crashed through show-windows.

Police found it hard to hold back the crowds which gathered on both the Dundas street and the Bond street sides of the doomed building so despite that traffic was impossible. Motorists traveling across town were forced to drive with their lights on due to the heavy layers of dirty smoke spreading through the business section. Office workers clamped windows down tight to prevent the smoke entering nearby buildings.

Firemen rushed their work in the expectation that the flame-sacked roof of the Kingsmill store would retain to crash. Public Utility employees stood by all morning in order to cut off any current forbidden wires hampered work of firemen. Gas mains, sewers and the like threatened shows have near entire but efforts to halt the flames were hindered by the fact that only underground cables are run on Dundas street.

HALF DAY

An impossibility, and without legal precedent, if it came to that.

With his remaining sentence, Mr. J. T. Delaney, wished to emphasize that it was only his intention to clean down down the throats of those others who were more or less apathetic about this year round cleaning, but merely to ask that they fall in line with ideas that have been passed for the benefit of the association to which they belong. The motions were passed for the good of the association and they should be supported when the executive have labored so hard to attain their prophecy and benefit to them.

Quiet Mornings

This was not concurred with by Mr. Charles J. Simons who said he was flatfooted and stated that he had no intention of doing any such kind of time. "I am heartily in accord with closing for the mornings" he said, "but I do not close my store for that period of time," he remarked. Mr. Woodley candidly said it a very important question and one that should be given very careful consideration. "The expense of closing down the store will be too much to even consider it. I certainly will not voluntarily close my store for that time was advanced by Mr. John Cook: "Wednesday is practically a full day as far as closing in the afternoon is concerned. Everyone is busy in the mornings and dead issue: no business is transacted at all in the mornings, and it is not until the afternoon that shoppers begin to come in the stores. Furthermore, consult your calendar and you will find that the majority of coming holidays fall on every other day but Wednesday, so I think we will lose a couple of days every month, if other stores remain open to close then go ahead and do so. I will not, and cannot afford to."

Mr. Ridley's View

Mr. R. Ridley's opinion said he would be willing to fall in line. "I believe that the people would soon grow accustomed to the change and that it would be beneficial for all concerned. We can go fishing in the afternoons at least."

Mr. Kroch said: "The ones who have been doing the loudest clamoring could be asked to answer this question of closing are probably the ones who have a deficit to meet in the bank. I haven't and I also have bills to meet, but they have to be met by closing up the business and sticking around the store during the overhead at the shop still continues." This created loud applause from the members present and also seemed to be about all that could be added to the discussion which by then had almost reached the noon hour. However it was the matter was laid open for the members when followed by seconding the one that was then in force of it being open for the fifteen month period. This was brought forward by Mr. O. T. Woodley.

Mr. F. B. Smith, barbers decided, remarked: "Would you ask for the present?" This was asked by Mr. Smith on account of the fact that was present that the present time be given a firm answer.

Mr. O. T. Woodley: "No, this will be a permanent arrangement."

Before the public meeting came to a conclusion President Hanna asked that a print from the Association of Canadian Clubs be given for attendance and that to the expenditure required for the noted speaker, Sir Robert Borden. This was granted to the amount of $30.00, without further discussion.

INDIA FREE OF ALL DISORDERS

Lord Willingdon Has Called Indian Peace Maker in Parley

Bombay, India, Jan. 7 (Canadian and Associated Press Cable) — India has been free of grave disorders thus far during the attempted renewal of the Nationalists' disobedience campaign, and the only disturbance of any size was a small tallment of trade. The Nationalists, checked by the government's severe restrictive ordinances, appeared loath to have taken to arms.

Preparations were being made to receive the three leaders. Table Conference committees which will have jurisdiction India Office Legislation and form a miniature third conference here.

Many persons on the northwest frontier have been disarmed under Anti-Congress ordinances, for holding meetings attended by Nationalist volunteers. In this province Lashkar, so-called "Red Shirts," members of a Moslem organization known as the Khudai Khidmatgars, or "Servants of God," offered themselves voluntarily for imprisonment after they were threatened with arrest, and the government accepted the offer. They are now in prison.

Senior Pupils of St. Michael's Again Please With Nativity Play

In response to popular demand the interesting nativity play "There Was No Room" was repeated. It was repeated last evening by pupils of St. Michael's academy, the auditorium of which was taxed to accommodate the hundreds of parents who attended. Among those who were present at the entertainment were Most Rev. D. J. Scollard, co-adjutor archbishop of Kingston, Rev. Dr. L. J. Burns, Rev. Father Kelly, Rev. J. O'Reilly, Trenton, Rev. C. P. Coleman, Madoc, and Rev. E. M. Lacey, Deseronto.

With outstanding success, the pupils rendered the play, the touching scenes of the Christmas legend. The final was the scene in which the glorious presentation with the addition of Joseph, Mary and the Babe, heralding the Magi. These were Bernard Wilson, Anna Mae and Blessed Virgin. The final scene at the Cave of Bethlehem, with the reverent figures of Joseph and Mary, the herds and angels and other worshippers, formed completely. The entrance of the Magi in regal robes of rich beauty, each king bearing a gift—golden caskets of gold and myrrh and frankincense. Frankincense was a dramatic moment in the play. The curtain fell as the final scene burned and fragrant frankincense was a dramatic moment in the play. Alma Lee as the little Jewish children is to be congratulated on the realistic manner in which she portrayed the part. Another little girl, Douglas Dunmile as Misael, the blind father, gave a realistic performance. Also a splendid old man, while Phyllis Temple, a gifted young actress, gave a splendid performance as the Jewish mother. Mona Ann as Blessed Virgin and James Peets who played the part of St. Joseph were splendid in their difficult roles. Carmel McQuaid, Margaret Donovan and Patricia Adamson and Miriam Adamson three sisters and they, too, were seen to advantage in their parts.

The sisters in charge of training the children for the play are to be commended on the beautiful and artistic performance.

John St. W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of John Street United Church was held in the church hall on Wednesday afternoon, January 6th with a goodly number present. The president, Mrs. Archibald, occupied the chair, opening the meeting with prayer, after the hymn "Rise Up O Men of God." Interesting reports were received from the secretary and the treasurer, also reports from the executive and the various other committees. Mrs. Cronk then read some extracts from this week's "Free Outlook" on "Temperance, A Live Issue" which were very startling. The subject chosen for the afternoon was "Peace and Disarmament." Some excellent papers were given and read by the following ladies: On "The Cost of War," the cost in human life, financial cost, etc., by Mrs. Archibald; on the "Armament Condition of the World Today in Regard to War," a paper prepared by Miss Mason and read by Mrs. H. Hill; on "Disarmament" prepared by Mrs. Hall and read by Mrs. Smith; after which Mrs. Denike read a paper on "What Can We Do," a short discussion followed, after which the meeting closed with the hymn "We're a Story to Tell to the Nations," and prayer by Mrs. Archibald. A cup of tea was then served and a social hall hour enjoyed.

Failure to Provide Brings Youth to Court

On a charge of failing to provide for his young child, under the age of 16, a local young man appeared before Magistrate Mikel this morning.

The young man pleaded not guilty, but, after hearing the evidence of the grandmother of the child who swore that the accused had promised her the sum of $7.50 a week for the upkeep of the child but had only paid her $15.00 in 18 months. His Worship remanded the accused until tomorrow for sentence, on the accused guilty.

Due to indifference shown on the part of the accused the court thought that he might have time to think more seriously over his situation if sent up to the county gaol for a matter of 24 hours. He was accordingly sent.

Home-made Bomb is Found on C. N. Tracks at Don Valley in Toronto

Powerful Missile Evidently Thrown From Prince Edward Viaduct

FAILS TO GO OFF

Finder Carries Dangerous Looking Missile to Police

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—A bomb, described by police officers as highly explosive was found late yesterday between two sets of C.N.R. tracks where they run under the Prince Edward viaduct.

Loaded with chunks of metal, screws, nails and what was thought to be T.N.T. powder, the nine-and-a-half-inch length of pipe, two inches in diameter, with a screw cap over one end and fitted with a detonator, was picked up by an unemployed man who was taking a short-cut home.

City and railroad police officers investigated and early this morning were still working on the mystery with little results for their work.

Finding of the bomb followed strangely enough, upon the receipt in Toronto, through news channels yesterday morning of urgent messages from New York City, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Niagara Falls, Ont. stating that reports were rife in those cities that Toronto's city hall had been bombed, and asking confirmation.

Orvil Hofstetter, 33 Aberdeen Avenue, who made the discovery, recognized it was a bomb but not the courage to take it into Dundas street east police station. There it was taken apart. The powder was examined and when touched off gave local report and a fire which the police officer testing it declared characteristic of T.N.T.

One theory advanced is that it was dropped from the viaduct by an excited person who wished to exterminate a railroad gang which had passed through on a freight shortly before it was discovered. The bomb lit in the soft mud between the tracks and failed to explode.

It has also been suggested that the bomb was made for another purpose but that perhaps the person who made it grew nervous and wished to dispose of it by dropping it over the bridge.

Police Sceptical

Police last night discounted the idea that it was intended to blow up the tracks as the way under the bridge is merely a branch line. The idea that it had some association with the recently-discovered terrorist bomb plot in the United States was also discarded.

Attempts were made at first to keep the finding of the bomb secret, but these were later abandoned.

Orvil Hofstetter, unemployed, was taking a short cut home along the tracks shortly before 4 p.m. yesterday. Just under the bridge, he saw the heavy casing in the soft mud between the tracks.

In an interview last night with The Mail and Empire, Hofstetter stated that he immediately recognized it as a bomb. He went over, examined it carefully, and found it was live. Noting that the cap was removable, he unscrewed it and peered inside.

With accelerated step, he started up the side of the ravine. His objective was Dundas East police station. Inside he approached Sergt. Fraser and laid the bomb on his desk.

"What's this?" asked the sergeant.

"A bomb," he was informed.

Exercising every precaution, police took the bomb apart.

A call was despatched to detective headquarters and Detective-Sergeants George Tufts and Pat Hogan arrived to join Sergeant Smith and other C.N.R. police in the investigation.

French Minister of War Succumbs

Paris, Jan. 7.—Andre Maginot, Minister of War, died early this morning in a clinic where he had undergone treatment for typhoid fever with hepatic complications.

The end came unexpectedly. His condition during the day had shown marked improvement and, although his illness was serious, physicians had expected his robust constitution to enable him to recover.

His death was regarded in political circles as making a reorganization of the French cabinet inevitable.

He was 55 years old.

Nickel is Most Popular of Coins

OTTAWA, Jan. 7. — The great Canadian nickel continues to dominate the operations of the Mint, if the annual figures issued by the new Canadian government department mean anything. In the year just closed no fewer than 5,520,000 coins of the five-cent denomination were delivered from the Mint. The number exceeded even that of pennies, of which a paltry 5,140,000 were issued; which dimes were a poor third, only 2,294,000 being minted in 1931. The aristocrat of the silver coin — the fifty cent piece — appears to have had little demand in this time of depression, for only 68,400 were issued last year. The humble, but never-to-be despised "twobits" was coined to the value of $212,000, of $68,000, valued at twenty-five cents each. In all, the Royal Canadian Mint struck 11,616,800 pieces in 1931, and issued 13,970,000. The gross value of the output had been sold and fine silver received by the Mint last year was $35,634,116. Deliveries from that institution to the Department of Finance had a value of $35,176,551. Trade bars and wrap values at $545,541. The Mint last year did not coin any $10 or $5 gold pieces.

LAW AND ORDER IN OLD QUEBEC

Annual Report of Police Chief Bears Out This Statement

QUEBEC, Que., (By The Canadian Press)—Quebec is one of the most orderly law-abiding cities in the world according to facts given by Chief of Police Emile Trudel in his annual report.

"Considering that Quebec is a city with a population of one hundred and forty thousand we have a real reason to be proud of our record," said the Chief as he pointed out that only seven arrests for drunkenness were made over the Christmas holiday.

"The small number of burglaries committed here since the month of September," the Chief said, "and even in nearly every case been perpetrated by youths under twenty-one of age, who cannot be classified as criminals, but, instead, as wayward children."

A review of criminal activities here during the past year reveals that not one major crime was committed with the exception of manslaughter charges arising out of automobile accidents, due to carelessness on the part of drivers rather than criminal intent. No robberies of major importance were reported with in the city, the amount taken in most cases, being between ten and a hundred dollars, and in no case was the amount over one hundred. Only one or two cases of armed robbery were committed here.

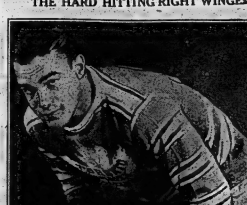
Onions Give Complexion Says President Christie

WINDSOR, Jan. 7.—Flushed with success over last year's campaign, the onion growers of Canada's premier producing districts in Essex and Kent Counties met here in a body and prepared to market an excellent 1931 crop.

"If you want to retain that school-girl complexion, eat onions," was the sentiment as the conference got under way.

No less an authority than Dr. George L. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College, told growers they could advertise and sell their crop with ease.



Eminent physicians, noted dietitians and prominent public health bodies wired their support to the conference, which will exalt the lowly onion to the high place among foods that its contents of valuable mineral salts warrant.

Together with the onion growers sat down representatives of the railways, banks and colleges, merchants, educationists and industrialists. Their gathering was significant of an early start on the campaign to make the last week of January the second annual "onion week".

Onions don't tear you down socially, crowed the meeting. They build you up, and this slogan will carol for the next two months. Meanwhile Essex and Kent Counties are feeling optimistic.

President Christie told them this was a "million dollar" conference and said the export situation looming large, it bids fair to make good his prophecy.

COURT ACTION OVER PROPERTY

Descendants of Scotsman Want Property in Montreal

Montreal, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—Court action now taking place in Scotland involving a claim for return of property said to be existing in Montreal and amounting to a half million dollars will likely turn out to be a "Case of Bleak House," it was also one of property long since disappeared,' according to descendants of the original owner of the estate, now living in Montreal.

In the Court of Sessions at Glasgow twelve women, among whom are several grandmothers, are claiming the descendants of the late John Munn, who came to Montreal in the early 19th century as a shipbuilding firm, are seeking recovery of property.

The evidence seeks to show the property in a site on which a bank is situated but according to descendants who are living in Montreal the plaintiffs in the Old Country case have mistaken the property for the one which the relations of the late Urban Tessier, dit Lavigne, are claiming. It consists of an enormous amount of property in Montreal's downtown and financial district.

John Munn was one of Montreal's first shipbuilders. His properties also covered holdings in various parts of Scotland and these are also included in the court case. Upon his death in Montreal his nephew, also a John Munn, was appointed administrator of the estate, the shipbuilder's son being of minor age. Gross mismanagement of the estate followed according to the records, and every piece of valued property disappeared in a very short time, bankruptcy finally winding up the estate.

The investigations have been carried on in the city in order to discover just where the property is situated but careful scrutiny of the records in the Bureau de Cadastre fails to reveal any property under the name of John Munn that has existed in the city during the past half century.

John Munn's shipbuilding activities in this country brought him considerable wealth. He built the first ship to sail down the St. Lawrence river, named after the owner and launched at the St. Charles Shipbuilding yards.

Salt Cause of 200 Pre-Natal Poisoning Deaths Yearly

Toronto Doctors Find Method to Combat Dangers

2000 CASES YEAR

TORONTO, Jan. 7 (CP) — Dr. Haldane Gee, writing in the Mail & Empire, today said researches conducted recently at the University of Toronto had revealed common salt the cause of maternity toxemias which cause 200 deaths in Canada and 4,500 annually in the United States.

Dr. Gee's article described treatment developed by Dr. V. J. Hardin of the Department of Pathological Chemistry and Dr. H. R. Van Wyck of the Department of Obstetrics in which salt is eliminated from the diet of the patient in whom symptoms of toxemia immediately disappear.

Maternal toxemias are divided into early and late categories. The latter class may occur three months before a child is expected. Symptoms comprise a propical condition of the body, especially in the legs, accompanied by high blood pressure, acute indigestion and convulsions.

Dr. Gee said Dr. Harding had told him "there is now no reason why the death rate in maternity cases should not be lowered 25 per cent. Two conditions must, however, be observed.

"We cannot yet prevent the onset of symptoms, although we can cure them. When the mother receives proper prenatal care, the first signs of toxemia will be recognized, and can be dealt with immediately.

"It is necessary to catch the case before the convulsion stage is reached. If the disease is allowed to gain the upper headway, it cannot be brought under control."

The researches of the two doctors started in 1925 after they had discovered deaths from maternal toxemias in Germany had decreased during the war when the use of meat was restricted.

Through their knowledge of conditions prevalent in dropsy they eliminated one dietry factor after another until they had narrowed the possibilities down to salt which they found the cause of the disease.

They believe the death rate from the disease throughout the world at about 30,000 a year.

IN CANADA

HUDSON Motor Car Company announces the formation of Hudson-Essex of Canada, Limited, a new great Canadian industrial enterprise, located at Tilbury, Ont.

Under this name Hudson and Essex cars —the two superb Pacemakers of 1932— are being manufactured on Canadian soil, by Canadian workmen, in a modern motor car plant now established and beginning operations.

This is a new Canadian large-scale operation in fact as well as in name. During the new year before us, this factory will supply the total requirements of all Hudson and Essex distributors and dealers throughout the Dominion.

Canada can thank its own motorists for this latest addition to its brilliant roll call of industries, for there are now on its far-flung highways a total of more than sixty-five thousand Hudson and Essex cars.

By this new factory in Canada, Hudson shows its appreciation of and recognizes its obligation to this vast army of owners and also expresses in a genuine and tangible way its earnest desire to become an important factor in the Dominion's future prosperity.

RINGING OUT DISEASE

May the "wild bells" which rang out the old year have rung out "the old shape" of another "foul disease," infantile paralysis is the exclamation of the New York Times editor. This dread malady may be soon entirely conquered, according to the American Association for the Advancement of Science which met on the last week of the year in New Orleans. "If patients of children could be assured that this discovery means the saving of their lives of their children, the shortcomings of 1931 would be forgotten in gratitude for this one gift. The germ which causes infantile paralysis has at last been isolated, observed and grown in artificial culture."

The Times has a description of the infinitesimally small creature which has caused terror in the hearts of fathers and mothers all over the world during the past year with its outbreaks here and there, "walking unseen hitherto even in the strongest light, striking down and frightening homes" and which "is but the handiwork of the thousandth part of the twenty-fourth of a hair." It is explained the isolation does not mean the final conquest of the disease but no one in this generation can doubt that FOLLOWELLIS will be put among the preventable diseases. Another outbreak of the disease according to U.S. medical men is unlikely to be expected before fifteen years elapse, by which time it is believed immunity may be assured.

JUST GARBAGE

There are as many ways of getting rid of garbage as there are cities and garbage collectors. New York takes much of its refuse out to sea and dumps it into the deep blue ocean. Montreal according to the Gazette empties its contents for the time in week in lanes, yards, or driveways or from the sidewalks. A few negligent householders of course, do not take the time to remove these cans after the collectors have passed, forgetting them for hours or even days. The garbage is fully disposed of largely in an unobtrusive instead of being placed on dumps.

Belleville has its own form. Sometimes garbage pails rest upon the walks for hours and even a day after the collector empties them. Sometimes garbage is put outside before midnight to await the early visitor, but in the interim, an upsetter comes along and with a kick into which he puts a good deal of mirth and playfulness when nobody can see him, sends it over, walk, boulevard and roadway, sickening the landscape with unsightly mess which contains ashes and these at the foot of hills are ideal for the use of truckmen when their neighbors begin to climb the steep inclines. So they take the ashes and forget to bring back the garbage receptacles, which the owner has to carry back for over a block, just because a truckman does not think.

This is all a part of the garbage question. But garbage is while a nuisance, yet a matter of municipal importance. Sanitary Health Bulletin of Ontario for December December treats of garbage collection in Germany, calling attention of all municipal councils to the problem. Copy are credited as having purified its air which once did not accord with the sweet name of the water which goes by the name of Rhine. Garbage including the refuse are removed by electric vehicles directly from the homes to central substations, where the contents are transferred to gasoline transport vehicles for movement to an incinerator in the country," says Montreal Gazette.

"In the entire process everything that is in the can from the time it is put there by the housekeeper is kept from sight and smell until the final disposition in the incinerator. Everything concerned is enclosed, and the most important thing is that the can are owned by the city. They are of standard design and of capacity of 20 gallons each. The collectors take the used-can from the home and leave a clean empty one in its place. The initial cost of $1,400 cans now in use was $247,000 and there is city of 700,000 inhabitants. As many of the people live in apartment houses, one can frequently suffices for several families. The cost of collecting and replacing each can averages 12 cents. In the discussion of the Cologne system, it is remarked that the operations are conducted systematically and most efficiently. The Sanitary Bulletin in its final comment says that collection and disposal of refuse is done in most cases with an appalling carelessness. The Bulletin, being an official health organ, is remarkable. In any event, it would seem that many cities could effect a great improvement by following Cologne's refuse disposal methods."

Really wintry news is that which comes out of Toronto that snow-fighting apparatus is to be manufactured on a large scale in Toronto, Canada even if winters are becoming more mild as some claim, yet will probably be one of the large users of these machines.

RAIN IN THE WOODS

Whenever we hear the listlessness of rain
In Summer woods, an elder ecstasy
Than we know drinks it in; leaves that have lain
Dank since another summer soddenly
Ooze under foot; the scent of bark whose stain
Is aged in rain dilates our nostrils; we
Blacken our fingers where the moss roots drain
Earthily and the ground is slippery.

Rain in the woods! There is no outer world.
Life is the drip of trees, an osprey's nest
Topping a rotted trunk, flash of a curled
Tail through the underbrush and the unrest
Of branches beating on our rafters—this
And wood-smoke through the pines is all there is.

GERTRUDE CALLAGHAN

PHINEAS TAYLOR BARNUM made several fortunes out of the knowledge that as he said, "The people like to be humbugged." Barnum as made both how to humbug the public so that they would like it. Also he is credited with the statement that "A sucker is born every minute." The humbug of Barnum's day has become the "racket" of today, which has manifold variations from the three dollar fountain pen for 98c which lines the people up for blocks eagerly waiting to get stung to bigger and badder things engineered by fast-talking strangers which always deplete the local cash circulation under guise of leaving a sick behind. Wherever the birds of passage pass they leave some small part of a dollar where there was three dollars more or less before. Figure it out for yourself how many of the people some of the time, some of the people all of the time but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." So it just figures, "some of the people" who can be fooled all of the time that keep these sleek groomed racketeers in Scotch whiskey and cigarettes. Let's have a new deal in 1932; take our time and not be stampeded into anything however glittering it looks under the word painting of high pressure salesmen. Let's ask our banker or our newspaperman or someone else whose knowledge of that particular subject may be a bit more extensive than ours. Taking a little time sometimes saves a lot of money.

HEADLINE WRITING is the hardest work of newspaperdom when it is realized that only so many letters may go in, each line and the whole must express the meat of the article in an attractive way the difficulty of which the layman cannot be impressed in part. Errors in newspaper headlines are always good for a laugh, outside of the office, when it is realized that headlines must be written at high pressure speed on a daily newspaper, and must contain a limited number of words the wonder is that more errors are not made. Here are some headings which appeared in United States newspapers which illustrate the point:

..LOSSIEMOUTH'S PLOWMEN..

The shade of Scotland's plowman poet, should it walk the Lossiemouth pier, week-end scene of Lossiemouth, where Premier Ramsay MacDonald has spent a day with the tillers of the soil. The cable dispatch states that at the close of the plowing competition contest, the Premier, "standing on the pier, watched the men and women at work, as a boy," presumably the prize, "and chose the most consistent art of turning a straight furrow."

There was something touching in Mr. MacDonald's appreciation of poesy especially when he said: "I remember, in days gone by, when we used to come in for a bite in the middle of the day, and one of the plowman would take down his volume of Burns and read to us as we lay on the ground. Are you not following your Burns?" He may be sure he is. Sentiments change.

HOME-MADE WINES

It will be generally agreed by thinking people, we believe that though the home manufacture of wines technically is in contravention of the Ontario Temperance Act, the commission is acting wisely in adhering to its policy of not prosecuting when it is apparent that such beverages are made only for home consumption. Any other course would inevitably regards such prosecutions as "nit-picking," which would have no other effect than to antagonize a considerable body of the citizenry that does not abuse the privileges and to put an end to the bootlegging traffic. The tastes of patrons of bootleggers do not run to home-made wines. A survey of prosecutions in police court during the last year will reveal, but to the stronger potions. Of course, as Mr. Henry pointed out, where the department has evidence of wine-selling on the larger quantities than ordinarily would be expected for home consumption, it will be accepted as evidence of possession of sale, and prosecutions of such offenders will be conducted with—or equal to that of other prosecutions under the Ontario Temperance Act. However, who feel the urge to gather dandelions in the spring and bottle the same under licence for home consumption can do so, if not with the blessing of Sir Henry Drayton and the other members of the commission, at least with his forbearance of the bush.—Hamilton Spectator.

FAREWELL TO BISHOP SEAGER

The various gatherings held in his honor and the many tributes given him testify to the genuine regret felt generally on the part of citizens in Kingston but throughout the whole Diocese of Ontario at the departure of Rev. C. A. Seager to be Bishop-elect of Huron. This regret is felt both by those who have had the opportunity to appraise and appreciate his fine qualities at close contact.

In the five years of his labours in this diocese, Bishop Seager has won the esteem and affection of the people throughout the diocese and also the high regard of members of other denominations. He has been indefatigable in his work as a pastor and keenly interested in many worthy outside interested in many worthy outside interested in many worthy concerned in charity of purpose, sympathetic understanding, unselfish effort and genuine unobtrusiveness. The best wishes of the people of Kingston and district are extended to accompany him and Mrs. Seager and their family, who also have established themselves as citizens of worth in a large circle of friends, in their congregation and in a new sphere in field of useful labor.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

PROTECTION AGAINST PUBLICITY

Application of what is considered a prohibitive duty to news cameras which sometimes annoy persons entering the Dominion is, apparently, under consideration by the Irish Free State officials, according to a dispatch from Dublin. Because the duty is applied, news cameras will be barred there are comparatively few in this country who have objections to the use of them and, in consequence, events interesting Canadians are being pictured at home or abroad, where the news films are also shown. Yet it is a picturesque fact that certain events that ought to be given camera-like records are not made because are intended for Canadian audiences Perhaps the government will shortly appreciate its error in this respect and allow such pictures to be shown.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

THE SECRET

Why, this must be the selfsame sun
That shone for Villon, Marvel, Donne
The very sky that Shakespeare knew
The wind, the air that Dante drew.

Did leaves as full of whispers sound
When Webster walked with eyes on ground?
Shone dullass so in dewy grass
Where Glassier's roving foot did pass?

Then, if their suns no gribster than
Our own, their moons no loveller,
What beauty drove their pens, that we Search after still, but seldom see?

MISSING PLANE BEING SOUGHT

Parents Anxiously Await News of Two Women Fliers

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 7.—A plane piloted by Amelia Earhart Putnam, St. Louis today circled through rain and low hanging clouds over the Blue Ridge mountains south of here seeking Mrs. Ruth Stewart St. Louis, and Mrs. Bobbie Stanford, Guelph, whose plane vanished in the fog late yesterday.

Shelton, who accompanied Mrs. Stewart, carrying her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Worgan, also of St. Louis in a second plane yesterday took off with them from the local airport. Officials at the landing field said he faced an impossible task until the weather clears up and planned the quadrant search. It could not be able to get over the mountain.

Shelton and the Woerners landed here yesterday to await in vain the arrival of Mrs. Stewart and her companion.

The two planes had flown side by side from Pittsburgh until they reached Sterretta gap, a deep cut in the mountain chain near the South ern Pennsylvania line. There the Stewart ship disappeared in a cloud bank and was not seen again.

We need the kind of confidence that will inspire the delicatessen keeper who now is stocking only three cans of sardines to put a dozen cans in case James J. Walker.

"What Would I Do if I Won a $50,000 Draw?
I'd Just---," Here is What the Reporter has Recorded

She took the fifty thousand. And with the award of that fifty thousand to the lady in Cleveland who happened to be first prize winner in a recent ticket drawing conducted by an organization some time ago, high hopes among the couple of thousand or so who bought tickets in the hope they would redeem in a dark and narrow road, and plans which had been so carefully and methodically, even if tentatively arranged, for the spending of the money if and when received, were laid over until some future date when there might be time to get them out. There was a crowding around waving money in the air with both hands when chances are being taken on lucky raffles, football score numbers, Irish sweep stakes, weather proof lotteries and punch boards, and a mentioned million number games, the number of beans in the jar, the weight of Fatima, the fat lady, and so on to infinity among the numerous schemes to make two dollars and give one away by the fellows who get up those entertaining and smart contests.

It's a game, if you're one of those addicts who are always taking a chance on some thing or other and the thrill of making a dollar do double day and being able to tell the boss where to go when he tries to make it, or if you are to be seen poring over racing charts and forms and lay the title down now and then on some hot tip from a reasonably reliable source shot by and so well then there isn't much anybody can do for you except to offer up a few prayers and use the old horse sense that is left you worse. You've become one of a great army. Your name is in the sucker list and you are known to the case of returning from the long road you have taken. It's in the blood and no amount of inoculation of past experiences and so on will cure you. You always come back for more, slap your little buck on the counter, grin Rinda Rollah like, and "be the chance. And what a chance! It's like buying one of those little surprise packages you see in the ads sometimes—all come to the white paper so you can't tell one from the other, and from two bits up to a dollar for the chance of buying one and being faked, fooled or pleasurably surprised at the contents. Even the man who takes them up doesn't know what he puts in them but there's the element of surprise there and chance, too, and that's what folks like.

Not one of us that haven't dreamed some time or other of having a million berries tossed at us in some lottery; and not a comic strip artist that had not at some time or other had on of his characters placed in a position where some rich uncle or some body kicked off and left him a wad big enough to do things in a big way with. Some of those characters in some dizzy dream had ideas about how to blow it in, but there are folks right here in the city who have just as funny ideas and have thought up those comic artists ever had. A reporter found this out the other day. He went and asked about what they would have done if they had been lucky enough to get the fifty thousand.

"What would you have done, Mr. A——?"

"What is this, a game?" Mr. A——asked that. He was assured that the reporter only wanted facts. "Well. I f not that break do ya know what I'd do ——?" "Why I'd simply get me whooper car, you know, one of those big lids with the shuffler and all, and go touring. And by touring I mean from here to there—and take all the time I'd want to do it in....What would I do with fifty thousand!" Plainly the strain was getting too much for Mr. A—so another man was located.

"What would you have done with that, etc."....

"What wouldn't I do with all that jack.... Why, say; I own all there's any earthliest chance in the world of me ever getting that coin, still it's nice to talk about it anyhow. I'd put forty thousand of those bills alone in the bank, take ten thousand of them and step high, wide and handsome for as long as step lasted. Then when that went all over I'd come back and settle down in a little shop I'd buy some place. Well, so long. See you again some time."

Mr. C——and or nearly all of it into shares of——stock. That should increase in value enormously by this time next year, and just live quietly." What, no dissipation!

"Alas, I have had one of the oddest ideas you ever heard. Listen to this: "Say, you've been in what I would do with fifty thousand iron men!" Well, after I had recovered from the week spell the telegram would give me, I'd powder my nose, put the hood over the typewriter and send for all the travel prospectus that I could get. Then I'd fold the nicest looking one up and stick a pin through the centre of it. Whatever, even in the country that pin stuck through I'd go and see. From there on everything would be indefinite, uncertain, indeterminate and enjoyable. I almost forgot to say that I would pick up one or two girl friends to accompany me. Outside of that I don't know what I would do with the rest of it."

Mr. D——would find out just what it was that the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of Rhode Island when he said that his one ambition was to spend a couple of years down in that section of the U.S.A. He spent several years at a fine private school in Rhode Island and proclaims a fondness for the people, habits of life and the mountain dew they make back in the foothills. Mr. B. L——would have it all changed into Scotch and silver and plaster the walls of the rooms in his house with it. Mr. J. F——would endow a club with sufficient to enable him to become a charter member with dues paid up until the end—cans home or a padlock was put on the door. Mr. T. L——would buy a boat to the Orient and spend the rest of his days sitting under the shade of some pagoda watching the world go by. Mr. J. C——doesn't know what he would do. Mr. R. M——remarked that nothing would give greater pleasure than to buy an airplane and do a world tour with stopovers in Paris, Vienna and Rome.

And down in the end of the town we met an old fellow, Mr. E. B——, who tinkers away with tools that were made for working in wood. He's old and gray and thoroughly contented with life as he now lives it.. We asked him what he would do with the fifty thousand if he had the chance. Mr. E. B. Ripley, he wouldn't want it at any price. "I wouldn't want to have to do with it" he said. "I wouldn't want it at all—it might only lead to trouble and discontent. I'm perfectly satisfied with things as they are and have all that money would just mess things up so bad I wouldn't know where I was. No, sir. Let someone else have it; all I want is good health and good health and I'm satisfied."

That, seemed to be about as good a place to stop to finish up this little quest for information on how the folks were going to spend all this money so we left the old fellow and didn't ask any more of them on the way back. Some one might just possibly have had arrangements made to buy an ice boat and set sail for the South Sea Islands—or some one else may have had intended to start a beef yard turtle farm like.....But that's about enough of this anyhow.

FALCONS ARE ON TOBOGGAN

Black Hawks Break Tie in Last Two Minutes of Play

Toronto, Can., Jan. 7 (CP)—Jack Adams' lowly Falcons slipped another notch farther into the American group cellar last night when they bowed to Chicago's speedy Black Hawks, 4-3, in a rugged National League fixture in the Windy City.

Unleashing a whirlwind attack in the final two minutes of play the Hawks broke a two-all tie with the Detroit club and moved into second place in the group race a single point in front of Boston Bruins and ten in the rear of Lester Patrick's pace-setting Rangers. After a scoreless first period the Hawks took the lead when Tommy Cook scored on March's pass. The Falcons soon evened the count when Herbie Lewis fooled Gardner on Smith's assist but Chicago soon went on top again when Freddie Ingram, recently recalled from Pittsburgh of the International league, broke away to dash by driving a hard shot past Connell. "Happy" Emms and Frank Carson, two recruit forwards obtained from New York Americans, got an equalizer early in the final period when the former netted Carson's pass. The Detroit defence collapsed under the heavy pressure in the final two minutes and Vic Ripley and Jerry Lowery drifted through in quick succession to make the count 4-3.

SPORTS

Not only are the real masters of the hookcheck passing from hockey but there are some critics who think that it should be abolished altogether from the game. While it may be one of the most devastating weapons for breaking up scoring plays yet, in the opinion of one writer, "it contributes to much centre ice play which is far from entertaining for the spectator." The object seems to be block long arms and longer sticks, rather than hockey intelligence and ability, are requisites for success. Don't confuse the poke with the hook check. The poke check can be used effectively only against the puck carrier. The low-swinging hook check, first mastered by Frank "Dutch" Nighbor, present manager of the Buffalo Bisons, is a wide swing which often attains a radius of eighteen feet. It is usually executed by the puck carrier but the wing men who may be in a position to receive a pass. The hook check has been made of late years by players on their knees. In rather tends to slow up the game. Nighbor is thought as an active player, so is Jack Walker who is credited with its invention. Hooley Smith is adept at sweeping check but the best in the business today is "Pit" Lepine of the Canadiens. When he sets himself out to play a straight defensive game, Lepine is almost impossible to pass.

"This tour calls for bigger towns, smaller gloves, tougher opponents, and real fights."

A Sweater Would Be a Mighty Handy Thing

At any time of course a Sweater is a mighty handy article of clothing, but it is especially useful these damp days when the schoolroom is perhaps a trifle chilly or the halls draughty. Boys like them to take in too, or for any Winter sport.

Hockey

Owing to mild weather and rain ll has impossible to flood the Belleville Intermediate-Picton exhibition game Wednesday night. Ice conditions were too bad for local relief. However, it is planned to stage the game as soon as there is good ice.

On Tuesday night, though ice was poor, a double header was staged at the local arena. Wellington and Demorsville played a tie game, 1-1, while Canadian General Electric defeated Milford 2-1. Both games provided plenty of excitement but were more shinny than hockey.

Retest Being Made

The general T. B. Retest of Prince Edward County cattle began again this week, it having been discontinued just before the holidays Dr. Reid of Belleville, is in charge. To date there have been few reactors. Farmers having any cattle reacting are amply compensated by the government. Prince Edward has benefitted greatly by being a T. B. free area and cattle buyers are especially numerous here.

Heavy Rain

Tuesday night saw a very heavy rainfall and a large part of the snow disappeared. Country roads are in poor condition for either motoring or sleighing but the highway is in good shape. Sleighs and cutters were especially numerous early in the week. Farmers welcomed the snow as it gave protection to crops and enabled them to get to work in the woods.

Current Sport

By The Observer

Due to the extremely mild weather which has been so prevalent of late, last night's game between Belleville intermediates and the Picton hockey club had to be postponed indefinitely. Coach "Bounce" Holway had counted on this game to put his proteges on edge for the opening game against the Campbellford team on Friday night.

The locals had a real smart hour's practice at the Arena Gardens last night and will be out again tonight for their final workout before the crucial game. The probable lineup for Friday night's game will be Tim in the nets, Web and Morris on defence, Mahlkedt, Leachman and Campbell on the front line. St. Denis, Hull and Morgan will do relief work. Shannon and Dorey will also be ready to step in and relieve on the defence or may "Bounce" himself. Rabe Dunkard will also be ready for duty, in case Tice gets injured.

The stage is all set and no matter how mild the weather may be the ice will be in the very best of condition for the game. Have you got your ticket on the car yet?

The exact line up of the Campbellford team, has not been made public as yet, but the team will be picked from Merritt, in the nets, Harry Ingram, Cowell and MacArthur on the front line, Hudson, Wilson, Ken Davis, MacKay, Fred Ingram, Rice and a few left wingers from Sherbrooke, Que., will form the front line. The team is no push over for any intermediate club to battle and they are coming to town feeling that they have a little better than an even chance to win. Friday night will tell the tale.

Trenton juniors started the current season with a win over the Campbellford juniors by the score of 3 to 0, we see. Coach Tommy Thompson, of the Belleville Tube, was a spectator at the game and came home feeling that the kids would make a good showing in their group. This game set Manager Tom thinking that the locals have any push-over in the eastern hit Coach Thompson feels that if his kids go into the finals to win that they would have little trouble in beating either Trenton or Campbellford.

For the purpose of enlarging the league the C.O.B.L. will hold a meeting in the Queen's Hotel at Port Hope next Saturday afternoon. Representatives will be present from Kingston, Belleville, Cobourg, Oronoo, Port Hope Oshawa and Bowmanville we are informed by despatches from the Lift Lock Age. The Peterboro Baseball Club executive have been away for a rough baseball enthusiasts in Belleville to get behind the team and place Belleville in her rightful position in the baseball activities of Ontario.

After the great missionary work which the members of the Peterboro executive have performed, it seems a shame that the Belleville delegates will have to go to Port Hope knowing no more about the baseball situation locally, than they did at the December meeting. The members of the Peterboro executive guarantee to have at least three Belleville teams represented at Saturday's meeting and they now assure us of four. Too much credit cannot be given to the Peterboro baseball moguls.

Notre Dame has had 14 undefeated football teams in 43 years of the sport, although its games marred several years. The average has been maintained since the Irish started playing the game in the 1887.

In the "A" section of the local Junior group we see where the Kingston juniors started the season off on right side of the ledger when they pulled a win out of the fire by the score of 4 to 3 in overtime. Also it might interest the fans to know that H. "Buster" Hartley has been appointed referee for Friday night's intermediate game here.

The evening was spent in playing cards the prize winners being, ladies' first, Miss Lena Caddick; second, Miss Helen Tracey, consolation, Miss Mary Tracey; men's first, Mr. Art Angell; second, Mr. F. A. Smith; consolation, Mr. Ross Belsie. Dancing was enjoyed and lunch was served before the party came to a close.

Weddings

THOMPSON—CRONK

A wedding of interest to Belleville people took place in Bethesda United Church parsonage, last evening when Miss Ethel Maude Cronk, R.N., of Belleville, became the bride of Mr. Claude Clayton Thompson of Hamilton. The marriage was performed at six-thirty by Rev. R. Hall, B.A., pastor of Redneresville Church. The couple, who were attended by Mr. and Mrs. James Gerow of Simmons, left immediately on a wedding trip to Montreal.

Archbishop Named Supt. of Schools

KINGSTON, Jan. 6.—Dr. P. J. O'Connor was elected Chairman of the Separate School Board for 1932 at the inaugural meeting. Archbishop M. J. O'Brien was invited to serve as Superintendents of Schools and has accepted. The Archbishop, in addressing the board, said that the Separate School Board was not attempting the task it should receive. He referred especially to the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway, and stated that the Separate School Board should receive a share of the taxes from these public utilities, as well the board was handicapped in its work, but that it must do the best it could with the resources on hand and avoid revision of the taxes.

"AMBASSADOR BILL"

HUMAN AND HUMOROUS

Will Rogers is said to give the lowdown on European royalty in "Ambassador Bill," his latest Fox picture, opening tomorrow at the Belle theatre. Its various humorists, who lists many of the crowned heads of Europe as his close personal friends, shows in that there are some real human beings beneath the crowns. As an American Ambassador assigned to a glamorous little kingdom ruled over by a boy king, in the picture he untangles the love affairs of a king and queen.

Fast moving, the story opens with Will's "arrival" between the two opposing forces of the week's revolution. This, however, is as nothing to the revolution in court etiquette that he starts himself. In one scene, he even suggests they call quits to his formal representation because he notices the queen has "hurty feet." At other times, he teaches the boy-king baseball, and organizes a Boy Scout troop. Another scene that is sure to release gales of laughter is that he goes through a revolution handcuffed to a puritanical senator who has come to investigate his conduct.

The love interest in the new film is supplied by the lovely Marguerite Churchill and Ray Milland, a dark, young Irishman who is comparatively new upon the screen. Miss Churchill will be remembered for her fine work in "They Had to See Paris," "Young Eagles," "Sidon Of The Purple Sage" and other pictures that have shown her as a possessor of a striking talent. Other important members of the cast include young Tad Alexander, an eight-year-old boy who is heralded as a veritable sensation; Greta Nissen, who is said to have clinched her "comeback" by her work in this film; Gustav von Seyffertitz, Arnold Korff and Ferdinand Munier.

Sam Taylor, expert in humor, former director of many Mary Pickford and Harold Lloyd successes, directed this production.

"Delicious", a sparkling comedy romance reuniting the stars, comedian and director of "Sunny Side Up" opens to capacity audiences at the Belle last night.

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, the co-stars, reaped more than their usual share of honors in the fascinating romance around a set of the tuneful plot revolves. Six Gershwin song melodies are featured in the production, one of which, "Somebody from Somewhere" is sung by Janet, and bids fair to repeat the enormous success of her "In a Dreamer" number in "Sunny Side Up." El Brendel, as Janet's staunchest friend and Farrell's comic valet heads the brilliant supporting cast.

"Delicious" will be repeated again tonight for the last time.

At The Capitol

MARILYN MILLER IS ENCHANTING IN "HER MAJESTY, LOVE"

Marilyn Miller, who has endeared herself to theatre-goers everywhere as the star of "Sally" and "Sunny" declares both her former screen achievements as the barmaid who revives him a hangover in "Her Majesty, Love," which had an auspicious opening last night at the Capitol Theatre.

In "Her Majesty, Love", Miss Miller's radiant personality expresses itself in the many ways of which she is mistress.

Incidental music adds to the gaiety of "Her Majesty, Love" and Marilyn sings several songs that linger in the mind and the haunting audience out of the theatre humming or whistling them. Al Dubin, who did "Among My Sovenirs" and other hits, wrote the lyrics.

"Her Majesty, Love" has not only a great star but a flawless cast. Ben Lyon plays the romantic lead. Four of the funniest of the screen comedians are in evidence — Leon Errol, Chester Conklin, Ford Sterling and W. C. Fields.

Scores of Hollywood beauties are in the sparkling cabaret scenes. Two of the popular musical aggregations take part in these sequences. They are Gus Arnheim's Cocoanut Grove orchestra of the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles and Ravera's South American Tango Band.

Marilyn is first seen as barmaid in a cabaret. Into the riotous dining hurls a crowd of gay young blades, led by Fred von Wellingen, prince of a tiny manufacturer. Taken with the beauty of the pert Lia Torena, von Wellingen determines to meet her. Her friends wager that he cannot get her consent to dance with him. The finality agrees with the stipulation that he first obtain a proper introduction.

Though this is meant playfully, the thing finally does propose and the engagements is duly announced. The snobbish von Wellingen relatives are horrified at his choice. "Not with a humble barmaid, and he is bribed into breaking the engagement.

He goes to Italy and drowns his troubles in drink. In the meantime Lia's father manages to get her to consent to marriage to an aged and wealthy man married barron Pred hears how things stand, he also charters a plane, hops back to Berlin, where the wedding of Lia and Count is finished. Then the fun begins all over again, you will see by a visit to the Capitol Theatre.

EARLY BOBBINS

Small Sir Marie, Jan. 7.—O. R. Shuttleworth this morning while working on a road in Plummer Township, saw a robin, which was broadcasting its summer song while perched on a railing. It was the first robin reported in the Algoma district this winter.

JIM THE CONQUEROR

by PETER B. KYNE

Hobart departed, and Don Jaime turned to Mrs. Canby. "Please tell Flavio to assist me to enter my house," he said. "There is more dust to the south. We shall have visitors—about ten, I think."

The old man nodded, then Jaime up, carried him inside and laid him on a sofa. Then he departed casually.

"You will oblige me by bolting that door, Mrs. Canby," Don Jaime requested gently.

Presently came the sound of hurrying feet on the veranda, and through the iron-barred glass window that gave on the veranda Mrs. Canby saw ten men standing about. There came a rap on the door.

"Who's there?" Don Jaime challenged.

"Open the door," a rough voice commanded. "It was I who called."

"Ah, Bill Dingle, I have been expecting you, ever since you so thoughtfully sent one of your men with a cry of raiders from below the Border. I sent four men. Your lookout saw them ride out, and when they returned, each one decided to come to my hacienda, declared aye for the women and children, and kill me in some unpleasant manner. Is it not so?"

There was no answer to this and Don Jaime mocking laugh floated through the window. "Bill Dingle, consider the situation. A hundred armed men surround this poor house of mine. Go to the patio entrance and look."

A moaning rose among the recent arrivals and one of them ran to the entrance gate. The voice of curses echoed through the patio. Then the men started running back.

"Is seeing believing, Senor Dingle?" Don Jaime called pleasantly.

"You win, Higuenes."

"One by one you will go to the entrance and give up your arms in my riding boss. It would be madness to resist. You shall not be killed and presently you shall all return to your sheeps—I mean sheep. Pyramid March!"

A moment's hesitation, and the retreat to the entrance commenced. A few minutes after Enrico Caraveo thrust a insolent, sardonic face up to the grilled window.

"I have the honor to inform Don Jaime that his visitors quit his pleasure."

"Admit them in the barn under guard. Fred them."

Mrs. Canby, white-faced, speechless with fear, watched Don Jaime blowing smoke rings.

"Don Jaime Higuenes," she demanded, "after that exhibition of ingratitude on the part of those sheepmen, are you still going to permit them to trespass on your range?"

Don Jaime raised a deprecating hand. "Mi Higuenes," he assured her, "does not quarrel with a wo-man."

Mrs. Canby's eyes blazed. "Now at least," she declared, "I know why Cervantes wrote Don Quixote. Only a Spaniard could have conceived such a character. Only a Spaniard could—could—could—"

"Senora," Don Jaime protested, "my name is Jimmy Higgins".

Yeah! Yeah! Yeah!

Roberta Antrim's limousine rolled up the graveled driveway to the wide portals of Hobart's home and Harris the butler, came down the steps and opened the door.

"Mr. Latham came home an hour ago, Miss," he confided. "Something must have happened in the city today, miss. He's worried—walking up and down the drawing room and talking to himself. I'm a bit worried over the matter, miss."

"Thank you, Harris. You're very kind."

A foreboding of disaster brought Roberta flying into the living room. Crocked Bill sat huddled in a reading chair, his face in his hands, his attitude reminiscent of profound despair.

"Uncle Bill! What's happened?" Crocked Bill's old hands merely clasped his features tighter. He wagged his head and moaned.

"Are you in pain, Uncle Bill dear? The market only jumped fifteen points. I'm through. My brokers sold me out this afternoon Oh, Bobby, Bobby, what massacre! stayed as long as I could, but when the last jump came I realized that only a crazy man would continue in this crazy market. I decline to have my number designated for the reason that I didn't have it. I told my brokers that I'd gone the limit and to sell me out. My five thousand dumped on the market like that broke the stock two points but that was to be expected. I'm all washed up."

"Must we leave Hillcrest?" Roberta queried in a small voice.

"We must," Crocked Bill replied hurriedly. "I've enough to pay off the servants and maintain my respectability at some modest hotel until we can look around and see what the future holds for us, but after that—"

"After that I'll take care of you, dear Uncle Bill." Roberta's voice was very tender, the touch of that lovely cheek to Crocked Bill's wrinkled jowls was comforting to that wretched wreck of a financier. Slowly she got up and to it. Uncle Bill, Don Prudencio Alviso writes me that Uncle Tom's sheep are worth at least two hundred thousand and as they stand, and he was over a hundred thousand pounds of wool in transit to a wool house in Boston, and proud is quoted in to-day's paper at thirty cents a pound. Uncle Tom has a ranch of sorts also, me, haven't you, darling? What a Don Prudencio doesn't think much poor sport I'd be to desert you when of it and says it is not of ready you're down and out. No, no, dear. We'll battle along together to the last sale but we can live there and carry on in the sheep business—"

"You have no conception of what you are proposing to me" Crocked Bill groaned. "Sheep are terrible."

"Well, you've always taken care of sheep, Uncle Bill Latham sighed and gazed drearily out the window. "If you'd only fixed it up to marry Olen Hackett—"

"I? we didn't have those sheep and the wool I'd marry him and have learning to love him just to keep you from worrying about me," Roberta assured him heroically. "But of course, thanks to that odious Higgins, I find myself in rather an independent position. We will sell off all the sheep and wool and live comfortably and economically on the income from that until—"

FINANCIAL NEWS

UPWARD SWING IS CONTINUING

Nickel is Only IssueThat Does Not Respond

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—(Noon stocks)—Stocks continued their upward trend on Toronto Stock Exchange today but the list narrowed down to include only a few of the more prominent leaders.

International Nickel was on issue which moved contrary to the trend. Nickel weakness brought at the opening bid in the second hour sales and at mid-day was selling ¼ point below where it closed last night.

Nickel's action was in contrast to that of such interlisted pivotal shares as C.P.R., which rose to 15, Brazilian which was firmer at 13 and the oils which after several days of heaviness firmed slightly today. Imperial Oil and International Petroleum both showing minimum gains.

Consolidated Smelting, which rose to 70 for a fraction less yesterday, maintained that price this morning.

Walkers and Distillers were both unchanged, holding small gains made yesterday.

GENERAL TONE MUCH FIRMER

Although Trading Light and Some Irregularity Developed

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 7.—(Noon) mining)—While trading interest remained light and irregularity developed at times midday general tone was firm on the standard stock and mining exchanges and also in the forenoon today, especially in the supporting bulk of actives and showed a few advances at noon.

Dividend continued active, moving above $1.30 for a time and standing up a couple of days, was taken. International Nickel, large by on New York, buying sold up 3-8 to $9.85 and Hudson Bay was up ¼ to $8.70. Noranda held yesterday's gain.

Higher-priced golds were quiet but steady. Lake Shore was up a point at B.C. up 10 each and Wright-Hargreaves up a couple to $3.01. Ventures was in brisk demand and if higher among cheaper golds, Syvanite firmed 3 and Bobjo, Moffatt-Hall, Barry, Alexandria and Granville advanced in fractional recent spices. Bid Good dipped a couple to 21 cents on the selling pressure.

Acme Gas, Alar Oil, and Noranda all sold a cent or so higher in a quiet cti section.

STOCK RISE IS PERSISTENT

For Second Day New York Market Uniformly Higher

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 7.—Wall Street broke a spell on two through its rose tinted spectacles today. As the recovery in security prices persisted through the second successive trading session.

While yesterday's upturn had been viewed as primarily a technical rebound, and had been regarded with considerable skepticism in some quarters, a markedly better feeling was manifest in prominent financial circles today.

After a little early hesitation, the share market pushed upward under the leadership of the rails. Advances of 3 to 5 points were registered in such issues as Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line and Baltimore and Ohio. Elsewhere in the list, similar gains appeared in such issues as U.S. Steel Motors, Chrysler, American Can, Tobacco B, Liggett and Myers B, Case, Coca Cola and others.

While Wall St feels that further dividend paring is in store some of its worries on that score were quieted by the remarks of Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President of General Motors, in an address in Boston. Mr. Sloan said that the rights of the stockholders justified the paying upon large surpluses for the maintenance of dividends in lean times.

Private banking advices from abroad tended to bear out yesterday's reports of progress toward a Franco-British understanding on German credits and reparations, although in one important banking quarter, it was said that tentative agreements thus far appeared to be merely "in principle", and that final solution might require considerable time and patience.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 7.—There were no fresh receipts on cattle, calves or hogs, a few butcher cows and steers sold. All receipts for the week were disposed of. The market closed active, 25 cents lower on steers and butcher cattle. Fed calves closed 50 cents lower. Sheep and lambs steady.

Calves closed at 7.50 to 8.00 for best with commons to medium 5.00 to 7.00.

Closing bids on hogs were 4.25 for bacon, 4.50 off truck and 4.65 weighed off cars.

Three decks of good western lambs sold at 7.75 cwt.

Dominion Stores Entirely Canadian

Uses Canadian or British Goods in Preference to Foreign Ones Operated Many Stores

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—"Dominion Stores is Canadian in management, Canadian in control, Canadian dividends down to the junior clerks and is not affiliated with any other company in Canada, the United States or elsewhere," said J. Wilfrid Lindsay, who includes numerous individuals residing outside of Canada, but this statement applies to shareholders equally true in case of most large Canadian companies.

This emphatic statement came today during the absence of president and treasurer of Dominion Stores, Limited.

"I am very proud," continued Mr. Smith, "that Dominion Stores, Limited is not only Canada's largest retail grocers, but also that this important concern has been created under Canadian management with a personnel consisting wholly of Canadians, a majority of whom are British born."

Canadian Goods Have Preference

"A steadfast policy of Dominion Stores, Limited has been "to so purchase and distribute Canadian-produced merchandise wherever practicable, to the exclusion of foreign merchandise. Our purchases from other countries are limited largely to commodities such as spices and tropical products which are not produced in this country at all, or, however, as to a very small extent we buy within the British Empire those goods which are not available in Canada, rather than purchase goods in the country to the south of us, or from foreign countries. We have enormous quantities of such articles as bananas, lemons, dried fruits, oranges and grapefruit from the British West Indies, Australia or South Africa. We purchase our sliced goods are of excellent quality and are giving every satisfaction to our customers."

Spread as Far Peak

Mr. Smith went on to say that Dominion Stores now has more groups on its list than at any previous time in its history. The company has opened seven and six additional stores this year, and this has given employment also to considerable more store managers and clerks, but in larger warehouse and office staffs. It has also increased its sales and as a result of enlarging many stores to self-service methods, more efficient and otherwise. In every instance the self-service methods are popular with the town or city in which the store is located.

"Dominion Stores Limited is one of the few large companies", Mr. Smith added, "which has not reduced wages. The annual payroll of the company is now almost $3,000,000."

OSHAWA ROBBER STILL AT LARGE

Oshawa, Ont., Jan. 7.—Provincial and local police are still scouring the countryside surrounding Oshawa, and watching all highways leading out of the city in search for the city in a search for the lone bandit who last night stole an automobile, robbed two men at the point of revolver, entered a drug store and held up the proprietor and made his escape with about $200 in cash and over $100 in cash as a result of his swift and sudden attack Monday night.

From the description given of the young bandit by his victims, "the police are convinced that he is none other than Gordon Calvert, Belleville youth, who escaped from the Portsmouth Penitentiary yesterday morning. No trace has been reported of the car stolen from E. Webster, Oshawa, by the bandit who did made his escape after the holdup.

No Fear of Severe Drop in Wool

LONDON, Jan. 7 (CP) — Wool prices are very reasonable at present and there is no fear of a severe drop in values, Sir Joseph Lyons said in an address to the British Wool Federation today in which he also expressed appreciation of the Federation's action in electing him president.

Whether the home trade could absorb the largely increased production remained to be seen, Ayrton added. The export business was largely handicapped by financial difficulties and high tariff walls.

ST. MIKES WIN FIRST GAME

Defeat Bridge St. 9 to 6 in Playoff Basketball Game

In the first game of the local city basketball league playoffs St. Michael's Church basketeers defeated the fast Bridge Street team by the score of 9 to 6. The forwards of both teams indulged in close-checking game, that prevailed throughout. The play-offs are of the best two out of three games and the remaining game or games, if Bridge Street win the next game, will be played next week.

Line-ups for last night's game were: St. Michael's—W. Langton, W. Forster, Bridgeford, Hagin, Doyle, Barrett, Hughes, J. Foster and F. Langton.

Bridge Street—Martin, Wilson, Cowain, Cook, Sparling, Bunnett, and McKeown.

Referee—Ralph Morden.

Three overtime periods played in the regular juvenile section of the church league and resulted in the victory of the Bridge Street aggregated St. Georges by the score of 16 to 25, while the Bridge Street from the Baptist boys by the score of 19 to 15.

The church league basketball schedule for the week C.A., casts week, are attracting more spectators every night and the keen rivalry between the different teams is clearly shown by the closeness of the scores throughout the season.

RELIEF WORK CARRIED OVER

Bennett Promises to Help Alberta Cities Finance Approved Programs

CALGARY, Jan. 7.—The Dominion Government will aid the cities of Alberta in financing of direct relief works this year if the Provincial Government and the cities arrange same, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett told the Mayors of these cities at a conference here.

The Dominion Government would aid in financing relief work, the Prime Minister said, on the understanding that the cities arrange with the provincial authorities collateral in the shape of short-term Provincial notes for their percentage of the Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, who was in attendance agreed to take the proposal under consideration.

The Mayors were told by the Dominion Premier that the government could not accord cities assistance in financing capital expenditures.

The conference was attended by Mayor Andy Davison of Calgary, Mayor D. J. Knott of Edmonton, Mayor Robert Barrowman of Lethbridge and Mayor Isaac Bullivant of Medicine Hat.

CIVIL SERVICE SALARIES CUT

Will Give Government $300,000 in Ten Month Period

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 7.— Cuts in the salaries of Ontario Civil Servants announced yesterday by Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer will give the government a sum estimated at $300,000 in the ten-month period remaining in the year of effect. A total of 5,000 employees are affected by the reductions.

The reductions range from two per cent on salaries up to $1,000 to 10 per cent on salaries of $25,000 and over. Employees of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission and the Liquor Control Board of the Province are exempt.

The cuts will be made on a sliding scale, Mr. Dunlop announced. For instance the cuts on salaries of $2,400 would amount to $48 two per cent; $1,200 to $1,500 would be two and a half per cent for the year, $1,000 or $25; $2,500 to $3,000 at 3 per cent on the remaining $400 or $13. The reductions include the salaries of Hon. George S. Henry, Premier, and the members of the Cabinet. The Premier gets $12,500 and each member of the Cabinet $7,500.

Two per cent up to and including $1,000 2 1-2 per cent between $1,000 and $2,000; 3 per cent between $2,000 and $3,000; 4 per cent between $3,000 and $5,000; 6 per cent between $5,000 and $6,000; 20 per cent between $6,000 and $10,000; 10 per cent on amounts over $10,000.

"It is the intention that these reductions shall be temporary measure and will not affect superannuation, payments to which will be made both by the government and the employees as if no salary deduction had been made.

The question of a reduction in the sessional indemnity will be settled by the legislature when in session."

REFORM SCHOOL FOR MONTREAL

Old Buildings to be Torn Down to Widen Street

MONTREAL, Que., (By The Canadian Press)—The Montreal Reform School, for some 56 years the scene of turbulent youngsters, is to be demolished for the purpose of extending one of the city streets. It replaced the officials of the institution, Les Freres de la Charite, have purchased property for use for the erection of a new $1,000,000 structure on Sherbrooke Street east.

Erected through the generosity of Antoine Olivier Berthier, founder of St. Joseph Church and Orphanage in this city, to house "children more unfortunate than himself," the institution has sheltered 17,000 children since its opening.

Though all outer doors of the school are kept securely locked and the windows are barred to prevent inmates from leaving, there is little of "prison atmosphere" about the place. Inside, the children's quarters offer a picture of neatness and cleanliness. Simplicity prevails, but the strong, sturdy furniture that is part of each child's belongings serves to fill his needs.

The four hundred and fifty children housed in the old quarters are divided into three groups, ranging in age, as seniors, intermediates and juniors. Throughout the day the boys are engaged in manual training exercises, classroom work or at play in organized games. In some cases, as the boys grow older, the work they perform as the training classes proves remunerative. Money earned in this manner is saved plus teaching the boys the habit of thrift and when each lad leaves he is presented with his savings.

Brother Eugene, director of the institution, states that statistics kept by him for many years have shown that few of the boys are sons of farmers. Most of the inmates come from towns and cities where poor environment and improper associates have led them to crime at an early age, he points out.

A distinctive train—carrying on every trip across the continent a distinguished group of travelers who appreciate its time-saving schedule, its suave, smooth service and famous food.

The Chief will carry a special Phoenix-Pullman this winter.

After California—Hawaii.

QUEBEC, Que., (By The Canadian Press—Students of French history in Canada will find new and interesting information in the 11th report of the archivist of the province, and director of the provincial museum, recently tabled in the Legislature by Hon. L. A. David, Provincial Secretary. Ever since his appointment as archivist, Mr. Roy has been classifying the materials of the archives available on the French regime at Quebec. Each year he issues a report dealing with a special period and containing a mass of documents, unknown at least to the public at large.

This year his report deals with the Acadian region, probably the one that did the most of all to assure prosperity to New France in the 18th century. Letters and ordinances dealing with a multitude of subjects have been discovered and are being included in the volume in manuscript form. Mr. Roy, who also deals with the museum on the Battle-grounds Park, reports on the progress made to create in this institution a rich collection of historical data and relics of the country in the province of Quebec and to those who love its history.

MR. AND MRS— JOE'S FEARS PROVE GROUNDLESS

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 6.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Tarzan stood rigid, his gaze riveted upon the disappearing steamer. In the jungle at his back, fierce blood-shot eyes glared at him from overhanging brows. Little monkeys in the tree-tops chattered and scolded. From the distance of the inland forest came the scream of a leopard, "I have," he thought, "at least one consolation: Jane is safe in London."

Then he recalled the note thrust into his hand and slowly he read its hideous contents. "You were born an ape," it said, "and to your own we have returned you. But your son shall rise higher. He shall be no naked beast of the jungle. He shall be decked with ornaments, perhaps a ring in his nose. For he is to be reared by men—a tribe of savage cannibals."

After allowing his fancy full play over this inhuman picture and adding many epithets and vile phrases of abuse, the Russian ended the note with these ominous words: "I might have killed you; but living—in a place from which you can never escape—you shall suffer worse than death. The balance of your punishment has to do with what shall presently befall your wife. This is the vengeance of Nikolas Rokoff."

As Tarzan dropped the note from his clenched hands, a slight sound behind him brought him abruptly back to the world of present realities. Instantly his senses awoke, and again he was Tarzan of the Apes. As he wheeled about, it was a beast at bay, vibrant with the instinct of self-preservation, that faced a huge bull-ape already charging down upon him.

Love's Messenger

by N. Florence Leeh

"I'm sorry, Billy," Phyllis Brandt said with assumed finality, "but we couldn't possibly make a go of it. You are a business man, darling, and would expect breakfast at the same hour every morning. Besides, you don't approve of my late parties."

Billy Trout looked down at the slender girl before him with desperation in his gaze.

"Very well, Phyllis," he answered, grimly. "I've tried my best to win you for a year. But since I can't make you love me—" he swallowed then continued, "I'll have to find another girl. I'm 27 years old, Phyllis, and dad always said a man should be married before he was 30 if he expected to become adjusted to married life."

Turning abruptly, the tall, square shouldered man stalked from the studio and closed the door firmly behind him, leaving Phyllis surprised and overly disturbed.

Phyllis had red hair, blue eyes and a stubborn mouth. In her apple green smocks she appeared yielding and childish, but she boasted of her present independence and predicted for herself a rosy future as a famous artist.

"My work is everything to me," she often said, and at last Billy had taken her at her word.

As the days succeeded each other and he made no attempt to call her or see her, she realized with surprise that she missed him more and more; but she assured herself that now that he was no longer underfoot she would do better work. For Billy knew little about art and cared less. He had remarked after examining her half finished painting of The Revels of Spring that her nymphs dancing while Pan pipes had better go home and put on his foundation garments; and when sarcastically urged to give his idea of a beautiful picture, promptly complied.

"I'd like to have a picture of the lower pasture on dad's farm at sunset," he declared "with Nellie at the pasture gate under the old oak, waiting to come in from the lot to be milked. The grass was green, and the sky pink and gold and blue, and Nellie was black and white. I'd be there, a boy in ragged overalls, tired but happy, Phyllis, and sorry that the day was most over. That's my idea of a beautiful picture, sweetheart, one that means something."

A black and white cow a red barn and nymphs who wore foundation garments! Billy was sentimental and utterly commonplace, she felt sorry for the girl he married.

By the end of another week however, Phyllis was so restless and dissatisfied that the studio, even her beloved paintings, became unendurable. And she began to hate visitors, those airy, sophisticated young women who dropped in to tea casually, over a cup of tea, that her old beau had been seen here, and there and everywhere with Grace Milton, the sister of a business associate of his.

"Well what of it?" she answered, invariably, but every word of their gossip was a stab of pain in her heart.

She hadn't believed what Billy said about marrying another girl; and always before, when she sent him away, he had come back; but suppose—suppose—he meant it! Tearfully she consulted a calendar, and discovered that her birthday was exactly three weeks off; then, in sudden panic she started to the phone to call him, but pride and ambition held her back.

She had said her career meant everything to her now she must prove it. So determinedly she tried to concentrate on her symbolical picture of Mercury, and visualize it hanging in an exhibit marked "First Prize", but her fingers daubed only awkward lines on the canvas, and a career seemed all at once of no importance.

At last in desperation she put away her work and turned her pictures with their faces to the wall. "I need diversion," she decided. I'll go to the Gypsy Ball and that will pep me up."

Hurrying downtown she bought herself a green chiffon frock in which she looked like a dryad, and for ten minutes or so after she arrived at the ball she had a wonderful time. Then Billy appeared with a lovely girl dressed in white and silver, whose hair was sash-gold, and who clung to him as fyy embraces oak. And as she danced and laughed the night away, Phyllis realized too late that commonplace Billy meant more in her than all the pictures in the world.

Returning home at dawn, she flung herself down on her day bed and tried to sleep, but found it impossible. Then she went out to the park and walked for hours until she was exhausted in body. But the battle between love and ambition had been fought to a finish, and love had won.

But now, how should she tell Billy of the change in her heart? And how would he feel about it? She laughed hysterically as she faced this new problem. He would call him up at his office, of course. Then she remembered the lovely blonde and realized that you cannot lay down and pick up a man as you do a purse. How could she prove to Billy the sincerity of her surrender? Since he didn't even want her now! Gazing out of the window at the blue sky, she sent a brief prayer winging upward.

"Help me get him back," she prayed Blue Sky—blue day. Quickly she made coffee and ate a slice of toast, then with loving care arranged her materials and set to work on his most important of all pictures.

A meadow of lush, green grass in mid-summer...the sun nearing the horizon, setting in a glory of pink and gold and blue.

In the foreground a cow, black and white waiting under an ancient oak by the snake-rail fence—a beautiful cow, sek and well-groomed; the first cow Phyllis has ever painted. Were its horns behind or before its ears? Better leave the horns off....a boy, in ragged overalls with a shining pail coming from the barn, a big, red barn, a sturdy manly boy.

Oh, this was painting something worthwhile! Minutes became hours as she painted in each tiny detail with infinite care; a fluffy cloud, a clump of daisies, a patch on the blue overalls. The darkness of night had become a shadowy gray before the picture was finished; then she stepped back and admired it. carefully wrapped and addressed it. Then she telephoned for a special messenger and sent her message of love on its way.

Oh, she was tired—tired. Her eyes ached her body was limp with exhaustion. She would bathe, presently, and dress herself neatly, and straighten the sadie; but first she would rest on the day bed one minute.

The knocker sounded a loud impatient summons. Dazed with sleep she stumbled to the door, and into Billy's outstretched arms.

"Dearest" he cried.

"Did you—like your—picture?" she mumbled from the depths of his embrace.

BANK ROBBER SHOT IN ACT

Former Convict of Kingston Trapped in House Porch

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 6—A bandit was shot to death by police today, shortly after he had been surprised in the supply vault in a branch of the First National Bank on Grand River Avenue.

The man, identified from fingerprints as Harry Bollon, former inmate of Portsmouth (Ontario) Penitentiary, was found hiding in the vault by Richard Doty, a cashier. When the cashier opened the vault the man rushed out, gun in hand, seeing Doty down the stairs.

On the main floor the bandit held up twelve employees but rushed out the front door without stopping to get any money. The bank had not yet opened for business.

Police, summoned by Doty, trapped the bandit behind the porch of a house two blocks away from the bank. Bank employees said he apparently had hidden all night in the bank.

Bollon was sentenced to Portsmouth from Windsor, Ont., in March 1922 for conspiracy to rob.

Embarrassing Moments

DESPERADO AT OSHAWA HOLDS UP THREE MEN

Takes Two For Ride in Car Which He Stole

THOUGHT DOPED

Description of Man Much Like That of Young Fugitive

OSHAWA, Jan. 7.— Holding up W. Atkinson and W. Webster, as they came out of their butcher shop on King street shortly before seven o'clock last night, a daring desperado, who fitted the description of the convict who escaped today from Portsmouth Penitentiary, stole the car owned by Webster, and proceeded to a drug store, where he shoved his gun into Edwin Johnston's stom ach and made him get away with the car.

While the two butchers were being robbed, people were passing up and down the street, and George Lucas, who operates a store nearby, was standing in his doorway. He thought the men were arguing.

Atkinson had a car but no partner. Webster, had just closed up for the night.

"On going over to Webster's car which was parked in front of the building," he said, "we were surprised to find a man sitting at the wheel. Before we could go a thing he opened the door, pointed a gun at us and told us to get in and not to make a noise or he would shoot."

Sprightly out of the car, the robber jabbed the gun into Webster's back, shoved him into the car, and ordered Atkinson to get in also.

On Running Board

"Standing on the running-board swearing and cursing, he waved the gun and ordered us to drive up Church St., where he asked me to stop the car," Webster said. "I'm going to plug you—you are Orangfield," he told Webster. Webster assured him that he was not named Oranfield, whereupon he ordered both men to get out of the car.

He told them that he wanted 15 minutes to get away, and warned them that he would tell them if they moved. He then demanded their money. Atkinson produced his pass book, which contained over $30 to the ground and Webster gave him a full of silver while the robber ran his hands quickly through Webster's pockets, taking a watch and $1.50.

Leaping into the car, he raced up Church to Bond street and turned west on Bond. Webster gave chase and saw him turn into Simcoe St. Meanwhile his companion notified the police.

Webster described the man as be quite short, and dressed in a blue overcoat and a felt hat.

A few minutes later the same man apparently came up in front of the drug store on Simcoe street north owned by Edwin Johnston. He got out of the car and walked into the drug store, where he pulled out the gun and held up the proprietor, who was alone.

"I had just let a man, his wife and child out of the store and was standing in the door way, when the coupe drive up. The driver came straight for the store and I opened the door for him," Johnston said.

"Where is the other fellow?" he said. "He is not here. This is the night off," Johnston replied.

"With that he immediately pulled out a gun and shoved it into my stomach so hard that it hurt," the druggist said. "Come on, get in the till open, I mean business," he said. He shoved me with the gun back to the till and asked me to open the till for him. I opened the till and he scooped out all the money. He kept jabbing me with the gun, and pushed me back to the soda fountain till."

He kept cursing all the time. "I shot a couple of fellows around the corner and that's what I'll do and you'll shoot you too," he said to me. He seemed awfully excited. His eyes stuck out like diamonds and his hands shook.

"I think he was filled to the neck with dope," the druggist said. "He took two bags of change from my pockets and tore the lining in my pockets. Then he grabbed my watch but when he found it was fastened to my belt he gave it a heave and jerked it off."

Leaped to Cellar

The hold-up man told the druggist that he wanted to see the cellar and, shoving him into the back part of the shop, pushed him down several steps. However, Johnston, who became excited, leaped down to the cellar floor and was lost to the intruder in the darkness.

Frustrated in his plans whatever they may have been, the intruder closed the trap door and made his getaway.

Several seconds later the druggist ran to the front of the store in time to see the coupe rounding the corner of Richmond street and proceed west past the police station.

Johnston estimated his loss at about $70.

The robber was described as having light hair, grey eyes, weight about 130 pounds, slight face and good looking.

Boosting Him Up

by Ethel Willis Hewitt

Drenching rain whipped across the city, lashing traffic, bashing people, striking across eyes blinding them to the fact that it was spring. Especially was it Mason's, that it, until he turned in Federal street and the drug store of Sam Hall, a man boy blocked his path. A small, grimy fist thrust up a tight, rain soaked bunch of violets.

"Buy some, mister—please."

Hall blinked through the rain at the dark, pinched face. The boy couldn't have been older than little own Bobby. An extra lump rose in his throat. Another time he would have taken the violets, given the boy a dollar, and loosed the breath of spring in Rita's lap when he got home—but tonight, he only looked at the kid and fingered the loose change in his pocket. He started to move on, but he couldn't.

"How much?"

The boy's face brightened.

"Anything, mister, every penny counts. You see there're six of us, and Dad's out of work and—"

Val didn't wait to hear more, he took the violets and left a half dollar in the grimy outstretched hand. He hurried on, then slackened his pace. Bad news travels fast enough. He wondered, in a numb sort of way, how he would tell Rita he was out of a job. It was either he or old Sain. "The boss had said,

"Sain's old. His wife needs all the comforts he can give her—she's been a cripple for years. I guess you can get a job quicker than he could. I hate to tell you this, Mason, but you see—"

Val's mouth set in a hard, straight line. He might have told the boss that his wife was expecting another baby and it was going to be darn hard to tell her he'd lost his job. The mere thought affected him. At number sixteen, he turned in, climbed three flights of steps, reached for the lone letter in a mail box as he slipped his key in the lock. He found Rita in the tiny room they used for the child. Rita was busy arranging the screen between the window and the three white cribs.

"They wanted to wait for you but" Val caught her in his arms. Rita he was looking over her head at the three flushed, rumpled little figures beneath the shaded light. No tough luck could dull the thrill they gave him—those three were belonged to him, and Rita, and the little one to come. He swallowed hard. He was young—and good at advertising business, he'd get something to do—he'd have to.

He kissed Rita's flushed face and forced a smile. He ought to be able to keep the tough break under his hat until after supper. Not that Rita wasn't the greatest little sport ever, this wasn't their first rough stretch.

He watched her thin brown hands, as she went about, getting supper on the table. They were far too thin, transparent. It hurt Him—her having to work the way she did. A little blindly he took the green enamel pan out of her hands and finished creaming the potatoes.

"You treat me like a baby," she laughed, flushingly.

But she liked it. Val could tell. He could tell every single thing that happened to her—they were that close to each other.

They ate and Val laughed into each others eyes over things Bobby had said during the day. There were certain things in life that no amount of hard luck could rob them of—loose two.

After supper, Val sat Rita on the high stool—she would be unable to wash dishes. When the last green pan was on its hook and the percolator turned up to drain, he sifted her down, held her close against him. He knew he hadn't hid a thing from her—he never could. Her face, flushed and close to his, went suddenly grave.

"Val?"

Somewhere 'back of that word, Val felt, her courage and strength rise to meet his need.

"It's come. It was Bain or me—the boss said I was younger, and," he stopped, pressed his face down fiercely against Rita's shoulder.

He couldn't go on. Something in the situation stripped him of all the brave courage of youth, of all misplaced self confidence. In a flash, Rita raised her face to his, her eyes shining.

"Well, he's right. You are young. We can stand all sorts of hardships. The Bains are old—finished. Life for them—" Her voice broke suddenly, and she clung to him with a little desperate passion.

Val's arms tightened, he knew what she meant.

"You angel," he whispered against her cheek.

But her mind was evidently busy with the Bains.

"I'm glad they didn't put him off. something about her being an angel—and let it go at that.

Old Man Winter Relents

When this group of Oxford and Cambridge ski experts arrived in Ottawa to pay a visit to His Excellency the Governor-General and also enjoy a good day's sport, they were rather unfortunate. Old King Winter decided to play a prank on these sportsmen who had come to Canada instead of Switzerland for their annual Winter sport meet. When they got off the train there was not a flake of snow within 10 miles of the city, and members of the Ottawa Ski Club had to take them on a sightseeing to our of the Capital. However, King Winter decided he had done enough mischief and sent some inches of snow flooting down over the Gatineau Hills so that the Varsity skiers can go back home and tell the folk they really saw snow in Canada.

Interesting Facts In Code of Labor

Quebec, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—Interesting passages are to be found in the Code of Labour and Industrial Laws of the Province of Quebec for 1931 which has just been issued. For instance, it is noted that "no hotel licensee shall allow improper noises, wrangling or profane or indecent language or unseemly conduct on his hotel premises." Then again it states that each hotel or lodging house catering to the accomodation of commercial travelers shall have at least one sample room.

Under the heading of regulations concerning industrial establishments the Act categorically states in a sub-section governing comfort of employes that provision should be made for a sufficient number of spittoons to be placed in strategic points within the building.

Amoig other things the weighty volume, of some 900 pages, covers a wide range of legislation respecting industrial establishments; safety and health pensions, what to do in cases of sickness or wounding and women's minimum wage scale. The book is compiled by Gus Francq, and is dedicated to Hon. C. J. Arcand, provincial Minister of Labour.

INSTALLATION

istorical Night Marked at Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F.&A.M.

nour and distinction were conred upon Wor. Bro. W. M. Barin the installation of officers of ira Lodge No. 11, A.F. and A.M., R.D., held last night at the Masonic Temple in Belleville. Unique the fact that Wor. Bro. W. Spencer Barlow was installed in office by his father, Rt. Wor. Bro. Barlow; who has now held the offices of installing his second son their lodge, and therefore, has a Masonic lodge and in the same ily. This distinction has never been equalled in Belleville or ada this district, the fact that Barlow had the honor and priv- of installing two sons into Master's chair of his mother dge. Rt. Wor. Bro. J. W. Barlow talled his son, Wor. Bro. A. E. Brico to this high office in 1922 last night duplicated this. The installation of officers for the ming year in Moira Lodge last was, perhaps, a memorable ht in the lodge's history and will be remembered by the Brethren present. The ceremony was in ape of St. Wor. Bro. W. Barlow, assisted by V. W. Bro. R. McKidden, W. Bro. A. S. Barlow, W. Bro. P. Chamberlain, V. Wor. Bro. Morgan, Wor. Bro. George Mason, W. Bro. H. J. Hall, Wor. Bro. J. Cook, Rt. Wor. Bro. W. Barlow, Wor. Bro. C. Ashley, W. Bro. F. Cross, W. Bro. W. C. Mills, W. Bro. H. Ellis, W. Bro. Rev. Bro. A. Kidd, W. Bro. Dr. Kincaid and a number of worthy brothers from outside lodges. The ceremony of installation was exemplified faultlessly and left an impression never to be forgotten. The new officers were: W. M., Wor. Bro. W. Barlow; I.P.M., Wor. Bro. W. Barlow; S. W., Bro. R. Ford; J.W., Bro. W. G. Anson; Chaplain, Wor. Bro. Rev. Mc-Intosh; treasurer, Rt. Wor. Bro. J. Barlow; secretary, V. W. Bro. R. McAndless; S. D., Bro. Wm. Colby; J.D., Bro. R. Brown, Organist, Bro. Ross Hunter; D. of C., Bro. H. Hall; I.G., Bro. W. Wallace; S.S., Bro. J. C. Hoff; J.S., Bro. Ralph Smith; Tyler, Bro. Cochrane.

During the course of the evening a report of the trustees of Masonic property was heard as was the officers' report for 1931. The retiring officer bestowed the Past Master's jewel upon I.P.M. R. W. Bro. Wm. Bro. Fred Chamberlain, on behalf of Moira Lodge, presented a token of appreciation to Wor. Bro. J. W. Barlow to be engraved to his history regarding the 25 end members of Moira Lodge. Following the installation the officers repaired to the banquet table where they were given festivities were in honor of the newly installed Master. Music, under the direction of Bro. Ross Hunter supplied the music of the evening and their efforts were highly appreciated upon by all. The usual Masonic toasts were proposed and responded to in a very capable manner. Wor. Bro. R. P. Orme acted as toastmaster. Bro. Harry Corrigan rendered a solo, "Just You" by Your Window," which was followed by a solo, "I Dream of the Day I Met You" in his usual capable manner.

The toast to the visiting brethren was proposed in similar to the response as there were brothers present from many distant points. Members from Vancouver, Toronto, Waterdown and Kingston, Ont., and Ireland were represented here at the banquet and the hearty welcome visiting brethren from the surrounding district were also called upon to say a few words. V. Wor. Bro. John Maidens, District Deputy Grand Master for the Trenton Edward District, after congratulating the Barlow family on their creditable record spoke a few words on The Masonic Order." He dilated fully upon the aims and pointed out that the spirit of Masonry was a great help to develop men along the lines of morality and brotherly love. In closing Bro. Maidens left a thought with the members present that the time was almost ready for a fourth Masonic Lodge in Belleville.

R. Wor. Bro. J. O. Herity expressed his appreciation on behalf of being present at this unique and unparalleled occasion. Bro. Herity extended all the brethren that Belleville in proportion, was the youngest Masonic city in the Dominion of Canada.

The close of the evening, that to newly installed officers was proposed by W. Bro. Dr. Kincaid, who called them. The toast was responded to by the newly installed Master, W. M. Barlow, who thanked all for their kind words and honor bestowed upon him and other members of his family. In closing he reminded the brethren of the Moira Lodge minstrel show which will be held at the February convocation under the direction of V. Wor. Bro. George Delaney, Bro. W. McF. Ford, Bro. W. G. Anderson and the other newly installed officers responded in a very capable manner, to this toast.

After a hearty vote of thanks to the orchestra and those who had supplied the evening's entertainment the banquet closed with the Junior Warden's toast.

WARNING TO ALL FARMERS

Fire Marshal Suggests Greater Care in Crops Storage

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 7.—Fire Marshall R. P. Heaton, yesterday warned farmers they should exercise greater care in harvesting and storing their crops if the fire is to avert losses through spontaneous combustion.

At the close of yesterday's session of the inquiry into Wentworth county by farm fires the Fire Marshal suggested farmers revert to the old-time custom of adding salt to cure the crops. Salt, he said, aided greatly in preventing such fires. He suggested also that fire extinguishers should be carried on all threshing machines.

The announcement, made by Mr. Cooke following the conclusion of the weekly board meeting yesterday, also indicated that the pay of Hydro employes would be cut.

Sir Henry Drayton, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, stated that reductions in salaries of Liquor Board employes would be made shortly, and it is believed also that the liquor commissioners will voluntarily cut their own salaries on the same scale as those of Cabinet Ministers.

CHRISTMAS IS AGAIN MARCHED

Russians Observe Today as Festival Date By "Old Style"

TORONTO, Jan. 7. — Within a few blocks of the heart of the city last night, Christmas Eve, was being celebrated. In a service as beautiful as it was unusual in Canada, a hundred Russian exiles gathered in the Russian-Greek Orthodox Church on Glen Morris street for their annual Christmas celebration.

According to the Julian Calendar, which the Greek Orthodox Church has retained, last night was December 24, Christmas Eve of 1931.

With the splendor of Christmas decorations against a background of rich religious symbolism, a woodsy odor of cedar and pine mingling with the sweetness of incense, the solemn prescribed ritual entering the Church was breath-taking in its beauty.

Tall candles flickered a golden light upon gorgeously colored panels; priest and altar boys in magnificent robes conducted the traditional service and a full-throated chorus singing antiphonies and melodies flooded the hall with music.

MISSES HEART BY SCANT INCH

Constable Was Shot by a Demented Man

Aklavik, N.W.T., Jan. 7.—A shot fired at Royal Police Constable A. W. King, by a crazed trapper at Rat River, early in the old Yukon trail last Thursday, missed the Constable's heart by a scant inch, a medical examination of King has revealed. The trapper, Alfred Kidman, cared for by Dr. A. A. Urquhart in the hospital here, is recovering.

Meanwhile a warrant headed by Inspector Eaine is pressing forward through the rough Arctic terrain hoping to reach the scene of the shooting of the constable.

Kidman is wanted for the murder two weeks ago of Constable Albert Nault in Sudbury.

The fire marshal expressed disbelief in the evidence of "Jet," 13-year-old son of Johnson Tew, farmer whose barn burned on October 19. He said the boy's evidence was "largely imaginative." The boy said he thought he had seen an unidentified man enter the barn shortly before the fire broke out.

The investigation will be continued next Tuesday.

DR. GODFREY SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS

Former Health Minister Dies at Mimico Residence

LONG CAREER

TORONTO, Jan. 7. — Dr. Forbes Elliott Godfrey, who held a seat in the provincial legislature for a longer continuous period than any other member, held the portfolio of Health and Labor in the Ferguson administration, and pioneered the enactment of anti-tuberculosis and industrial health legislation, died last night at his home in Mimico.

He was in his 85th Year. His death followed a lingering illness during which he refused to admit the growing seriousness of his condition and insisted on visiting many of his patients. Ten days ago he was unable to leave his bed, however, and realized that he had seen a bitter fight. His once sturdy constitution had been undermined by the ravages of anaemia. Dr. Warren Snyder, the husband of his only child, was with him constantly until the end at 7:30 last night.

In the death of Dr. Godfrey, the Ontario Legislature loses one of its most picturesque and familiar figures. Elected by the people of West York to represent them in 1907, he held the riding for a quarter century until his death. In each of the succeeding seven elections he strengthened his position, West York becoming one of the strongholds of the party.

Forbes Godfrey was born in York township on March 31, 1848, son of the late Robert Godfrey, a former Methodist circuit rider. Shortly after Dr. Godfrey's birth, the family moved to Owen Sound where the lad received his primary education and then attended Owen Sound Collegiate. He came to the University of Toronto and graduated in medicine, establishing a name for himself as a brilliant student and general proficiency medallist of his year.

Post Graduate Work

Following his graduation, Dr. Godfrey went to Edinburgh University for post graduate studies and on their completion received the degree L.R.C.P. and S. He followed this by further studies at Glasgow University, gaining the degree L.F.P. and S. when he finished there. In his studies at the Scottish Universities he won himself considerable fame.

When he returned to Canada he established practice in his native county, opening an office in Mimico. Steadily widening his practice in the period of growth of the suburban district, he still found time to continue his specializing studies and in 1907 entered the political conquest of West York as a Conservative candidate. His action culminated his office declared determination that some day Ontario would place more legislation on its statutes to aid preventive medicine.

CARELESS BLOND

by Ethel Willis Hewitt

The office of Rand and Company had taken on an air of efficiency since young Nicholas Rand had been in command. This particular morning he strummed the dull mahogany desk with the head of his silver pencil, and gazed at a time card in his hand. — Anita Jordan. This girl had been a thorn in his side. She was fairly punctual in the morning, but at lunch. The young efficiency expert ran a lean finger down the list. Yes, there it was. Late, five days out of six! Week after week, the monotonous bit more with his pencil, then turned sharply to his secretary.

"Miss Maddox, Miss Jordan girl, something must be done about her. Her example is—is." He stopped, abruptly, and looked through the window of his private office at the long line of desks in the outer room.

"Which one is Miss Jordan?" he asked rather sternly.

"Blond, second row, third desk." Miss Maddox never wasted words.

Nick frowned.

"Send her to me please."

Once a clerk's inefficiency was allowed to ignore the bell.

The door opened. The tall blond girl moved silently across the room.

"You sent for me, Mr. Rand?" voice that sounded strange in a business office.

Nick looked up. It was entirely out of keeping, of course, but he got to his feet. There was something about the girl's European air that made him wasn't interested in that.

"I send for you to suggest that you pay stricter attention to rules. Your time was taken from the absolute disregard of the sixty minute lunch rule. Miss Maddox has spoken to you several times. I'm sorry it was necessary for me to—to", Nick floundered.

The girl's blue eyes regarded him with a cold indifference that slowly lowered them, flushing.

"I'm very sorry, Mr. Rand, but sometimes—"

Nick interrupted.

"That is all, Miss Jordan. In an establishment as large as ours, there is much for each one to do." She said abruptly and picked up a file to denote that the interview was at an end.

Miss Maddox clicked away at her typewriter. She was never late, never out, often didn't have a way of more, in a world of glamour, remained from the chill fog of loneliness by which she sat. It came about that a face under a bonnet of Nile green malines, above a soft, mellow baritone sang—for her ears, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." Ah! Ah! Ah! Ah!

Nick frowned that one ruler's pencil was broken, a new spool of thread bursts that takes everybody by surprise. Anita Jordan looked in the direction for shelter. A little crowd waited each chair at the end of the table, holding a scrap of an umbrella was pretty wretched, yet somehow, it did shuffle she didn't quite make it, and the doorway to ward a small hat. Anita, bareheaded, her dripping bit of umbrella didn't see him—Nick turned himself that either in a puddle of water—that impact.

Nick balanced her, and perked himself erect.

"What the devil!" He choked do—in the words.

They looked at each other thro'n the rain.

"Oh, I beg your pardon. Were you going some place?" he asked foolishly.

"I was, but since the buss left me, I'm standing around to get the buss without me. Watching the rain."

Nick looked at her. So—she was that sort, the "I'm-a-business-girl-but-my-bread-and-butter-life" attitude about her.

"I'm late, could I give you a lift?" he asked it for if she had been something more than the girl at the third desk, around row. Perhaps—that thirty sixty minutes for lunch." Long lashes drooped demurely against wet cheeks.

"Nick flushed.

"Don't rub it in. You see I didn't know."

Anita interrupted.

"As an efficiency expert, you should attend to your business—He was helping her into the taxi and pulling the apron of an umbrella. A word to the driver, and they slid away.

"I should make it my business to find out. I am—lots of things." He smiled down at her.

"Meanwhile, I'm lunching at the Crescent. It's a waste of time to have the taxi make an extra stop."

Anita met his gaze. The most concerting eyes, Nick thought.

"I'm lunching there, I had no idea, time was such an important item," she answered, primly.

Nick felt uncomfortable. After all he was perfectly right in calling her down for being late. And he was again if necessary. But that didn't keep them from lunching together. They did it often, even when it was not raining and time was supposed to be punched so accurately at lunch time that hardly a minute offers will be boosting. If efficiency in that line could help it along. But the effort was all lost on Nick. He didn't even check over time tickets any more. In fact, things on his desk had to be arranged—neat little stacks, awaiting his attention.

He spent a lot of time thinking about women working all day at a desk for a measley salary, particularly one women. Of course, Nick was all for women, he didn't like anything about it collectively, but—

One day at lunch ,fifty-nine minutes had slipped by like ten. He leaned over and covered Anita's hand with his. Nick followed her out ticked off another half hour discarded tasks long ago.

"Anita, for a long time—you must have known that I—"

Anita glanced at—her watch in feigned alarm.

"Not with just sixty minutes for lunch," she said sweetly. Her eyes were innocent, her mouth dimpled. She pushed back her chair and, Nick followed her out and in his little tan roadster—they left discarded tasks long ago.

"Now, Anita, listen to me—" He grew impressive as the car slid out into traffic.

"Don't need to," Anita put in. "I've learned efficiency from you. Anybody with half an eye could just look at you." She laughed and slipped her arm under his.

Nick pressed it to his side. "Am I as bad as that about you, Sweet?"

She didn't answer.

"Penny for your thoughts," he said, feeling foolish but happy.

"Thinking what a brute, but its bargain day, I was thinking we'd have missed each other if you hadn't intised each other if you hadn't been so officially and I didn't here late so often."

"And I was efficient," he whispered, close to her ear.

"And you got through or being late so often." Her hand squeezed down on his arm.

He looked at her, his eyes questioning.

"You don't mean?"

"Of course. You don't think I'm the kind—officially and I couldn't? Not his gaze boldly.

"Darling little devil," Nick said, and if didn't sound like it reade. He turned in at the wrong street by mistake, and it was sixty minutes, three things, when was punched in the time clock, but then, you simply can't crowd some things into sixty minutes and so Nick and Anita are the side, and Nick was aware you didn't need to be so efficient expert to figure that out.

SINGLE SEATS

by Edythe Squier Draper

"Go somewhere, tonight, old dear? Promise!"

They parted, and the train roll ed away into the night with the darling young, enlightened Nancy.

Somewhere was to a talkie, Inthe-round affair—away from the children gone—She wished Nancy had not turned desperately to the screen, to armies marching, dancing, palaces, throne-room, boudoir and tavern. But what did she want of a "night out every week"; she who hungered for the companionship of a man's world, the prematurely stern interns in the famous hospital, her chief, but to be sobbing aloud in the peopled place, she forced eyes to see, ears to hear that the interior was an entertainment assiduously presented.

And she was rewarded. She became lost, moment by moment, more, in a world of glamour, removed from the chill fog of loneliness by which she sat. It came about that a face under a bonnet of Nile green malines, above a soft, mellow baritone sang—for her ears, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." Ah! Ah! Ah! Ah!

She followed the thick figure that had sat dumbed beside her on the settee, climbed into the automobile beside it. But presently again he was oblivious of her and Jane had settled upon her. She saw a face, heard a voice. "Home of my heart, I love thee!"

Murmuring of waterless, a busy say tomorrow, she went to dreamless sleep.

She awoke still under the spell. Her hands got breakfast, her mind away where the face was, the song and the tender voice the perfect lover. Vaguely, only, was she aware of Norton Blackledge and of his newspaper open-boldly—at theatre ads—Vaguely, only, was she aware of Norton Blackledge and of his newspaper open-boldly—at theatre ads. How slow he was with his breakfast, and she with so fain to be at new ware, a new message, a new hero. She had no to attend to all these today? Por to-night—ah, tonight!

The day —that yesterday mourning saw on roe-lipped wings, the new wave, the message of the song had, attended to by a dreamily smiling Eleanor.

Dinner, Once she wondered idly as Norton's preoccupation, and oddness of his tender gazing—at nothing in particular.

Nick pressed it to his side. "Am I as bad as that about you, Sweet?"

She didn't answer.

"Penny for your thoughts," he said, feeling foolish but happy.

"Thinking what a brute, but its bargain day, I was thinking we'd have missed each other if you hadn't been so officially and I didn't here late so often."

NIGHT OUT

by Marion Thomas McDonald

Ted Raymond sat, apparently absorbed in the evening paper. Actually, he was hiding behind it. He didn't feel like talking to his wife, who sat with her mending on her lap, so he pretended to read.

Presently a word escaped his lips now, but distinctly spoken, "Boredom."

His wife glanced up, faintly startled. "What did you say, dear?

"Huh?" Heavens! Had he spoken aloud? Damn nodding—that's all." He rattled his paper and shook it impatiently.

Lynn however, continued to regard him curiously. "Bored?" she murmured presently.

He frowned. "Didn't you hear, what did you ask?" he scolded.

"I couldn't believe my ears," she explained.

Now he was in for it, he thought. Lynn loved complaints and he had grown tired of her. But she continued, "You've made plans at her or that we could both be thinking of the same thing at the same moment."

He was surprised to the point of throwing aside his evening newspaper. His frown deepened as he watched Lynn lift her pretty nose across the room and fumble absentmindedly in the magazine on the table. Strange, he mused, how a woman could change so much in three years. His first love with the vivacious Lynn of college days and her successor. Lynn had lost beauty and wit had made her the dull, colorless thing she was. Even her lous twinkle in her eyes, that had been the first thing to attract him, the secret of happiness, was now sadly lacking. Was it that hideous apron that made her look so old and shapeless?

Suddenly she turned and faced him defiantly. "Do you know what it is he needs, Ted? A night out!" Not for a reply, she continued—"We've got to get away from home. We shouldn't we be? No money to go any place——scarcely any friends here. Some one's invitation to dinner to repay the visit.

She had been thinking the same thing, but he was strangely hurt to hear her voice it. "Why, dear, I'm lamented, "With the baby we're rather tied down but—"

"And we can't afford to leave any one to stay with her occasionally!" Lynn interrupted.

"It's a gay life, isn't it?" He laughed mirthlessly. "Slave away in the shop all day, come home, eat dinner, read and listen to the radio awhile, go to bed——and so on——" He sighed.

She echoed him. "It's really funny," she said, "The very things we've just mentioned were the first a made married life seem so ideal to us. Remember? We laughed. We planned how wonderful it would be to run home and pass little plate of our own——a radio——and the whole world shut out—" She stopped short and looked at him. "That's our trouble!" she cried. "We're in a rut, Ted, dear."

"Why? What do you mean?" he demanded.

"Any young people are foolish to live in a rut, and they are very often —why they're bound to get out of the sight of their own faces, no matter how. That's the way wars begin with. "She was pacing back and forth like a caged animal.

Ted was puzzled. He had said one thing and she had interpreted this torrent. Of course he was tired of the monotony of his own existence—but Lynn, he had thought, she was perfectly satisfied. "Well, what's to be done about it?" he faltered.

Lynn sat down and stared into space so long that Ted was on the points of interrupting her again when she jumped up, her face flushed with excitement. "I've got it," she exclaimed. "We not only will be looking at each other, but we know we're thinking of the same thing as well. There's no mystery——no secret for Ted, I'll go to a movie."

"I—I hadn't stopped to analyze it," he stammered.

"No. That's just the trouble with you. Would sit there and say 'I'm tired, I'm lonesome' but not say why, or what to do about it!"

"What do you mean?" He was horrified. Do you mean you want to go out and have a clandestine love affair?

She laughed. "You're putting ideas into my head. But seriously, can't we trust each other not to make love to anybody else? We can't, it's a wonder we've stuck together this long. Why you could take up with some girl at the office, and I with some of the old gang. I could go to the theatre with Jimmie, or Jack Hart, or join that young women's club I've been asked to so often. I'm long—just anything like that. The point is, we're not to tell each other about it, that would spoil everything. We've always told each other too much—confessed, I'll call it now. What would be the fun of going to the movies if I knew you'd be there haunted it? Knowledge means destruction of romance and mystery."

"I get your point," he said, "And I don't know but what there's a lot of truth in what you say." He was already visualizing the fun he'd have—going out with the "gang" once in a while.

"We'd taste a little of that much lauded 'freedom'," wouldn't we? But say! All this is going to cost money!"

"Certainly it's going to cost money. It needn't drive us into the poor-house, but everything that's worth while costs something. Even a movie is more expensive, aren't they?"

"It isn't that bad, is it?"

"Maybe not yet, but it has been getting no better fast, hasn't it honey?" She hugged him in antici pation of the fun this new arrangement would be.

Lynn, because she was her idea, took off upon the first "night out." She bought a new dress in honor of the occasion, there-by using so much of her "allowance" that she couldn't be able to go anyplace expensive for several weeks, but —it didn't look too early when she got in.

Tuesday was her night. Thursday would be Ted's. Week-ends they decided to plan events of mutual interest for enlightenment.

"Not too bad," Lynn decided as she took off her hat and glanced at her reflection before starting on her adventure. "I must dress for dinner every evening, whether I'm going out or not."

She felt very young and "collegiate" again as she entered the library. A couple of boys in that old favorite haunt of hers would be pleasant and harmless.

But the library closed much too early to relish. She was left with a late movie, lingered over a cup of coffee and sandwich, took a bus the longest way home to the corner her latch-key at a quarter to one.

Her indignation was directed her with "Sa-ay! Where were you? I been sweating over you, trying various friends and relatives—trying to get a line on you, without actually asking if they'd seen you."

She giggled with delight, strolled in as nonchalantly as possible, and flung her coat down on the davenport. There was a mischievous twinkle in her eyes as she stooped her irate husband's exclamations with a kiss, and whispered, "Naughty, naughty, naughty. Mustn't ask questions!"

He tried to rebel, but he only laughed and asked, "Have you been bored?"

"I'll say I haven't!" he stormed. But he had to smile. "I wish I had been. Maybe I'd have gotten some fun out of it. Anyway, you've never satisfied, are we honey?"

"I am," she replied happily. "But she added, mischievously, "Maybe I won't be Thursday night."

NIGHT of STORM

by Edythe Squier Draper

"It's not fair! Just because she gives me things she can't have happiness, to keep you from a woman like that—"

"She thinks she's keepin' me from a b-broken heart, like the one she left behind her. Week-end they'd cried on the breast of indifferent, and lamented Carl Williams. "She's been a grand sister, darling, for all these years, but—she just can't come any more. This is our time together, Oh Carl—"

"Let's," an awed and very young wife whispered against the cheek of a very young husband, and they had helped with another wedding that night. Outside the storms—sometimes they're awfully fierce.

Dr. Franz Fischer, director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Coal Research, informs that coal research has a significant part in growth and acts as a satisfactory fertilizer.

SAIL-MAKER BUILDS GLIDER

St. John's Man Uses Canvas to Fashion Airship.

SAINT JOHN, N. B.—While pictures reminiscent of Saint John's glory as a home for wooden ships and iron men look down from the walls of a famous sail-loft on Water street here, a young sail-maker is completing a craft indicative of the commercial and scientific progress made since Scammell's "dirty" ships of '66 caught the air in their spreading white wings, and wind and water were witness to inconsolations from hard-handed skippers wrestling hand-winches, old chanty songs and flapping canvas.

The youth Joseph Golding, associated with the firm whose sails were known on every sea, has fashioned a modern glider utilizing the sort of canvas that took Saint John's graceful ships through the stormy North Atlantic or whatever waters were decreed by the good of commerce.

Built according to official specifications, this frying and tossing inhability will take the air as gracefully as other sail-craft of another era went down to sea. Rather, "the glorious peat," say the tinners, although the ships themselves had hugs 'tin' ships moored at Liverpool were witness to inquiries of half-a-hundred sailors?

"Canvas needs wooden decks and canvas to prove he's a sailor," the mutter, recalled blue-eyed gale of the Golding craft. Canvas was used for their strength and skill as weather-proofing. Up towering spars, along yard-arms in a roaring gale and sometimes under the sea, as in Saint John, but Son Golding, 19 years old, is the first to construct an airship from ship canvas. All parts, down to the last strut and fitting, already spread with the skill of half-a-hundred sailors.

Heard On The Street

A new game of solitaire is sweeping the town. Reports have it that it is very simple, and that all it is very fascinating. But the trick seems to be to go it, and although it has been going the rounds for some time now only one man is said to have successfully finished one game. His word is disputed, however, because there were no witnesses so it cannot be officially entered into the book of scores kept by the various neighbors. It seems you take the deck and deal yourself four of the cards. Then you lay them on the table and draw from the pack. The highest card . . . Aw, never mind. I didn't quite get it either. Anyhow they say it's good if you do it.

A brewing concern will soon start drilling for water on their property. It is claimed that spring water is the only water which will make a real good product. Depression is disappearing but there is one girl in town who is working for five dollars per week. Formerly she drew ninety-five for the same job she is now doing, stenography. The town clock stopped at ten to three yesterday afternoon. Wednesday half holidays. A local doctor is giving free baby clinics in his office. But he doesn't want any publicity on it. Good news from a manufacturing company some distance down the highway pretty soon. On a recent broadcast an undertaker made an announcement of his wares (how does he know all this stuff) and the next number on the program was: "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing." Recent sign on an uptown theatre: "Today, His Woman." Tomorrow who cares . . .

Sixty tons of coal delivered to a place on Front street was slowly shovelled into the cellar and then the next day it was more slowly shovelled out. Mechanical trouble or something like that. Fort Hope has a cemetery called Welcome. The sign of "Welcome" is still suspended over the gate. A quiet home provided. Wonder if ——— is going to put a store in on Front street. Or if it is just the rumblings of that man who tried to get hold of the lease on that block. A young lad on Church street got an electric light pulb in his bed under the sheets the other night to warm up the bed and warmed it a little too much. The bed caught on fire — and did the landlady howl!

Rosetta which heralded and palpitated some time around January first when the grand drawing of a recent charity organization which conducted a continental campaign of ticket selling, and which incidentally sold some two thousand tickets in this city alone, was finally concluded, are now back to normal. All the prizes have been given and hopes that soared among the clouds are now back to the cold bleak earth.

Americans got all the big money. A married woman from Cleveland took the fifty thousand. A New York man called his cheque for twenty five thousand. (How would you like to be him?) A Philadelphia Miss got the ten; a Wisconsin man was overjoyed presumably to wake up and find he was two thousand dollars richer, and one more man in Detroit, another in Pa., and the last one in Illinois all got one thousand. All of which would have been a very nice Christmas present or New Year's gift if you or you had received it.

However it seems the only Canadians who came into the money were the one in Manitoba who got five hundred; ten more who each received two hundred and ten more who got one hundred apiece. The nearest winner was the one man in Lindsay who got one hundred. The funniest name of the whole list of the one hundred and fifty winners or so which were given out is that of Hote Dogis, New Britain. And that happens to be his real name as far as we know.

Alderman ——— was whistled to the curb the other night by a policeman because only one light on his car was functioning. After a lengthy chewing match he was allowed to go on. A Toronto evening paper went hey-wire the other night on a weather story on the front page. A taxi driver got a five dollar tip from a gentleman he drove to the North Station. A big dance was held in a home in the south end of the town the other night and during the course of 5 several articles of food were thrown through the windows. Cabbages were used as footballs. The boys of the local orchestras are acting very peaceful towards each other over some new arrangement of prices. And when a certain parrot in town gets drunk, as he is permitted to do now and then, he can sing the funniest songs you ever heard.

Still reports come in about dandelions being picked on lawns in other cities; but it is also reported that pansies in full bloom can be seen on Front street at almost any time. A slight accident on Front street at Stirling in the afternoon had the curious crowd around. Some trouble arose over the bumpers being locked together. The reason you didn't hear that new "whistle for me" story the other night was because the comedian omitted it back. Tone didn't suit them so they are going to get another. Two men walked into a restaurant the other night and bought a load of sandwiches. When they were delivered they started giving them away to all the patrons and waiters who were in the place. And the local boys were all agog over the alleged fact that an old aide of Al. Capone was supposed to have been in town over the week-end. Maybe he was going to sell the city hall to some of them.

"Hit bubbly, am I? Well, let me tell you—you'd be a bit bubbly too 'ad to pla a thing like this"—The Humorist, London.

Wellington, N. Z., Jan 7 (Cable)—Evidence in the New Zealand government is taking no timid steps in pursuing its economy programme was given today in the announcement by Prime Minister G. W. Forbes of abandonment of construction of the new postoffice at Dunedin. The structure would have cost $1,000,000 and tenders had already been called for. The Prime Minister said further drastic economies were under consideration.

ARCTIC FOX TAKEN ALIVE

Rare Specimen and Not Often Seen in Quebec Section

Arvida, Que. (CP) — Trapping as a hobby has become worthwhile for August Vendomme, caretaker of the Protestant school here. Recently he caught a pure white Arctic fox, a rare prize in this part of Canada and one of the finest ever taken.

Having come across a set of mysterious tracks in the bush about a mile from the town near the Tadoussac Highway, Vendomme set to work with his traps in an attempt to add another trophy to his bag. For a long time his efforts were unsuccessful, then one day, a short time ago, a small trap snapped closed—a young pure white Arctic fox had been caught by the left front claws.

The capture of such an animal so far south as Arvida is of considerable interest, and it is only in exceptional circumstances that the white fox comes below the 54th parallel, which virtually bisects Hudson's Bay and passes through the tip of Ungava, more than 1,000 miles from the place where it was captured.

The Arctic fox is brown or grey in summer, turning snow-white in winter. It is unique in having for on the soles of its feet. In form it is midway between other foxes and the dog, having a short blunt nose and rounded ears.

It is very bold and unafraid, invading Eskimos' huts and stealing all sorts of articles. One explorer mentioned its audacity in attempting to snatch pieces of food from his and his men's hands and of sniffing all around them while they were asleep.

It is believed that the young fox must have strayed from the late by his parents, and Vendomme is now attempting to trace the others in the family.

WATCH SLAIN ON CITY DUMP BY SQUATTERS

SQUATTERS HELD

Officers Piece Together Story of Double Killing at Buffalo

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 8— Death stalked in the South Michigan Ave. city dump last night.

S. D. Hughes, a night watchman, was beaten to death, police said, by ragged squatters, a short time after he had slain Walter Masura, one of the homeless denizens in the dump.

Masura died in a hospital from crushed wounds in the abdomen. Two hours later, Hughes' battered and broken body was found on the dump. Police immediately began a round-up of the squatters and a number were being detained for questioning, hoping to piece together the story of the double killing in the darkness.

Police reached the dump in response to a telephone call from a nearby gasoline station. They found evidence of a struggle and that a young man huddled together at the edge of the dump, and it was from him they gathered information that the police obtained their first inkling of the double murder.

The boys were Stanley Trela, 11; Edward Hughes, 12; Charles Dures, 13, and John Dures, his brother, 21. They told the officers that young Trela had spent the evening with Hughes in his watchman's shanty at a power-house. Trela and Hughes son, a student at technical high school, were close friends, and Trela had formed the habit of dropping into the watchman's shack in the evenings.

Dump Dangerous

That evening the boys said, they went to meet Trela. The gangs were scattered temporarily because of the scores of hobos who had made their homes there. On their way to the shanty, the three boys said, they were attacked by Masura, and three others beat on Hughes, they said, ran out of shack as the struggle and went back for his shotgun. The boys spoke vaguely of hearing a shot and seeing Masura fall. Frightened, they fled to the nearest telephone and called the police. They did not see Hughes again.

Membership Ends With Non-Payment

Cookeville, Ont., Jan. 8. — Club membership automatically lapses with non-payment of dues, according to Division Court here by Judge Martin Flanagan.

As a test case, the Lake Shore Golf and Country Club of Clarkson, Ont., sued Mrs. W. F. Jones for dues. In evidence it was stated that Mrs. Hoyt had joined the club during a campaign for new members. Last June, it was said, she felt she could no longer carry on as a member and did not pay her fees.

Counsel for the defendant said since Mrs. Hoyt had failed to send in her resignation in writing she was liable for the 1931 dues, Judge Flanagan ruled that membership automatically lapsed and dismissed the case. The ruling, it is stated, affects a considerable number of former members of the Club.

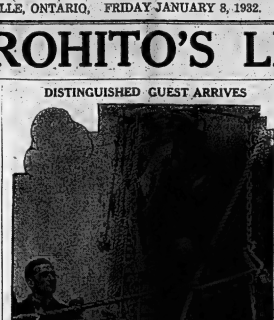
Gallipolis, O., Jan. 8 — Two youths, Albert Ramer and Elsworth Mowyer, who Tuesday told Sheriff Charles Swanson they burned a father and his seven children to death in a log cabin near here, repudiated their confession today.

The two boys previously had described in detail how they went to the log house of James White, 56, during darkness and set the building afire after fastening the doors and windows. They said they were revengeful against White who had beaten Ramer in a fight.



The prosecuting attorney said the boys probably would not be arraigned today as a result of restraining their confessions.

Miller added, however, the charges of first degree murder had not been withdrawn against the pair.

Indecisive Vote on Fall Observances

A referendum ballot has been taken among the members of the Chamber of Commerce in an endeavor to ascertain their preference in regard to the observance of Armistice or Remembrance Day.

This action has been taken in response to a request by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which is making a nation-wide inquiry through the medium of Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce to discover what the representative citizens of Canada really desire in the way of observance or celebration of this important anniversary.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce therefore sent out to all its members a referendum ballot upon which the following three questions appeared:—

1.—Are you in favor of observing Thanksgiving and Armistice days as a combined holiday?

2.—Are you in favor of observing Thanksgiving and Armistice days as a single holiday on the Monday nearest to November 11th?

3.—Are you in favor of Thanksgiving as a special holiday and of observing the signing of the Armistice, not as a holiday, but only by a period of three minutes' silence?

The result of the referendum has not been altogether conclusive. Thirty-six per cent. of those voting were in favor of the first, that is 36 per cent. in favor of observing Thanksgiving and Armistice or Remembrance Day as two separate holidays. A still larger number however, or forty per cent. favored the celebration of the two as a single holiday on the Monday nearest to Nov. 11th, while 24 per cent favored the observance of the Armistice merely by three minutes of silence.

It will thus be seen that there was not a clear majority for any one of the three options.

COASTGUARDS ARE INVOLVED IN SMUGGLING

Wholesale Bribery of U. S. Officers Has Been Exposed

LONG PROBE

Coastguard Officials Deny Knowledge of Inquiry

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Wholesale bribery of United States Coastguardsmen by liquor runners in the New York area, total running to estimated million dollars, was revealed today by Federal Deputy Attorney Howard W. Amell.

Twenty coastguardsmen, he said, have been arrested, and seven have confessed complicity.

Amell said:

"Coastguardsmen have admitted complicity in the wholesale liquor smuggling. We are going to the bottom and unearth every last bit of evidence. The number high it may reach, before we go to the grand jury for indictments. You may infer that commissioned officers are involved."

Probing For Weeks

The investigation has been under way for weeks, the Department of Justice agents, the District Attorney's office, customs men, prohibition department detectives and representatives of the coast guard have had parts in the inquiry.

Amell said that as far as he knew the policemen on the beat have not been traced to individual liquor running groups. The "terrific" pace where the investigation has centered —is along the Long Island shore. The name of Vannie Higgins, who has brushed with the law several times, has been named frequently with liquor running activity there.

Higgins, indicted with the chief of Police of Long Beach and fourteen others, seven of whom are long Beach policemen, is to go to trial before Federal Judge Campbell next month on bribery charges.

Mr. Amell's remarks made to the Federal Attorney by those of the coastguardsmen who talked, Amell also said, were to the effect that entire companies were bribed to permit cargoes of liquor to be landed and that commissioned officers and "higher-ups" were paid considerable sums for their silence.

Coastguard officials expressed surprise. Commander T. S. Roche, in charge of the Coastguard here, said he knew of no inquiry.

Washington, D.C., Jan. 8 (AP) — Coastguards who have received bribes from rum runners, about 30 enlisted men in the United States coast guard today faced a court martial investigation and possible sentence on four enlisted men accused of accepting money from liquor smugglers.

(BY JAMES P. HOWE)

The incident occurred as the carriage of Count Makino was turning from the parade ground through the famous Sakaradamon, or cherry field gate, where a throng of spectators were assembled during Japan's reconstruction period.

Tree Decorations Are Taken Off Streets

The last vestige of the season which has just past disappeared today with the removal of the Christmas trees from the corners of the streets on the down town section by a number of men who were employed at that task this morning. These trees which were erected by the Kiwanis Club presented a beautiful sight when the lights with which they were adorned were illuminated in the evenings throughout the season.

Over on the school house lawn, however, the large tree erected there by the local Hydro company still towers as straight in the air as ever and looks many people to remark on its natural appearance. Also the question of whether or not it will actually take root in that particular spot and commence to grow again, as was said it might be a question which is causing much debate among those who are not exactly experts in matters pertaining to studies of nature.

City Council Entertained by Chamber of Commerce

Luncheon Held in Commerce Building Thursday

ALL SPOKE

According to their annual custom the Belleville Chamber of Commerce entertained the newly inaugurated city council to a luncheon yesterday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

On account of business calling Mayor Tice was unable to be present but was ably represented by Alderman Woodley. The other aldermen present were Aldermen Walker, Hill, Donahue, Sprackett, Bennett, Marshall, Woodley, Inlah and MacMillan.

Mr. E. V. Illsley, president of the Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the aldermen to the 1932 council and extended to them the season's greetings on behalf of the directors. He pointed out that the directors, of the chamber, had no object in bringing the council to this gathering except, that of goodwill and the appreciation of the city of Belleville. Mr. Illsey expressed great admiration for the Mayor's inaugural address pointing out that it had, beyond a doubt, struck the right note. He also assured the council of the hearty support which could be expected from the Chamber of Commerce this year.

Acting Mayor Woodley, in reply, stated that he was pleased to meet the directors of the Chamber of Commerce or any other body of men, whose object was to try to make Belleville a better place for which to live. The council welcomes the co-operation and good-will of bodies like the Chamber of Commerce as it brings together men of men, that the city becomes a better place in which to reside.

All of the other aldermen gave brief addresses referring to the problems confronting the various departments during the coming year, all emphasized the need for economy and careful husbanding of the city's resources as far, as possible.

After a general discussion, in which the members of the council were assured of the hearty co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce the meeting dispersed all feeling that some good had come of the get-to-gether.

THIS IS NO HEART OF STONE

Mechanical Heart Enables Scientists to Study Heart Action

Stanford University, Calif., Jan. 8 —Construction of a mechanical heart which simulates blood circulation in animals after the real heart has been removed, was announced by Dr. Paul J. Hanzlik, head of the Pharmacology.

The device, made of brass, was perfected by a British scientist, named Gibbs, Dr. Hanzlik said.

Dogs, cats rabbits and other large animals live for several hours under an anesthetic with the mechanical heart. Its value is in enabling students and physicians to trace the flow of blood through an animal's body and to study the effects of various drugs and dyes on the blood, Dr. Hanzlik explained.

Recession of Great Lakes Decreases

Ottawa, Jan. 8—Recession in the waters of the Upper Great Lakes as a result of increased precipitation, was only twenty-five per cent. in December as compared with September, based on the average level during the same period for the last ten years, according to a report of the Hydrographic Service of the Department of Marine. This was expected to benefit Lakes Erie and Ontario which in December averaged 14 inches above their lowest levels since 1860.

Newspapers Turn Tide of Business

November Cyntex Sales Up 25%—December Is 27% Figure Show

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — From day to day, additional evidence is accumulating that the business tide has turned, or can be turned by careful and intelligent business planning.

W. W. Burgess, president of the Knox Company, manufacturers of internationally known Cystex, the reliable Kidney Diuretic and palliative for Functional Bladder Irritation, recently made the following statement: "Our November business showed a 25% increase over the same month a year ago in the United States. In Canada, our Cystex sales increased 50% in November over a year ago. So far in December our U. S. Cystex sales are 27% ahead of a year ago."

Mr. Burgess, in elaborating on methods employed to develop this splendid business increase, said: "We attribute our increasing business to a more intelligent use of advertising this year than ever before in our past history. This year we have concentrated practically all of our advertising appropriation in the newspapers. Instead of scattering our fire in a lot of different advertising methods, we have put practically every dollar to work for us in newspapers, because they work fast and we can use them where our sales are best. Newspapers have co-operated in many different ways to make Cystex advertising more effective, and we owe them a debt of gratitude, which it shall be a pleasure to repay by increasing our Cystex advertising as time goes on."

Mr. Burgess further stated that his firm is now running Cystex newspaper advertising in more than 700 publications in the United States and Canada, as well as in the leading newspapers of Great Britain and other foreign countries. It is interesting to learn that the same advertising methods and policy of using newspapers is succeeding in foreign countries as well as it is in the United States and Canada.

Grain Prices Underwent Early Setback

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 8.—Grain prices underwent an early setback today, affected by stock market downturns and by wheat selling on the part of houses with eastern connections. Liverpool reported free offerings of Argentine wheat and increased Australian shipments to Europe. Opening 1-4-3-4 off, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started off 1-4 lower and continued to recede.

CADI WARNS YOUNG MAN
Discharging Firearms in City Limits Strictly Prohibited
Shooting rats on the city dump, although it may be a pleasing pastime, is not within the ordinance of the city by-laws. This was clearly shown this morning, when a local young man appeared before Magistrate Mikel on a charge of discharging fire arms within the city limits.
This practice of shooting off firearms on public dumps or within the city limits is quite dangerous, especially, if the gun or fire-arm is in the hands of a youth, who may not realize the range of the bullets proceedings. The local police have received strict orders to put a stop to this practice and Magistrate Mikel warned the young man and told him that he hoped that this would be a lesson to all, who have been in the habit of breaking the law.
His Honor let the young man go under a suspended sentence of one year in which time he is bound over to keep the peace.
In conversation with Chief Kidd, after police court, he assured the Ontario Intelligencer of the fact, that this practice must be stopped as it was not only dangerous pastime but the practice was endangering the lives of citizens, who might be in the neighborhood of the shooting.
There is a city by-law prohibiting the discharging of firearms within the city limits and it is the intentions of the police to enforce this law before a fatality occurs.
On Thursday afternoon P. C. Isard apprehended the young man in the dump and took from him a twelve gauge shot gun and nine spent shells. These were brought to the police station and given back to the young man this morning.

WANT AD BRINGS REQUIRED RESULT
Over 90 Applications Are Received and Still Coming
There are times when the results of casual insertions of want ads in the classified columns are graphically illustrated, and last evening's proved to be no exception.
Yesterday a man who was desirous of obtaining a young man for position of delivery truck driver inserted a notice in the "ad" column of this newspaper. An hour after the paper had been out several inquiries had come in relative to that particular position, and from thence on the calls came in with regularity and in a steady stream. This was followed by letters, which still pour into the office in a regularity and abundance, that is surprising to those, who had perhaps thought that after all a want ad was only a want ad, and was to be taken as such. Up to noon today over twelve the afternoon delivery of mail had been made there were ninety letters waiting for the man, who advertised for truck driver. Afternoon mail delivery will probably contain a larger amount than that. All of which would lead the most cynical to believe, that results can be obtained from the most widely read column of your family paper. It is thought, that the majority of these men answering this ad are at present working but wish to make a change.

U. S. DEMANDING CHINESE SOVEREIGNTY

U. S. Invokes Treaty Rights in Manchuria Notes to China, Japan

Clear Expression of United States Attitude in Wrangle

THREE TREATIES

Stand in Support of Integrity of China is Reiterated

WASHINGTON, January 8.—The United States Government on Thursday sent identical notes to the Japanese and Chinese Governments invoking its own rights and those of its citizens in Manchuria under the nine-power China treaty of 1922 and the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact. This action was taken in consequence of the passing of Chinese administrative authority in Manchuria, with the advance of the Japanese army to Chinchow and beyond in pursuance of the military operations begun on September 18, 1931.

The note was forceful in tone, yet restrained in language, and was officially described as a declaration, not protest. It dealt first with the nine-power treaty, although not by name, and with the open door policy of the late John Hay which that pact embodies and in its concluding sentence restated the pact of Paris, commonly known as the Kellogg Anti-War Treaty, the first invoked last fall jointly by the world powers, including the United States, by the invitation of the Council of the League of Nations.

So far as the relations of the United States Government's stand in support of the integrity of China and the open door was concerned, the note is in line with the one sent by President Hoover and Secretary Bryan on May 13, 1915 to Japan during its negotiations against the 21 demands made by the Chinese Government. It is clear that communication the Wilson Administration served notice that the rights of the United States must be observed.

The note transmitted today by Secretary Stimson asserted that the United States Government, although confident that the League commission of inquiry would facilitate a solution of the Manchurian problem, could not admit the legality of the de facto situation in Manchuria, nor did it intend to recognize any treaty or agreement between China or Japan, which might impair the treaty rights of the United States. This included, it was emphasized, any arrangements involving the industrial and administrative integrity, the sovereignty and independence of China, as well as the open door policy. Nor, it was added would the American Government recognize any situation treaty or agreement brought about in violation of the anti-war pact.

Coat of Constable Torn in Tussle

Front street mid section was a scene of excitement Thursday evening shortly after seven o'clock when more than a score of residents crowded around to watch Constable Gow, after considerable difficulty and hard tussle arrest Arthur Meeks, who was later booked as a drunk. Meeks, it is understood, has been town Wednesday afternoon and entered a billiard parlor and started to cause a fight with one of the employees. He was put out of the room and a kind resident took him home. Meeks stayed at his home for some time, later returned and as the writer saw it was in another quarrel, when he was arrested by the constable on the beat. It is claimed by the officer that Meeks was a belligerent customer and that he passed uncomplimentary remarks about the passers-by. He will be charged with intoxication. The constable's uniform was torn in the scuffle that ensued preceding the arrest.

C. —"After using the three doctors with no results I accidentally came across Dr. Pierce's Anuric and thought I would drop him a line," writes Mrs. Gladys Matthews of 1055 10th St., Box 360. "I had inflammation of the bladder and other troubles. After using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery Tablets directly after meals and Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets in doses of two or three between meals and bedtime I must say I am a different woman. I cannot say too much for Dr. Pierce's Anuric and have convinced a good many that it is worth trying."

TRADE PARLEY IN TROUBLE

Disagreements Slow Up Canadian-New Zealand Parley

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 7 (CP) — The Vancouver Star today published the following cable from Honolulu:

"Progress at the plenary session of the Canadian-New Zealand trade conference here has been checked considerably by attacks launched on the Canadian position from outside sources.

"W. Downie Stewart, head of the New Zealand delegation, has received a letter from Toronto criticizing Canada's objections. This followed receipt by Mr. Stewart of a copy of an obscure weekly newspaper, published in Vancouver, which also attacked the proposed preferential trade agreement.

"These attacks have stiffened the attitude of the New Zealand delegation considerably and have increased the complexities."

Epiphany Holiday May Be Illegal

OTTAWA, January 7.—Civil Service holidays such as the Epiphany, observed in the Civil Service on Wednesday, are to be considered anew by the Government. Closing Government offices on such days is said, is a violation of the law. The section which governs Service holidays says that the following and no others shall be observed: Sundays, New Year's Day, Good Friday, Easter Monday, Victoria Day, the King's Birthday, Dominion Day, Armistice Day, the day proclaimed for Thanksgiving or any like purpose, and Christmas.

There has been a flooding observance of the Epiphany. All Saints Day and the Immaculate Conception, for a long time they were holidays, then they were not observed, now, again, they are not only by special order, civic holiday in the same category, such orders, high authorities point out, really violate the law.

The Government will either see that the statute is enforced or else proceed to include these religious holidays.

Tribesmen in Hills Live to Reach 100 Years

MONTREAL, Jan. 8—According to a call to the people of the world from London, England, the English woman, Miss Jill Crossley Bait, has just returned from a visit to a Himalayan tribe in the heart of Tibet, who live to be centenarians.

Today she told of the strange customs of the people who declared to be the last tribes of the ancient Chaldean. "We were able to identify this race of people by their writings. The hieroglyphics are the same as those of the old Chaldeans.

"They live about a hundred and ten years and are a very hardy people without any trace of disease. They don't even have colds. They mostly eat vegetables and go down to the jungle in summer to get their food for the winter. They live at an altitude of 14,000 feet and left on earth and although the climate is also very cold they go about very scantily clad.

"They are white people and appear to belong to the cradle of civilization. It is possible that some Chaldean colonies years ago B.C. they moved away from their home in Mesopotamia and travelled to the Himalayan mountains.

"They continue to marry at the age of seventy-five or eighty. Their girls are attractive and have good figures and they wear their hair in a border down their backs. They know nothing of the use of cosmetics or perfumes. They do not shave their hair and a girl will wear a comb made of bamboo reed and the teeth of the yak. The culture of this tribe is more surprising in many ways than that of the western world. There is no nervous tension, the people being content and always lovers of splendid physical fitness. Their little boys and girls are fearless and could only be enticed to be photographed when a musical box was attached to the camera.

TWINS ATTEND PARTY TO MARK 80TH BIRTHDAY

Capt. David Mader and Stephen Mader Celebrate at Lunenburg

ARE TWINS

Both Were Seagoing Men in Their Early Life

Lunenburg, N.S. — Twin brothers, Captain David Mader of Mahone Bay and Stephen Mader of Lunenburg, were eighty years of age on December 26, so they celebrated the anniversary of their birth at a party. The gathering was held at the home of Stephen Mader's daughter, Mrs. Charles Dauphinee, Lunenburg, and friends and relatives from near and far attended to extend congratulations.

The twins were born at Mader's Cove, N.S., on December 26, 1851, sons of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mader. They are the only surviving members of a family of six boys and a girl.

Early in life both Stephen and David followed the sea. David, who signed with the crew of a sailing ship when he was thirteen years of age, rose rapidly to the position of captain and commanded vessels for many years. He retired ten years ago and settled in Mahone Bay.

Stephen's sea-going life started when he was seventeen years of age. About fifteen years ago he retired and is living on the old Mader's Cove. Recently he took up residence in Lunenburg with his younger daughter, Mrs. Dauphinee. Their daughter, Martha, is the late wife of Captain John Westhaver of Lunenburg.

By a strange coincidence the families of these twin brothers consisted of two daughters each, the wives of both families having been born in the same year and the younger girls having birthdays in the same year. Captain David Mader's daughters are Flo (Mrs. Chas. Dauphinee), Lunenburg, and Miss Laura Mader, at home.

For a number of years the twins have been celebrating their birthdays together, either at Lunenburg or Mahone Bay. Both are physically and mentally alert and take a keen interest in affairs of the communities in which they live.

MAKES BOMBS AS EXPERIMENT

Toronto, Jan. 8—Freeman was arrested as he left Eastern Technical School early in the afternoon since studied. According to police the youth also admitted he set off the bomb which damaged walls, doors and stores and broke the glass in Constable Gow's police car more than a week ago.

Freeman said he had no intention of injuring anyone or damaging property. He was especially interested in the construction of explosives and had made the bombs in the basement of his home.

Regarding the bomb found on the railroad tracks last night, Freeman said he dropped it over the bridge. It failed to explode because a "wing" dropped off in midair. He started to climb down to retrieve the missile but before he got there Orville Hoffstetter has picked it up. After talking to Hoffstetter for some time, he said, he advised him to throw it in the river as it might be dangerous to carry around. Hoffstetter took it to the police station.

Freeman used old nails and pieces of scrap iron in the construction of the bombs, purchasing powders at drug stores to make the explosive.

BRITAIN MAY ADOPT LIQUOR CONTROL PLAN

Cocktail Drinking on Increase Among Young People

BOARD FAVORED

Proposed Expansion of State Ownership of Public Houses

London, Jan. 8—The royal commission on liquor licensing has promised its report after two and a half years' investigation, recommending a national board to control licensers to control the British liquor trade. According to the commission's recommendations, such a body would be set up, and when set up, would be moved as far as possible from the control of Parliament or the Government.

In the present state of parliamentary business it is considered extremely unlikely that any action will be taken, any plans of the lengthy report, for a considerable time.

Perhaps the most surprising result of the commission's work, in view of the fact it consisted of men of widely different viewpoints, was its production of what is virtually a unanimous report.

Other recommendations were for the experimental expansion of state ownership of public houses, more rapid reduction in the number of licenses, election control of clubs and a gun eral closing time of 10 p.m. It also suggested public education in the schools on the subject of liquor should be considered.

The man in the street will regard the 10 p.m. curfew recommendation as the most interesting. The only amendment that looks to keep restaurants serving bona fide meals might serve liquors until midnight. Present closing is 11, and Sunday in both sides resent the discrepancy which allows diners at 11 and being overwhelmed at 10.30 by midnight thirst by the fellow commissioners.

Considerable opposition will be encountered by the proposal to close the Soho district's licensed houses at 11 p.m.

Lord Gorell, chairman of the commission, who was Secretary for Air in the Labor Government and the first National Government after the death of Lord Thomson and the R-101 disaster, was entertained at luncheon by his fellow commissioners to mark the close of their labors. He has been with the establishment of the commission on September 1, 1929.

During the whole investigation, the report states, no witness suggested Prohibition as a solution, the proposal for application at this time to the British Isles. The commission did not discuss the merits or demerits of Prohibition.

The report says the cocktail habit is growing among women, those of both sexes, but since much of the cocktail drinking is done in private homes nothing can be done about that.

There is scathing criticism for inns and their inn-keepers, of which the report declares that the public is ill-served," expressing surprise that more waiting rooms in the country "has done so little to meet the demand, who bear the brunt of the business."

7000 Fox Skins Shipped to England

QUEBEC, Jan. 8.—During the past few days 7,000 fox skins have been shipped from here to the Old Country to be placed on sale on the English fur market, according to information given out today at the office of the Co-Operative Fur Animal Raisers of the Province of Quebec. While the value of the skins is not yet ever sent out from here, is valued at $200,000 and consists only of skins of the best quality.

In the face of orders on hand at present, Thursday night, officials say that an additional 13,000 skins will be placed on foreign markets in the very near future.

Suspicious Position of Car Sends Motorist in Flight

JUST GUARDS

A system of surveillance that would do credit to the most efficient organization of police in the world is now in force in the penitentiary surrounding Kingston as search for being conducted through out the contents of the vans and still being confined for the man, Gordon Calvert of this county, who escaped from the penitentiary at Portsmouth some time last Wednesday morning.

Every transport truck that piles between Kingston and Belleville is stopped by the scout cars who are cruising the road and exhaustive search is being conducted through out the contents of the vans and still being confined for the man, Gordon Calvert of this county, who escaped from the penitentiary at Portsmouth some time last Wednesday morning.

Last evening a resident of the city who had been doing some business in Kingston all that day started for home at a very late hour. Nearing Bath he noticed that he noticed a car stopped at right angles to the road as if it were hiding from approaching cars. At this season of the year no one would be could not understand. Nearing the parked car he noticed several men in it, and he became suspicious of their actions. He next move was to step on the gas and tear past them at as fast a speed as the old Ford was capable of and even though he did hear a command to halt he did not stop but gave the speed no one kns. Further on however, he noticed that they were catching up to him so he promptly slackened up and waited for them to come up. However, he soon realized that matters were groundless; it was not a holdup but just some of the guards from the penitentiary who insisted on looking through the car before he was allowed to proceed. The rest of the journey was soon made without further interruption.

District Combed for Trace of Fugitive

KINGSTON, Jan. 8—An inten-sive and unremitting and virtually all avenues of escape from the city are believed closed up. Cars were stopped and inquiries made as to the occupants, so far as to whether any trace of the man had been seen, but up till a late hour last night the search party had received nothing that could be considered a clue.

Provincial Police at Belleville are making a careful search of the district around Trenton Junction, figuring that the fugitive might decide to hide in the district which he knows

JUST GUARDS

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 8 — Governor Albert C. Ritchie, for many years spoken of as a possible Democratic presidential nominee, today threw aside his cloak of retirement and, for the first time ,openly spoke of himself as a candidate for that honor.

Delivering himself of a scathing denunciation of what he called the "Republican ovation, inflation and blundering in Washington," he declared he "would be proud" to carry the banner of the Democratic party in the elections next November.

STORK REMOVES BOY'S ANXIETY

Young Lad Inquires After Parents Who Left Home

Halifax, N.S. Jan. 8—Twas a case of sights after Christmas. All was quiet in the subterranean corridors of Halifax Police Station; the telephone rang with its customary suddenness.

A boy's voice asked: "Say, would you mind sending some policeman out here to look for my mother and father? They left the house after midnight and haven't come back yet. I've been getting on in the small hours.

Halifax Police have been called on many times to look for errant husbands and daughters, but the request for assistance in locating runaway parents created a precedent. Station Officer Howard Smith passed the word along to Sergeant Mitchell, who reported on the quest.

Again the phone rang. "All right, mister," said the boy, his voice eager again.—"I just got a message from Dad. He's down at the Grace Maternity Hospital with mother and a baby girl (sister). Sergeant Mitchell was called back

Two Months' Term Given For Fraud

Stratford, Ont., Jan. 8.—On a charge of obtaining money under false pretences Joseph Horan, was sentenced to two months in jail as he had pleaded guilty to the court before Magistrate J. A. Malone in city police court Thursday morning.

An odd story is told surrounding the charge against Horan. Acting Crown Attorney John Murray told the court that he received what just been released from jail on Saturday, where he had spent twenty days on a drunk charge.

In the cell he became acquainted with a young man, Mr. Murray narrated, who gave the accused a letter, asking the girl friend when he released. The police allege that Horan went to the girls home with the story that if he would raise $50 he could get his release at her boy friend through Mr. Murray.

He had $45 and only needed $2. Believing he had a soft snap she gave him the money. The hours passed and the promised to question did not appear and the police were notified subsequently.

OSHAWA MAN NOT CALVERT

Police Shown Photograph of Calvert so State

Oshawa, Ont., Jan. 8—The bandit who took two men for a ride in an automobile Wednesday, robbed them and then held up a drug store, is not Gordon Calvert, who escaped Wednesday from Portsmouth penitentiary and is still at large.

Oshawa police and victims of the bandits were positive photographs of Calvert, sent here yesterday from the penitentiary were not those of the hold-up man. A. Atkinson and S. Webster, local hackers, were taken for a ride by the bandit, and robbed at the point of a gun. The thief stole Webster's car and shortly after held up Erwin Johnson's drug store and stole $70. Highways in the vicinity of Oshawa have been closely watched since last night but all traces of the bandit are lacking.

A HERITAGE

The late Sir George Foster left one heritage among many others to the people Canada, the story of his achievement as a man who when over the age of seventy learned to speak French fluently. It was the Peace Conference, he first felt the need of a knowledge of the language and sweet to work.

This accomplishment has two messages the Canadian people. First the need of a study of French because for all time a large proportion of the people of this area are to be French-speaking (most of them by the way, speaking English as well). It would appear the part of wisdom for the English-speaking population should know the French tongue and be able to speak it with fluency.

The other is the accomplishment. Men of seventy usually think they have time only to dream and ruminate upon the long ago past. Not so Sir George Foster who could shame the man of thirty, forty, sixty, by his conquest of a tongue foreign to him at a time when he was past the Biblical three score and ten. Men would make an effort to keep their minds flexible as Sir George did.

TRIUMPHANT

Getting news under difficulties to the reading public which is everywhere finds willing men and women who are ready to work for the welfare of communities, even the backwoods have their papers and now the latest arrival is a frontier sheet in Saskatchewan. It is the newest frontier settlement, the most northerly in Saskatchewan. Here is real pioneering according with the days of the early settlers. No abandoned dried-out farms in Saskatchewan, loaded their belongings on prairie schooners to seek fresh lands. The new paper is called "The Progress." It is published in a log cabin and Cleo Laporte is owner, editor, advertising manager, circulation manager, reporter and proof reader. He manages to give the wide world news of men in his cabin home in their new homeland. A boy of seventeen runs the typesetting machine and Mrs. Laporte is associate editor. Merchants appreciate the value of publicity and send in their pay for advertising space in the old style of barter, with carcasses, other game from the forest and products from the homesteads.

Surely this is one of the best proofs of the spirit of the true frontier of the newspaperman. If newspapers were not appreciated, Laporte would never have had a start. He would have had no backing. But Laporte knows people must have news and they get it through him in his part of the world.

THE SALT IN THE HAY

Again the ways of our fathers are being found to have been guided by wisdom. Farmers today storing hay in their barns have largely forgotten the old old method of putting three or four quarts of salt per ton of hay as it is being pitched to the mows. Today it has been pretty fairly indicated that salt is a deterrent to spontaneous combustion and it is now believed on no less authority than Fire Marshal Heaton that many fires which in past and present years have been the rends of dollars worth of crops might have been prevented had a liberal supply of salt been used.

Some up-to-the-minute folk might be putting salt on hay was a mark of simplicity that had to be outgrown but others because it was a custom and that hence showed no value in the method. The statistics show that it has taken thousands of fires all over certain sections of the country to rivet attention upon this very simple remedy and inexpensive one.

It has been shown that it is unwise to ition all the old customs, the old ways, cause they are old. Much may not have been able to explain them but the cts are there staring the present generain the face. Much of the old medical atment had a body of truth in them hich the medical fraternity today real- as very important in the battle of vention and cure when human health d lives are at stake.

Don't let the present generation for- the salt in the hay!

NEWSPAPER WORLD'S LOSS

Toronto has suffered a heavy within two days in the deaths of J. K. ano, baronet manager at Ottawa, and ng B. Monro, editor of the Star. Both en made his mark on that paper. Their s will be keenly felt in the newspaper dship world and by newspapermen.

The Telegram has always been mark- by directness and outspokenness. The ndividuality has always been marked and s attitude was due largely to the late tor, who carried on the John Ross Robertson tradition in the city. He was an forial writer of power and possessed a ative pen, and could deal a heavy blow en called upon, though his style is said have lacked the broadsword sweep of father, being more rapierlike.

J. K. Munro knew political life in ada from his close intimacy with the ders of political thought at the capital was able to put into his stories from ilamentary Hill the wide experience of an and shrewd newspaperman.

MY LIVES

By Aline Michaelis

In looking back upon my lives
(For I've had more than one)
I find a bit of each survives,
Yet part of all is gone.

My first life was a shining thing,
As lovely as the morn—
My child life, gay as redbird's wing,
A rose unvexed by thorn.

My life in youth was like a star
Above the mists of Earth,
Too wonderful for aught to mar.
Untouched by pain or dearth.

And then, this life which floods my breast,
Full, satisfying, new—
This life, worth more than all the rest
Because it brings me to you.

"IT IS DIFFICULT for us to realize that this clever journalist, this prince of good fellows and sportsman, has passed into another world," said the officiating clergyman at the obsequies of John K. Munro, parliamentary correspondent of the Toronto Telegram. J. K. couldn't have asked for a better eulogy. Very appropriately, too, the clergyman read those lines of a Canadian newspaperman whose poetically expressed wish was that ere he died he might write to God's praise "one radiant ringing line." The lines read by the clergyman were from "The Scribe's Request," as follows:

When from my fumbling hand the tired pen falls,
And in the twilight weary droops my head:
When to my silent heart the still voice calls,
Calls me to join my kindred of the dead,
Then if I may, oh Lord, ere rest be mine,
Write to Thy praise one radiant ringing line.

Obituary writers seek for the best features in the lives and characters of those they write about, and ignore the less likable kind, but with J. K. Munro's life, character and disposition, it was all sunshine. He liked his life work, he liked his friends, and his sunny disposition warmed all with whom he came in contact. His splendid sense of humor made his own life bright and pleasant as well as the lives of those around him — he was indeed "a prince of good fellows."

WEST OF VICTORIA AVENUE in a Front street store a customer was negotiating for a pair of rubbers on credit. His line of talk did not seem to take and he became angry. "Don't my face look good to you?" he said. "Well, it might look good to your self, but your money looks better to me," said the merchant. Negotiations ceased right there and the rubber chaser passed on to the next store. Here he purchased a pair of rubbers for $1.30, tendered a two-dollar bill and got seventy cents in change. He ventured to talk to the proprietor, and took a seat on the counter. Other customers came in and the merchant, who had on a green shade on the back of the store to display some goods. When he came back to the front of the way, Britain could not possibly be worse off.

KNOW AT TWILIGHT

A prisoner of pain, I lie and wait.
The delicate magic you may set at bay
Beyond my windows, though the sullen day
With clouds low hanging seeks as if to take
To muffle up your beauty and to shake
Your one brief hour of sovereignty.
So gray,
So dark it is, you well might cast away
Your wand ere noon be gone, and drowse too late.

Now evening hovers; the ashen web of trees
Blends with a heaven of ashes, then fades from sight.
Where swift the magic; in foam-
frail tracories,
In slaty course or cold ethereal
white
The enchanted wood its hidden beauty frees—
A Cobbie vision flowering on the night.

Other Papers' Opinions

ENTITLED TO NO LENIENCY

Many strange decisions come out of the U.S. courts, where judges are elected to office. Oklahoma will read with amazement the comment of a Long Island judge in quashing a recent conviction of a man charged with drunken driving. He expressed the opinion that the more people become better drivers, just as they become better men, under moderate stimulation."

It is quite as well as a peculiar view and there will be few indeed who will agree with it. Liquor is nowhere so much out of place as in the persons of men or women in charge of a motor car. Public opinion in this country is becoming more severe against the individual who endangers the lives of others by taking the wheel of a car while under the influence of liquor. And rightly so. The driver who injures or takes the life of another person as a result of an accident for which intoxication was responsible is entitled to no sympathy and no leniency.—Toronto Telegram.

MORE ANGELIC SENTIMENTS

Sir Norman Angell—who is the young gentleman who told us just before 1914 that Europe could not fight a war of more than a few weeks' duration because her financial structure would break down—is launching a two months lecture tour in the United States which bids fair to be as futile as the thought quite equal to the above in importance. For instance, he points it a point against the British Navy that it did not prevent the illicit pumping of gold out of the Bank of England in peace time. There is no doubt that the Navy could and did it prevent the invasion of Great Britain during the war, but that aspect by some very extraordinary, not to say devastating, reasoning.

The American Navy, it seems, is equally derelict. "The foreigner" has had some direct experience of American money. "A good part of that vast sum should be in the Navy chest. "But why doesn't your navy," asked Sir Norman, "go and get it from them?" This is not an extract from "Alice in Wonderland." It is a serious lecture by a man of reputation for which the Americans are presumably paying a considerable and good money. Clearly, they are bound to lose by "the Navy" and that we never guise be comes.—Montreal Star.

A MIGHTY "IF"

One of the hobbies of modern historians is to speculate on what might have happened if this or that event in history if some epochal decision had been reversed or never would have been made. What if Leonidas had not opposed the Persians at the Pass of Thermopylae? What if the British had not lost the United States, war of independence, which Edmund Burke Bluchar had not come to help Wellington and Napoleon at Waterloo? These are weighty "ifs" of history.

An equally big "if" was injected by Dr. Harry Almer Barnes, in some comment of his on Viscount Grey of Fallodon's memoirs. He says that the claim that Britain went into the war because Belgian neutrality was violated has now been disloged. Britain refused to guarantee Belgian neutrality in return for a German promise to keep out of Belgium. Viscount Grey's memoirs show that his notion of British interests that really led Britain into the war with Russia, and he is on record as saying to Walter Hines Page: "My God Mr. Page, what else could we do?"

A whole book could be hung upon this mighty "if". Yet it would be a profitless excursion into historical speculation. The fact protrudes itself that Britain did not stay neutral, however. Even the Kaiser in Count Gipsy's "My God, what else could we do?" policy and the disastrous one is forced to conclude that has the opponents of the war in this way, Britain could not possibly be worse off.

The moral that stands forth is the old one—that war is disastrous to nations and mankind alike. The next one will be disastrous to civilization itself, and the only and greater service than to help remove the causes of war. When they have done that they will have removed the causes of depression too—Ottawa Citizen.

"THE ART OF LIVING TOGETHER," in harmony and good fellowship, as outlined by Ven. Archdeacon Fotheringham to the Rotary Club Monday, would make a profitable study for all of us in beginning the new year as a progressive step toward peace on earth and good will to men, in community life, in national life, and in international relations. Such a study is necessary if the war to end all war is not to be a colossal failure as a peace promoter.

A. In the name of a brother or sister, preferably married.

Q. May a person point to a dish he wishes passed to him?

A. No; if the name cannot be called, glance at the dish and a well-trained waiter will know one's wishes.

I heard that you were up against it, Mac?
"Aye! Just a rumour. I'm having a little holiday. A man can't look too well. You have to look after your appearance."
"By the way, you made any connection yet? I was talking to the Old Man yesterday. We've got something that would suit the right operator. The Old Man mentioned you but said that he needed one with a lot of confidence. He told me to look around and make sure. About it, Mac?"
"I've got something on the hook right now but I'm willing to pass it up for a better thing. I'd like to work with you people. What is it?"
"Listen, come on up to the office this afternoon and we'll go over it. I must rush. See you this afternoon, Jay, aren't you listening? What are you looking at?"
Mavin smiled vaguely. He had suddenly felt a little dizzy weak. It had happened very quickly.
"Nothing, Jay. I was just looking at the sunshine," he said.

Looking at the Sunshine

by Jameson Field

For some time after he awoke, Mavin lay in his bed, eyes closed, basking in the warmth of realization of his position, the morning gloom. Then suddenly, memory, it did not come. Lastly, he opened one eye. Of course! A new morning!

He was aware for the first time, acutely aware, of sunshine. Alma, his wife had hung new chintz curtains of a wood-smoke blue across the windows. The sun of June was coming through them in a delicately tinted fire. The room in which he had sat through such hours of despair welcomed its newly-awakened occupant.

From the kitchenette he heard its sharp feet of Alma bustling with the breakfast. She was not a little miffed. Coffee! Flinging back the bedclothes and scooping out of himself in the bureau mirror. Curious! No lines in his face and his hair was almost boyishly. He looked healthy. Doctor Newman had a foot and leather for his worry, diet and despondency. Navin had never felt better in his life. This was going to be a good day.

Later, sitting at the breakfast table, he watched Alma. Her face flushed with the morning energy and looking so much like the little blonde beauty he had married seven years ago. She had put on a freshly starched housedress that crackled as she moved, and white slippers. He felt a sudden surge of tenderness and he kissed her with an unusual emotion. She blushed and seemed amazed as it used to when he was a little boy and his mother had given him to him in a chocolate bowl. He had forgotten the sweetness and warmth of Alma. "I feel as though something were going to happen," he said. "Something good. When I come home tonight have the flags flying to welcome little Alma's successful warrior. Everything's going to be all right. The old man is himself this morning."

She smiled at him again. "Some thing is going to happen I think, unless we get a break. You might come home to find all the furniture piled up outside the house. The man was around again about the rent."

"Don't talk to me of mortgages. This is no time for worrying. I have a strength of that I think we should plunge. How would you like a new dress?"

"Would I? What with? Do you know—"

"I know nothing. We'll get you a new dress today."

From force of habit, he went to the garage to get his car. The insurance company had repossessed it during the night. Navin walked to the corner and caught a street car.

"Well——what have I got legs for?"

There was no daunting him that day. It was a long walk downtown. Merchants engaged in the process of preparing the store for another day of business paused to watch him. He seemed like a good omen. He stood beside a sporting goods store to examine a display of fleet shafted golf clubs. An alert clerk enticed him into the store. He spent five minutes practising swings and stances. They were good clubs. He would buy a couple tomorrow. His chatted golf with another prospective customer. Business was business. They agreed that an amateur golf match should be developed make a champion.

"You going my way? I'll drive you downtown."

Navin muttered something about walking the rest of the way. The man of business would not permit it. They discussed the depression while driving. Reaching the cloth trade block, Navin announced that to make a graceful exit said that he must order a summer suit and would be delighted if he would join him there. The man of business gave Navin his card and asked him to come to lunch with him at his club. Navin left the telephone him. Then he drove away wishing that he could blow around like this every morning instead of being tied to his trust company.

Outside the tailor's, Navin ridden the crest of the morning decided to take his embarrass right across the board. He was one of the best shops in town. The display window had a coat of arms and a figure of a knight dressed in a black armour. They were also the best shop in town they didn't have to advertise their wares.

Inside the tailor's, a courteous clerk, "is the best thing we have in an Angelo fancies. Chest is a bit high but the material is worth it."

That will do. I'd like you to push this job too. I'd like to have it for the week-end."

He stood on a pedestal while they measured him. They were obsequious. They were servile. Would he like this? Would he like that? Certainly, sir! Leave that to Joe. And to whom shall we charge it? Thank you very much, Mr. Navin.

Coming out into the sunshine again, someone hailed him. Chap Evans, once his business competitor and junior partner in the biggest cotton brokerage in the city.

"How do you do it, Jimmy? Buying your clothes at Crosier's. Why, you must be making a fortune. Or is it that you're going to be married?"

"Not? Just a rumour. I'm having a little holiday. A man can't look too well. You have to look after your appearance."

"By the way, you made any connection yet? I was talking to the Old Man yesterday. We've got something that would suit the right operator. The Old Man mentioned you but said that he needed one with a lot of confidence. He told me to look around and make sure. About it, Mac?"

"Listen, come on up to the office this afternoon and we'll go over it. I must rush. See you this afternoon, Jay, aren't you listening? What are you looking at?"

Navin smiled vaguely. He had suddenly felt a little dizzy weak. It had happened very quickly.

"Nothing, Jay. I was just looking at the sunshine," he said.

Mid-Winter Applecart Laden with Best Fruit of Season
No Jute Bags, but Crates, Baskets, Paper Receptacles

In response to a questionaire sent out by the economics branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, to large numbers of consumers, in connection with the study of apple production, marketing and consumption, a great diversity of information was obtained, tabulated and percentaged.

More than half the retail buyers of fruit in Montreal believe apples to be more expensive than bananas, and less than 20 per cent. think the latter two fruits as less expensive than apples and about 20 per cent. class than unfavorably with bananas in respect to price.

In both the communities mentioned the six quart basket is the popular container for apples, 40 per cent of the earlier apples and 20 per cent of the winter varieties being sold in this way.

Another question, "Why do you not use more apples?" was asked. The replies overwhelmingly indicated that the purchasers consider they are being all they can and all they desire to use.

Answers to another phase of the questionaire relative to limitation of household storage indicates that this has little bearing in the lack of apple purchases, 61 per cent reporting available space for one or more barrels and 18 per cent. on reporting no storage.

Questioning vendors of apples on the Belleville market, the reporter found the greater number thereof, of apples sold here is in the six or eleven quart baskets or by the peck and half peck. The bushel hamper or crate has a volume of sale but would not be more than 10 per cent of the total sales. Apple pie restaurateurs buy this size package. As to barrelled apples they are rarely to be seen on the local market, dealers here and elsewhere in Ontario being unanimous in their opinion that the handling of barrels, the bruising of the fruit and subsequent early decay having eliminated these articles as commercial packages.

Apples are relatively cheaper this season than those of a year ago, brought the information, that probably there were more apples grown this season, and that purchases were in smaller amounts. Spies are retailing from 5 cents each to 3 cents or 5 to 10 cents less in the smaller quantities.

Buyers last fall, of which only a small percentage kept the best of their crop, in hope of realizing more by offering apples locally throughout the winter. Those are now wintering well, and the fruit now offered for sale is in the prime condition, and over a basket of Northern Spies recently it was found they cost the purchaser about 1 cent a piece.

Apple prices at present per bushel are: Spies $1.00-1.30; Sweets, $1.00—1.50; Baldwins and Greenings, $1.50; Stark Delicious, $1.75; McIntosh Reds and Isle Snows, $1.25.

As to old time quantities and keeping, the suggestion is offered that the method of heating of houses with furnaces keep the cellars warmer, and that in the newer residential cellars are not divided as heretofore, with the consequence that apples pucker, wither, dry or rot with far greater rapidity than when in the old time dirt floor basements.

BANQUET ENDS FALL SERIES OF BOWLING

Belleville Fruit Winners Supply Eats For Guests

VERY SUCCESSFUL

Tony Morrell High Average of 223 and D. Doran High Single 357

Closing their Fall Bowling League in a manner quite fit for the occasion, the members of the Major Bowling League enjoyed an evening's bowling, which finished with a banquet, at the Recreation Alleys last night.

The Fall league has enjoyed a very successful season and the players were all present at this auspicious event. The bowling was handled by Manager Leo Barrett while the refreshments, at the banquet, were donated by the Belleville Fruit bowling team, the winners of the league.

During the evening the President of the league, Mr J. Legault, spoke a few words to the members of the Major league and assured them of a similar success in their coming winter league. Secretary Treasurer, Pal Truman, then read the final averages for the season's play, many of which were somewhat surprising. Manager Leo Barrett, of the Recreation Alleys, was called upon for a few words and responded in his usual humorous manner.

After the speech-making plans were made for the coming Winter League to be known to be the best six teams. In the Fall League finished, the Fruit team and Pals were victorious after a bitter scramble, which in which all the teams were very evenly matched.

The Major League will start a new section about January 18th, 1932 and they were assured, last night, of a real live bowling league before last night's meeting drew to a close.

The Belleville Fruit team, winners of the fall league, constituted the following players—Tony Morrell, Pal Belmo, Reg. Pepper, Jim Simpson, Louis Rossetti and Patsie Olando. The high average score, for 30 games, was won by Tony Morrell with an average score of 223. The high single score, during the league was hung up by Dan Doran with a score of 357. Lad Shiels was the winner of the high three string with a total of 969. All of these records were established during league games.

The banquet was put up by all assuring the Belleville Fruit team and Leo Barrett, that they all enjoyed themselves to the utmost and wishing the Winter League every success.

TWO OVERTIME GAMES PLAYED

Pittsburg Defeats Windsor and Stars Tie With Detroit

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP) — Two rugged overtime games one of which ended in a 2-all stalemate and the other, won by Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets a 2-0 victory over the strong Windsor Bulldogs rounded out the program in the International Hockey League last night.

After holding the smoke eaters scoreless for the regulation sixty minutes the border entry weakened under the relentless pressure in the extra session and watched the Jackets run in the winning counter. While the Pittsburgh aggregation were gaining revenge for their shutout in Windsor earlier in the week, the Detroit Cubs managed to divide points with Detroit's second place Olympics.

Current Sport

By The Observer

Friday night, the evening long waited for by local hockey fans, has arrived. There is a certain amount of kick or thrill about the opening of any league that seems to grasp the fans and hold them like a spell. Well, to say the least, it is all event, as it only happens once a year, and anything that is an annual is fair game for something that should be of interest to those who follow the particular line of sport.

Due to the recent mild spell the locals have had the advantage of a little more practice than their opponents from Campbellford. But, we understand, that this Hydro Town boys have pulled a fast one on the management of Oshawa for secret practice on artificial ice. There is nothing authentic to this rumor but, we have it from a very good source and are handing it down to the sport fans of this district. If the Campbellford team have been practicing in Oshawa they must have had some very fine artificial backing to make such trips for a mere practice. They were invited to practice in Belleville but the management of the latter, in Campbellford, thought that the local hockey people might get a peek at their pets. The local management have not thought along these lines when they invited them for a few days practice each night. We wonder if the Northerners really have anything to hide?

As we mentioned the probable lineups for the game the other night, there is no necessity in repeating them but merely to say that a few changes in them will be staged at the Belleville Arena Gardens tonight.

The first restrictions were placed on the sized and model of automobiles that will be allowed to that any old stick would do.

In pre-civil war days in the United States, the old fashioned mud was called a "squaw," a name that was not changed until the 70's.

Harry Robinson dropped into the office the other day long enough to inform us that he was arranging for an inter-city hockey bout between Belleville and Kingston boxers. The bouts are to be staged in Kingston around the 31st of the month. Robinson has seven boxers in his stable, who he is willing to take to Kingston for the bouts, the youngest one being the Belleville junior bantam champion, Dougie Robinson.

The other six boys to be taken along, are Scotty Kilos, weight 147 pounds; Chas. Seamark, weight 138 lbs.; Jack Parks, weight 134 lbs.; Buddy Fraser, of Napanee, weight 139 lbs., Art Angell, weight 138 lbs., and Gordie Morris, weight 118 lbs.

This would make a very nice fight card if the Belleville boys are matched with Kingstonians of their own weight. The best boxers are training faithfully to get in the perfect condition for the proposed bouts and they can be seen daily working out at the Y.M.C.A. gym.

If this inter-city bout is a success in the Limestone City it is expected that a return bout will be staged in Belleville at some future date. Kingston has not been a boxing bent in Belleville in quite some time and we think the time is about ready for a fight card to be presented to the sporting fans of this district.

Reggie McNamara, veteran of the six-day bike riders, has just finished his 73rd event and peculiarly slept less than the fans who sat up to watch his efforts. McNamara believes four or five hours' sleep a night is enough for any man in the best of training, but attributes his durability to the fact that he knows what and when to eat.

Lenz Reduces Culbertsons' Lead

(BY TOM O'NEIL)

New York, Jan. 8—A sensation in the bone stretch by Sidney Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr. left Ely Culbertson's side only 9,770 points ahead today in the contract bridge match, it was end tonight with the playing of the last six of the 150 rubbers.

By the largest gain of any session in the series Lenz and Liggett reduced Culbertson's plus last night to the lowest figure it has been since before Christmas. Culbertson and a new partner of one night, Howard Schenken, a New York importer, won only one of the rubbers played and added only 80 points in that. They failed to score in two rubbers.

The rubber standing of the series became 74 for Culbertson and 70 for Lenz. The points, 118,340 for Culbertson and 109,470 for Lenz.

To-night war effectively we may consider, by some means, between the intense economic tension.—William C. McAdoo.

CANADA'S OUTSTANDING JEWISH ATHLETE

Not many Jewish athletes ever take the time to be outstanding. There are far too few in baseball, only an occasional one in football, and not more than a half dozen in hockey. The most outstanding Jew in hockey player in the National Hockey League, or any other league for that matter, is none other than Alex. Levinsky, star defenceman with the Toronto Maple Leafs. Strange enough, Alex. can also claim to be one of the few American born stars in the same league, having been born in the daylight in Syracuse, New York, the same town that gave Montreal, Warren Stevens. But like Fred Lorz, one of his life right here in Canada. He has been often said that Alex. is called "Mine boy" by the fans. His second name is Lazy but is very much interested in the welfare of his athletic son, and is proud to relate to all and sundry stories of Alex' prowess. When he does, it is usually, false boy Alex did not. The fans took it up from the sport writers, and the appellation will probably stick as long as he is in hockey. And just by the way, the Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball team are planning to give Alex a try next year when they go south. Mine Boy has been cavorting around the Toronto Amateur baseball diamonds for a number of years, and has caught the eye of the Leaf's scouts. There is no doubt that he will give the same earnest endeavour to this sport that he gives to hockey,—whether or not he makes the grade. Perhaps he will develop into a second Vince Barton, who knows? At any rate, he is one of the most popular players in the N.H.L., almost all over the circuit for his exceptionally clean play—to say nothing of his clever defensive tactics and dangerous rushes.

RIVALS HOOK UP IN BATTLE

Opening Game Will Be Hard and No Doubt Cleanly Fought

All is ready for Referee "Buster" Hartley to ring his bell and set the wheels of hockey in motion for the year 1932 tonight.

The advance sale of tickets has excelled the expectations of the B.A.A.A. The price of the tickets for tonights game have been set so that all may be privileged to witness the opening struggle of the current intermediate season. Both teams finished training last night and according to reports are in the very best physical condition possible. The outcome now awaits the final score of tonight.

The local hockey promises to be one of real interest as the feeling among the players, as well as the fans, is running high. Quite naturally the fans are interested in Ken Davis and will welcome the chance of seeing him perform against his old team mates. "Buster" Watson, the clever Campbellford player from Deseronto, always had a number of admirers in Belleville and they are quite anxious to see the "pint" in O.H.A. ranks.

No introduction to a Belleville audience is needed for players like Harry and Jack Hagarty, Cowell, MacKay and MacArthur as they have played for Belleville during a number of years. The Northerners are also strengthened by a few men from Peterboro and a "dark horse" left winger from Quebec. Bill Hall will be in the line up of the visitors and a merry battle is promised by the fans in this opening game.

Belleville, on the other hand, have been practicing faithfully, under the watchful eye of Manager Jack Hagarty and are in a little better condition than their rivals from the north, it is thought. Although the locals have not announced his starting line-up it is believed that they will consist of Tice, in goal; Morris, and Wet or Dry, defence pair; Hagarty and Shannon relieving them or perhaps Hagarty himself will do his share of work. The forwards will be picked from Bert Sine, Ken Davis, Dalgleish and Bill, Sr. Denis, Hull, Morgan and Cowell, another player who is yet unnamed.

In all it looks like the greatest hockey season that the fans of this town have had the privilege of seeing in many years and they are determined to make the night one to be remembered by the sports and hockey in Belleville is the whole-hearted support that they will be given tonight.

So as to accommodate the sport fans in the northern part of the county the game will not be called until 8.30 p.m. so as to give them a chance to get into town for the battle of battles.

Weddings

ARMSTRONG— HAYES

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 5.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at All Saints' Anglican church on Tuesday, January 5, 1932, when Rev. H. Ions united in the holy bonds of matrimony Elizabeth Armstrong, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Hayes, to George Ernest Armstrong, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Armstrong, Madoc, Ontario. The pretty church was decorated for the church on the arm of her father Mr. G. S. Hayes, while the wedding march was being played by Miss Dorothy Ions. The bride looked lovely in her wedding gown fashioned with an embroidered veil which fell to the floor and a shower bouquet of orange blossoms and long white veil, gloves and shoes completing the costume. Her bouquet was a shower of Sweetheart roses, maiden hair fern and carnations.

Little Miss Irene German had the honor of acting as flower girl, looking sweet in an old fashioned dress of pale pink crepe de chine. Miss Phyllis Hayes, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, looking very pretty in a dress of taffeta, made on long graceful lines, the hues and shades of the old fashioned sweetheart roses and maidenhair fern. Miss Hayes carried a bouquet of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

The bridal party stood under an archway of evergreen holly, while the flower-bearing attendants were pink and white carnations and fern.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Hayes, Church street for about 35 guests, Mr. G. S. Hayes, brother of the bride, proposed the toasts in a lovely gown of black lace over black satin, fashioned with a V. K. Armstrong, mother of the bridegroom, wore a becoming dress of black lace and georgette.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a sterling silver tea set, the bride's gift to the groom a Masonic ring. The bridesmaid received a white gold bracelet set with emeralds, the best man military brushes, the little flower girl a gold cross pendant ring.

The happy young couple left on the 5.30 train to spend their honeymoon in Toronto and points east. The bride donned a black and beige crepe dress, black coat with beige fur trimmed, black and silver hat, slipper and gloves to match.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong Orr, and Mrs. J. Fortune, Galt, Ont.

Intricate Sleeves Change Silhouette

Beauty by Helen Jamieson (Mme. Qui Vive)

No longer will the waist line a burning question. It is settled for the time being at its natural level. One of the human equator where Mistress Nature decided to place it. The pudgy ones whose waist lines stubbornly nip out, instead of sipping in, are roiling on the floor, going through calesthenic performances or wrenched to either them over to willow-like shreads. The length of skirt is also an old story. The question that holds the fort right now is sleeves. It is the slenderest season since grandma got married, put on her taffeta going-away gown and started to dole out of her mutton-le arm casings.

These new decorative and deliciously tout sleeves are at once charming and dangerous. They do more to change the outline of the feminine form than the cannon frock burer can possibly imagine. Chic, charming and sassy are these coverings for feminine fin on the right woman. As there are dozens of infinite variety, there is a sleeve mode for every one of Eve's daughters. So don't despair.

One of those "little models" that carry big price tags, we observed to-day in the Ritz was a diaphanous sleeve. The top portion normally from the elbow a full ruffle extending down over a fitted undersleeve that covered the back of the hand. For what strapped femme was that designed? Never for the plumpuditicous one but for the extremely tall and slender lady. Pullmen anywhere isn't for the rubenna frame.

We expect of course that the short puff at the arm hole, a mere fragment of a sleeve, will find favor in the eyes of your shoulders and slender arms for the reason that it will suggest the sleeve without it not suited to the stem-faced dame or the dowager who hasn't minded her calories, has gone prone to adipose. However, one never knows. Dresses do find the strangest anatomical homes!

The set in or raglan sleeve does not increase the width of the shoulders and is, therefore, not the proper cut for the darling whose chest is not following a policy of expansion. The further the arm hole extends downward, the greater the appearance of width across the upper part of the body. In contrast, then, the more tapering the waist appears to be.

More important than fabric, more important even than color are the lines of a robe. Wrong lines ruin the most perfect figure; good lines conceal anatomical defects, if defects aren't too terrible.

Sleeves as they are, rolling outward in the upper story, bouncing out at the elbow or gushing forth in ripples at the wrist, are the business of noticing lines has got to go.

So buy a frock because it has a pretty sleeve is a waste of attention of normal intelligence. The sleeve may be pretty, but not by the buyer. If she's inclined to take her sleeves straight with no decorative chasers, she can find them. This year Madame Fashion is

MILK PRICES NOW TOO LOW

New England States to Stabilize Milk Industry

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 8—New England's peace loving farmers today were preparing for the "last straw" to be added along the New England milk sheds.

Allied with the farmers in their fight to stabilize the price of milk were five New England governors, who saw in prevailing below-cost prices a serious menace to the million dollar investment in New England farms.

A recent milk war small prices tumbling to the lowest level seen in New England since 1917.

Mill has sold, delivered, for 10 cents a quart and in chain stores for as low as eight. Of the five cents paid by the dealers but two has gone to the farmer, who maintains it costs him five cents for every quart he sells.

On Monday five governors, members of the dairy commission they appointed to aid the farmers and representatives of the New England Dairies, Inc., will meet in the State House in Boston, to launch a campaign designed to raise milk prices by the middle of the month.

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 8—Mr. and Mrs. Moore Tudge, parents of Mrs. Dobbie Stewart, of Kitchener, whose body was found with that of her son-in-law, Mrs. Elmer Stewart, in St. Louis, Mo., in Eastern Pennsylvania, where they crashed last night said they had telegraphed friends in New York to have the body brought here for burial.

They were uncertain if their wishes would be carried out, as the dead woman's husband is a resident of the United States.

Embarrassing Moments

JIM THE CONQUEROR

by PETER B. KYNE

"Hackett is coming for dinner," he interrupted. "So nice to him. He's my attorney, of course, and I'll bet he'll tell him he's hypnotized me. If he elects to forget that whole affair you and he had secretly, for heaven's sake hold out the olive branch. You'll never have a chance at a better man, Bobby."

"Perhaps he will not be interested in me, now that I am not your heiress, as I daresay he believed me to be."

"Well give him a chance to play his hand," remarked Mr. Brandt. "Promise me, Bobby, that if he reserves his hand you'll be courteous, kindly and respectful consideration."

In her great distress at the catastrophe which had overtaken her guardian Roberta was in a mood to promise anything—and did. Crooked Bill appeared to rally immediately and mixed himself a noggin of his favorite beverage.

Roberta was pressing when she heard Glenn Hackett's car rolling up the driveway. She looked out her window and called "Hello, old stick-in-the-mud! How are you?"

He favored her with a not very enthusiastic wave of the hand before his car disappeared under the porte-cochere.

Bill handling his little grudge," Roberta thought. "Well, I don't blame him. Nevertheless I'm not a sulky men."

Crooked Bill received his guest at the door and at once conducted him to the library, where the old schemer's fire burned cheerfully.

"I've got to talk fast, my boy," he began, before Roberta came down. In the first place you must brace yourself for a frugal, not to say, colonial dinner. I'm supposed to have gone bust in the market—Hillcrest has been peddling it up and down. I'll meet my notes I'm down to a couple of thousand dollars."

Glenn Hackett stared at the old gentleman unbelievingly. He knew who seldom asked questions before he had all the facts in hand. Crooked Bill continued:

"I hope I do not have to assure you, Glenn, that as far as Roberta is concerned I'm for you all the time."

"Thank you very much," Hackett replied. "I have suspected as much for quite a while."

"That girl is too dog-gone high and mighty for me," the old man said. Bill continued, sipping, his drink appreciatively. "However, I've cooked up a scheme to bring her down a peg or two. Incidentally, in the light of my eye and the apple of my heart, but nevertheless, as a reasonable man, you will have to admit she has her drawbacks. She's a bit too proud and has a few too many clouds of romance to earthly practicalities. I'm going to feed her what's attempting to do it. All of her life I've been busy spoiling Roberta by granting her every wish and she's developed a hop-skip-and-a-jump case of the grandiloquent airs.

"It's a business I fear I'd love to engage in," Glenn Hackett replied with one of his rare, humorous smiles.

"Well, I'm not so sure Roberta wouldn't be delighted to be your partner—after she's brought you to the proper point of subjugation. The trouble with you, son, is that you're not sufficiently romantic to appeal to Roberta. You're too old for your years. You've never been her a pretty speech? Flatter her a little? Make love to her? Which way she does her hair—things like that? Ask her opinion on that style of thing with a large spoon."

"I fear I'm sadly deficient in that method of approach."

"I know. You have the fool habit of telling the truth, Glenn. I used to say, Now, then, here's my plan." He recited in marvelous detail his conversation with Roberta of a few days before, previous to the operations in Wall street. "Of course," he added, "I shall tell the way I've told the truth, Bobby is a silly lie. Not to Roberta, at any rate. I just pulled a mournful mien, and Roberta jumped to the conclusion that I had sold five thousand suckers short and that with every jump of the ticker I was losing a fortune. You see, I merely outlined to her what would happen to any chap who bought stocks on a margin. Thus I craftily paved the way for a mythical collapse.

"Today I came staggering in, play acting all over the place, and moan ed about that I was out of the market, that Motors had jumped fifteen points and the my brokers had sold me out because I didn't have enough with the gains any longer. Well, as a matter of fact I am out of the market. My brokers did sell me out when I got rid of the last of my Motors at my peak price ,the obvious thing for me to do is to sell five thousand shares or even ten thousand. You'll put up the margin for me. Assure me I'll be all right that the stock will drop a hundred points a day for thirty days. You can put a number of stocks that have dropped that much—some of them in a week. Here is a list to refresh your memory. Tell her that I'm while during the post-war panic Liberty bonds sold away below par. Advise me to make a margin call. I assure me I will not be called upon for any more money than that the price of Motors has now reached a point that is absurdly low. Be speculative, not backed, up by anything when it will begin to slide. Tell her that I'm going to play the crazy market, but I could afford to lose because I have a system of procedure I can, as least, get back a few thousand dollars, but that when I do you must have my solemn word of honor, never, never, to do any more stock gambling.

"How will you receive this philanthropic offer of mine, Hackett?"

"I shall be overcome again at this exhibition of your friendliness and generosity, but I shall refuse to borrow money from you on my worthless note—and I'll find some other meaning look. Then, do you know what I will say?"

"No."

"I shall get you off in a corner, privately, and make you figure out for her just how much money you be required to margin five thousand shares. Then she'll ask you, secretly, to make the deal in her name, and accept an assignment of her interest in Tom Jenkins's estate at something less than it would bring at a sacrifice sale as security for the money you will put up for margin. You will insist on this and reluctantly you let her have her way."

"You will consider that settled. Continue, please."

"Then you will now have a delightful secret together. You will Bobby, since you personally interest—my subject, hopeless case. You will be in daily communication regarding the market, and you will be her great interest, your sole topic of conversation. Maybe, this mythical deal is on not a word of love to Roberta. There must be no sentiment in this business or you'll spoil everything."

"Well, in the fullness of time when the market breaks—as break it and I know blamed well it will—I'll have the mythical clean-up fund me back the deed to Hillcrest and I'll take check for my winnings —or rather, let Roberta do it, so she'll feel that the credit for the coup is all hers—remind me of my word of honor to quit stock gambling. Shake hands all around, and Roberta a somewhat suppressed melody and assume that you have for a trip around the world, to be gone a year, at least. In the meantime, son, if you play your cards with skill and judgment, Roberta will go with you. I'm fit for the fracas asylum."

Glenn Hackett looked genuinely distressed. Crooked Bill rambled on: "I know that it is a shame to do to look after that estate. She has a lot coming to her when she gets that deed, but I'm sure that she knows it. Twenty-five years ago I was in the land business myself, in Las Cruces County, Texas. I bought a ranch from an old man and an infant son named Jaime, so this old man died and left the infant sole heir to all the land business myself, in Las Cruces County, Texas. I bought a ranch from an old man and an infant son named Jaime, so this old man died and left the infant sole heir to all that boy. Wherever he is he's a man named Higgins killed Antrim. Roberta told me over the telephone—

At The Belle

WILL ROGERS NEW FILM OVERFLOWS WITH LAUGHS

"COLLEGE LOVERS" SUBSTITUTED

Will Rogers, the best loved and most famous "unofficial diplomat" in the world, has made a splendid success of "Ambassador Bill", now at the Belle Theatre, showing the comedy-cowboy humorist as a shirt-sleeve ambassador to a tuxedoed foreign country. Rogers simply made to order for his particular brand of wit.

Seeming to realize this, the famous humorist has thrown himself into his work with evident enthusiasm with the result that "Ambassador Bill" is packed full of the most screamingly funny scenes. Any one is a member of them would have been sufficient to make a success of the ordinary film. The picture marks the latest and greatest point in Rogers' screen career.

The star's enthusiasm seems to have been contagious with other members of the brilliant cast, Lovett Marguerite Churchill and Greta Quenely role with dignity that is a delight. Greta Nissen reaches her welcome comeback in this film, which also brings us a new and talented player in the person of eight year old Ted Alexander, one of those rare children who is a master of pathos as well as comedy.

An exceptional added attraction is announced for exhibition on the same program, presenting "Hunting Lions in Africa," a thrilling forty minutes of breath-taking adventure, a new chapter of the popular "Vanishing Legion" chapter-play, featuring Harry Carey, Rex King of wild horses and Little Bobby Darrow will be exhibited along with the popular Bells Sound Newsreel.

At The Capitol

MARILYN MILLER WILL NOT APPEAR AT THE CAPITOL

"COLLEGE LOVERS" SUBSTITUTED

Owing to unforseen difficulties, Marilyn Miller in "Her Majesty, Love" has been recalled to Toronto, and in consequence, will not appear at the Capitol tonight as advertised.

In its place the management of the Capitol have substituted "College Lovers" a highly entertaining comedy of fun and romance in Alpha Beta.

This picture is something decidedly different from the usual run of collegiate films. It is true to life, and avoids most of the usual angles which seem to be in the habit of creeping into college stories.

The hero in "College Lovers" is not the conventional football player, but a real student, and that will be immediately recognized by all university men and women—the chap Marguerite Churchill goes through in case of an emergency. The role is played by Jack Whiting, who brings such an agreeable impression in his first screen picture. "Top Speed" for First National and Vitaphone.

Whiting has an excellent personality and a splendid voice. He is being hailed quite justly as one of the greatest screen finds of the year. Mr. Whiting was a prominent musical comedy star before entering motion pictures.

As the "regular guy" of the campus it is up to him to do everything from managing the football team to helping the college orchestra and orchestra, to aiding in keeping the star fullback of the eleven from quitting school because he has taken an unhappy love affair in a very big way. "College Boy" Williams also plays the football fullback and Russell Hopton the coach.

Marian Nixon is delightful in the role of the little inconspicuous co-ed pal of Whiting, who, after a bit of plotting for the good old school by staging a fake suicide and getting Williams to stay in school so he can play football.

Frank McHugh as Whiting's chief assistant and general handyman, again proves that he is one of the screen's leading comedians. He is constant out in occasions for an errande, or carry the water bucket to the players on the field.

The football game furnishes a great thrill, and unlike most other football pictures, has an unexpected fi nish. It is one of the easiest games to follow play by play that has come to the screen, due to the excellent directing of Alfred Santell and Adolfi from the original story by Earl Baldwin.

Co-Author of Tariff Bill Dead at 78

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 8—Joseph Warren Fordney, member of the United States House of Representatives and co-author of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff of 1921, died at his home here today. He was 78 years old.

He had been in ill health for months, but death was caused by an attack of erysipelas which developed Sunday. He had been in virtual retirement since 1922, when he completed his twelfth consecutive term in Congress as representative of the Eighth Michigan District.

So safe that it will not ignite even when a lighted match is applied to it is new fact for airplane dopes have been introduced.

Well, I'll tell you it's too late now, and you jump up and yell that it isn't, that you will see the bank and get them to refrain from recording the deed (I gave them to Hillcrest) that you'll get them to accept your indorsement of my notes and continue to hold the deed as additional security for the loan."

"No, Sir, I follow you. What next, Mr. Latham?"

"You jump up and say you must have time to think. Prance up and down the dining room floor, look hard. Act like a movie actor. Show Roberta, since you personally are fascinated, that in an emergency no body need look beyond you. Prove to her you are a strong, resolute, quick-thinking, bold, adventurous, brave fellow, but be careful to ignore her completely. Make it plain that what you are going to do is because of your ancient friendship for me. Disclaim any risk. Then rest with your back to the fire in the homestead and the family fortune."

"The plan, Latham Hackett demanded, "the plan."

Crooked Bill's old eyes fairly popped with delight at the part he was playing. "When I first jumped into the market on Motors, Glenn, I sold twenty-five hundred short. Within a few days, you can tell her, I sold out, took my loss and —um-m-m—made double the amount I had sold, and spread it as thin as I could on margin."

"Excellent!" Hackett said.

"Well, then, your plan will be to assure her that you will be there at its peak price ,the obvious thing for me to do is to sell five thousand shares or even ten thousand. You'll put up the margin for me. Assure me I'll be all right that the stock will drop a hundred points a day for thirty days. You can tell her a number of stocks that have dropped that much—some of them in a week. Here is a list to refresh your memory. Cheaper golds showed a reactionary tendency, Sylvanite dropping a couple to 62 and Kirkland Lake, Teck-Hughes and Howey a cent each. Small recessions were general among active issues, Base Metal, Gold Mail both good and Barry Hollinger showing declines not less than a cent each from a fraction to one cent.

Oils were dull but firm, but Chemical Research up 10 at 62.00 and Algoma Asphalt at 1.15.

There Are No Losses of Magnitude in Early Trading

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 8.—Toronto Stock Exchange market was affected in tone this morning than it had been yesterday, though there were no losses of magnitude. The volume of trade was, however, light, with most a complete lack of buying support being the answer.

International Nickel and Brazilian eased minimum fractions, the former to 9 3-4 and the latter to 11 3-4. Noranda was easier in an inactive market.

The oils failed to maintain Thursday's pace, though there were no set-backs in the group Dominion Stores was offered in fair volume, changed, C.P.R. held at 11. Walkers at 9 3-4. Ford was inactive, Page-Hersey rubber at 7 showed a loss of a point.

N. Y. MARKET STEADILY RISES

Most Persistent in Weeks But Momentum is Lost

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 8.—Stocks made a persistent effort to push forward in this week's short session, the Stock market continued to climb today.

The resumption of the movement in the third day made it one of the most persistent in weeks, but much of the momentum was lost. Trading dwindled to small volume, but hesitancy during an early period of profit-taking was soon overcome. Shippers and rails were notable firm groups. In the Red Metal issues, Anaconda, American Smelting and Cerro de Pasco rose about a point and Amerada gained a major fraction. Most of the leading rails, including Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central and others gained a point or so. U. S. Steel was conspicuous among the industrials, but numerous others, including Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Kreuger and Toll, Coca Cola, and several of the New York reactions. There were several declines of a point or so during the early profit-taking, but they were soon recovered.

While the measure to create the reconstruction finance corporation on which several important financial quarters are pinning their hopes of a restoration of economic stability is approaching final action, somewhat more slowly than some quarters had anticipated earlier in the week.

TRADE SHOWS BIG REVIVAL

Present Buying Rather Surprise to Front Street Merchants

Shops and stores on Front street that have been practically dead-alive for the past few days owing to the inclement weather, again enjoyed a brisker trade than ever, and streets which are usually deserted by crowds of casual pedestrians are once more assuming more natural aspects.

Merchants claim that the present buying, even if it is transient and not to be expected, far exceeds records for the period for other years and that purchases of other articles than absolute necessities are fast becoming more common. Quality trade especially has been given some increase which is as yet unexplainable, and no great rush has been experienced in buying, but there has been a definite improvement. With the city customers the demand is steady and there is little doubt in the minds of the Christmas shopping period, about the middle of the week, that selling so readily is that of tobacco in its various forms. Quality is the inevitable but highly acceptable-to-some-stocks of Christmas cigars are still obtainable, and there has been no necessity of further purchasing cigarettes than for the week. They are buying what might be termed conservatively, considering every day in the line of foods, which articles ago were not even thought of, said one chain store manager.

"I give up; I went for my gun, but dropped it" he said.

Steps declared he separated from William H. Hagley and Gordon Fenwick, who escaped with him, shortly after the Sunday jailbreak, but gave no details of his experiences. He simply said he was interested only in protecting food.

Police are following every clue in an endeavour to catch Bagley and Fenwick. The others were caught Monday.

A. BRIAND RESIGNS POST

Political Veteran of France May Accept Ministry of State

PARIS, Jan. 8.— That Aristide Briand, veteran of 20 years in French politics and known as "European peace statesman", will resign as the post of foreign minister which he has held for seven years, seemed assured today.

The non-partisan newspaper evidently said flatly that Premier Laval and M. Briand have agreed the latter is to exchange the foreign ministry for the ministry of state and that, as a consequence, the Laval Cabinet will soon resign after the funeral of the late war minister, Andre Maginot.

This would mean that the cabinet would resign a little more than a year after its first birthday in office. What combination would succeed it was not regarded as definite today.

Premier Laval and his friends in the Senate which is expected to back up a coalition government, on the other hand, seemingly had in view as the importance of the issues to be discussed, the League of Nations special conferences at Lausanne and Geneva. Political observers remarked, however, that Premier Laval made the past, when tried by former Premiers Herriot and Tardieu in this office, did not produce the results expected.

For this reason these observers said, the possibility that the shake-up may result in the complete change of the present cabinet must not be overlooked. It is said to be dependent upon the results of Premier Laval's coming conferences with political leaders, most of whom are members from Paris, but expected to return within a week.

TONS OF EARTH FALL IN TRENCH

Slows up Work on Water Main and Decreases Number of Employed

Tons of earth, which have fallen into the trench of the water main, some distance south of the new Long the Trent highway has made it impossible for the men to do some depth in the bottom of the excavation, owing to the immaterial decrease of the number of men which are normally employed there. Today owing to the weather under which they are working only half the number of men at work which before generally commanded the job are there at present.

Several men have been engaged for the past few days shoring up the trench, which has been extervated now as far as water will permit, and the work continued wet weather has resulted in numerous slides and cracks along the top of the trench, these gradually widened and deepened, into the bottom of the ditch despite the efforts put forth by the men, and today a small number of men had been engaged to keep up with the amount of dirt, which still continues to drop.

The eastern end of the work pipe laying is still going on and very good progress is being made. Along the hill, they are now on the 12th line, the road crossing the pipe has been laid and the trench filled in completed. Further along the concrete work on the Riddel power for the drill which has been making holes for blasting the rock now supplies the energy necessary for a new appliance, which is being used by the men, who are digging out the earth. This is an air chisel which is breaking up the clods of earth for the men to shovel out. Each day operations are pursuily discontinued until the other work has been caught up.

POLICE TAKE LAST FUGITIVE

Sorge Drops Gun as He Attempts to Draw it When Caught

VANCOUVER, Jan. 8.—Cold-blooded gunman completely exhausted, but armed with a revolver and bullets in every chamber, Earl Sorge, aged 27, fugitive from Oakalla prison farm, was captured by police and four others escaped early Sunday evening was captured last night.

Sorge surrendered after a revolver dropped from the top of his trousers while he was attempting to draw it. He was faced with a sawed-off shot-gun in the hands of Acting Detective-Sergeant Frank Morrison, who was in possession of Detective Morrison.

"I give up; I went for my gun, but dropped it" he said.

Sorge declared he separated from William H. Hagley and Gordon Fenwick, who escaped with him, shortly after the Sunday jailbreak, but gave no details of his experiences. He simply said he was interested only in protecting food.

OLD CHRISTMAS TREES MENACE

Dry Needles and Branches May Cause Great Disaster

In the city of Detroit last year, January 4th, a Christmas tree that was still decorated with gaily-colored with a number of strings of lights was left unattended for a short period while the family partook of their next door neighbors, ignited in unaccountable manner and immediately set fire to the house. A fireman who was among the first on the scene was burned to death owing to the rapid spread of the flames and the inability of the parents to rescue their baby. Only a charred mass of strings in the mother's ears, but she found outside helpless, while the flames consumed the cradled their way along the ridge pole which were burned and started a blaze. Fire men found the seared and tortured little body some hours afterwards lying near the window which she had accidently made her way to but had been unable to open. It was also discovered that the lights which had been left burning on the mantel piece had developed enough heat to ignite the dry needled points, and the conflagration which immediately followed was so appalling, lurid heat had spread to the inside woodwork of the house. The stairs provided an excellent path to the flames which soon enveloped the interior was soon a mass of fire. Christmas trees are the handsomest homes are potential loads of dynamite, especially if they are still decorated with lights and left burning for the beautiful effect they provide. Many fires have been set aloft to part with the beautiful fixture they have grown so hard over and in a number of homes the lights will be seen this year in the front windows as the house is passed. Yet there is a possibility of danger in tinder dry tree and it needs only the faintest spark to set it in a blaze that might become a holocaust as disastrous as the one above mentioned. Heat and dry needles in the home they are in soon saps the moisture from the tree; lights which are left burning on it provide the warmth necessary to dry out the nearest branch and fire results. The best way for them is to have it removed and take no chances. Safety first is a motto which time will never improve on.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Snider are Tendered Shower by Friends

Zion's Hill.—On Saturday, evening January 2nd about one hundred of the friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cranston to tender a miscellaneous shower to Mr. and Mrs. Milton Snider, also the S. S. Class of which the bride was a member, presented her with some beautiful pieces of linen. Mr. Cecil Ketchen called the gathering to order and Miss Vera Sheffield read the following address:

Dear Marjorie and Milton:

Once again we have come as uninvited guests to your home to spend a social evening with you and to express the high esteem in which you are held in our community before you kneels another new bride. Marjorie, we shall certainly miss you from our social activities in which you have always been a willing helper. Your cheerful disposition has endeared you to every friend here who will not easily forget you, and we hope that you will continue to win many more friends in the community to which you are going.

You, Milton, are in no way a stranger to us and we extend to you our heartiest congratulations on your choice of a life partner. We welcome you to this gathering tonight.

Now, may we ask you both to accept these gifts and that they continue to remind you of your many friends here and of their sincere wishes for a long, happy and prosperous wedded life.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,

Anne Ray
Mrs. Donald Ketchesen
Vera Sheffield.

The gifts were many and beautiful which were then unwrapped. Marjorie and Milton, both replied in a few words, thanking their many friends for the beautiful gifts and inviting all to come and see them in their new home.

After several had been called on for speeches, lunch was served, and social evening enjoyed.

Poisoned Cabbage Traced by Officers

Fall River Mass—Food inspectors were scurrying about last week tracing a carload of poisoned cabbage from South Carolina that had been distributed through a Boston commission merchant to a Fall River man who purchased the cabbage from Boston farmers who visited the scene of its appearance and was about to take some action when health officials got in touch with him. Later the food inspectors tracked the cabbage to retailers who said that they had not been sold and issued a warning to householders.

It was said the cabbage had been sprayed with a one-fifth grain solution of arsenic, about eight or ten times too strong for human beings.

Cheap sales of goods means deterioration; but cheap editions of books denote the popularity of the originals.

COLDS
can be broken up only from within
Science has never been able to lessen the cold germ . . . the infection is formed there . . . a poison-producing substance that spreads through the system causing the well-known outward symptoms. But treating the symptoms cannot stop inward infection.

Bromo Quinine tablets destroy the virus germ and eliminate it from the system—quickly and completely.

What a delightful time Toronto friends must be having! If Canada's present snow, we have rain. If it promises to be a white Christmas we get warm cloudy days, and if we look for a green Christmas we seem to get a mixture of all four! Now we have had a touch of at least snow of all the present winter. However the snow quickly began to thaw, and soon the roads were treacherous for driving. Coming east on the Kingston-Trenton Air Port Hope, the correspondent saw numerous trucks lodging in the ditches and ditches, one or two skidmarks showing that others indicate car jitter on the top in a deep ditch blazing a trail. Let us hope that tonight to take any chances in driving!

Three of the churches had met their full obligations for the year, while one was experiencing some little difficulty, but will perhaps in the next week or so make good. The Pastor was invited to remain for another year, making it the 5th year.

Bethlehem Postmark on Christmas Cards

Bethlehem, Conn.—Each Christmas a pilgrimage is made to the quiet Bethlehem in America, to the door of Mrs. and Mrs. James E. Flynn, assistant and postmistress of the Bethlehem office, where Flynn and stamp on Bethlehem mail, some just to get the Bethlehem postmark on their greeting cards. For are they disappointed. The Flynns work late into the night, Mrs. Flynn assisting to it each card gets a perfect imprint.

The Flynns scorn the idea of a machine to do the work. That's all right, Mrs. J. J. Hamilton, Gary, Indiana, who his this year exhausted the supply of Bethlehem pieces of mail. But it will be a long time before Mrs. Flynn is satisfied and will be worrying about the extra work.

"We enjoy it," Mrs. Flynn said the other day. "Christmas is very much going on in a little town like this and we don't mind the extra busy sacrifice. We think it's nice that people will drive fifty or sixty miles just to get the Bethlehem postmark on their cards and we're glad to help them. It's a pleasure it's a fad, but I think it's a good fad. It's getting more and more popular than ever. And we get letters from all over the United States. But maybe ours is popular because we're just a little bigger than a lot more like the original Bethlehem than the one in Pennsylvania, for instance or the New Hampshire summer resort."

The Connecticut Bethlehem proper consists of the inevitable green, two churches, the usual "business block" and a few houses. The schoolhouse is somewhat in the dark, where there are a few more residences. Like all Bethlehems, Connecticut's is fast becoming a summer resort of the most desirable kind. Its only industry is a home canning shop.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 7.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

ith a low snarl the beast now came toward Tarzan e two years that the ape-man had spent in civil- ation had but slightly diminished the mighty wers that had made him the invincible lord of the ngle. But, unarmed to do battle with the great ll-clubbed ape was a test he would scarce have ticomed at any period of his wild existence.

Yet in the haunts of civilized man Tarzan had mas- tered certain methods of scientific warfare unknown to jungle folk. A few years ago he would have met this brute's rush with brute force. Now, he remem- bered a night in a London athletic club when one fighter delivered a mighty right into the solar plexus of the other. He swung his fist to the pit of the great ape's stomach.

Tarzan's solar plexus blow bent the huge anthropoid double and the beast sank to the ground. Before he could regain his feet, his white-skinned foe had pounced upon him. Vanished the last shred of the ape-man's superficial mantle of civilization. Now again, he was Tarzan, foster-son of Kala the she ape. With an exultant yell he caught the hairy throat of his enemy in his vice-like grip.

In a circle about the battling pair, the rest of the ape tribe stood watching and enjoying the spectacle Once in a while they would mutter low gutturals of approval as though the affair were much to their liking. Tarzan's powerful fingers held the mighty fangs from his own flesh as his other arm beat with the blows of a steam-hammer upon the ape's snarling, foam-flecked face.

MOSTLY THE LADY

by Kathrn Bemis Wilson

Jim Ordway, tall, straight, and darkly handsome as the latest screen idol, stood in an attitude of reverence before this newly dis- covered Corot. Sheep wandering in a sweetly green, realistic meadow. Subdued, quiet, restful.

Jim was taking plenty of time to drink in the beauty of this mas- terpiece in its perfect setting. This marvelous art gallery in Peter Stringford house. There were, of course, many other valuable paint- ings in this big, high, wainscoted room, but none that could charm the eye or the esthetic sense, so the newspapers had declared, like this treasure of a Corot. Not a large canvas, but an exceedingly precious one. Jim heartily agreed with all this, for he was no mean connoisseur.

Suddenly, he started. Then smiled broadly at his own timidity. The late afternoon breeze had gent- ly closed the dormer window by which he had entered. Nice breeze Pleasant afternoon.

He looked about the room care- fully. What little furniture there was, had been swathed in linen nighties to await their owners re- turn. Not even a caretaker in the place. Jim knew because not more than two minutes ago he had push ed the bell-button by the big front door. No necessity for him. His flivver walled down the road, and a three-year-old could manage the Corot.

Then, "Oh!" exclaimed a wom- an's frightened voice.

Jim wheeled. Came face to face with Mrs. Peter Stringford who, according to some fool newspaper reporter, should by now have been riding the high seas. Jim had seen her picture times enough in the rotogravure.

"I didn't expect you," he parley- ed calmly, giving her his most grac ious smile. Luckily, his linen suit was fresh, he was a replica of well- groomed manhood.

"Why, Count Rexbury!" Now she hastened toward him with out- stretched hand. "So sorry for this misunderstanding! We expected to meet you at the boat! I had no idea—no idea you'd come here. I hope you will forgive me—I feel so—so embarrassed."

Jim looked at her in astonish- ment but he managed to utter, "Quite all right." And it was. She was charming, she more than twenty-eight, his own age.

"But we have no time to waste. I'm meeting Peter in an hour at the Ritz—he'll be so delighted to see you. You were in Oxford to- gether, weren't you?" Her large blue eyes were magnetic.

"Glad he told you." Jim had quite forgained his poise. He al- ways could with a real blond. When they were bleached or dyed, it upset him.

"We must hurry! We'll visit on the way to the hotel."

"Of course," assented Jim evenly. "I did the most thoughtless thing this morning!" she rambled on. "Had all my jewels sent from the bank—don't let the boys without them! I was frantic when I dis- covered it! Suppose I had sailed tonight without them?"

"Terrible!" Jim managed to blurt out. Jewels all her jewels! This was indeed terrible—for them both. Yet there was that old rat about not leaving temptation be- hind!

"If you'll excuse me, I'll run up- stairs and get my jewel-box— won't be but a moment!"

"Delighted," Jim returned with a vanishing smile. He knew how to hypnotize women! Although, he didn't mind admitting that this one already had worked a bit of charm on him. What a figure!

Alone now, he drew for a cigaret lighted it, and eased himself into an inviting armchair. He puffed leisurely as he sprinkled the paint- ings surrounding the Corot. Next to it hung a Rembrandt or perhaps a good copy. Didn't look genuine to him. On the other side, a Whistler. And what a Whistler! Magnificent! (Takes her long enough).

Portraits of ancestors. Bushels of that stuff manufactured for these twentieth century million- aires. By Jove! That marine there looks like a Hards, the American lately becoming popular in a big way. He got up to exam- ine it. "Portrait of A Maiden," it was labeled. Gorgeous titian hair, good line, faulty detail, yet withal charming thing. (What in hell was detaining the lady?)

He glanced at his wrist-watch. Must have been in this room all of twenty-five minutes. He scowl- ed perplexedly, ran long slender fingers through his straight black hair. Suppose she double-crossed him? Foolish conjecture!

She was positive of his identity. A count? Well—agreeable enough to him. What's one count more or less in the world?

Finally, she reappeared as she daintily ar- ranged her left. Carrying a small metal box. She was flushed and eager. He could al- ways make an impression on wom- en. "Sorry to have been so long," she apologized with a tinkling laugh, "but you know how it is— the vanity of women. Had to rouge and powder—try to make my self worthy of Peter's old friend."

She dropped to a divan, motion- ing him to a place beside her. "Would you like to see my jewels?" she inquired naively.

Jim's heart gave an instant. Then affairs du coeur won over immediate necessity for quick ac- tion. He felt the hot blood surging to his face as he sat down. She was such an adorable beautiful creature!

Now, she sprang the catch of the box, threw back the lid.

"Good heavens!" gasped Jim in astonishment.

"Yes," she murmured, "they're very wonderful."

She drew out a string of perfect- ly matched pearls. "Peter gave me these for a wedding present," she said proudly.

"Worth a fortune!" he ejaculat- ed happily. How well they match- ed her creamy skin!

"This is one of the largest diam onds in the world." She held out a bronze medallion a large gem.

"Interesting—very to a man like me," came hastily from Jim. But then, her eyes were no less brilliant.

"Two of great value," she in- formed him eagerly.

Hurriedly, he remarked a bit unsteadily. Just another wealthy woman flaunting her possessions. Yet she did it so charmingly.

She dropped a big uncut stone into his palm. Jim was wonder- ed with astonishment. He glanced up at her nervously. Why—her crim- son lips were at the moment more desirable than any ruby! Suppose he should—

Suddenly, a voice from behind cut the tense silence. Instinctive- ly Jim sprang to his feet. Faced three officers just entering through the dormer window that he also had found convenient. "Jim Ord- way!" exclaimed one. "Well, well, this is a great day! We've looked all over America for you!"

"I thought you'd never get here!" complained Mrs. Peter Stringford, petulantly.

"Good thing your phone wasn't disconnected for the summer," of- fered another officer.

"It was difficult to hold him— but my paste jewelry did it," re- turned Mrs. Springford with a relieved sigh.

"Not exactly," muttered the de- jected prisoner as he was led away. When a man's job was paintings, he better stick to his line. Not mess around with paste jewels and pretty, clever women. Especial- women, maybe.

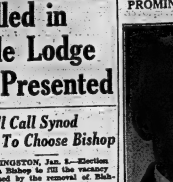
Little Benny's Note-Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma said, I was down town today Wilhyum, the expensive Blatimann, the expensive for place.

I hope you passed it in a hurry pop said, and ma said, Well no, as a matter of fact I spent quite a little strength, meanwhile feasting my eyes on the most marvelous armful of coat I ever saw and just imagine Wilhyum, at the rediculus price of two dollars.

Ill say its rediculus, I dont know why we're even discussing such a rediculus thing, 2 sensible people like us, pop said, and ma said, O, you dont need to be sarcastic I had the slightest idea of buying it, because I didnt, at times like these it would be sheer criminal negligence to think of buying an extra coat, even such a lovely one as 600 dollers worth every cent of a thousand. Besides I remember quite wear that coat and not look out of place, at any other time 1 mile think of it, but certeny not now, although of course it was a nice coat to have, but it would be impossible to get a bargain like that, thats where the luxury of trade comes in. Still, if I recently wunted it more than anything on earth you'd let me get it, wouldent you, Wilhyum, she said.



Now for Pete sake why not ask a lot of useless questions pop said, and ma said, But what satisfaction is it for me to give up all kinds of ever owning , bewtiful thing like that if I never intend to have it anyway even if I moved heaven and erth. So at least you can assure me that you will let me get it if I was weak and silly enough to insist on it, cant you,Wilhyum she said.

O all rite then, ye gods, of corse Id let you have it if it was a matter of life and death and saving you from starvation and all that sort of thing, now are you happy? pop said, and ma said, Its a great relief to know that Im not destroying your happiness, I couldent have anyway, but Wilhyum, Im almost sorry you dident say I could ent have it, because now Im afraid Im going to be haunted , by the awful thaut that that marvelous thing is axually within my grasp.

Then so's the moon, farewell, pop said.

And he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

Watch-Mender Sets Things Right, Starts Car Going

Meanwhile Much Patience Lost While Auto Baulks

WINS PRAISE

A small car crept down Pitnacle street at a gait peculiar as it was slow. The car jerked fitfully—it stopped and started, backed once or twice—stopped—started—stopped again—finally disappeared. This, in effect, is what follows from a decision in the pension appeal court, delivered today by Mr. Justice Hyndman, chairman.

A muffled figure poked a tentative head from out the lowered door glass. The figure disappeared. Came a sound as if someone were stamping heavily on control apparatus—a starter button for example. Followed a whirr—a spit as the engine coughed—missed again—exploded in a medium-sized bang. Smoke was poured forth and a little flame from under the chassis but again silence fell with a thud when no sound followed.

Another whirr for a moment or two then again a spit—a lengthy jump forward—a bang that rent the air with such ferocity that a dog who had been calmly sleeping in front of the warm fire place in a house half a mile away, jumped to his feet with his eyes still lightly shut, rushed in the direction of the nearest door, barged into it with such force that the slight oak panels sagged and split, and then slowly reeled over—Rebecca—inert and unconscious. It also made a man who had been passing by the car just at that very instant revert to a three year habit he had acquired in France some years ago, beginning 1915, and which he still retained, and he promptly gave for the next few trivial hole—which happened to be a puddle of water in the road for the time being.

By the time the man had recovered, partly, and was sitting up again in dazed fashion wondering where his dog had gone to, the girl had the hood of the car open and was peering helpingly at the fearful jumble of wires and thingamajigs she under part of the hood presented. The man looked around and spotted the young man who had arisen to his feet but still waited expectantly for another shell to follow the first one which had exploded so close to him.

"Do you know anything at all about this car?" she inquired of him, sweetly. This was no time for formal introductions.

"Huh! What's sir?" The young man was slowly returning to consciousness. He was of course in great improvement to be made. A little more time was necessary.

"I asked you if you knew anything at all about these cars."

"Carl Wherry's the cars."

"This car."

"Yes, that is a car, isn't it? Heh heh heh.—No, all I know about these things is a lot of second hand jokes. Some of them are not so poke either. It does seem to be stopped, doesn't it?

Just then another passerby passed by. There was recognition on the part of the man to whom full consciousness was returning. "Here's the man who can fix your car, as he told me you. How can you fix this lady's car for her?"

"Well," yelled the man who had apprehended, "I can fix alarm clocks so I don't see why I can't fix that—that's what's the matter with it's set."

For the benefit of readers who have not lost all interest and patience the story will now die the natural death it should have some three paragraphs back but also the explanation for the benefit of the more technically inclined, the pertinent points on the commutator were all jammed up some way or other and the spark wasn't getting to the right place the right way—or something like that. We had it explained to us but we've forgotten just what it was all about. Anyhow the car wouldn't run and a girl who was in distress was saved by a local watchmaker who did some "presto change" with the gadget where all the wires lead to, and got the thing going again. "I thought at first I would have had to carry the whole machine down to the work bench in the shop and dry it out with an old handkerchief, but it was really something simple the matter and it wasn't necessary," he explained afterward. But at that he did admit he is some shucks when it comes to repairing small pieces of machinery like alarm clocks—and cars.

ACTION AGAINST HYDRO TO COURT

Action Launched By King-don Company Against Hydro

TORONTO, Jan. 7. — Actions brought against the Hydro Electric Power Commission and the Attorney General for Ontario to restrain the damming or "obstructing" of the Ottawa River at Chat's Falls where important development work is proceeding, and to recover a total for a judgment of Mr. Justice Orde at Osgoode Hall today.

The actions were launched by the Kingdon Mining, Smelting and Manufacturing Company, who contended that the Commission was exceeding its powers in the Ottawa River and their lands on an island at Chat's Falls, would be flooded in the course of the work.

Injunctions were brought by the Hydro and the attorney-general to set aside both writs.

HOME OF GLADSTONE SOLD TO TOC H.

LIVERPOOL, Eng.—The house in Rodney street, Liverpool, which was born William E. Gladstone, the most famous statesman-orator of the Victorian era has been presented to Toc H by his son, Henry Neville Gladstone. Rodney street, although fashionable, is in the downtown quarter of the Mersey City, retains much of the quiet dignified atmosphere of an upper class residential area of the early Victorian period. Many medical and surgical specialists of Liverpool have long had offices there. Rodney street, in fact, is the Harley Street of Liverpool.

Lord Derby, who performed the opening ceremony, remarked that he came from a family where Gladstone's name was revered, although he could not say honestly that he was loved. As an illustration of Gladstone's versatility he mentioned a variety of matters Lord Derby recalled that he was a great lover of trees he had just joined the Grenadiers, he met Mr. Gladstone at tea at his uncle's house and found that Mr. Gladstone knew much more about trees than the Guardsmen and the Grenadiers than he did himself.

Lloyd George Back From Ceylon Trip

Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 7.—Brought homeward on the wings of an eight-thousand-mile flight, Right Hon. David Lloyd George returned on the liner Rajputana today from a health trip to Ceylon.

The statesman recovered from the grave illness that prevented him from taking part in the last general election, the former head of the Liberal party went to his home at Churt soon after landing.

He narrowly escaped further troubles as he neared Great Britain, when the steamer gave a sudden lurch at the height of the storm, and heavy furniture was thrown all over the room where he was sitting. No one was injured, but the confusion added to the fright no thought for politics at the time.

FLEE IN FEAR LEVEE BURST

Thirty Thousand Acres at Sharkey and Glendora Flooded

Glendora, Miss., Jan. 7—Warned by the dreaded glare of signal fires and the firing of pistols and shotguns, carried from community to community to send word down stream, residents of the Tallahatchie River valley fled for their lives today ahead of flood water unleashed by a levee break near Sharkey.

Glendora, across the swollen river from the break in the Twilight Levee, and other near-by communities, forgot their own troubles from raging waters hammering at their dykes, and massed rescue boats.

The flood swiftly spread over 30,000 acres, and ran back into the Tallahatchie below Philip, ten or twelve miles to the south. Dense stock of all sorts was saved. Loading the finest waters, and near the break itself homes were overturned and washed away.

Despite the valiant rescue work of crews from Glendora, Charleston and other towns, fear was expressed that there might be new havoc to add to the death list of two reported in three weeks of high water. One negro was drowned yesterday, and another in the early stages of the flood.

Complete evacuation of the communities of Tippo, Payne, Marcel Delta, and even Philip was threatened. Hundreds of refugees fled north toward Charleston and east toward Philip. The latter town itself was the scene of a battle for the finish against the river, with hundreds of men, summoned from the State Farm thrown into the fight to hold the lines of weakening levees.

Man does not make rules of life and live according to them but rules of life.—Clarence Darrow.

INDIAN GOVT TAKES ACTION

Lord Willingdon Signs Ordinance Giving Power

Bombay, India (CP) — The Government of India lost no time in taking the first action against the riotous forecast by Lord Lothian, under-secretary for India, in the House of Lords. Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India, signed an ordinance giving drastic powers to the Bengal government and magistrates and police were shortly extended to the United Provinces and the North-West Frontier.

Mahatma Gandhi shortly after his return at the end of December submitted the Viceroy whether the ordinance meant the end of peaceful relations between the government and the Congress Party but a few hours before this communication was sent Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald from Lossiemouth outspokenly denounced Indian agitators as selfish blockaders in the path of Indian progress. "An enlightened India would not only give them no countenance but would turn and tend them," the Prime Minister said.

The extra powers are described by the Times of India as follows: "The Ordinance so closely resembles the Irish Free State Permanent Repression Act that its source of inspiration is obvious . . . President Cosgrave's administration was faced this summer with much the same problem that confronts the authorities in Bengal, and the remedies applied in Ireland with the sanction of the Free State Parliament suggest themselves as clearly suitable for India. Lord Willingdon's Ordinance falls into two main parts, the first arming the executive with special powers for trying and apprehending terrorists. The police are entitled to detain any suspect for 24 hours, one of the main objects in this provision being the temporary removal of terrorist spies. Wide powers of search, examination, entering buildings, movable property and vehicles, closing of thoroughfares and impeding fines on districts which air terrorist gangs complete the extra powers granted in this chapter.

"The second chapter closely follows Free State precedent by empowering the local government to set up special tribunals and magistrates for the trial of suspected terrorists, with the difference that whereas the Irish tribunals are merely military boards, India will be composed of three judges of the High Court. As in the Free State there will be no appeal against any sentence passed by a tribunal; the High Courts are totally excluded from interference with the special courts established under the Ordinance.

"Nobody likes extra-legal methods; they place powers in the hands of the police which may be abused. But desperate diseases call for desperate cures, and nobody can deny that the situation in Bengal at the moment is anything but desperate. Following a long series of dastardly crimes and the extra evidence of murder associations government officials in many districts go about in daily fear of their lives.

QUEBEC SCHOOLS ARE CROWDED

Increase Estimate For Education Given Legislature

Quebec, Que. (CP) —Demands for expenditure in the province of Quebec are growing to such an extent, following the precedent set by the government, that contracted in favour of such instruction, that public in some districts cannot be accommodated for space and were times better housed if the schools were enlarged, Hon. Athanase David, provincial secretary, told the Legislative Assembly recently. In estimates for the current year he asked an additional $130,00 had to be voted to take care of this eagerness for technical instruction.

It was with particular pleasure that he moved the second reading before the House, Hon. Mr. David said, that the present interest in fort the government had made during the last year in the effort of Quebecers to technical education so that they could fit for the higher posts in industrial life and relieve the province of the necessity of importing outside talent in that realm.

In Montreal, in other cities and in rural districts, the minister, the demand was the same and revealed a desire for training among the younger element of this province. The majority of pupils in the head of the Quebec government.

The demand for instruction in French in Protestant schools in the English-speaking districts of the province had grown enormously, the Provincial Secretary declared, and thus the increase in the vote from $10,000 to $15,000.

Condition of schools in sections such as the Saguenay district where Protestant pupils were widespread was gaining ground, the House was told. $40,000 instead of $35,000 was voted to aid in this work. Hon. Mr. David said, when necessary to contribute toward the transportation of pupils to the central school building.

DISCUSSION AS TO LECTURES

McGill Students in Favor of Taking Notes

Montreal, Que. (CP) McGill undergraduates declare that they will still continue the practice of taking notes during lectures, in spite of the recent outbreak against the system which were voiced first by one of the Martlime universities and then by several of the English universities. On the other hand, it is known that a number of the professors are not entirely in favor of the present lecture-and-note system which is in vogue at nearly all universities in the British Empire.

"It is entirely a question of the individual," declared Dr. J. F. Day, associate professor of economics, when asked recently for an opinion. The suggested alternative of making the lecture room an open forum is sound up to a point, but not entirely. The idea of making the lecturer merely a chairman and allowing a continued discussion is not wholly satisfactory because progress is too slow, but on the other hand the practice among some students of copying down quantities of notes which can easily be got from a text book tends to make the student lose the personal interpretation of the lecturer. The decision should be left to the student and no rules governing it laid down at all," he said.

Professor E. R. Adair, of the faculty of history, feels that the subject is of great importance to students and must be very carefully considered. "There is no doubt that far too many students drop into the habit of note-taking immediately they enter the university," he declared. "On the other hand it is impossible to institute the open forum idea for first year students because they have not sufficient background of their subject, and even with graduate students there is a tendency for the more forceful graduates to thrust their opinions forward and to hold the floor too much.

"With inexact sciences like history, literature and economics it is obvious that the lecturer's personal deductions, explanations and creative ability is best if the student is spending a large part of their energy not in piling down on paper, irrespective of its value to the subject, as a whole.

"The only value of notes is for purposes of quick revision, otherwise the text books plus the guiding hand and interpretative ability of the lecturer should serve as the best method of mastering a subject," he declared.

Charged With Extortion and Threatening Bodily Harm

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8.—Charged with attempted extortion and threatening bodily harm, William Montgomery, Toronto, was arrested yesterday and was called at an address here to get a letter which he allegedly directed should contain $10,000.

Hawl handed over the threatening letter to police and framed a letter, without any money, to the stipulated address. Montgomery called for the missive, he was taken into custody.

NOVA SCOTIA CAME THROUGH IN REAL SHAPE

Maintains Credit and Records Few Business Failures

GOOD POSITION

Relatively Better Than Some Provinces of Dominion

Halifax, N. S. (By The Canadian Press)—Nova Scotia finished 1931 in relatively better position than most countries maintained her credit at a high standard and recorded fewer business failures than in 1929, a year of general prosperity according to a New Year's message issued by Hon. Percy C. Black, acting premier of the province during the absence of Premier Gordon S. Harrington.

One year ago the Premier of Nova Scotia in his New Year's message expressed the view that this province would successfully meet the problems created by world-wide economic disturbances. These conditions have continued longer and have been more aggravated than was expected, but I am able to say that Nova Scotia had come through this period in a relatively better position than most other countries. There is satisfaction in knowledge that fewer business failures occurred in province this year than those which was looked upon as a period of prosperity. We also take satisfaction in the fact that the credit of the province has been maintained on a high basis in the financial markets of the world.

"During the past season, the farms of Nova Scotia produced a bountiful harvest and progress has been made in dairying. Production of our coal and steel industries reflected the smaller scale of manufacturing and traffic throughout Canada. Official estimates show that, notwithstanding depressed market conditions, the quantity of fish landed on our shores during 1931 was not greatly below the average production. Notwithstanding the particularly difficult conditions confronting the lumber industry this year, 150,558 cords of pulpwood were manufactured in Nova Scotia and 169,976 cords exported. In 1930, 170,921 cords were manufactured in the province. At the present time a number of lumber operators are contemplating operations during the present winter in the hope that lumber markets will gradually improve. In view of the importance to industry of low-priced p. wer it is noteworthy that the electrical energy supplied by the Nova Scotia Power Commission is steadily increasing in volume.

"The prompt measures taken by the Federal, Provincial and Municipal authorities to relieve unemployment throughout Nova Scotia has materially assisted in meeting the situation. The funds thus made available were expended chiefly on our highways and in municipal works. Up to the 30th of December $12,120 man days work were provided through unemployment relief in the province. However, I desire to emphasize again that governmental authority can only go so far in providing employment and in the final analysis the responsibility must rest upon individuals and companies who are in a position to create work.

"Confidence throughout Nova Scotia are such that this province will quickly respond to any general improvement in business. The outlook for the coming year, while presenting many problems which must be solved, has encouraging features.

"The courage and determination with which this province has dealt with these problems is worthy of the highest satisfied, enable us to solve the problems that must be faced during 1932.

St. Pierre Enjoys Era of Prosperity

Sydney, N. S.—While most North American countries are struggling with industrial depression, the "happy isles" of St. Pierre and Miquelon enjoy peace and prosperity under the maternal wing of France, having all the economic resources of a European nations, according to D. J. Gillis, who recently returned from the French colony. Mr. Gillis is foreman on the extensive public works now being constructed of 1,000 feet of complicated breakwater, the completion of which will provide a line dock and reclaim about two and one half acres of land from the sea.

During the last four years the constructors have built a new wharf at Miquelon, one at Miquelon island, another at Langlade island and the recent government pier at St. Pierre itself. A large modern dredge is at work deepening the harbor, a difficult task due to the rock bottom of the harbor and the strong currents. The work is progressing satisfactorily, Mr. Gillis said.

The contract with the French government also provides employment of at least fifty per cent local anor but, owing to the prosperous condition of the island, local help has been so scarce to necessitate men being brought from Newfoundland and Cape Breton.

SHOULD KEEP OUR DOLLARS IN DOMINION

Duranleau Urges Continued Faith in Canada's Future

POSITION SOUND

Dominion Better Off Than Larger and Older Nations

WINDSOR, July 7. — "Keeping Canadian money in Canada, especially when the Canadian dollar, as at present, shows signs of insecurity, is obviously within reach as an object to be pursued," declared Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Fisheries, before the Border Chamber of Commerce today.

"Canadian produced goods and manufactured articles purchased by Canadians for the Canadian industry, mean work for the Canadian laborer, the Canadian manufacturer and the Canadian farmer and that justifies good home comfort which is the surest source of peace and happiness throughout the land," he added.

Calling for unfailing faith in the future of Canada and the Empire, the minister stressed that though Canada has a population of a little over ten millions of people the nation stands at the head of the country of the world in agriculture; second amongst the manufacturing countries of the British Empire, first in exports of newsprint, wheat, nickel and asbestos.

"The speaker said he desired to call "faith" in Canada, carried by hard work, economy, thrift and a determination to win over any difficulty that may arise. This has been the message of the Governor-General speaking before the Canadian Club at Montreal recently.

Speaking with trade activities Hon. Mr. Duranleau said: "If we want the glory of the British flag to remain intact and if we want the benevolent mission of the Union Jack to endure, every part of the Dominionwealth must co-operate to expand Imperial trade."

Some Mistakes Made.

He pointed out some of the activities which Canada had undertaken and declared some mistakes had been made—but these had been due to the youth of the nation. He urged the pioneering spirit should be manifested, even if occasional mistakes were made.

Dealing with his own department, he pointed out that for nearly two decades shipping on the Great Lakes had the benefit of radio communication and that navigation aids in the Canadian waters were not surpassed anywhere. He declared comparisons made with what had been done in older countries reflected to the credit of Canada with her 50,000 miles of inland lake, river and sea coast.

INCREASE TRADE IN WEST INDIES

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP) — Increased trade between Canada and the West Indies is the keynote of a fine 64-page special supplement just issued by the Tribune, of Nassau.

At the outset The Tribune assures a most cordial welcome in the Canadian business men who are leaving Halifax on January 8th on the New Northland for a trade mission to the West Indies.

His Excellency, Hon. Charles Dundas, administrator of the Government of the Bahamas, likewise writes: "Trade between Canada and the West Indies is rather an accidental nor artificial, it is the inevitable consequence of conditions both natural and national which circumstances recognized, could scarcely fail to be exploited."

After remarking on the coming visit of the Canadians on the New Northland, his Excellency adds:

"All conditions which can contribute to create ideal trade opportunities are thus here at our command, nor is courage lacking to take advantages of them. The Canadian cruise testifies to the faith Canadian business men place in the future of West Indian trade for Canada. They will meet with reciprocal confidence in Canadian trade for the West Indies and I shall not be surprised if the West Indies are emboldened to plan a return cruise for the exhibition of their products in Canada. So far as the Bahamas are concerned they have made a bid to place on Canadian markets such products as they have at the present time, and they cherish the hope that Nassau will become a favorite winter resort for Canadians who want to escape the rigors of a northern Winter.

The issue also contains encouraging statements from Sir George E. Perley, Canadian secretary of State, Premiers Taschereau of Quebec and Henry of Ontario; Sir Henry Thornton and E. W. Beatty, and other leading Canadians.

A month is the most expressive word for most characteristic feature of a face, and therefore the most elusive for the artist's brush.

Policeman Snaps Cuffs on Wrist of Youth When He Points Gun at Cashier

Gives Name of Oshawa Man Who Denies Knowledge of Bandit

COUPE CAPTURED

Gun Found Charged With Cartridges Too Small

Montreal, Que., Jan. 9 (CP).—The youthful bandit who held up a downtown lunch room at the point of a revolver and was caught in the act by a policeman late last night, was identified today as James Smith, 17, of Montreal. He admitted his identity, police said, when confronted with a handful of yellow circulars bearing his photograph. Smith is wanted for holdup in Oshawa, Ont., on Dec. 23 last ford, but he must stand trial here on armed robbery.

Montreal, Que., Jan. 9.—By the Canadian Press: Dramatic incidents on the wrist that held a cheap gun pointed at a lunch room cashier by a young bandit here last night. A tall policeman walked up to the would-be holdup man unnoticed and snapped the bracelets on before he was noticed.

Today Montreal detectives were trying to establish the identity of the 19-year-old youth who gave the name of Edwin O. Webster of Oshawa, Ont., when police captured a small coupe belonging to Edwin O. Webster, which was stolen in Oshawa on Wednesday night, according to word received from Oshawa police.

Ejected from the lunch room cashier in the evening after an argument with the cashier, the young man returned later with a revolver and held up the lunchroom. Ten customers were disturbed at their meals.

A tax driver saw the affair through the plate glass window and called Constable Savaria, who was on traffice duty. The Constable walked in quietly, snapped the handcuffs on the youth, took the revolver away from him and escorted him to the police station, where his pockets disgorged $5.80 in nickels and $3.75 in quarters.

A complaint lodged on the sidewalk outside the restaurant, caused Police found that the youth's gun was charged with cartridges too small for the weapon.

The automobile license card bearing the name of Webster was found in the pocket of the bandit. He was given as 26, but the prisoner looked to be much younger. He said the car belonged to his father.

The license number was 210-183, of Ontario registration.

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan. 9—Edwin Webster, who with another Oshawa resident was held up by a bandit here, on Wednesday night last, has no knowledge of the "Edwin O. Webster" who was arrested in Montreal last night with the Oshawa man's stolen car. The man arrested in Montreal declared the car belonged to his father.

Oshawa police are now positive that the man wanted for the holdup of the Bank of Nova Scotia is in Toronto on charges of burglary.

MILD WEATHER AIDS WORK

Trans-Canada Highway Makes Good Progress —Finished in April

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 9—Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Premier of Ontario, and Hon. William Finlayson, Provincial Minister of Lands and Forests will meet the Dominion Government at Ottawa on Wednesday next to discuss further phases of the trans-Canada highway and other road relief projects in Norther Ontario. Several thousand men are now engaged in this work.

Mr. Finlayson told the Canadian Press today that owing to the unusually mild weather and open winter the construction gangs in the north had made unexpected progress with the work in hand. The programme would probably be completed before April 1—the date originally set.

"We have received good value for the money spent," said Mr. Finlayson. He added that the program of the future was a matter of conference between the Dominion and Ontario governments.

War to The Knife Among Barbers

GANANOQUE, Ont., Jan. 9.—Announcement of reduced prices has ended the peaceful pursuit of the barber trade in Gananoque, which has enhanced by a weekly half holiday in which all but one of the shops closed. Each in rotation had agreed to remain closed. The declaration of one barber yesterday that he "would remain open as long as he liked" and of another that he was cutting the price of a hair cut fled to a wave of price reduction and the half holiday is now no more.

NO PRINCIPLE OF LAW MADE

Claim of Workmen Not Upheld By Justice McEvoy

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 9.—Claim of two workmen for wages from the Atlas Construction Company of Montreal was not upheld in a judgment delivered over yesterday by Mr. Justice McEvoy at Osgoode Hall. He carefully found there was "no principle of law" upon which he could award judgment to John Pomeychuk and S. J. Mullen for $1265 and $1.20 respectively for wages due. The men based their case on the allegation that they had been employed by the defendant company on construction work on the Welland Canal at wages below the fair wage scale.

Girl Unconscious After Vile Attack

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 9—Police are waiting at the bedside of an eighteen year old girl in the hope that she will return to consciousness and tell the story of a brutal attack which she suffered this morning.

The girl was on her way to catch a street car at Barton Street and Tenth Avenue and was crossing a field.

She was next seen as she was staggering back to her parents' house, bruised, clothes torn and she fell unconscious as the door was opened. She has not since revived.

MOOSONEE NEW NAME OF OCEAN PORT

Moose Harbor To Change Name Decision Reached

INDIAN NAME

Bungalow Type of Hotel Will Be Erected it is Stated

North Bay, Ont., Jan. 9—Moose Harbor, Ontario's northern seaport, will henceforth be known as Moosonee. The new name was decided upon at a conference at Toronto between Premier George H. Henry of Ontario, and George W. Lee, chairman of the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission.

Moosonee is not a new name for Ontario's ocean port but has been used by the people of that district for many years.

A hotel of the bungalow type with from 10 to 20 rooms will be built, in view of the fullest cooperation, it was stated. Plans for the laying out of a town site at Moosonee will be discussed between Mr. Lee, Mr. Ross B. Clement and an authority on town planning. Parks, playgrounds, administrative buildings and schools will be provided for in the plans.

A combination passenger station and freight shed will be erected to serve the town at a point where it will not obstruct the erection of a permanent building in the future.

The chief engineer was authorized at the recent conference to confer with the Deputy Superintendent of Public Works in connection with the construction of timber to take car of the present needs.

No new extension of the railway will be officially opened in June and by that time it is hoped considerable progress will have been made with the plans.

Industrial Gas Rates Also Commercial Cut

Mr. J. T. Milner, Vice President and General Manager of the Ontario Shore Gas Company, Ltd., in the course of an interview with the Ontario Intelligencer, in regard to the cut in industrial and commercial rates announced today in another column, commented as follows:

"Since Ontario Shore Gas Company, Limited, acquired the Belleville Gas System in September, 1931 we have devoted our energies to the operation of the system and the development of an organization calculated to meet the requirements of the entire Belleville-Trenton district. With a gas plant in Belleville capable of producing 250,000 cu. ft. of gas per day and with a considerable gas distribution in the City of Belleville, we feel that we will be in a position to meet fully the gas requirements of this district as soon as our gas type transmission line is constructed to and distribution system developed in the Town of Trenton.

"We believe that this district will be one of the important industrial centres of Canada and that an adequate supply of gas at economical prices should be an important factor in such a development. The uses of gas in industrial operations have increased materially in recent years. Its convenience and efficiency as a fuel is fully appreciated and is increasingly appreciated. Subject only to its cost it excels any other heating medium.

"With a view to the fullest co-operation with the Industries in the Belleville-Trenton district we have established industrial and commercial rates which, we believe compare favourably with similar rates in other districts. Our new rates are intended to meet the requirements of the industries in this district and to encourage the use of gas in the courts of other fuels, all things considered. We also have available in the person of Mr. N. Elbogen, an industrial gas engineer who is fully conversant with and available at all times to advise in industrial gas and fuel problems generally.

"We understand that this district has not previously had gas available at reduced rates for industrial and commercial uses. We hope and are confident that the rates we have established will contribute materially to the industrial development of this district and will at the same time enable us to increase our gas output substantially. As with almost every other commodity the price of gas to the consumer depends very largely on the volume of consumption. It is our hope and expectation that with an increase in consumption by industrial and commercial purposes, we may be enabled, in due course, to adjust our domestic rates to meet more favourably the requirements of consumers."

Vegetable Growth from North Lake Enters Bay via Trent

Present Taste of Belleville Water Due to Weedy Growth

REMEDY SOUGHT

What seems to be a highly chlorinated condition of the city water supply, and one which has caused considerable comment among the citizens who have complained because of satisfaction over the present taste of the water which comes out of their taps, is due to the excessive amount of chlorination, as explained by Mr. E. T. Austin, manager of the waterworks who added that a less quantity than that was now being used.

The present taste is attributed to a vegetable growth being driven down from Lake Simcoe, via the Trent Valley watershed, and following a lake current which eddies along the north side of Lake Ontario and makes its appearance first as far inland as the Bay of Quinte. The present growth of such marine matter has been greater this year than it has ever been, and is getting worse year by year. Even inland waters are fast becoming choked with the weedy growth. Dr. Bennett, Mr. Faulkner, Mr. Smith of the firm of Gore, Nasmith and Storrie, who designed and built the present filtration plant, are expected to be international experts in all matters pertaining to water purification and supply, are at work on this subject and expect to forward some valuable advice to the city soon.

COMPLETE ORDER IN INDIA TODAY

Civil Disobedience and Nonpayment of Taxes Declining

(BY JAMES A. MILLS)

Bombay, India, Jan. 9 (AP) — Not since the conclusion of the truce between Mahatma Gandhi and Lord Irwin, the Governor Viceroy, has there been such complete order in India as there was today.

The six months' ordinances recently promulgated by the government have caused the Nationalists to confine their activities to the boycott. Civil disobedience and non-payment of taxes are declining.

Today the authorities went even further toward paralyzing the Congress party by announcing bank accounts known to belong to the Nationalist leaders. This admittedly will cripple the activities of the Congress.

Jubbulpore, India, Jan. 9 (AP)—Jubbulpore's "four-day sitting contest" between members of the congress and police ended today. The local magistrate ordered the police to disperse the large group of Nationalists and their sympathizers who squatted in the middle of the road since last Tuesday in protest against an edict against their holding a meeting.

While the contest went on for four days and nights police watchers were relieved every few hours but the Indians remained sitting, except for the few minutes to disperse by the magistrate's order but they stayed on until the police charged with staves, after which they offered no resistance. Three leaders were arrested.

A group of women nationalists Japanese volunteers caused the closing of the Bombay Stock Exchange today by establishing pickets outside the building and asking members not to transact business. The president ordered the exchange closed to avoid unpleasantness.

Posses Busy on Trail of Fugitive from "Pen" Trace Him to Peterboro

Movements of Gordon Calvert on Friday Generally Known

TODAY'S CHASE

Posse of Officers and Guards Believe Quarry Soon to Be Taken

A large force of guards from the Portsmouth penitentiary and Ontario Provincial Police officers were on Friday close on the trail of Gordon Calvert, who escaped from the penitentiary early last Wednesday morning. At one time they were unknowingly, within about a quarter of a mile of the fugitive, but he succeeded in getting away and evading them, before the knowledge of his presence was known.

About eleven o'clock Friday morning Detective Officer Hall of the Provincial Police at Belleville, received information that Calvert was at the house of Thomas Thomasburg. District Inspector Lougheed accompanied by Provincial Sergeant Thompson and Provincial Constable Acker left at once by motor car to investigate the report. When they arrived at Thomasburg they learned that the Rollins place was on the sixth line of Huntingdon. Leaving the car at Corby they met a neighbor woman of Rollins, who told them that the Provincial guards desired to get into touch with them by telephone, and District Inspector Lougheed was able to do this over a telephone line from the house. Other guards informed the Inspector that Calvert had been at the Rollins' house for breakfast and that he had left there about ten-thirty o'clock, walking. Calvert had work for Rollins at one time and the Rollins' place is about one quarter of a mile distance from the home of Calvert's parents, who also named Calvert.

The guards said that they were sufficient in number to cover the territory at this point and asked the Inspector and constable to cover the fourth line of the township. The Provincial officers combed the fourth line thoroughly and eventually worked back to the Rollins' place. Later they met Calvert's uncle, and he it is said, denied having seen Calvert. Later in the afternoon the Provincial officers met Calvert's relatives at Corby, who informed them that Calvert had been at his uncle's house at Frankford about fifteen minutes, where it is thought he changed a change of clothing; he had been wearing overalls when gaol, it is understood, a woman's black coat, a black felt hat and a felt hat. The women relatives told the officers that Calvert was very nervous when he left them and that he said they had urged him to give himself up but they thought that he was in no verge of doing so.

From school children playing near school at Corby the Provincial officers learned that they had recognized Calvert as he passed by during the school, travelling at a very fast rate of speed. The officers had obtained information, however, that the story of the school, children, which had caused the search, was the conclusion that Calvert had in fact was not the escaped convict at car. The children's story confirmed that a motor car had been followed the trail to the Madoc gravel road, towards which the fugitive was supposedly Calvert, in the car, travelling at great speed.

The city closed without obtaining any further information of the whereabouts of the fugitive and if, he had any idea of surrendering or had decided to give up to the middle of Saturday afternoon.

Ninety-nine out of every hundred persons who have symptoms or ailments for something said or diagnosed should be angry only at themselves.

Only two cases were presented to Magistrate Mikel, at the local police court on Saturday morning. Anzara appeared on a charge of assault which was laid against him earlier in the week. The case was enlarged until next week at the suggestion of defence counsel.

The second case was a charge of creating a disturbance in a public place. This charge was read to two local young men who pleaded guilty. The magistrate warned the two boys of the danger of secret stills encountered and let them go on conditions that they compensate the proprietor of the restaurants and paid the costs of the court.

More Clothing and Foodstaffs Wanted

Some time ago permission was given for the formation of committees for solicitations by the Thurlow Unemployment Association for donations of clothing, foodstuffs or anything else acceptable for families in that district who are in need. There have been a great many of those families sent for, but a number still remain. Therefore another appeal is being made through this paper for subscriptions of any sort in the lines of articles above mentioned. Anything which may be given can either be delivered at King George School in Thurlow, or if left at some other convenient place the members will gladly call for them. This appeal is made by the secretary of the Association, Mr. F. Van Dusen.

NOR'EASTER BRINGS COLD WEATHER

Although the weather, locally, has been quite spring-like it does not warrant the wearing of straw hats as yet. Records were broken and records were established when straw hats were worn in Toronto and St. John, N. B., for the first time in 1932, yesterday. The temperatures in this district have been far above average but although a few citizens were seen wearing their spring and fall overcoats, that is about as far as they went in discarding their late summer-like feelings.

The temperatures for Belleville and district yesterday were 40 high and 20 low. Last night, however, the mercury dropped two points lower to 27 low, while at noon today the mercury had reached 38. These figures are far above the average for this time of the year but while the north and west may be quite prevalent today it is expected that colder weather will me in order over the week-end.

YOUNG DANE ON WALKING TOUR WEST TO EAST

Engaged in Newspaper Work in Denmark Some Years Ago

SEEKS MATERIAL

Little Excitement on Tour of Thousands of Miles

Aage Brandi-Kure, twenty-five year old native of the island of Bornholm, Denmark, who has been in Canada for three and a half years, and is now on his way from Vancouver to Halifax in a walking tour, arrived in Belleville last evening, met Prof. F. A. C. Dosse, of Albert College, on whom hospitality was taken by him to the school where he spent the evening as the guest of the college staff and like the pilgrims of old related many of the incidents about him relating his adventures by the way across the Dominion, and in the United States to Napanee. Mr. Dosse accompanied the young man as far as Bridge to see him on his journey.

Mr. Brandi-Kure has had newspaper experience in Denmark, working on a paper at Hasselager, a town of fifteen thousand people, in Schleswig, Denmark. . He is writing an account of his trip which is for this paper and intends when he commands a little more time to write a little better, he says, to go on newspaper work in Canada.

Knowledge of English

His knowledge of English is already considerable, but he has learned some of the language in the schools of the country. Of Canada, he says, he had little or no command of the tongue when he came to Canada. He went to work on a farm in the west for a year and while there learned to speak English as spoken by the farmers. Then for a year he was in the oil refining alley in Edmonton. Being laid off he took the notion of going on tour from coast to coast.

He is nicknamed "the long vagabond" and he looks anything but a vagabond, his fair hair, and his white and ruddy features betoken health and virility. He gained nine pounds since he left the prairies, coming to Winnipeg and weighed today at 178 pounds, the most he has ever before tipped the scales at 169½ pounds, a further increase of five pounds in weight.

Seeing World

His motto is to see the world and see it right," and his appearance indicates that he is going to the bright type of a young man to gain correct impressions of this country. He left Vancouver on May 19th and reached Winnipeg by September 1st. He followed the C.P.R. tracks as far as Fort William from Winnipeg and then took the King's highway. Hitch-hiking is as easy as riding in a Pullman, he says, the motorist "most" it all," he comments. Owing to some accessibility we walk—or especially in British Columbia, he took car rides for forty-five miles. He had seven cents when he left Vancouver and is keeping afloat by selling photographs of himself. He expects to reach Halifax by April 1.

3 Pairs of Soles

He has worn out three pair of soles on the same uppers as he started with. He walks twenty miles a day, though he has walked thirty-three on the track and as high as thirty-five miles a day on the highway, but then he sometimes rests a day.

In British Columbia he saw moose. Otherwise he has seen all the wild life except perhaps on a farm in the Peace River. He approached a settler and asked if he could have a meal by paying for same. The woman "sicked" a police dog and it came at him but thanks to the training of Grim's staff which he carried from the western coast, he beat off the dog. "He did not come near me," he remarked Mr. Brandi-Kure to the Belleville newspaperman.

He walked for miles through a tunnel in Mount Macdonald where lights were oil-burners he often found the atmosphere dense that he had to lower the lantern he was carrying so that he could see the track.

35 Pennsylvania Dutch

He carries a thirty-five pound pack, a camera, and the staff, off the end of which he has worn about two inches since he started.

Asked about his study of English language he remarked that he took every opportunity to speak the language. "I have an uncle in Chicago who has been out fifteen years and every time I write to him I write in English."

He has had a little foot trouble by the way, such as blisters but this is diagnosed as "fallen arches" and has been admirable for walking.

"I am going by way to Canada and make my home here," he said. "I think it is a country of great opportunity, better than any of the old countries."

When the reporter spoke on the fine position which his native Denmark holds in dairying he smiled and remarked that this was Denmark's greatest industry.

There's a lot of talk about the double standard of morality—but I call it double standard of immorality.—Lady Astor.

Watch for —The—
BIG NINE

THE BAY OF QUINTE

Westward from the Limestone City,
Where the surplus flow of water
Pours our five great inland seamen
Makes at once "The Grand Discharge,"
And the mighty, broad St. Lawrence
Starts upon its seaward journey,
Like a Bay of many islets—
Hardly that, for most on the one side,
And Prince Edward on the other,
Rich in history and tradition.

When the early French explorers
Passed this way 300 years since;
Met the early Indian tribesmen;
Where the "Gateway to the Islands,"
Centre of the tribe's encampment,
Lately called "Deseronto on the Lake";
And the Frenchmen caught the music
Of the name the Indians called it,
Gave it then the name of "Teaio'te Ta'ghi charming stretch of water;
Yes, like many an Indian place name,
Time and usage will corrupt it;
Thus we get the name of "Quinte."

Here, our Loyalist forefathers,
Seared by angry revolution,
Came near seven years and ten since,
Seeking for a peaceful homestead
In these parts 'neath Britain's banner;
Left their homes and all dear to them,
For the sake of their attachment
To the memory of the homeland;
Thus the district first was settled.

Forest soon gave place to wheatfield;
Trail to road, and but to farmhouse;
Schools and churches, marks of progress;
Sprang up here and there on all sides;
Hamlet, village, town and city,
In a few short generations,
Testify to the thrift of the people.

In our day of rail and highway,
With their swiftly moving traffic,
We scarce realize the value
Of the inland waterway—Bayfront
In days fifty years or more since,
Was the principal highway for
Products of the virgin forest,
Furs of wood, and fish, and hickory,
Fruits of vineland, field and orchard.
Network of Bay-borne commerce,
Found here easy transportation
For the products of the country.

First the Bay was lightly landlocked,
Like a highway with a blind end,
Useful just for local traffic,
Outlet but at Amherst Island;
Then the waterway seemed a passage,
Carrying Place to Brighton Harbor,

But Sir John, for long time Premier,
Spent his boyhood on the Bay shore,
Sat for Lennox in the Commons,
Knew his Quinte from a schoolboy,
Saw the need for the liquid outlet,
Cut Prince Edward from the mainland,
Made of it a lily island.
By the Murray Canal building;
Waterway at once was ended;

Since this work all Bay-borne traffic
Finds the east and western outlet,
Now as well all light-draught shipping
Finds the Bay a sheltered channel,
Yielding fifty miles of lakeway
And the haven of the Main Ducks.
GEORGE ALLEN KINGSTON.

INCREASE IN PENNY BANKS

Belleville Increases Deposits During Year by $1,050,244

Penny bank savings have shown a marked increase during the past year throughout the province of Ontario, especially so the increase is noticed in the city of Belleville, which has increased its deposits by $1,050,244 during the past 12 months.

The penny bank savings system which was introduced in the public schools of Belleville a number of years ago, has met with decided success during its period of existence. It teaches the younger school children the fundamental principles of the advantages of saving money while they are young. The amount deposited in the penny banks of Ontario, is much larger than the average citizen would imagine, as the statistics for the year 1931 show.

The total amount on deposit at the end of October 31st, 1931, in the whole province was $1,343,387.03. The total number of schools depositing was 2,007 and the penny bank system were 473 compared with 467 in the previous year. The comparative figures of deposits for the preceding year were $1,287,- 362.31. These figures give a total increase of $56,024.72 over the year 1930 in the province.

In Belleville King George school led the deposits with 70 per cent; Queen Mary had 49 per cent; Queen that the school children are seeing the advantage of saving their pennies for future use.

THOS. WRIGHT 101 YEARS OLD IS CELEBRATING

Unique Day in Life of Picton Citizen, Father of Mr. M. Wright

SON'S STORY

Mr. Thomas Wright, of Talbot Street, Picton, and Mrs. Sarah Malcolm Wright, betrister of this city, is today celebrating very quietly, his 101st birthday. Born in the town of Kelso, Roxburg, in the lowlands border of Scotland and England, Mr. Wright came to Canada, as an infant of two years of age, with his parents in 1833, the family settling in Sophiasburg, Prince Edward County. An uncle of Mr. Wright's on his mother's side had previously emigrated to this locality which had been settled largely by Quaker Dutch from Pennsylvania. Working with his family on the clearing of the homestead, the young Wright eventually took over part of the farm on reaching manhood. In his father having been accidentally killed in the prime of manhood by a falling tree, when extending the holdings. Like a great many young men of that time, in the Bay of Quinte district, he taught school for several years, also farming has been, practically, his life-long occupation.

Mrs. Wright passed away some thirty-one years ago at the family of four sons, Mr. Malcolm Wright, of Belleville, is the only one now living.

Mr. Wright, at the ripe old age of 101 years, still enjoys his extended life, and is able to take his daily exercise. Although his hearing is impaired, he reads extensively and his mind is said to be of large type for him to follow. Naturally, he finds it difficult to live the old gentlemanly Britisen is an example of the value of moderation in all things is productive of. Mr. Wright has never used tobacco in any form, and has also not ascribe his longevity to this abstemiousness. Mr. Wright's appetite, however in all things, he believes, is about the same as in former years. At a time when patent medicines are the popular means to cure all ills, Mr. Wright shunned them, insisting that nature is the customary meal or two, till any complaint he may have felt, passed away.

Mr. Malcolm Wright tells a story of the early days of his father and the community in which he lived. The manager operated to the neighborhood where the Quaker element was still predominant, and as customary in those days, the farmers from miles around came to add bid to the auction sale of the barn. Barn raising was an auspicious occasion, the liquid refreshment and refreshment was handled in pails and tubs instead of bottles. Young Wright (though not an abstainer), found one of the Quaker brethren, who also felt disinclined, refused the liquid hospitality of the newcomer. The generations it has been the usual thing to palm, corn or wheat in the name on the gable of a barn, commemorate the raising. So impressed was the settler to find a locality in which no such sentiments refused whiskey, that he named Christian Corners, after the son statistical organization; Anti-Christian Courting, president of the National Shoe Retailers' Association of the United States and W. J. Dutton, director of the department of extension at the University of Toronto.

Tuesday morning, the convention will be addressed by Miss Margaret Rorke, managing director of the Canadian Color Association of the United States and Frank Bosely, director of the merchandising service division of the Dominion Retail Merchants Association. The annual banquet will be held Tuesday evening at the Royal York.

Empire Trade to Grow Manion Sees Canada Advance After Slump

Home Ports Advocated By Minister in Ottawa Speech

FOREIGN TRADE

Hon. Dr. Manion Addresses Vegetable Growers at Ottawa

OTTAWA, January 9—Describing what he believed to be Canada's geographical advantages as a source of produce for the consuming centres of the world, Hon. Dr. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals and acting Minister of Trade and Commerce, in an address here Friday, expressed himself as most emphatically of the opinion that this country would take great strides in trade and commerce as soon as economic conditions improved.

Hon. Dr. Manion was addressing a joint luncheon of the Ottawa Board of Trade and the Eastern Canada Fruit and Vegetable Jobbers' Association. The Minister expressed satisfaction in the fact that the association, which completes its seventh annual convention to-day, was working in the interests of Inter-Empire trade. At the imperial Economic Conference, which he said would be held in Ottawa with in the next six months, the Minister said there would be legislation forecast, which, would do much to bind the Empire closed together in trade.

Although speaking on behalf of the Minister of Trade and Commerce, Dr. Manion said his own department as well was interested in the fruit and vegetable industry as these products were third in volume of the tonnage carried in merchandise that make up the freight traffic of the railways.

His own personal experience of the industry was not extensive, he said, but he had seen the fruit and vegetable growing districts of Okanagan Valley, B.C., the Niagara Peninsula in Ontario and the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia, and he believed no finer products came from any other part of the world. He paid a tribute to the fertile soil of the Okanagan Valley for introducing and standardizing a modern method of boxing, grading and marketing their apples and other fruit.

Using Own Ports

Dr. Manion spoke with satisfaction of the increased use of Canadian ports for bringing in the produce it is necessary to import into Canada. There was a time, he said, that much of this produce from foreign countries was landed at United States ports for distribution in Canada by rail, but the condition had been much improved. He cited the case of bananas. During the fiscal year ended March 31, 1929, Canada imported three and a half-million stems of bananas and 93 per cent. of this vol ume was landed at United States ports. In 1930, the volume was four million stems, but only 30 per cent. entered through other than Canadian ports. During the fiscal year ended March 31, 1931, the imports were four million stems and only 20 per cent. entered through United States ports, and it was estimated that of the volume for the present fiscal year less than 13 per cent. would enter through other than Canadian ports.

ACID stomach

EXCESS acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and nausea about two hours after eating. It is responsible for most of the stomach ailments that people suffer; sick headache, sleeplessness, nausea, biliousness, gas on the stomach. The quick and safe corrective is an alkali which will neutralize the acid, but the most effective known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its introduction.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—today.

Go to the drug store and get a bottle of Phillips' Tablets tonight, and follow the simple directions you find in the package. Learn what it means to have the quick relief your system needs. How much better your physical and mental health will be. How seldom you will catch cold.

Be sure that you get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia that physicians prescribe. It is sold in the bottles at drug stores everywhere throughout the dominion.

To keep the teeth white and guard against acid mouth, use Phillips' Dental Magnesia; it is a superior tooth-paste. (Made in Canada).

Our Tobacco is Liked in Britain

London, Jan. 9—The British smoker is taxing his palate to Canadian tobacco. Imports through the port of London of Canadian tobacco in 1931 amounted to 8,870,000 pounds, against 728,000 pounds in 1930. Formerly Canadian tobacco was blended with other grades but a large proportion is now sold separately.

W. WOODACRE 'DRAWS' MOTOR

Truck Driver's Name is Drawn By Mayor Tice

In the middle of the ice of the arena last evening immediately following the termination of the hockey match between Belleville and Campbellford His Worship Mayor Tice bared his arm, reached into the cheese box held over his head by ex-Mayor Morley Duff, chairman of the Belleville Rotary Association and which was filled with hundreds of tickets distributed by the Amateur Athletic Association and pulled forth one tightly rolled up little ball of paper. That paper was the ticket which won a brand new car, and on that ticket was the name of Mr. Walter Woodacre, 12 Bay street, city. It was a fortunate happening for Mr. Woodacre and a happy ending for the many others interest ran high over the result of the draw. It was feared by some of them that more than one ticket and more than one car, or some one who could afford more than one would be the lucky winner. However, Mr. Woodacre is no millionaire and while a car would have been a very welcome addition to his family he longings nevertheless he had never acquired one. Now he is happy and so are the rest of the family. Many pleasurable days lie ahead of them in the enjoyment of their new possession. There is one thing certain though—he will not have to undergo any period of training in order to drive the car as he is already employed by the Maple Leaf Milling Company as truck driver. And truck drivers always take their vacation behind the wheel of the family car, so it all ends very happily.

Snow is Cleared Till Clue is Found

Ottawa, Jan. 9—Aided by a hubcap clue, located by detectives after they had shovelled 500 feet of snow on the roadway, police of Carleton County arrested Clarence Lahey of Ottawa. He is charged with being the driver of a truck which hit and killed Mrs. Linwich Miss Gleda Graham was a passenger New Year's Day. Miss Graham was seriously injured.

After a search of twenty-nine garages in Ottawa, police found a damaged truck, and a hunt in the same of the crash resulted in the finding of the hubcap. The cap fitted the truck wheel perfectly, police said.

Lahey will be arraigned in court Monday.

NATIONALISTS IN INDIA FACE DEATH RISK

Power of Death Gives Judges By Gov't in India

ROUND-UP

Acting President of Congress Arrested—British Officers Warned

Bombay, India, Jan. 8—The government has strengthened its policy in India by promulgating Judges to pass any sentence, including the sentence of death upon any person convicted of disobeying the security ordinance recently enacted.

The courts may pass sentences in the absence of the defendant, and by recording only the substance of the evidence.

The roundup of Nationalist leaders continued today as soon as outlawing the Congress party was extended to Bengal province and the Presidency of Madras. Dr. Ansari, acting president of the Congress, and Dr. Choksey, another prominent leader, among those apprehended during the day.

Meanwhile the Bombay Cotton Brokers' Association passed a resolution condemning the government's policy. It will be acted upon on Monday.

The Indian Christian Republican Society, a secret organization standing for independence through violent methods, plastered some sections of the city with flaming red posters of warning.

"Beware, demons of a vanishing empire!" the posters read. "We warn British officials to go about with arms armed, on orders, the subjects of our society will kill any official found unarmed. Beware, we also warn all Nationalists not to interfere with our solemn duty."

CROSS BURNED ON BOULEVARD

Persons From Motor Are Given Credit For Flare

A lurid, oil soaked flare burned brightly on Cannifton Road just before eleven o'clock last evening in the shape of a cross which was erected in the narrow boulevard by a party or parties in an automobile who drove up, kindled the cross-shaped object into flame, which leaped and flared brightly, and sped away while the cross remained to burn.

A resident of that house, which is a double house and contains two families, promptly emerged as soon as the blaze got under way, and with the aid of several pails of water, extinguished it. When a representative of this paper visited it a short time afterwards only a few charred pieces of wood remained. Witnesses say the wood which it was composed of must have been impregnated with gasoline or some other inflammable liquid, as the fire gave off a peculiarly yellowish light, almost smokeless, and burned with a brilliant intensity almost as soon as it was set alight.

A few pieces which were gathered up show that the wood used was made of is that variety of lumber known as cedar, about one inch thick and four inches wide. The wood which was secured appeared to have been carefully planed, and had traces of oil on small portions of the surface, principally ends. The object itself was built with four flat pieces of wood to hold it upright when it was placed on the boulevard, and was also described as being about four feet high. No motive could be advanced by either tenants of the house for the appearance of this flare, and it is thought by some to be the work of a practical joker.

GUARDS NEAR FUGITIVE ONE TIME FRIDAY

Wearing Woman's Long Black Coat at Fuller, Ont.

BUT NOT DISGUISED

Calvert May Now Be Wearing Other Clothing

Armed guards from the penitentiary were within five hundred yards of Gordon Calvert, the escaped Portsmouth prisoner on Friday but the fugitive managed to elude his pursuers. Seventy-five men were on the hunt patrolling the roads in and about Tweed.

During the day a story became general that Calvert was masquerading in woman's clothing. This is not exactly the case, Calvert was wearing a woman's long black coat when he was near his Fuller home on Friday shortly after breaking out of jail, but there was no attempt to disguise himself as a woman, police stated today.

No trace of the man was reported today.

The fugitive during the day visited a relative near Tweed and called by detailed with a family, it is said, the pros and cons of surrendering to the police.

"Nope, I'm going to have some more fun with the police first," Calvert is reported to have said to those who the discussion after the family had encamped in vain to persuade him of the danger of continuing to play hare and hounds with armed posses.

The car used by the fugitive is believed to be a sedan owned by Brue Fuller, Fuller Corners, which disappeared from its garage there this morning. Police authorities say many miles from the penitentiary.

Calvert's escape from the jail here at Madoc, where he was reported seen passing through in the stolen car. He was thought that night to be headed for Peterboro, and the police are concentrating on him there, off, to lay traps for him at other points.

It is not known how much money Calvert has secured since his escape, or whether he is armed. It is thought he may have secured several changes of clothing.

Warden Ponsford, of Portsmouth Penitentiary, is in this district personally supervising the hunt.

Police today seemed to think that if Calvert is not captured within the next two or three days their task will be a hard one. There are many friends in the northern part of Hastings County and in this locality settled he might hide in that district for some time.

Campbellford, Jan. 9.—Acting on advices that Gordon Calvert had been seen about a large farm on the Stirling Road Friday afternoon, a small army of policemen, guards and Provincial Police, assisted by Chief Bromley and the local squad, set out on intersections in the town last night.

Rev. John McCorkindale Dies at Age of 103 Years

Fort William, Jan. 8.—Rev. John McCorkindale, "Grand Old Man of Thunder Bay District," died peacefully in his sleep Friday evening in his Fort William home, at the age of 103 years. His last birthday anniversary was on Dec. 4, 1931.

In possession of all his faculties and in comparatively vigorous health when he attained the age of 102, Mr. McCorkindale began to fail recently. A Hebridean by birth, he had lived in Ontario for 75 years. He was born in the reign of King George IV. in the Parish of Norwedgie, Island of Islay. He was one of seven sons, all of whom left for Dominion overseas. For a short time he live in Hamilton, but moved to Belleville, where he entered business, but as this included the selling of whiskey, which was repugnant to the strong Presbyterian, he left to work in a mill at Port Severn. Later he took up ecclesiastical studies, and was appointed by the Toronto Synod to missionary work. A rugged constitution enabled him to withstand the rigors of foot travel in the wilderness. He came to this district in 1906.

In 1873 he was married to Sarah C. McArthur of Guelph, who survives. They have three sons, John A. of Fort William, Donald of Prince Rupert, B.C., and Arthur, also of Prince Rupert, and one daughter, Mrs. J. Hancock of Calgary. The late centenarian was among the oldest Masons in Canada, having joined the White Oak Lodge, Oakville, more than 63 years ago.

Santa Side-Tracked Boat Arrives Late

London, January 9. — This day brought a story of Christmas disappointment from Mr. Charles Carlisle, off the Island of Tristian da Cunha, on a lonely spot in the middle of the South Atlantic Ocean, which seldom receives a visit from the world outside.

The Carlisle-pot there with their Christmas cheer for the inhabitants sent tried in vain to launch boats in pounding seas. The natives tried to get boats out from shore but the efforts were futile.

Finally the Carlisle steamed off to the other side of the island where there is another attempt tomorrow to land and carry the presents over the mountains to the one little town. The weather is always bad there and a landing is seldom easy.

HOPES ALREADY REALIZED

The first statement which has been issued and which appears today in an interview by the Ontario Shore Gas Company Limited, through Vice President and General Manager A. T. Milner is a gratifying one to the consumers of gas and particularly to the industrial and commercial users of this city and district, announcing as it does, a cut in rates. Mr. Milner says: "Our new rates are intended to meet the requirements of the industries in this district and will bear comparison with the cost of other fuels, all things considered. We hope and are confident that the rates we have established will contribute materially to the industrial development of this district and will at the same time enable us to make our gas output substantially." Mr. Milner also holds out the probability of a further cut at this time in the event of rates to meet more favorably the requirements of consumers," this depending of course upon the volume of consumption developed.

Mr. Milner gives some hints of the possibility of the gas development of this district, the local field being capable of producing a quarter of a million feet a day so that the construction of the gas pipe line from Trenton and the distribution system in under plan and the distribution system in Trenton will fully meet the gas requirements of the district.

Though the city has sold the plank, nothing would give the people here more satisfaction than to see a rapid extension of the system throughout the district not only because it would mean advantages to the city in rates and in new industries but because it would reward the company who have demonstrated their faith in Belleville.

The outlook for gas is good and the possibilities which are before the Ontario Shore Gas Company are bright.

That Belleville is not alone in the expectation of a great furture for the industry is indicated in the view of Mr. Milner. "We believe this district will be one of the most important industrial centres of the east and that an adequate supply of gas at economical rates should be an important factor in such a development."

BETTING ON WEATHER

Betting on the weather is more legitimate than any other form of betting. At least one has a little to go on as the basis for the guess. The weather is worth guessing on.

It is strange, but it is a fact nevertheless that weather guessing is as old as time "as the hills" and mountains has had to study; he has depended upon the weather so long that he has devised almost a method for guessing what the next day is to bring forth.

In this day when weather data collection is a part of a good government, there is a tendency to depend upon facts and figures and the deductions to be made from currents but forget that in the mind of the old weather prophets was a firm substratum of truth and fact based on the lifetime of experience of the years. While the Weather Man doubtless does use some of this he is largely dependant upon the reports from all parts of the country.

Storms and clouds still have their formations which can be read like a book by the weather prophet. A weather prediction may not be systematized as is that of the provincial Meteorological office but it has a fair chance of being at the truth. A weather guessing at the way means rain, say what you will.

Then weather guessing is so delightful an art and pastime as well. Why throw it away because a barometrical report comes out daily. Nobody decries the value of the barometer and the thermometer and such like, but why throw away the most delightful of sensations, guessing what the days will bring forth? If everyone knew what the weather would be, not one would get caught in the rain. What a pleasure lost!

Whatever city folk do the farmers will not discard their weather signs. There are too valuable to them. They are a part of the life they live for the farmer is a close friend of nature, on nature's help he depends for his living and for the food which he produces for the nations.

CHEESE WINNERS

Cheesemakers of this section won high honors at the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Convention, held at Kingston according to the awards handed out. Hiram Johnston of Madoc won the association prize for the highest average score with 93.115 points, and C. F. Linn carried off the prize awarded the instructor with the highest percentage of firsts in his group as well as the silver cup of the late Hon. John S. Mardi. Mr. Johnston of Madoc won numerous other prizes as did Mr. W. V. Drewery of Warkworth who was second to Mr. Johnston. John West of Stirling was also numbered among the winning makers. Numerous other awards were made to the makers by the association.

These facts prove that makers in this section are holding their own for this has been known as the championship district for years.

The appeal of the speakers at the convention to the makers and to dairymen to go after the improvement of their herds will not fall on dull ears. Canadians know what trade they have had abroad and Belleville district in particular realizes what the cheese industry means and that improvement of stock will greatly enhance the opportunities for foreign trade.

WHAT DID THE MERCHANT ACTUALLY LOSE, asks a Sidelight reader in reference to a paragraph in yesterday's column regarding the sale of a pair of rubbers. Other readers have expressed a number of opinion as to the actual profit and loss of the transaction, so the question is herewith stated at length for the benefit of all who desire to give it any thought. If you are interested communicate your solution to this column for comparison and final comment. The transaction was as follows: Front Street merchant sold a stranger a pair of rubbers for $1.70. The rubbers cost 95c. Overhead expenses are approximately ten per cent. Customer tendered a two-dollar bill, and received seventy cents change. Stranger, sitting on counter, remained chatting with the proprietor who put two-dollar bill in cash register without saying there. Two till, no other money being there. Two other customers came in and were taken to the back of the store to see some goods. Sale was made and five-dollar bill tendered. Merchant went to till for two-dollar bill to make change. Two-dollar bill was gone, also the first customer. Simple case of arithmetic, isn't it. Sure, but several different solutions have been handed in already. Let's have yours with or without reasons.

BUSINESS MEN BEGINNING THE NEW YEAR are planning for bigger and better business. Here's a tip. Some of the biggest and best merchandisers in the United States and in Great Britain have decided that this year their advertising appropriation will be used principally in newspapers which they have come to acknowledge is the first line of advertising attack on modern business. There are many weird and wonderful schemes dignified with the name of advertising, but for results real and lasting the newspaper affords the best, first, last and all the time.

READERS HAVE JUST PASSED THROUGH a barrage of Christmas stories. Here's one held over until after the rush, and a true one at that. It happened on a Northern Ontario line during the building of a transcontinental railway. A camp of engineers and their helpers found themselves cut off from all Christmas in the bush. Not so good. However, as these trail breakers always—do, they proceeded to make the best of it and to carry out the plans for Christmas cheer and such like in the spirit of the occasion. When the point arose of a Christmas feast it was agreed that the best quested that the ban be lifted and a few bottles of Corby's allowed through to give zest to the Christmas feast. Nothing doing said the chief, who had just passed through a mess of trouble and correspondence through the mistake of a subordinate who wanted to contraband. This, of course, was before the days of prohibition, but no liquor was permitted on construction work. A possible bootleg stuff filtered through, however, and constant watch had to be kept to keep the stuff away from the engineers' camp. One well-known bootlegger used to peddle his stuff in a double-barrelled shotgun, especially fitted for the business, and that's not where the expression "a shot in the arm" comes from, either, but pretty near it. Well to get back to the story after much fine tuning, the engineers took the dry order hard, and there were murmurs of mutiny. A compromise was reached with permission to import two dozen turkeys for the Christmas festivities. The turkeys came and there was a great feast and almost to relate there was plenty Christmas spirit in the air. There was an outer and an inner circle, the former the table and the latter the Christmas spirit just around the corner of the shack in the cook house. "Say Uncle" was the password and "was a good time had by all?" "Don't ask me," said the cookee, "I'm tongued." Fortunately the chief had been called to the telephone on business and the camp was in charge of the engineers who elected one of their number as Officer Commanding and conferred upon him the high-sounding title of Majestic Monarch of the Corkscrew. Most of the boys seemed to forget the waiter's name by next morning they were all calling for John Collins, and that wasn't his name. The solution of the mystery—now it can be told—each turkey, big and fat, concealed a bottle of liquor, some red, some white, but all pungent, and all powerful, and so—a good time was had by all.

And was always a rose.
But the theory now goes
That the apple's a rose

You of course, are a rose—
But were always a rose.

DRAMA GIVEN AT CANNIFTON

Y. P. S. Sucessfully Present "The Path Across The Hills"

On Friday evening, Jan. 1st, 1932 in Canniffon Town Hall, the Drama entitled "The Path Across The Hill" was presented under the auspices of the United Church Y. P. S. to a large and appreciative audience. The opening numbers of the entertainment consisted of delightful instrumental selection on the piano, by Mr. and Mrs. Watts. Then following the announcement of the characters taking part, the play was presented in a very realistic manner as each character played their parts admirably, so ably was the play given that many say it is the best yet presented in Canniffon.

During the intermission between the acts, the musical acts, the audience was given a real treat, by Messrs Harold, Joe and Milo Pringle Brintnell of Carmel. Their exhilirating duets and trios were enjoyed very much given the enthusiastically encored by the audience.

Judging from the many appreciative comments of those who saw the play and from the numerous enquiries of those who were prevented from being present by the cold weather it will be necessary to give the play again in the near future for the benefit of the surrounding country an opportunity to enjoy it.

RHEUMATISM SO EXCRUCIATING WEIGHT OF SHEET HURT TERRIBLY

Fortunately her mother remembered T-R-C's. Relief from Pain immediate. Now drives right out!

"Two years ago I had a dreadful attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism," writes Mrs. Ernest Cain, Willowdale, Ontario. "The pain was excruciating. Mother put me to bed and the weight of the sheet on my feet caused me terrible agony. My knees and hands were swollen and I could not move. I was in bed and getting did me little good.

"Then mother remembered that seven years before she had used T-R-C's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules). She got me a 25 cent box right away, and it was wonderful to find I got relief right from the first dose. A box or two got me around again; and after three or four boxes I was amazed that they had driven every trace of the Rheumatism from me." Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and correct use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time; but you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. Repeatedly they have given quick, lasting relief from Acute Rheumatic suffering; also from Sciatica, (stabbing pain in the hip and thigh), Neuritis, Neuralgia and Lumbago (Lame Back). No harmful or habit - forming drugs.

T-R-C's do this—Enter the blood stream and help your body throw off the poisonous, causing poisons which have accumulated in your blood. When these go, health and happiness return. T-R-C's are 30c and $1 per box at your druggist. 215

Coasting along with a four goal lead and having the opposition hogtied from goal to centre, the Belleville intermediates lost the key to their offensive display and found they came back to terra firma. Campbellford had come in three goals and looked all over the better team. The final score was 4-3 with the periods 2-0, 4-0 and the score about represents the play.

The Big Six group was officially opened on Friday night and if the class of hockey displayed and the enthusiasm of the crowd continues then Belleville is in for one of the best years of hockey, since this city entered the senior ranks of hockey. The largest crowd to ever view a Belleville game in the local arena crammed every hot into the ice palace and before the game started there were few vacant seats anywhere. Of course there was a double incon-ve as the first car was driven by the Mayor Tice and the fans were ready to give him a hearty cheer for the ner and pass judgment. This, however, slowed the game up and the fans were unable to put their best foot forward due to the long delay. The singing of "Buster" Hartley, who was handling his first O.H.A. game. Certainly did they sing and were well entertained for the home team won and that's something.

Well Represented

Campbellford came down a large contingent for the contest and there was no doubt as to their fans appearing to closing bell. They were well subdued during the first period but by the third canto they gave vent to their feelings and there was no Belleville rooter could make a squak as the locals were clearly outplayed during the last twenty minutes. It is no mean team that C. M. Ferris and Jack Campbell collected and who are under the scientific eye of Bill Whitty who coach a man who knows his hockey and hockey players. Campbellford were noticably shy on condition due to the fact they have not been out upon which to practice but they were not shy on gameness and they carried the play until complete exhaustion overtook them. When they opened their legs and let go to make the game out of the fire they rapidly became to look like a team that through experience that the locals were able to add to their list of win column.

Campbellford will this take some beating in this league especially on their home ice where the surface is not quite as large as in other towns in the loop. Their team is heavy, has a lot of speed both ways and they have the result of good coaching.

Not the Best Referee

Handling a game from a referee's standpoint is no easy task at any time but last night Hartley brought down the ire of the fans on his head for one or two weird decisions. In the first frame it looked as if the game was going to get out of his control but he applied the brakes but, his first break was crash in the ice a real hockey game was turned into a penalty. For no good reason at all he put players to the hoosegow and as no penalty for the first period was there a full team on the ice when the bell for the second twenty-five minutes were handed out but they were all for minor offences. They were mostly cases of deliberate dirty play of the night went unpenalized but Hartley rendered Herbie Morris hors de combat early in the game when Jack Ingram cross-checked the defenceman from behind. After Morris had delivered his shot, knocking out two teeth and putting a nasty gash in his chin required three stitches to close. There is no place in hockey for such actions and Referee Hartley should have put up a better game than he turned in but probably the lack of work in the early frames threw him off his bearing. On two goals that were scored the nets were but little protection from his defence.

Marrett in the opposite twine never seen as much rubber before in his life than last night and how he escaped with only four counters he being notched against him will never be solved. He certainly had the tremendous handing for the task at hands. He stopped some he never saw while on the other shots he was only in the road through self-preservation. Fred Ingram played a smart hockey while Ken Davis has played much better games than he displayed last night. "Buster" Whitton was easily the star of the line up in the three fighting for sixty minutes. McKay played smart hockey on the defence and with Harry Ingram did not like the heavy going although he was not found wanting to hand it out. Bush and Cummings looked like a pair while McArthur stood up well on the defence. Cowell was the whipper about the arena that McKay and Cowell like each other like a couple of sweet kenny cats and he refused to take the ice on that account. Some boys should patch up their differences. Fraser should have stayed in Ayrmer as the hockey up this way looked to be too tough for the boy.

The Play

Belleville went away on high and showed the pace to the opposition, they being content to stick to their line and wait for the breaks. The opening play was slow until Campbellford woke up to the fact, reaking from his own defense area with the Belleville forwards back with a well directed pass from Weir and Ingram scampered down the ice. In this juncture as if it was just a question of how many, Jack Campbell scored the first picture with a combination effort that had all the earmarks of a set play. Morris started another sortie and when he reached the Campbellford defence he outguessed them to send a shot through the nets at the other end. Marrett has not seen that one yet. Ingram and Weir set up Harry Ingram and retired for repairs. Starting the second frame, Leschman, Belleville's rover, found the blue whistle miserable for Campbellford and the three were rewarded when Leschman popped one at the goalie and Whitton rebounded in to sweep in the rebound. Then was little hockey in the middle stanzas but Ingram fere had a constant parade to the penalty box and he was probably the neatest goal of the night when he stone tricked the defence to draw Marrett out of the nets to set the net.

Opening the third frame it looked as if Campbellford were content to hold the count in their possessions but Fred Ingram went on a scoring rampage when Belleville was two men short. The defence opened up like last years crap table gate and Tho was cleanly beat on a backhand drive. This gave the Northerners confidence and they sailed into the locals with both barrels and scored after Whitton tricked the defence and went in close to beat Tice and Ingram duly effort with another swiftly planted in the Campbellford contingent went into hysterics. "Bouncer" Hickey, who forfeitedly handled his team in a most efficient manner called on his regulars and they stopped the slaughter. Jack Campbell pounced the close of the pastime as Campbellford were passing.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Tice; defence, Morris and Weir; centre, McMeekin; wings, Leschman and Campbell; subs, Sherry, Morgan, St. Denis and Hicks.

Ice Scrapings from the Bull Pen

You can't enjoy real hockey unless you mix with the boys down in the "bull pen."

According to those who claim to know what this grand old game is all about the only way to see a hockey game is to straddle part of a bench down there, loosen your collar button, take a shaw of tobacco . . . and join in the fun. Boy you get just as much fun listening to the wisecracks from the boys who make no bones about what they say. In other words a spade is generally called everything else but a spade . . . and pity the referee. Here's part of it—are ye listenin'?

X X X

"Well, well . . . look like the old game is goin' to start. Come on, let's go, boys. Come on, Campbellford . . . Line 'em up down the alley, boys . . . Sure it's him can't you tell that step again? Now, he can't make it . . . come on, come on, let's go . . . Raw, raw, Campbellford . . . Who'll take a little bet? Sure you can . . . first? Sure, it's in the bag . . . Oh yeah? Boston Bruins? Nobody didn't pick Campbellford . . . Oh, rear—you look the cop twice, hey . . . take it again, boys . . . Five bucks on Boston first . . . and five bucks we shut you out . . . Say ray, Buzko . . . Come on, boy . . . Look at Buster he looks like a million dollars . . . Oh! Oh, what a mess . . . what do you think of that, Bill? Eh? Rotten! Campbellford . . . Campbellford . . . What time was that, Bill? Weir . . . He's working, that boy is. Booool, watch him . . . watch him . . . Campbellford . . . Campbellford . . . how'd you like that Campbellford . . .

X X X

Aw, close your face . . . who cares . . . send him down the ice, boys . . . Campbellford that for backhanding them? You on this wing you're rotten . . . Send him to the cooler, you chump . . . can't you see that check? Yes, yes . . . Back to Kingston you belong . . . Well, if that wouldn't tie your old grandmother's shoe laces for you!

X X X

Effect—shoot, you dummy . . . oh-oh. Boo, you big bum. Who ever told you were a hockey player . . . you're not . . . Ref, you're not licked yet anyhow . . . What? Oh, I'll bet you my dog after to get through with you . . . aw, you haven't got a dollar. Keep it boy, you'll need it before Spring . . . buy some bay for your cow with it. Hoho . . . see that one . . . Missed! What a game, eh, what a game . . . but that referee is rotten. They ought to put him in the box instead of St. Denis . . . Right over the net . . . and maybe that boy can't score . . . Boy, what a goal tender that boy Les Marrett is . . . Ray Busko . . . get him boy . . . look out, he's behind you . . . again—sure he's out.

Oh, what a Winter . . . we got the dough. Look in that guy with the heavy mitts on . . . Oh, that's what he's been hiding . . . Get him! . . . get that boy . . . but the old boy is shootin' . . . Yes, sir . . . Come on Bill's got a goal . . . Hoo'd you like it Campbellford . . . Nerts . . . yes, you . . . "JUST ANOTHER GAME" SAYS IRVIN

Can anyone match the goal scoring record of Dick Irvin in a championship match? Dick ran up a nine goal record in a single game eighteen years ago and the sharpshooters have been trying to beat it ever since. Maybe they have come so, but the news has not reached this department. "Just another game," said Dick when we recalled the feat to him the other day. The incident happened in Toronto in March 1914, in the second game of the Pellatt cup series between T.R. & A.A. and the Winnipeg Monarchs. Irvin's team-mate, Reid Newfoundland, was again in centre position when the Monarchs won the Allan Cup in 1915, ending his amateur career in the flight of this series, since he next year turned pro with the Pacific Coast League. Dick is now coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

With the union of 1925, the Book of Praise was deeded over to the United Church. The latter denomination now has its own new hymnal, however.

MUSICAL NOVELTIES IN "SINGLE AND SON ROLES"

Two startling novelties in music as applied to talking pictures figure in "The Love Song," the new Paramount-Tibbett's newest starring picture, which will open at the Belle Theatre on Sunday next.

One of these is a dramatic episode told entirely in song, the other is a "lone poem" that illustrates a poetical account of a voyage at sea. Both are hailed as new items of musical expression in connection with drama.

The dramatic episode in music, arranged by Herbert Stothart, famous "Rogue Song" composer, is designed to tell the dramatic story of a whipping post scene in the former picture.

The "lone poem" is an orchestrelude, in addition to a complete score, also the work of Stothart it is one of the "color" backgrounds of the boy's unmarried mother. Later he is befriended by a wealthy contractor and engineer, who, in the end, is revealed as his father.

Many patrons of the Capitol theatre were disappointed yesterday when Marilyn Miller in "Her Majesty, Love" had been inadvertently omitted to Toronto.

Roscoe Ates and George Holmes is encouraging to secure a return visit of this popular pantomimic comedy, and as soon as a date can be arranged, will announce same through these columns.

In six years ben No. 8 owned by the University of British Columbia laid 1197 eggs weighing about 2½ times her own weight.

MEIGHAN, ALBRIGHT IN SINE AND SON ROLES

A father who has no use for his own son and a boy who hates the father he never knew are the roles portrayed by Thomas Meighan and Hardie Albright in "Skyline," the Fox picture which is the current attraction at the Capitol Theatre. Meighan is, of course, the father, and in a smashing climax, reveals himself to his son, Albright, who with Maureen O'Sullivan, furnishes the love interest in this story of modern life in a great city. Marion Ley is featured with these three in a characterizing part, as is Donald Dillaway.

A cast of popular favorites supports this quintet of stars, included in the ensemble being Stanley Fields and Jack Kennedy.

"Skyline" tells the story of a friendless youth who is bitterly prejudiced against his father who deserted the boy's unmarried mother. Later he is befriended by a wealthy contractor and engineer, who, in the end, is revealed as his father.

69 Children at Well Baby Clinic

Nurses in charge of the Well Baby Clinic yesterday afternoon had one of the busiest days in the history of the clinic when sixty-nine children attended. The entrance to the Town Hall was marked off with rows of baby carriages of all descriptions and sizes, and everything ready to receive their small burdens. Inside the council chamber where clinic is held each Friday afternoon, there was a great bustle of activity as baby after baby was weighed and its progress carefully noted.

Sixteen of the tiny visitors were new attendants and their names were added to the clinic register which already contains those nearly two hundred babies. Three mothers living several miles from the city availed themselves of the services of the Baby Clinic and brought their tiny infants to be weighed. In addition to the babies, twenty pre-school age children (from two to five years) visited the clinic. An interesting part of the clinic is growing steadily and each week an increasing number of children are brought.

The Victorian Order Nurses, Miss Grover and Miss Bowerman, in charge of the clinic. The work of the clinic, of course, the latter weeks has been unusually heavy, and this week promises to be a record one. So great has the demand been for V.O.N. services, that a third nurse has been required, for a few days, to assist with the clinic.

FISHWORMS IN JANUARY

F. Fraser, Point Anne, Digs Them From His Garden

Fishworms—those big wriggly ones you hunt with the aid of an old lantern on your lawn sometime along in July and August for the fishing trip the next day are a common occurrence when the nights are warm and sultry, but whoever heard of real live worms in January?.....

Mr. F. Fraser, Point Anne, heard the fish were biting, and even if it did seem as if a hole in the ice of the bay would have to be dug deep to get at them, still he determined to go forth and catch himself a fish. Bait was the next thing and soon located. A shovel, a few moments digging in the back yard of his home in Point Anne, an excavation of some six to eight inches below the ground—and there they were. They were large and live and very enticing looking to the fish who considered them a delicacy incomparable and of a very scarce quantity these days, and also a strange enough happening to Mr. Fraser to warrant a call at this office to tell of this unique find in January fixing baywire and breaking all records.

JIM THE CONQUEROR

by PETER B. KYNE

"Jaime is Spanish for James, readily corrupted to Jimmy. And Higuenes is Spanish for Higgins. Don Jaime came over to Antrim's camp to order him and his sheep off the Higuenes range. Antrim, fagured on murdering the boy without rhyme or reason, informed him that range was present at that conference just before the killing—a stranger named Kenneth Hobart, son of old Bill Hobart to whom I sold the Rancho Verdugo. Higuenes borrowed the ranger's rifle unknown to Antrim—and although Antrim shot Higuenes three times, eventually Higuenes got one in on Antrim, he stalked Antrim and killed him. I have had a report on the coroner's jury. Latham got it from the coroner as Los Algodones." "Very interesting," Mr. Latham said.

"Best news I've had in fifty years, Glenn. But what challenges my interest is this: Antrim is dead, Higuenes lives and is not seriously injured, yet Antrim's sheep, with the tacit consent of Higuenes, continue to trespass. Meanwhile Higuenes is doing all he can to protect Roberta, whom he has never met, at considerable loss and inconvenience to himself, because Antrim's sheep are ruining his range. Sheep foul a range up, and cattle will not graze where a sheep has grazed. Also, a sheep destroys the range. Now, why is Higuenes doing this?"

"Search me, sir."

"There has come ulterior motive, and Roberta will discover it, of course. Well Kenneth Hobart will go down there all het up with the mental picture he has painted of this romantic Higuenes. She'll find a brand of man she never met before in all her life. That he makes love to her with Latin impetuosity, because if she's there he'll be near his place. Roberta will not be rushed by any man."

"There may be a great deal in what you say, Mr. Latham, and perhaps your plans will work out exactly as you expect, but I'm here to tell you they will not, and for one very potent reason. I'm not so blamed certain that I want Roberta."

Crooked Bill stared at the young man in amazement.

"I'm afraid so, her," Hackett resumed in his slow, methodical way. "She's too blamed pretty to me. I'm too old fashioned. I'll not change and she won't. I fear we would be mismated and I'll not risk a brief happiness. I've stood to lose her before now, but I wouldn't care to have so grand to lose her after I'd won her. I'd be afraid I'd rue my discover at some future time that she wasn't happy with me."

"Mares' nests," Crooked Bill pronounced. "I'll tell you about the pony we have here for you!"

"Roberta will be delighted, I'm sure. I've known her since she was a baby. You must learn to play golf with us, Kenneth. He let me shoot his pistol, too." He stared at Don Jaime. "What's your name mister?"

"My name is Jaime."

"You got any boys?"

"No, sir, that's why I sent Ken up after you. I've been lonesome a lot here lately, so when your mother died I said to Ken, 'Look, why, I thought I'd borrow you. You have a specialty, I hope?'"

"Not the slightest, Jimmy."

"Did Ken tell you about the pony we have here for you?"

Stock Exchange Fairly Active in Morning Trading

Toronto, Jan. 9—Final stocks on Montreal activity in Toronto Stock Exchange listings today were mixed, the oil groups where B. A. Oil made an advance of more than a point to 10¼ and closed from at 10¼. Imperial Oil was unchanged at 10¾, though odd lot sales went through slightly below that figure. International Petroleum was also holding well above the 20 mark. Waterloo showed fair support and sold at 3 for the first time this year. Other heavyweights were unchanged. Steels were unchanged and other base metals showed small gains.

The metal shares were softer towards the close. Nickel dropped to 30¼ to close, Noranda was off 2 points and was easier at 16 and Smelters at 81 7/8.

W.H. Wright & Son, Brazilian and Ford were both slightly off, but unchanged from where they left off Friday.

RECOVERY ON MART HALTED

Weekend Profit Taking Active But Closes Brisk

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The recovery in the stock market was extended into the fourth successive session today, but finally was halted by the week-end profit-taking, and the list slipped back slightly in the final dealings.

The market closed with a somewhat heavy undertone, most prominent issues showing net declines of a point or so. On the whole, however, the brokerage quarters regarded the action of the market as distinctly encouraging, and the general substantial set would not have been surprising in view of the extensive gains of the past three days. The turnover approximated 2,000,000 shares.

The bond market continued to show a good tone. Gains were less impressive than yesterday's, but rails continued to attract buying, and the U. S. governments were steadier. It is felt in some quarters that the federal reserve may once more embark upon an easy money policy, which would have a bolstering effect upon the lately depressed U. S. government issues.

Shares closing about a point lower included Amerada, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, North American, Case, International Harvester, Sears, Westinghouse Electric, Air Reduction and others, while American Telephone and American Tobacco B lost about 2. U. S. Steel sagged only a fraction. The Rail stocks, however, finished about unchanged after registering a few substantial gains during the earlier trading.

Chancellor Bruening's notice to Great Britain that Germany will announce at the Lausanne Conference that her ability to pay reparations is at an end, was not regarded as disturbing in the financial district.

U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage figures, announced at the close of the market, were considerably more adverse than had been generally expected, showing a decline of nearly 200,000 tons for December, but it had been well known that steel buying had been artificially at a standstill. With improvement in railroad finances, and gradual general expansion of automobile output, more steel business is expected.

In the commodity markets, cotton held about steady, closing virtually unchanged. Foreign exchanges moved narrowly. The French franc recovered a little after its recent sharp sterling was about steady, as was the German mark.

EGG PRICES LITTLE LOWER

Prevailing Price on Local Market Was 22c to 25c Dozen

Saturday's market was featured with a decline in eggs. Mrs. Pullet's eggs could be purchased as low as 18c a dozen while regular sized eggs brought from 22 to 25 cents a dozen. Butter sold at the prevailing price of 30 cents a pound. A large number of chickens were offered for sale and their prices were also somewhat lower than at previous markets. Purchased few weeks. The young fowl weighing in the neighborhood of 4 pounds sold for $1.00. Mudhens sold at $1.00 each while another chicken sold for $1.15 a pair. The market, in general, was quite largely attended by buyers from the surrounding districts alike.

The outside market was also quite busy during the hours of trading. Beets, parsnips, turnips and carrots sold at the usual price of 20c a peck. Pine young hot house cabbage brought 5 cents each or three for 10c. Squash sold for 15c each while onions were sold 60 cents a peck. Plenty of fine apples were offered at the prevailing prices of says $1.50, tallman sweets, $1.25, McIntosh reds $1.50, and greens at $1.25 per basket.

Cord wood, fine young porker pigs and calves of good quality were seen in goodly numbers while the market as a whole was a little larger than the average market is expected at this time of year.

IN MEMORIAM

EDWARDS—In loving memory of my dear brother, Harry David, who passed away Jan. 9, 1931.
He has gone across the river
To the shores of evergreen.
Now I long to see his dear face,
But the river flows between.
And my aching heart is calling,
To the shadows dark and grey,
For the dear Brother
Who left me one year ago today.
—Ever remembered by Sister Winnie.

EDWARDS—In loving memory of Harry David Edwards, who passed away Jan. 9, 1931.
Surrounded by friends I am lonesome.
In the midst of my joy I am blue,
With a smile on my face I've a heartache,
Thinking dear Harry of YOU.
—Ever remembered by Wife, Finlay.

EDWARDS—In loving memory of my dear son, Harry David Edwards, who passed away one year ago today.
He suffered long, with patience true.
Physicians were in vain, the gates of heaven
A gentle voice said "come".
And with good-byes he unspoken
He softly entered home.
Dear Lord, in still and silent,
And sleep ransacks my eyes,
My thoughts are in the silent grave
Where my dear son lies.
Sadly missed by his loving Mother.

Grain Race Has Many Entries From All Countries

St. John's, Nfld. — Sailors of the United States are challenging the New York Club recently by Alan Villiers in the sailing-ship ketch Joseph Conrad, which is entered in the next race from Australia by way of Cape Horn to England with a cargo of Australian grain.

Twenty Germans, Finnish and Swedish vessels, and all but four of the larger sailing vessels now engaged in world commerce, have entered the contest, and Alan Villiers predicts will be the greatest since the time of the tea races from China.

"America is famous as the first nation to build clipper ships, and I reckon it will be too bad if she is out of the race," he said, but Villiers, in issuing the challenge.

Captain Thomas W. Sheridan, one of the governors of the club, said he thought, too, that the United States should go in the race; not only for the honor of the tradition, but because the sailing ship is the finest medium for producing the type of officer required for the modern merchant ship of today. He added that he would make a point of getting American ships lying idle on the West Coast.

The first race for the annual cup organized by the Australian grower's conference is to send part of the new grain to Britain by sail. It gives them from three to four months free storage, as well as transportation.

Each entry will carry a cargo from 4,000 to 5,000 tons of grain, leaving South Australia between February and April for the long haul. Some 20,000 miles is the record trip made by the Beatrice, took 86 days, some less than 100 days, 200 days in transit.

Most of the British entries belong to Gustaf Erickson, of Mariehamn, Finland, and the majority of the other entries get their clearances through the Baltic Exchange, London.

RUBBERS FOR RAIN COATS

Drizzly Rain Followed By Tightening of Weather

A steady drizzle of rain, which has been soaking into this territory for the past few days, washing away the heavy blanket of snow which fell recently, and gradually bringing the frost up out of the ground, to the detriment of the fall seedings which had been sown or planted, was finally replaced by a high west wind following on the tail end of the rain storm, which swept eastward over the province. Today however, the skies are fair and a few transient flakes of snow can be seen drifting lazily down in similar circles, giving promise of more to come. Rain coats have been replaced by fur collars turned up around the ears as the cold wind continues to blow, and rubbers have ceded their place to the warmer overshoe.

Last week the arrival of the heaviest snow fall yet received was hailed with welcome by the rural residents of this community, who had been anxiously awaiting it before the real heavy frost set in, which would kill the seeds that had been planted and low lay a scant distance beneath the ground without the added protection the snow would give. As yet, however, there has not been sufficient frost to justify the belief that damage has yet been done, and it is hoped that the promised snow will arrive before it does.

LET'S GET OFF OUR TAIL!

Friends:
Well, we've kissed old 1931 goodbye — and that isn't all we kissed goodbye. You may have kissed him, but what I did to him at the store should do to an old man. To tell the truth I kicked him on the backside.

But if the Old Year didn't have any more merry Christmas than we Canadian people did, a kick on his departure didn't hurt him any. We were all as jumpy as a man with St. Vitus dance caught in traffic, and as leery as a fellow crossing the border with two flasks in his hip pocket.

Old 1931 will go down in history, which is very appropriate because everything else went down. Just this last Christmas, a man who wanted to give his little boy a railroad train didn't have to give him a toy one. He could get a real one just as cheap.

But young 1932 will be different. He has more sense than his pa had; and, if you doubt it, ask your own boy what he thinks about him. Young 1932 starts off full of pep and vinegar. He may be some of the best men in the world, but he isn't sitting on his tail and hoping because it hurts him.

We are starting all over, and if we all start all over the depression will have a new name. Someone said that what we ought to do is to take the G-l-e out of depression and leave just the p-r-e-s-s-o-n. That is what young 1932 will do.

When a palibearer comes around now with a sad look to tell him that was last year. If that doesn't do, do what I did to old 1931. This is a new deal, a line for new ideas. Let's get off our tails and quit howling. Call a new deal and start the year with a new furnace. Ask about our easy payment plan.

Yours for the New Year,
GARN DOBBS,

Hastings Leads Counties in Average Score of Cheese

Prince Edward County in Second Place Among Twenty

MAKERS' SCORES

Hastings County heads all counties in the Eastern Ontario area in average scoring of the cheese produced during the year 1931, according to the statement of Mr. Joseph Burgess, chief of the dairy division of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa held at Kingston, this week. Mr. Burgess a number of times referred specifically to conditions in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. Prince Edward was second in the average score of the season.

63,834 Boxes in Hastings

During the year Hastings County was the source of 63,834 boxes of cheese, 90 per cent. grading first, 1.8 per cent. grading second, and 0.3 per cent. third. The average score was 92.263 and an increase of 0.1 per cent. over the year 1930 for first grade.

In Prince Edward County, 91.7 per cent. graded first, an increase of 2.4 over the previous year, while the average of the county was 92.-585. The output from Prince Edward County was 36,917.

Victoria County graded first with first 89 per cent. Hastings being second, but Victoria County produced only 1,247 boxes and improved its grade of firsts 2.5 per cent in the year.

In point of production, Leeds with 94,500 was first though its grade was 92.3 per cent firsts, standing sixteenth in the list in grade. Prescott was second with 94.1 for firsts and 92.046 average which put it thirteenth in the list.

Prontenac was third in point of production but the average score of 92.180 and the grading of 94.4 per cent firsts, put it in eleventh place. Always Near Top

"Hastings County is always close to the top position and deserves special mention on account of the good showing made year after year. The lowest percentage in this county during the past four years was 97.7 per cent first, with a high record of 98.5 per cent first in 1928." said Mr. Burgess.

Hastings and Prince Edward Counties are two of the five out of 20 counties which showed an increase in average score this year. Addington one of the others made an increase of 7.4 per cent, in the year bringing the average to 92.392 of which 95 per cent. were firsts.

The average score for each county was lower in all counties than it was in 1930 except in Prince Edward and Addington, and the increase in first grade cheese may account for the higher average score.

Again Mr. Burgess says: "Individual factories throughout the whole district had exactly the same experience as these factories in Hastings County but unfortunately in most counties there were so many factories with bad records that the average of first grade was lowered as well as the average score."

82 Factories in Hastings

There are according to another table by Mr. Burgess, sixty-two factories in Hastings. Fourteen produced one hundred per cent. cheese, 41 produced 99 per cent. and under one hundred per cent., five produced 98 per cent. and under 99 per cent., and 2 under 98 per cent. as against three in the previous year. The percentage of first grade cheese in the poorest factories in this county in 1931 was 80.6 per cent.

Of the 17 factories in Prince Edward, 5 produced 99 per cent cheese. The average of Ifirsts in the poorest factories in P. E. Co., was 76.3.

There are in this part of Ontario 640 factories as against 643 a year ago. Fifty-four factories of these produced one hundred per cent. a decrease of thirteen factories.

During the year 85.15 per cent. of the production of Ontario factories graded first, a decrease of 1.33 per cent in first grade from the previous year in production, which totalled 909,638 boxes.

"DUMBELLS" TO RETURN AFTER LONG ABSENCE

Capt. Plunkett's Popular Band of Entertainers in "As You Were"

It will be welcome news to many people in Belleville and vicinity that the "Dumbells" are coming back. The news will be especially pleasing to ex-service men who have always loyally supported and enjoyed this soldier aggregation. Memories of France and the life of the "belly infantry" in trenches and dugouts have been preserved as faithfully by "The Dumbells" that ever since the war the show has been more or less of an institution, with Al. Plunkett, Red Newman, Ross Hamilton, Glenn Allen, and all the old favorites who have made many friends all over Canada and the United States.

Griffin's Theatre in the old days could not hold the crowds who wished to see Al Plunkett's boys, even with the two days engagements with matinees. Owing to the local theatre situation it has been a long time since "The Dumbells" visited Belleville, and the fact that Manager Holmes, has booked them for The Capitol theatre for Tuesday January 19, will be welcomed with pleasure by their many friends, and an overflowing house is sure to greet them.

In addition to the old favorite "Dumbells" new talent has been secured, including Don Rositano, a Torontonian, who has made good behind the footlights; and Joe Carter of "Friendly Enemies" and Master Richard Expresses.

The girls will be absent this year but Ross Hamilton and Glen Allen will furnish the feminine interest as only they can, for "the Dumbells" back to the "all-man" idea when it started.

A big feature of the show is the ten-piece orchestra and stage band.

It doesn't matter that all do not think alike—so think is the thing. —Henry Ford.

COMFORT for COLICKY BABIES

with Castoria's gentle regulation

"The best way to cure colic," says a famous doctor, "is to prevent it." And the best way to prevent it is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste.

But there's one thing to remember here. A tiny baby's tender organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged.

This is just the place Castoria comes to a mother's aid. Castoria, you know, is made specially for the delicate needs of babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation which is absolutely harmless. It contains no harsh drugs. No narcotics.

Children never fight Castoria. They like its taste and the relaxed comfort its gentle regulation brings.

For many years it has helped mothers through baby ailments with colicky babies, with children suffering from digestive upsets, colds and other little ailments. Keep it on hand for your children. You can always tell genuine Castoria by the name Chas. H. Fletcher.

4 SUSPECTS IN ATTEMPT

One Prisoner is Badly Wounded in Head

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 8.—A running fight between special constables and four men suspected of attempting burglary early today resulted in one of the four being taken to hospital with a bullet wound in the throat and the other three being held for investigation. James Smith, 41, shot during the affray, is reported to be in a serious condition.

The three held by the police are Donat Lavallee, 19, George Salvo, 20, and Emilio Turnili, 19.

Special constables Henry Ayotte and Joseph Lavallee, privately employed were trying doors in St. Henry ward shortly after 1 a.m. when they came on four men apparently trying to break into the grocery store of Aimre Litte.

Taken to Heels

The men took for their heels when they saw the Constables were gaining on them, they turned and attacked them with slicks and flats.

Drawing their revolvers in self defence, the special officers fired half a dozen shots, one of which struck Smith in the mouth inflicting itself in the back of the throat. In the meantime an onlooker telephoned police and Sergeant Thivierge, with detectives Poirier and Hetu, hurried to the scene.

They quickly subdued the suspects and sent them to the station, summoning an ambulance which took the wounded man to hospital. He was later transferred to another hospital where an emergency operation was performed.

C. G. DAWES WILL RETIRE

Completes Work on Arms Conference and Retires to Private Life

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9.—A picturesque statesman of the United States, Charles Gates Dawes, is to retire as ambassador to Great Britain.

His resignation will take effect after completion of the world court —as chairman of the United States delegation to the Arms conference in Geneva, and he puts in the time "not expect to remain for the technical work".

The conference is not expected to take very long in disposing of general discussion and getting into its technical problems, after it opens on February 2.

Just before leaving for Chicago, his home, he announced his plans to return to private life after years of almost constant service in the government.

Rev. Dr. McMullen of Woodstock Marks Birthday

Woodstock, Jan. 9.—Rev. Dr. W. H. McMullen, the "Grand Old Man" of Woodstock and of the United Church of Canada, celebrated today his 101st birthday. The celebration was quiet. Only seven members of Dr. McMullen's immediate family were present, and the event was in marked contrast to the more elaborate observance of the clergyman's 100th birthday a year ago.

Dr. McMullen is in excellent health, although he lives quietly at his old home here, not participating in public. He spends the greater part of his time reading and writing, and takes great interest in current events.

Rev. Dr. McMullen was born in the County of Monoghan, Ireland, on Jan. 1, 1831, and came to Canada. The family came to Canada and settled near Fergus. Here Dr. McMullen went through the trials of pioneering and began preaching and studying for the Church. In 1856 he was ordained into the Presbyterian Church and since that time has held only two charges. After spending some years at Millbank, he received call from Knox Church, in Woodstock, in 1860, appointed Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in 1888. Dr. McMullen retired from the pastorate in 1906 on the completion of his jubilee.

Bringing U. S. Navy up to London Treaty Advocated

Urged Before Naval Committee By Admiral Wm. Pratt

ECONOMY MEASURE

Washington, D.C., Jan. 9 (AP)—A long-time naval programme to bring the United States navy up to the London treaty limits was urged before the United States Senate naval committee today by Admiral William V. Pratt as an economy measure.

The chief of naval operations told the committee he favored enactment of a measure by Senator Hale, Republican, Maine, providing in general terms for a treaty limit fleet, and also the bill by Representative Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, calling for $616,000,000 to finance a building programme over ten years.

Pratt was asked, by Senator Davis, Republican, Pennsylvania, whether the present United States navy is adequate to defend the country. Chairman Hale asked him to reserve his reply for an executive session.

Right to Know

"We have a right to know," remarked Senator Keyes Republican, New Hampshire, "but we ought not to advertise it."

The committee members agreed the answer should not be given publicly.

In reply to questions, Pratt said Great Britain's battleships are faster than those of the United States but expressed the opinion that this advantage would be counterbalanced by the heavier armour and guns of this country's navy.

Pratt said "we have a right to assume England will keep within the same navy up to the standard she has a right to maintain because of the treaty."

Simply Fallen Behind

"No nation is violating the treaty obligations. We have simply fallen behind," Pratt said.

Explaining he was in favor of limiting the United States navy to treaty strength.

Today the Dunlop Perchs Tire and Rubber Company announced it was going to adopt a 24-hour production schedule.

MR. AND MRS. — THE PERFECT SYSTEM — ONE UMBRELLA AT HOME, ANOTHER AT THE OFFICE

MR. AND MRS. — HE CAN'T FOOL JOE — HE SEES EVERY LITTLE THING

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 8.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

But soon the tribe became silent in amazement and expectation. They saw the mighty white-ape wiggle upon the back of their king. With steel muscles tensed beneath the armpits of his antagonist, he bore down mightily with open palms upon the back of the thick, bull-neck. The king-ape shrieked in agony and floundered helplessly about upon the mat of jungle grass.

The little audience of fierce anthropoids heard the creaking of their king's neck mingling with his agonized roarings. Then the bullethead crumpled forward upon the great, hairy chest. They saw the newcomer place a foot upon the ba : of the figure at his feet and, throwing back his head, give vent to the wild, uncanny challenge of the bull-ape that has made a kill.

Across the jungle rolled the terrible notes of the victory cry. The little monkeys in the tree tops ceased their chattering. The harsh-voiced brilliant-plumed birds were still. From afar came the answering wail of a leopard and the deep roar of a lion. Then the pig-eyed ape knew that their king was dead. Tarzan turned questioning eyes upon the beasts. What would their next move be?

One of the younger apes, a huge, splendidly muscled brute, was edging threateningly closer to the ape-man. Through his bared fighting fangs there issued a low sullen growl. Tarzan stood perfectly still, waiting. He saw the beast was of wondrous proportions, standing over seven feet upon its short bowed legs. With stiff, jerky movements it began circling around the alert ape-man.

New Features, Low Prices, Assure Hudson-Essex Cars Popularity Details of 1932 Models on View

Tilbury, Ontario, Jan. 9—Two entirely new lines of cars, a Hudson eight in three wheelbase lengths, and a new Essex six, are announced by Hudson-Essex of Canada Limited for 1932. With completely remodeled, streamlined bodies, a radically new rigid frame construction, new power plant, transmission system, equipment and fittings, the Hudson and Essex cars for the coming season are lower, more powerful, faster, better in appearance and better equipped than ever before.

Parallel in design but dimensioned to suit their own characteristics, the Hudson and Essex cars are noteworthy for having introduced this year a real custom touch in the popular price field. New departures in automotive style are attained by the minute attention to detail in the exterior appearance as well as in the up-to-date equipment with which the new bodies are fitted. The body lines are new from the tips of the V-shaped radiator to the molded rear, the blended lines of which in their artful concealment of unsightly parts, differ from any rear assemble of any other standard car.

Increased Horse Power

The Hudson Greater Eight engine, now mounted on the Standard Series 119, Stirling Series 126 and Major Series 132 inch wheelbase chassies, develops 101 horsepower at 3600 r.p.m., a gain of 14 horsepower over that of last year, and the Essex Six engine, on 113 inch wheelbase (Essex, 112 inch for Export) develops 70 horsepower at 3300 r.p.m., a gain of 10 horsepower over last year. As a result both cars are faster, with a decided gain in performance throughout the entire speed range.

They are high compression engines having a higher ratio than any other stock Canadian car so far as is known, and are designed to operate on standard fuels. Because of the high compression ratio the engines show an outstanding economy in spite of their increased power.

The use of the patented Hudson combustion chamber, the new manifold and improvements in the carburetion system and balancing are responsible not only for the power increase but for the improved smoothness of operation and better economy.

Upholstery

An unusually complete system of upholstery spring suggestion has been worked out on the new cars. There are transverse, lateral springs which are mounted as a foundation for the vertical coil springs in the upholstery. This combination of horizontal and vertical springs gives a shockriding action which greatly reduces the throw of the passengers in travelling over rough and uneven roads. The ride control of the shock absorbers is such that their action can be easily varied, thus making the new cars pre-eminently luxurious.

In place of the ammeter and oil gauge automatic ruby lights are provided which indicate a dangerous condition of too low a battery charging rate or oil pump failure. The position of the instrument board at eye level is also an important feature in making the instruments legible. On the more expensive models the horn button turns up to provide a vanity mirror.

New on these cars for this year are such features as thermostatic carburetor heat control, improved intake manifold system, quick acceleration devices, anti-flood choke, intake silencer, cradle fire division, improved, torsional vibration dampener, silent-second synchro-mesh transmission with selective free-wheeling, reliavolt, reverse free-wheeling, 7 triple-sealed oil cushion clutch, new double-drop frame with diagonal trussing, larger brakes, dash-operated ride control on shock absorbers, muffle vision instruments mounted on eye-level instrument board and a wide variety of minor refinements and improved fittings. The cars are completely silenced and insulated against heat and fumes.

Type of Engine

The engine is an L-head block cast type, the Hudson eight having cylinder dimensions of 2 7-8 by 4 1-2 inches, an increase in the bore of 1-4 inch, and the Essex six, 2 1-16 by 4 2-4 inches, a bore increase of 1-16 inch and an increase in stroke of 1-4 inch. The displacements are now 254.4 cubic inches for the Hudson and 182.14 for the Essex. For 1931 the displacements were 233.7 and 175.3 cubic inches.

The timing system used on the Hudson and Essex cars is a continuation of a development which has been carried forward ever since the introduction of the first models. In the 1932 cars, just as in previous models, all parts subject to wear operate in a continuance bath of oil. The system used on the new models, known as the Hudson automatic engine oiling system, is so called because the flow is divided into separate streams going to the front and rear cylinders.

The carburetion and manifold system on these cars has been designed with a large degree of capacity which has resulted in increased power and a reduced fuel consumption. The carburetor is a three-jet instrument and on the Essex twin neutralizing muffler system.

there is an accelerating pump. The heat riser is thermostatically controlled so that the proper amount of heat is applied to the mixture under all circumstances, the hus-man, smooth being assured. Another device to prevent human error is the automatic, anti-flooding choke. This consists of a spring balanced butterfly valve which is closed at cranking speed. As the vacuum increases the instant the motor starts, the butterfly valve opens sufficiently to prevent flooding.

Combination Silencer

Both cars have a combination silencer, wet, air-cleaner and backfire arrester mounted on the air intake. This intake system is located in the warm air region above the engine just beneath the hood, thus providing pre-heated air to the carburetor.

The electrical features have been modernized. Included as standard equipment this year is the Startix automatic cranking device which keeps the motor operating and prevents stalling as long as the ignition key is turned on.

The transmission now includes such developments as a new shift-in-the-second and selective free-wheeling. The gear ratios have been changed to synchronize with the engine characteristics. The synchro-mesh system of gears is used with an arrangement of bronze-to-steel cone clutches which act as a brake to control and equalize the gear speeds at the instant of shifting, thus providing a smooth, noiseless engagement.

The steering gear has been designed to overcome "shimmy," "tramp" and "wheel fight." There is also an exclusive shock-absorbing drag link with a fore-shortened Pitman or drop arm which reduces the leverage of road shocks on the steering wheel and helps eliminate "wheel fight." The steering cross or tie-rod is full rubber mounted on oilless bearings so that there is no metal-to-metal contact between the steering arms and the tie-rod, thus damping out the vibration which cause "shimmy" on rough surfaced roads.

The tire sizes are 5.50 by 17 on the longer wheelbase Hudsons and 6.00 by 17 on the 119 inch wheelbase models. On the Essex the tire is 5.25 by 18 inches. All of the devices attached to the chassis are silenced by rubber or other means. The exhaust gases are carried back to the muffler and tail pipe on rubber supports. There are two mufflers with opposing sound characteristics so that the audible vibrations are neutralized and silenced. This arrangement has been called the twin neutralizing muffler system.

Essex Coupe With Rumble Seat

An entirely new car throughout, mounted on the Standard 70 horsepower, 113 inch wheelbase chassis (112 inch for export). Exceptional roominess and custom smartness are apparent in every line. The rumble seat provides plenty of room for two passengers.

Hudson Touring Sedan

The 1932 Hudson Touring Sedan, with Major Series 132 wheel base. This steamlined car is handsomely fitted throughout with all-wer and ivory effect hardware.

World Bank in Favor of War Debts Adjustment

Germany's Inability to Pay Accepted in Report Read at Bank Meeting

Bank's Share of $100,000,000 Credit Readvanced to Germany

ITALY'S VIEW

Premier MacDonald's Invitation Accepted By All But One

(By P. I. Lipsey, Jr.)

Basel, Switzerland, Jan. 11 (AP) —The directors of the World Bank for International settlements approved today the report of Chairman Benedeue of the Young plan advisory committee on Germany's inability to pay reparations. It also renewed the World Bank's one-fourth share in the $100,000,000 short term credit to Germany.

The finding of the Young plan committee, were strongly supported in a declaration submitted by the World Bank management which encompassed the committee's report.

The board also renewed the Bank's share of the Austrian credits of 90,000,000 schillings, the Hungarian credit of $20,000,000 and its own $1,000,000 credit to Germany.

It was understood that the directors regarded Chancellor Bruening's parliamentary position as of such very interesting and irritating to the French but not likely to interfere with plans for the Lausanne conference."

The Young plan advisory committee report which directors of the World Bank approved today, qualified Germany's contention that she is unable to meet unconditional reparations payments beginning next year.

The report called for an adjustment of all reparations and other war debts "to the troubled situation of the world" and urged that this be done without delay to avert "new disaster."

London, Jan. 11—The Cabinet today reaffirmed the British policy that the proposed Lausanne reparations conference is a more urgent necessity than ever in view of Chancellor Bruening's declaration last week that Germany's ability to continue reparations payments is at an end.

All of Germany's creditor nations, with the exception of France, has accepted Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's invitation to open the Lausanne meeting on January 25. It was said, and the French are considered to have given their tacit agreement.

ESCAPES ROPE FOR 17 YEARS

Rears Four Children in Interim, Works in Mine

ESCAPES IN 1914

Runs Three Miles Through Tunnel Before Caught

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 11— The strange case of a man who escaped hanging 17 years ago and reared four children before being taken back to his cell has aroused the interest of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Two meetings will be held tonight to determine what action will be taken toward the Frank Buletza, or Frank Ross, as he was known for the 17 years.

Ross was arrested last week in a coal mine by Constable Ben Smith of Coverdale, Pa. He made a desperate attempt to escape the constable by running down the mine and running for three miles through the dark tunnels before falling from exhaustion.

He was taken back to the jail in Clarksburg, W. Va., where he has been identified as Pauletta, who escaped from the county jail in 1914 four days before he was to be hanged. He had been convicted of killing a woman in a dance hall.

BELIEVE MAN TOOK OWN LIFE

Body of Paul Schudwitz Founds in Wheat Granary

Saskatoon, Sask., Jan. 11.—(By the Canadian Press)— Eleven days after Hans Pedersen died alone in the chill of the night of December 26, just a few yards from the shack in which he was fatally wounded by a .22 calibre rifle bullet, the body of Paul Schudwitz was found last year shared the shack with him in the P. E. Young farm, two miles north of Ardath, was found in a granary on the farm of Hector Torgerson, in the Gledhow district, some 20 miles away.

The body of Schudwitz, hunted for arson charges as Pedersen's murderer, was found in the granary after the left hand and in his head was a bullet wound. Covered with a rim of a heavy frost, the body gave evidence that it had been in the tiple building for several days.

While definite conclusions will not be reached until inquests are held, both of them probably Wednesday, it is believed that Schwitz walked along the river ice on the night of December and reached the granary some time early that morning, before 10 a.m. was put light, there to end his life and die in the same cold loneliness as his alleged victim.

Capetown, Union of South Africa, Jan. 11.—(AP)—"There is no crisis in Europe," said Bernard Shaw today when he arrived on a holiday trip. There is "only a muddle" which may mark the beginning of the end of the capitalist system.

Motorist Wraps Injured Cat in Heavy Motor Rug

A long, low hung, rakish looking roadster roared over the railway bridge standing on North Front St., early last evening, zoomed down the hill north of it, headed for the Moira boro highway, and approached Ewans street intersection just at the moment that a cat, bewildered by the glare of the approaching car attempted to cross the road.

The cat crouched, turned and attempted to leap backwards just as the right front wheel of the machine which had neither slackened its speed or altered its course in any manner, caught and passed over the animal's hind legs—a flurry of fur and the car had gone leaving the paralyzed and suffering cat lying in the road.

Another car followed along a short distance behind but more slowly and carefully. The cat was observed lying in a pitiful and huddled heap. The car stopped and a driver and another man got out and approached the animal. Then from the back seat of the car they produced a motor rug, wrapped the suffering cat in the rug, and re-entered the car. It slowly moved off in the direction the other car had taken, and gathering speed, disappeared over the hill.

MURDER FOLLOWS ATTACK

"Honor" Slaying of Hawaiian Charged Against Four Persons

OFFICER HELD

Island Law Struggles to Restore Calm to Honolulu

Honolulu, Jan. 11—Island law struggled today to restore calm and prevent acts of violence by civilians bent by attacks upon white women and now by a murder.

United States soldiers waited in readiness for emergency orders. Shore leaves of service men were cancelled. While women ventured out in the streets it was with utmost caution. A marked tension gripped the city.

At the Pearl Harbor Naval Base the navy held three of the four persons charged with the "honor" slaying of the Hawaiian, Joseph Kahahawai.

Those under arrest and charged with first degree murder are:

Lieut. Thomas H. Massie whose wife charged the attack, allegedly by Kahahawai and four others.

Mrs. Thalia Massie Fortescue, mother-in-law of Massie and wife of a lieutenant-colonel of marines, also held.

E. J. Lord, navy enlisted man:

Albert O. Jones, navy enlisted man.

Three on Warship

Jones is held by civil police in jail here, although city and County Attorney James P. Cathcart, ordered the navy's action in assuming custody of the other three, saying they were "safer from reprisals" aboard a warship in Pearl Harbor than in the Honolulu jail.

Gilliland's deputy, Wight, a crack motorcycle policeman, rounded up the grand jury would be drawn today for the first session of the year. It said the death penalty will be demanded for all four.

Lieut. Massie has decided to waive his right to a trial by a naval or federal court and is "willing to be tried by a jury of citizens of Honolulu in the territorial courts" in which the defendants (Kahahawai and four companions, charged with assault upon Mrs. Massie when the latter's husband was absent) will be tried.

The attorneys, Frank Thompson and Montgomery Winter, for the four defendants would face the civil courts. They were retained by Mrs. Fortescue and Massie also to represent Jones and Lord.

STONE WALL IS BEING REPAIRED

Many New Stone Will Have to Be Placed in Wall

The old stone wall extending north from the Front Street entrance to Upper Bridge is this morning undergoing repairs by a mason's staff and an assistant who were on the job shipping away all the loose stone and pressing the wall for fresh mortar and stone which is to follow. Many citizens who use that bridge to and from work have noticed the dangerous state in several of the large top stones topple into the river and the cement and mortar which held them in place slowly drop away. Some of the stones the chinks, carrying with it the smaller stones which were beneath. Sparrows picking at the lime mortar have been blamed for the initial motion of this work, and in time with the dropping down of the smaller stones into the river below, it left a gaping hole with little support to the larger stones above. With the present cold weather it will be necessary to use warm water to mix the mortar for laying the stone.

MAYOR WANTS BRIGHT LIGHTS

Toronto Not to Follow Windsor in Dimming Street Lamps

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)— Street lights in Windsor were dimmed recently to conserve electrical power. But Toronto isn't going to follow the example of the border city, Mayor Stewart said so today. "During a depression is the time to turn on the lights and show leadership, not to dim them," said His Worship. "Lighting is one of the best salesmanship in making it possible to enjoy electric lights. I believe that by the city effect other expenditures, such as an increased police force which would be necessary to protect the citizens. Furthermore the lights would only increase traffic accidents and fatalities and bring more calls for ambulances."

The blankets came from the military stores at Kingston and were donated in compliance with a request which was made by the officials of the Canadian Red Cross Society from the headquarters in Toronto. Mr. Cyril Waite, Manager of the Dominion Bank and President of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross, felt that blankets should be furnished to the men who came to the lodge to sleep. He made a requisition for them to the Red Cross headquarters and acting upon his suggestion the blankets were supplied from Kingston.

Saturday night nineteen transients slept at the lodge and Sunday night sixteen men passed the night there.

Fails to Fly Over Mount Everest

Reaches Altitude 20,000 Feet But Forced Down By High Winds

Calcutta, India, Jan. 11 —Richard Halliburton, author and globe trotter, with his companion, Moyo Sutpbena, failed today in an attempt to fly over Mount Everest in the light aeroplane in which they are travelling around the world.

They reached an altitude of 20,000 feet when strong winds forced them to abandon the attempt. Mt. Everest is 29,141 feet high.

Allen Cobham, British flyer, made a similar attempt in 1924 in a more powerful plane but failed.

There is a calm confidence which only apertains to extreme strength and extreme weakness.

4 CIVIC RINKS NEARLY READY

Cold Snap Helps Caretakers to Flood Ground

With the advent of near zero weather caretakers on the four rinks in the city have been working day of it to flood the rinks under the cars and have them ready as soon as possible for the youngsters and older folk, who are anxiously awaiting the opening.

However, even with the continued advantage of the freezing weather it will be some time before the ice will be ready for the eager skaters. As was explained this morning this freezing is necessarily a slow and tedious process in order to ensure a perfect sheet of ice, and one, that will not chip and scale. If the rinks were flooded all at once with the full depth of six inches or so of water and allowed to freeze that way then it would soon crack and shell off in patches. As it is done now only a shallow sprinkle is put on the grass, but the coat freezes as more is added all the time until sufficient depth is secured. This results in a smooth, uniform piece of ice, which will stand up under the hundreds of sharp skates, but also accentuates a delay, which is not appreciated by those who have not understood the procedure to be gone through to obtain these results. It is expected, that another week of the present weather everything is all ready for the opening.

But the mercury is rising and a heavy snowfall is in progress.

FUGITIVE TAKEN IN NORTH FORESTRY SHACK

Trapper at Long Lake Detains Calvert after 'Tip, Youth is on Way

Beraggled Young Man Wanders in on Saturday at Duak

HOMESICK

Purchase of Boots Leads to Clue Resulting in Capture

As the shades of night were fast descending over the northern outline of Long Lake, sixty-five miles northeast of Belleville, a trapper, Emile Vanness sat in a lonely shack on the edge of the clearing probably thinking of his trap lines, that had been set in the vicinity, when his side was a telephone, which could connect him with the outside world in short order. At that time the 'phone rang and the words that came over the line instantly made him an active, virile creature and in less than fifteen minutes Gordon Calver, escaped convict from Portsmouth Penitentiary, was yesterday morning last unconcernedly walked into the station and made himself a prisoner. Vanness receiving his instructions in his phone conversation, went to the door of the man guarding against any reference to escaped convicts and Calvert was made to feel at ease and apparently away from the clutches of the law. Soon the little shack was a scene of activity when Provincial Constable P. C. Morris, of Bancroft, and Constable Young of the same village, crashed through the door and quickly pinning Calvert to the floor, slipped the handcuffs over his wrists and again he was in charge of the law.

Intensive Manhunt

The arrest marked finish to the devious footsteps of Calvert, who was the interest of the most intensive manhunt ever to take place in this district. Over fifty guards from the penitentiary and the whole Provincial Police force, under Inspector Lougheed of this city, had been engaged for the past four days scouring and combing the countryside, grasping at every single clue and at last striking the track that led them to their quarry. When finally arrested Calvert was in a bedraggled, worn and semi starved condition although well and comfortable clothes. He was wearing a grey suit with frit hat and overcoat and his feet were protected from the rigors of the wintry blasts by rubber boots and a thick sox purchased at Gunter about noon on Saturday, the purchase leading the police to a tangible clue and his subsequent capture. He was not wearing any feminine apparel and his face was shaven but was pale and had the look of a hunted man in his face.

Eight Miles to Bush

After his arrest Constables Morris and Young started out with their man, a distance of eight miles through heavy bush to the road to Gunter, where they were met by fifteen guards from the penitentiary, Inspector Lougheed, Constables Grey and Devaney of Marmora, also Constable Stringer. Constable Stringer was sent into the bush to meet the party and direct Constable Morris when four miles from Gunter as the officer was in need of them his exertion. Calvert, according to Inspector Lougheed greeted him affably:

"Hello Gordon," said Inspector Lougheed and Calvert said "Hello, Mr. Lougheed, how are you?"

This is tired of a tough break for you, Gordon," said the Inspector and Calvert replied: "I am glad that it is all over."

"Why did you do such a thing, when you were getting along so well," remarked the Inspector and Calvert, speaking most seriously stated: "It was terribly homesick and lonesome and wanted to see my friends and relations."

Turned Him Over

Not wishing to embarrass the boy and further his confidence jumped into the car with the prisoner and the whole party started for Belleville. At Madoc, Inspector Lougheed called Assistant Commissioner Alfred Cuddy in Toronto, asking what procedure would take as to the releasing of the prisoner to the Warden of the penitentiary, Warden S. J. Ponton. Calvert admitted to the Inspector that he broke and entered a garage at Strathcona in his flight for freedom and made a car which was found near Gunter in a damaged condition, and as this was an indictable offence and occurring within W. H. Lougheed's jurisdiction, the Inspector was at a loss as to the procedure to take. Assistant Commissioner Cuddy instructed the police to release the prisoner to the Warden of the penitentiary. The journey was continued to Belleville, the arrival being shortly after one o'clock on Sunday morning and after exchanging handcuffs and receiving a receipt for the prisoner from the Warden, Calvert was transferred and the journey to Kingston was resumed.

Made a Purchase

Shortly after noon on Saturday Calvert stopped at Dafoe's store at Gunter purchasing a pair of heavy rubbers and a pair of wool sox and tendered a five dollar bill in payment. Immediately Mr. Dafoe called Provincial Constable Morris at Bancroft, stating that the man who was a stranger in that district was the man wanted by the penitentiary. Constable Morris gave a description of Calvert which according to Dafoe corresponded exactly and the chase was on. Morris notified his chief in Belleville and later proceeded to Gunter with Constable Young. Inspector Lougheed, Sergeant Harry Thompson and Constables Stringer and Kelly of this headquarters, left for the north immediately by way of Madoc. It would be from the latter the movements of Constables Morris and Young would be watched and from the scene of the clue. Arriving at Gunter Constable Morris immediately called Ernie Vanness, a trapper at Long Lake, who was conducting a forestry patrol shack in which was a telephone. The officer asked Mr. Vanness a question to which Calvert instructing if he came that way to detain him under any pretext. Vanness looked out of the window down the trail and saw Calvert approaching the shack and so notified the officer. Starting down the road the officers drove their car to the end of the road and found the car used by Calvert and the footmarks plainly discernible thru' the bush, the path that he had taken. Following hurriedly this trail, which led eight miles through heavy bush and which was covered in two hours, the men arrived at the shack. In the meantime Vanness had engaged Calvert in conversation and put him at his ease and when the officers broke into the shanty, Calvert was completely off guard and was easily arrested. He was unarmed but a search was made of his person to be sure. After receiving the warning, the officers with their prisoner started the long hike back through the bush, the trail being hard to follow as night was falling.

Found Motor Car

The motor car was brought from the end of the trail to Gunter and because of the damaged condition of the radiator, through freezing, the car was left there and on Sunday, Constable Barrett, of Napanee, and the owner of the car, journeyed to the north and took the car to Strathcona.

The trip to Belleville was uneventful excepting that Calvert gave snatches of his journeyings from the time that he left the penitentiary shortly before six o'clock on Wednesday morning. It is understood he secured a long piece of lead pipe from the plumbing along at the institution and threw it over the wall from the hayloft door of the horse barn. After scaling the wall the pipe was secured and the journey, only to be found by the prison officials, a few days later. Leaving the institution Calvert stated he worked his way to the north of the city and followed the railway tracks out of Kingston. He worked his way through to Strathcona, a section of the country he knew well. Outside the garage where he pilfered the car he stated he found a key which fitted the garage door. Entering he found the keys in a car and backing it out was safely away for the first being. "Riding in the car hid my prison garb," said Calvert to the Inspector, and "I was able to make good progress." He then worked my way through Newburg to the north of Napanee and soon arrived at Fuller, my home."

Tells of Escape

Continuing his fascinating narrative, Calvert stopped at his uncle's home but stated that he did not see his uncle. At that place, it is alleged, he received the clothing he was wearing at the time of his arrest and some money. "I had breakfast at my uncle's, he asking me to give myself up but I went on," said Calvert. Thursday he visited another home in the neighborhood in which he knew sweetheart was living and incidentally this was one of the main roads that made Calvert make his break for liberty. Calvert journeyed on to Stella Mutteger on Friday and that night slept at a farm house a short distance off the main travelled highway, owned by a man by the name of Hinds. On Friday he continued on towards Gilmour and then to Gunter and the following movements of this escaped convict have been narrated in previous paragraphs.

In 1929 Calvert stole a car from here and Belleville, Ontario and then came to this section to commit a number of depredations including holding up of a Chinaman a Tweed as long ago as 1917 or earlier. He was subsequently arrested and escaped from the Portsmouth Penitentiary after he had pleaded guilty. He was released on "Ticket of Leave" after a year of his sentence had been completed and by the terms of the parole, was for some months he lived quietly on the farm, doing everything strictly attending to his duties as a parolee and at the end of the year, however, he broke into the post office at Tweed, stealing a safe and a blank money orders and before leaving stamped them all. He then started on his career of crime that led him to Toronto and back here. He broke into the post office take and the police were soon on the trail and his arrest followed. Calvert pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the post office and the late Casement of Madoc, sentenced him to four years in the penitentiary and one month of his sentence had been completely wiped out by the arrest.

Hearty co-operation between the provincial and city police has existed all through this case. The city police during the period of freedom of Calvert, received worthwhile information, which was immediately turned over to the Provincial authorities for action. The special Lougheed and his police are to be congratulated on their work. Because they were at the scene of the clue. Arriving at Gunter Constable Morris immediately called Ernie Vanness, a trapper at Long Lake, who was conducting a forestry patrol shack in which was a telephone. The officer asked Mr. Vanness a question to which Calvert instructing if he came that way to detain him under any pretext. Vanness looked out of the window down the trail and saw Calvert approaching the shack and so notified the officer. Starting down the road the officers drove their car to the end of the road and found the car used by Calvert and the footmarks plainly discernible thru' the bush, the path that he had taken. Following hurriedly this trail, which led eight miles through heavy bush and which was covered in two hours, the men arrived at the shack. In the meantime Vanness had engaged Calvert in conversation and put him at his ease and when the officers broke into the shanty, Calvert was completely off guard and was easily arrested. He was unarmed but a search was made of his person to be sure. After receiving the warning, the officers with their prisoner started the long hike back through the bush, the trail being hard to follow as night was falling.

Dole Foreseen as Issue in Next U. S. Election

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—A carping critic says that the Democrats still return to their old idols of free trade and free silver while construct ing a new idol to be christened "Free breed". This prophecy relies for support, if support it has, upon their activities at the present session. The Democrats are passing through the House a tariff bill, of which more hereafter. Individual Democratic senators from silver states have introduced bills and made speeches which are reminiscent of the late William J. Bryan, and the free silver campaign of 1896. A few days ago the Senate passed a resolution directing the Federal Farm Board to turn over to the Red Cross some forty million bushels of wheat for distribution among the unemployed and their dependents.

The truck into which the auto hurled Morton was driven by Severen Warner of Exeter, who was accompanied by his brother, Orne Warner, both of whom escaped injury. The car driven by Stuart Laurie was turning on No. 4 Highway and was entering the road without having to notice the stop sign. The rear end of the car swerved and crashed into the heavy truck, which was coming north.

The force of the impact sent both cars into opposite ditches, Morton and Laurie being thrown out to the pavement into burning pools of gasoline.

The Warner brothers crashed the windows of their truck, and jumped out unhurt as it burst into flames.

Stuart Laurie was coming to London to spend the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laurie, 98 Garfield street. He has also a brother, F. R. Laurie, 291 Princess Avenue South, Laurier had been working in Toronto for the last four or five years.

Stuart Laurie was employed as a salesman in O. A. Peck & Company, 21 King street east, Toronto. He lived at 32 Rosedale Crescent in the same house as Frank A. Morton, his fellow victim. He was unmarried.

INDIAN CROWD ATTACKS JAIL

Two Disturbances Are Reported During Sunday

BOMBAY, January 11.—Two disturbances, in one of which a crowd estimated at 1,200 persons threw three prisoners from a police station, were reported Sunday in the Nationalist campaign.

Police charged a crowd at Karachi with staves after a public meeting which had been declared unlawful and twenty-eight persons were injured. The other occurrence was at Sringar, where an armed crowd attacked the jail, releasing three prisoners charged with attempted arson.

They were the only disorders reported but relative calm prevailed throughout the country.

Some quarters said it was "the calm before the storm." Others however, interpreted it as a justification of the government's new policy. With the arrest of leaders in the Indian National Congress movement, they said, the movement appeared to be subsiding and was going the lines laid down by the recent round-table conference at London could proceed with some approximation of peace.

Jubbulpore's Nationalists won their "patience contest" with the police yesterday but lost their position on the main street of the city, where they had been squatting since last Tuesday.

WRITER BORNE TO HIS GRAVE

Sydney H. Preston Was Writer of Novels and Artist

Clarkson, Ont., January 11—Sydney H. Preston, who a generation ago stood in the front rank of Canadian authors, was buried here, Saturday in the United Church Cemetery, his death following an automobile accident last week from which he never recovered consciousness.

Mr. Preston, who was 72, was born in Ottawa, being a younger brother of W. T. R. Preston, of Port Hope, Ont., and London. A sister, Mrs. Edward Johnson, still lives in Ottawa. For a number of years he taught music in Toronto Normal School and it was not until he retired to country life at Clarkson some 30 years ago he began to write. About that time he also worked first little Honeyfield Farm and then Cherry Farm, at the same time carrying on the agency for a fruit tree firm. He was the first to recognize that the light loam of Clarkson, then regarded as poor arable land, proved enriched when it was made great soil for small fruits and vegetables, a fact now known to Country comes from him.

These activities led to the publication of his first novel, "The Abandoned Farm," which achieved immediate success by its humor and vitality and "was followed in 1906 by "Jim Common Ground". His short stories were even more success ful and won him reputation in the United States, two of the most notable "Green Pigs" and "The Corner Cupboard Man" being published in Scribners' at that time one of the leading American magazine being illustrated by W. T. Preston.

He had married Ella Lees of Ottawa, a distinguished violinist, who encouraged him in his literary work. Her premature death was a great blow and it is said Mr. Preston never entirely away from further writing. His only child, Miss Ann of Clarkson, survives

In 1917 and in partnership with Miss Fairbairn, he established the Clarkson market, at first confining to farm produce, but which soon branched out into antiques and is a familiar feature of the Toronto-Hamilton highway. Philosopher and artist as well as man of letters, he endeared himself in these latter years to a very wide circle of friends.

GOSSIE NEW SHERIFF

Toronto, Jan. 11—Speculation in provincial and civic circles as to the government's choice for the position of Sheriff of Toronto, was ended on Saturday, when Attorney General W. H. Price announced the appointment of Alex. M. Gossie. Mr. Gorrie has been Deputy Sheriff since 1911 and has been 56 years in the Sheriff's office. The death of the late R. A. Pyne on June 14 necessitated the filling of the post.

RABBIT HUNT AT SAULT

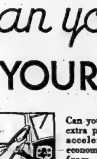
It is estimated that Mexico contains some 15,000,000 acres of oilands.

FRANCE BACKS PREMIER LAVAL

French People Aroused By Germany's View on Reparation

Paris, Jan. 11.—The declaration of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, of Germany, that there must be an end to reparations payments appeared today to have solidified French political elements and press opinion behind Premier Laval.



At the moment when the Premier is uncertain whether to replace the late Minister of War Maginot and Foreign Minister Briand or to prevent the collective resignation of the cabinet, the German Chancellor's words apparently inclined him to the latter course as an attempt to form "national unity" government.

Support came to M. Laval from unexpected quarters. Senator Renoult Socialist, who has no reason to be friendly, told a large radical gathering that the German Chancellor Bruening had been correctly quoted all Republican French would protest against him as termed violation of treaties and solemnly established agreements.

It was believed the German position could be used a few instances to the meeting of radical deputies on Tuesday to decide their future action toward Premier Laval's policy and his next governmental step.

Parisian newspapers were unanimous in approving Finance Minister Fiadin's statement that the proposed international reparations conference should include the Soviet valueless in view of Herr Bruening's words.

SCIENCE CARRIES ON

Science continues its warfare against the undesirables. The battle is never ended. Therein it is like life, which is ever moving, restless, never settled.

Only so was, its problems so infinite that science will forever find its task in trying to improve conditions and to get as close as possible to an explanation of things.

Take the case of the water supply of the city. A particular task in the water has been laid by the uninitiated to the use of chlorine, but it turns out that the taste is due to a vegetable growth which is believed to coming down the Trent River from Lake Simcoe where the vegetation grows.

The consulting engineers who built the filter have taken up the challenge on the question and it is believed they will be able to offer the city some valuable service.

Science accepts the situation and sets out to explain and remedy.

CARE PAYS

A call was clearly made at the annual meeting of the Ontario Ontario Dairymen's Association to the milk producers to aid in the raising of the standard of milk so that the quality of the cheese products may be enhanced and so bring higher prices.

The buyer is willing to pay. Conditions that do not make for the best cheese, in reality cause a serious loss to the factory concerned, to the producer himself, the factory's cash he sends his supply, the district and the entire cheese industry by lowering the quality of cheese and forcing down the price of the product generally because it is lower in standard than it ought to be.

VACHEL LINDSAY

Vachel Lindsay, one of the strangest types of poet the world has seen because he brought it so close to the present time with its jazz and its hurry, a future in mechanism which it cannot forecast, has gone to his reward beyond the veil. His poem "General William Booth Enters Heaven" was a type of the work he has been able to achieve in the realm of poetic art.

Lindsay sometimes with his odd rhythm making at times a repetition of the rhythms of the African jungle, struck a note which was startling.

It has been said there is nothing new under the sun. With Lindsay did he believe that and he proved that there is something new. He produced a new rhythm representative of this day and age.

PARENTS MUST PUNISH

Out in Winnipeg seven parents had the duty thrust upon them of thrashing their children under the eye of the detention officer for a series of break-ins and theft at a plant in that city and the probation officer said he will see to them the next year. So they escape the reformatory.

Parents of course are not all to blame for what their progeny get into in the way of trouble but they are in duty bound to see as far as possible that their boys go the right path. Some parents do not and there used to be a story of a parent who when his son committed an offence made the son whip him (the father). Doubtless the seven parents did not put much vindictiveness into the strapping but gave their children under the supervision of the officer but they doubtless preferred to carry out the undesirable job than see their sons go to reformatory. Some of those parents doubtless have shirked their duties in regard to training of their families and probably could have done so and managed them after they grew up to become quite independent of parental control.

The Winnipeg magistrate did not have an unwise decision when he seized the opportunity to make the parents wield the strap. Other magistrates might follow his example.

POLICEMEN AS FRIENDS

Children in their noise may perplex a parent to frenzy at times but it was probably unwise when a mother in an Ontario city the other night had a policeman come to the family residence and when he arrived told him to come in and frighten the children.

Policemen are not to frighten children or adults. The law-abiding have nothing to fear from the police, at least they should not have to fear a policeman. Instilling of the thought of fear in the minds of the young is a bad example, the children cannot forget that soon.

Yet it is a common attitude towards policemen. There is the order of jokes and countless stories about policemen. Surely this is wrong. Cities do not spend thousands of dollars a year to maintain departments for frightening children and for creating butts for the laughter of theatre crowds and club gatherings.

The police are a portion of the system which maintains law and order and is as deserving of the public appreciation as any court officials.

And the parents should teach their children to like the policeman.

LIFE

By Aline Michaelis

Life, with the splendor and blaze of it
Life, and the colorful ways of it;
Life, the strange game,
Never the same;
Life—Ah, but the infinite maze of it!

Life, with the wonder and fire of it;
Life, and man's endless desire of it;
Gain or defeat,
Still life is sweet;
Where is the heart that could tire of it?

Life, with the strife and turmoil of it;
Life, with the struggle and toil of it;
In every mood
Still someway good,
Life—through the whole, magic coil of it!

ODD BARGAINS AT THRIFT SHOPS

The nearest approach in New York to the New England general store, where anything from a clothes-pin to a second-hand pulpit may be found, is the thrift shop. There are eight or ten of them, mostly on Third Avenue, stocked by donations and operated by society matrons and debutantes for the profit of a wide range of charities. The infinite variety of the wares and clients is shown in an article in Gas Logic.

Dealers in antiques haunt the shops looking for rare bits of old furniture. Moving-pictures "extras" are good customers for evening gowns. One movie actress picked up a complete riding outfit for $2.

"I don't care what condition it's in," she said, "for I have to be in the saddle in the mud right away anyhow." Dinner coats and full dress suits go like hot cakes to waiters and undertakers.

The managers of the shops say that absolutely anything will sell. A young man once bought a mechanical leg which didn't even fit him, despite the protest of the saleswoman. A year later he came back, not to return it but to ask for another, as he had sold the first to a dealer for five times the price he had paid. Even a solitary tureen did found a pleased purchaser. She wanted it, not to match an old tureen but because the china flower would look well on the husband's grave as a substitute for fresh flowers, which she couldn't afford.

Children are frequent bargain hunters looking for books, clothing, music and gifts. A small boy with only four pennies was in desperate need of a five-cent flag. He got it for his cash and a promise to pay the penny later. Weeks afterwards he came back to clear his account, explaining that he had been ill and this was his first day out.

THE WONDERS OF WORK

Oh, it is fine to loaf sometimes when everything goes right, it's joy to sail to other climes and drink strange wines at night. It is a pleasant thing to leave the old accustomed ways for storied lands whose names we've known from childhood days. It's splendid just to let them go, the little frets and cares; which every being, high or low, experiences somehow. The little things that do not count, yet vex the weary mind, the trifling ills that mount and mount; and then to leave them all behind! But when real troubles come your way, real woes the spirit ink, then it is wise to spend each day in slabouring work; in work that woos the thought away from cares no one can cure; in work, whose wonders are the balm for the griefs men must endure.—Aline Michaelis.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

At a revival meeting converts were coming forward by the dozens. A Negro came striding down the aisle and dropped to his knees. He was forefooted and two enormous feet stuck up behind him.

In a moment the revivalist started up the aisle, looking here and there beside the converts. The near-sighted old man peered earnestly at the Negro, patted him on the shoulder and murmured: "Bless you, brother." Then kneeling behind him and putting a hand on each heel, he said, "And bless these two dear little boys."

Other Papers' Opinions

INSURANCE INVESTMENTS

Where mistakes have been made in the application of common stock investments to life insurance reserves, they have been most marked in connection with the selection of the stocks and their handling. There seems to be a theory in some insurance circles that investments should be permanent and hold over and, but obviously in such a theory there is no place for the exercise of continued good judgment. Stocks, too, often times when securities get beyond their real value and, while no one would approve a policy of stock market trading for life insurance institutions, there should be no barrier against the application of as much common sense in connecting the time to sell as in choosing the time to buy. The corporate fabric of the country or the world may go on while many individual companies fail. The purchase of securities is only half an investment programme.

Recent experience seems to have shown also that there should be a limitation—and it is best that it be self-imposed—to the percentage of total assets that may be invested in the common stocks.

There can be little doubt that the Canadian companies that have recently published the stocks for their life insurance reserves will have learned their lesson in this matter and that in the future there will be an ample measure of dependency upon common stocks by the insurance companies and that there will be an acceleration in the conservative principles based upon changing conditions in dividend policies and throughout the monetary fabric at large.

That the common stock has its place in any investment programme in the life investment of trust funds, is the opinion to which much high financial authorities would subscribe. The depression has taught us many lessons, but we do not believe that one of the best lessons it hasn't taught us and to have our executors profit from unusual circumstances.—Financial Post.

FEWER KILLED ON BRITISH ROADS

The experience on this continent is that road fatalities increase each year, despite the numerous safety campaigns, and despite the close policing of the main highways. It is estimated that the deaths in the United States as Canada together will total nearly 40,000 for 1921, the United States contributing more than 34,000. The accidents in which persons are injured are numerous, seriously go into the hundreds of thousands. Here is a task for a black mark for America. On the other hand, there has been a change for the better in Great Britain. Sir Henry the Committee of the National Safety First Association states that there has been a reduction of over ten per cent. in the total of road accidents in 1921. The figures are furnished by the chief constables throughout the country and cover the first nine months of the year. The total of all accidents reported recorded in the nine months is 24,236, a decrease of 2,700 on the corresponding period of 1920. In the same period of 1921, non-fatal accidents increased from 19,893 to 21,536. This increase was anticipated in view of the fact that the Road Traffic Act now requires all accidents to be reported, and it is believed it thus hear more today than in the past when only the serious accidents were reported.

The decrease in the British fatality record is all the more remarkable that it is the first time in a decade that there has not been an increase. The cause is given as new and sensible traffic regulations, coupled with safety week campaigns. It is stated that in the six principal West Midland counties—Birmingham, Coventry, Halifax, Huddersfield, Leeds and Sheffield—the number of fatal accidents fell by 25 per cent. while in Britain as a whole the fatalities declined by 33 per cent. In the West Riding cities in question there are many hilly streets. It is believed all of which look a very active interest in this line of endeavor of National Safety Week, and continued activity in the same direction in the Brighton and Hove, it is stated that the "Safety First" council is "particularly live," hence the most remarkable decline in accidents.—Montreal Gazette.

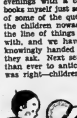
GARNET WHEAT TO BE STUDIED

Cerealist to Meet Hon. Robert Weir For Conference

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 9.—L. M. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, will start tonight for Winnipeg, Man., to join Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, for the conference on Garnet wheat. The position which this cereal is specially believed to have has been much discussed in parliamentary circles and among the millers for some time.

There grain is specially backed shipment of Garnet was sent to England and distributed among millers there and on the continent. Mr. Newman went to the United Kingdom and gathered data on the reaction of the millers to the new variety.

If some people would pay off the mortgages on their character, they would be bankrupt.



Sophisticated Junior Does Not Want Soldier Toys, Wants Electric Trains, Knows Model Plane

"Young Canada's selection and demand in the kind of toys he wants to play with nowadays has undergone a complete change since the time when we were a boy", said a noted German toy designer and manufacturer who was in Montreal yesterday, and who had come over to this country a few days ago to tell store buyers just what they should stock up with for the next season. Then he continued on about girls being pretty much the same, playing dolls and sticking pretty close to their dolls, and things they have always played with—but boys.....well, boys were growing up in more ways than one. Now they want thermo-coupled millimeters, complete and up-to-date chemical laboratory sets, constructive and mechanical arrays of thingamajigs that bewilder and confound the layman, and fashion dolls are probably played with clothespins when they were younger, even Santa Claus is getting out of date these days —but put beside their chairs near the bed on Christmas morning and they simply won't look. At least that's what the learned professor who designs the toys says, and he ought to know. But just to check up on this gentlemen, who with proverbial German thoroughness omitted that, after considerable prospecting efforts we have located a lad in Belleville in concerned, he is practically right. However we won't bother him as he did. We found him and can now practically posted that what Junior will want for next Christmas we can tell this one to refer to it something around next December 20th.

If you wish to prevent any possible glances of whatever kind from the above mentioned, the young man about the house who has awakened from childhood's dreams and now is dabbling in juvenile things as lead soldiers, or the like, reposing in state upon a nearby chair—don't buy them. The best method to take a way these glances is to unleash bit the dust" after every volley of our trusty cannon, more than down one of the long rows of rows you had them lined up in, have gone, Maybe you could have them marching around in some manner—anyhow in place of lead soldiers they want parts of radios so they can build their own short wave receiving sets, and all such other entertainments as rolling a rackety sounding ball at a lot of wooden ten pins, they want a complicated electric train with reversing motor, automatic switches, signals and real lights.

For the smaller boy some of those mechanical sets from which almost any working model of large things like railroad locomotives and airplanes, will do fine instead, of the piece of dominoes or the ever-present checkers, you generally get him every year—and some of the requests that come from them show the trend of the modern thought. "When it comes to model airplanes they cannot be fooled. They know every working part of the larger planes that fly over the city occasionally and they insist that there be models on even the smallest and least expensive sets we sell. Landing gear, types of motors, will it "take off the ground"—will it.....well, I suppose I could go on like that for fifty more questions and still not exhaust the subject of the electric trains.....I'll bet they must read everything ever printed about those things, and know all about them. Some of them do, I know more about them than I do. They want to know how many cycles the transformer is, and just about everything that could be asked about one of them. I spent lots of evenings with a number of these youthful chaps, myself just so that I will be able to keep ahead of some of the questions they do ask. Yes, you bet the children nowadays know more than we did. In the line of things that are made for them to play with they are up to date, modernistic, and they knowingly handled to us just Irvoung the questions they ask. Next season we'll be in a position to anticipate their wishes." The German was right—children are different.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating supper today, being mostly out of cans on account of was the day the hired girl had ma and not having found another cook since Nora left, and the doorbell rang and I went to see. Me, me saying, O Nora, and her saying. Hello you little spalpeen, I want to see your father.

Heard On The Street

The true spirit of lonliness is perhaps never exemplified or brought home with such intensity as it is to those who have left the old town and the old home to make a new mark in some more favorable field, and then have returned home to find that the old town after all has still been able to get along without them, and that friends they used to know to some of them have already passed on, and no recognition, or if they do recognize them, nod casually in their direction as if it had only been the day before yesterday that the gossip of the day were transacted and passed along, has now been relegated to the more permanent storage facilities in the long memory bench has gone. In its place has come a new array of shelves and pigeonholes, upon which the latest magazines and novels are propose in orderly array. And small talk visitors are encouraged. Business has taken Time by the forelock, and time to the proprietor of business.

Haunts of former days have silently closed their doors. The ghost of many an old friend who has departed and deserted upon his communication has been cut off and never again will it be able to silently converse w ith the other boys who have gathered around. Where has he gone? Nobody seems to ask. Where are the old fellows I used to spend the evening with not many years ago. And why have things changed so much? Why? Why? Because we have moved to other cities. Many of them still live in the old town, but the effect of new customs has become apparent upon them and they no longer seem to be found in the gathering places of former days, or even before at almost regular hours. A few haunts still survive but they are few and far between, and even these are not what they used to be in brigade.

Even in this desk came a letter from one of them the other day. He had gone away and had made good in a large city as far as success can be measured with monetary value, but he had returned to a new town, and found a new land a new people, and he was a total stranger in a strange town, and lost on his own doorsteps. Surely the old town has changed beyond recognition when the old fellows I used to spend the evening with not many years ago. And why have things changed so much? Why? Fishermen Flee Off Lake Simcoe

Mild Weather and Winds Break up Ice

Orillia, Ont., Jan. 9.—Crumbling ice on Lake Simcoe yesterday caused fishermen to flee for their lives while their shacks, toppled over by strong winds, were swept into the lake. Crushed in the heaving ice, the shacks quickly broke up and sank.

Rotted by a prolonged January thaw, the ice on the lake began to buckle two days ago. Old-timers heeded the warnings, hauled in their nets, drew up their anchors, and towed their huts to shore. Fifteen, however, remained until the winds started the ice heaving beneath their feet. Many anchors were cut and many holes their shacks careened into the widening gaps in the ice.

How little we pay our way in life! Although we have our purses continually in our hand, the better parts of service goes still unreward-ed.

1931 SEASON REMEMBERED BY DAIRYMEN

Two Years Advanced By George Barr, Director of Dairying

LITTLE INTEREST

Patrons Do Not Keep Milk and Cream Sweet as in 1930

Speaking at the closing session of the Eastern Ontario Dairyman's Association at Kingston yesterday, George Barr, director, of dairying for Ontario said:

"Dairymen in Ontario will remember the season of 1931 for two reasons," said Mr. Barr, "the first and most outstanding feature of the season was the exceptionally low prices for cheese and butter. The second was the extremely low quality of milk and cream delivered to the scarcity of water for stock and for cooling milk and cream.

"One of interesting things this season was the attitude of the milk and cream producers in regard to the care of their milk and cream. In the past years many of the patrons of cheese factories and creameries have taken as little interest in keeping the first and cream cool and sweet as in 1931. Their excuse all the time was that the price is so low it isn't worth the while taking care of the stuff or "I might as well feed it to the pigs for all I am getting for it." While this result in the prices we made lower still by producing thousands of boxes of second grade cheese and butter which sold for at least one cent, because of the poor flavor and keeping quality that many was responsible for lowering the quality of the cheese and butter produced in Ontario.

"It is shown that in Ontario there is a shrinkage of over two millions pounds of cheese in 1931 compared with that of 1930. We had 11,561 more second grade cheese in Eastern Ontario in 1931 than we had in 1930. We know that the whey cream shipped, and was sold, from these cheese made in Eastern Ontario in 1931 was worth $2,408,320 less than the whey cream in 1930 less than in 1929.

"We also know that there will be at least 10,000,000 pounds more creamery butter made in Ontario in 1931 than there was in 1930 which will mean at least $2,000,000 more in the pockets of producers than they received in 1930.

"If we have one more landslide to butter like we had in 1931, this is the last year in which we will be exporting creamery butter to Great Britain and competing with her countries. With reputation for quality not any too good, we will be endangering and endangering our market thereby. Our finest cheese is second to none in the world at the present moment, and we have only two countries to compete with. But all the cheese factory patrons continue to cry, the cheese is worth what they can get of the milk for all we get for it, and more room for our reputation will be shot to pieces.

Did Farmers Help?

"There is a tremendous noise made just now about hard times, depression and the like sort of thing. Did the dairymen of this province do anything to help the situation in Ontario last year by making one and a third per cent. more cheese than the cheese there they did in 1930 and 7 per cent more second grade cheese.

"It would have cost little or nothing to have had cream coolers, separators, milk cans, and pails clean and sterile. It would have cost little more to pump a few more pails of cold, water to cool the cream and milk. And it would have cost the owners of cheesemakers one cent to hold their cream longer and make it and churn out open, gassy, weak bodied cheese; and the cheesemaker no excuse for the money loot on poorly finished, poorly boxed and branded cheese. And it would have dealt with the careless and indifferent patron more severely and made him responsible for these things?

"Do you think dairymen like this help the situation?

"Upon the report of an inspector that any milk or cream producer's cow stable, dairy, milk house, milk cans, pails, strainers, cream coolers, separator, or other utensils or equipment used in the production, processing, or carrying of milk or cream are in a unsatisfactory condition for the production and sale of clean, sweet milk or cream, the Director of Dairying with the consent of the Minister may prohibit the sale of such milk or milk or cream from such a producer to any point until the inspector in charge certifies the report of an inspector that the sanitary conditions are satisfactory."

What the cheesemakers say to this? A first class certificate will be granted to a cheesemaker who has an average score of 93 points for workmanship and has manufactured 98 per cent. first grade cheese.

The meeting milk at the weigh can stand, clean, sanitary, careful work will be a prominent feature of the score on workmanship. We intend to protect better than ever the men who have been making the type of cheese and producing the kind of milk that has made our reputation for fine cheddar cheese. In my opinion we have been listening to the excuses of the careless dairymen men in our factories and on our farms long enough in the name of the dairy industry in Ontario."

MEXICAN R. C. TO TEST LAW

Clergy Restriction Law creates Antagonism to Take Legislation

Mexico City, Jan. 9.—Chiefs of the Catholic's legal forces, predicted today that not less than 100,000 applications for naturalization and perhaps 200,000 against the new clergy restriction law will be filed in courts here before January 16. The new law, limits the federal district to one priest for each 50,000 inhabitants. This action, they said, is the Catholic answer to the request of Archbishop Pascual Diaz that Catholics refrain from legally and orderly to fight the law promulgated in December.

Central Ontario Baseball League Holds Meeting at Port Hope

ENTHUSIASTIC

Prospects Never Better in Central Ontario For Good Baseball

After being practically assured that the Central Ontario Baseball League would again flourish as in years gone by, the delegates who attended the league meeting at Port Hope on Saturday left the conclave feeling that the rehjuvenated baseball league in Eastern Ontario had at last been realized.

The large turn-out seen at the meeting, which was held in the Queen's Hotel in Port Hope, was the fruits of the untiring efforts of the executive of the league's chairman Chas. These men are to be congratulated on their work along the lines of trying to place the standard of the Central Ontario League baseball again in its status of ten or more years ago.

Four Teams Represented

Four teams were represented when President R. S. Colling of Belleville called the meeting to order. Peterboro, Cobourg, Port Hope and Belleville all had delegates ready to talk baseball from their own standpoints. Secretary-Treasurer Newton Thompson read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved and adopted. The final reading of the correspondence was received with much satisfaction. Many complimentary read letters and telegrams from Oshawa and Brighton stating that although they could not attend the meeting in person they were quite ready to come into the league for the coming summer. With the acquisition of these two cities all officials will be practically assured of six teams for 1932.

The delegates present were: Peterboro, Mr. Coursey, Mr. M. Swanston, Mr. Bell and Dempsey; Cobourg representatives of the O.B.A.A.; Port Hope, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Christie and Mr. O'Neil; Corcoury, Mr. Rollings and Mr. Dodge; Belleville, Mr. Colling and Mr. Kay informed the meeting that he had been personally in touch with the Oshawa Club and they had decided a meeting the night previous and were almost assured of a team in the loop next summer. He also extended to the meeting the unofficial regrets of the Oshawa club on their inability to have 5 delegate present.

Schedule Discussed

Mr. Dodds on behalf of the Cobourg Club assured the meeting that although they had not had their annual meeting it looked as though Cobourg would be in the loop into the loop in 1932 as the Lake Shore League had passed out of existence. He thought that Cobourg could finish a team in the O.G.D.A. but he did not think that they could make the long jumps to Kingston.

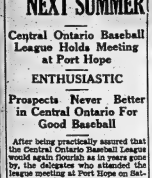
All delegates present from Port Hope were quite optimistic over the possibilities of baseball in their town again but were of the same opinion as Cobourg in the long jumps to Kingston. After a round-table talk it was suggested that perhaps an inter-locking schedule could be arranged with the O.B.A.A. as a major part of the loop and Kingston and Belleville intermediate teams make but one trip to Kingston and either two or three trips to the Valley Town as Kingston as a possibility and the matter was laid over until the next meeting at which all the trades will be represented.

The Cobourg and Port Hope delegates stated that it was hard for them to get organized in the same way were fostering baseball each year and they wanted some new material for the summer league. Bell, president of the Peterboro club, told the meeting that they had completely reorganized in 1931. They had new officers and they were financially all young men. Mr. Bell went on to say that this initiative of new material on the executive had had a certain bearing on the moral of the young players and they instilled in to them some pep and vim as they would naturally follow the spirit of the executive.

Annual Meeting February 6

After thoroughly discussing each other's personal club troubles and explaining just how the league might operate in the same manner as when it first opened in 1919 the meeting closed with a feeling that something worth while had at last been realized. The matter of getting the O.C.B.L. back to its original status. The next meeting to be held in the Dunham House at Cobourg on February 6, 1932, when all six clubs will be represented and the election of officers for 1932 will take place.

Urges Canada Keep W. Indies Relations



TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 11—Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University of Toronto, addressing the Royal Canadian Institute on Saturday, urged that Canada maintain her trading relations with the West Indies.

"It will be a tremendous mistake if Canada allows the West Indies to slip away and have their interests in other directions.

"The people of the West Indies provide much of what we need and can take from us in large quantities what they require," he added.

SPORTS

By JIMMY THOMPSON

Here is a "teaser" from a western reader: When teams are playing in the last period and the timekeeper's bell goes, and the goaltender walks out, and the attacking team scores a second later, and the referee's whistle goes, does the goal count? What bell is final? The answer is that in amateur hockey the goal counts. In professional hockey it doesn't. The reason for this is simply that in the amateur game the referee is usually the only official appointed by the league or association. Hundreds of games are played all over the country nightly and in the amateur games it would be expensive to have more officials on the payrolls. Minor officials are usually home town talent, subject to the approval of the teams and the referee. The timekeeper is, however, required to give the referee two minutes notice before the expiration of play. In the pro game where the teams are centred in a few cities, two officials are appointed by the league president. Rangers have two timekeepers, may be electrical timing, preventing possibility of error though to be sure the timekeeper at the Garden was in Montreal when the final goal went in on Lorne Chabot. There was still a minute or so to play. The major for tripping Boucher as he broke away with no one to beat but Chabot.

PITTSBURGH IS TWICE DEFEATED

Syracuse Stars and Buffalo Bisons Do Trick

Toronto Ont., Jan. 11 (CP) — Pittsburgh's double setback at the hands of Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Stars coupled with Detroit's rooseless draw against Windsor Bulldogs provided the deciding details of a four game schedule in the International hockey League over the week end. One other schedule contest, between Toronto together on tied end clubs, Syracuse and Cleveland, resulted in a victory for the Indians when they came from behind to take the lead in the last period.

Dropping a 2-1 decision to the Syracuse sextette in Buffalo last Saturday night after sixty minutes of scoreless hockey, Pittsburgh's title hopes shalled up a double defeat in two nights when they lost a 2-0 decision to Mickey Roach's tall end Syracuse club.

Wages in Proportion To Living Costs

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—Lowering of wages of railway employees in proportion with the decline in living costs was suggested last night as a solution of financial difficulties of Canadian railway systems by W. D. Wright, director of the Dominion Experimental station in the Peace River country, president of the Beaver Lodge Board of Trade, and chairman of the Peace River Associated Boards of Trade.

Present railway freight rates, he claimed, threatened to kill export production. Haulage costs, he said remained high when prices declined and thereby were a significant and consequent loss in traffic movement reported he continued.

MAROONS WIN

Falcons Spring Surprise Downing Canadiens at Home

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—Thanks to the accurate shooting of Nels Stewart, giant centre, Montreal Maroons were the only Canadian division club to gain points in four week-end national hockey league fixtures.

American group entrants were more fortunate, however, as New York Rangers and Detroit Falcons both picked up pair of points by downing Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens respectively, while Boston and Chicago each gained a single counter by an overtime draw.

As a result of their 4-2 victory over Canadiens on Saturday night the Cleghornmen advanced to within a single game of their city rivals, Canadiens, and now only six points separate the first and last place clubs of the group. Detroit's triumph at home over the speedy Canucks, was Cooper's their third straight game placed them within striking distance of the second place Habitant. Saturday victory sent the Patrick squad eleven points in the rear of Bruins and Hawks.

Rangers scored their second triumph in three starts over Toronto's hustling Maple Leafs in New York last night when they shut out the Queen City crew before 16,000 people. After forty-five minutes of scoreless play "Butch" Keeling put the Patrick squad in front when he shot Chabot on His Side's ass. The Leafs pressed hard to even the score in the final period but a last minute rush on the home ice found Broadbent sluded Chabot's pads and the Rangers took two in front. Then Bill Cook was serving a penalty for tripping Crutz, but Toronto failed to missed several chances when Roach turned in a sparkling performance but they were handicapped for the last five minutes when Charlie Conacher received a major for tripping Boucher as he broke away with no one to beat but Chabot.

Device Detects Forgeries in Art

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—Art is reduced to geometry by the recovery of a long lost gnomon of the old masters, Jay Hambidge, sculptor, told a group of artists' wives.

"No regular set-square test can be applied to the works of old masters than the gnomon," Bowditch said. "For it corrects the very symmetry used by the artist. If the canvas is a forgery, a fine gnomic geometric processes are unmistakably disclose it as such."

Aside from its use as a test of old paintings, Bowes said the gnomon was a "tool of organization in the hands of the modern artist which bids fair to open up a realm of design hitherto unknown in our times."

The Campbellford team were sure gluttons for punishment as they were right down here for practice on Saturday night. All of the boys seemed to be in the best of condition and did not have any ill effects after Friday night's game, except the idea that they had one game on the loss side of the column. Weather permitting Queen's play in Campbellford on Tuesday night. What a game that should be. We are curious to know how the Hydro Town boys will stack up against Squires and Murphy. They do not want to try any of their cross-checking tactics with these two lads or it will be just too bad for somebody.

With the exception of Herbie Morris, who is still hors de combat, the rest of the locals came out of Friday night's battle feeling none the worse for their experience. Despite the local's learned a lesson on Friday night. The Hydro team will be forever to rest on your goal lead," or "defensive hockey is the best defensive hockey game that a team can play."

"Future Olympic Champions" was the heading of a letter recently seen at the Belle Theatre. Although it is not known if Ted Reel type is depicted the Work of the Olympic Games. The United States when they had been 11 and 12 years of age out practicing ski-ing, speed skating and fancy skating along with other sports that the average boy not look to her laurels they will soon be annexed by the American cousins. It is too bad to see the amount of time and money being taken up by others while the Canadian winter sensations are squabbling among themselves. Perhaps "Where there is no there is strength," we once heard, and have every reason to believe it.

It might be interesting to know that Les Tice did not have a date on the ice floe for the first eleven minutes of Friday night's game. He could have could have counted all the shots he had on their fingers for the first few periods. He must have had something to do with the work of Tice and he was finally stopped Whitton's second. Whitton turned in a very creditable exhibition but we must remember that the nearest one came to the puck past centre ice when Charlie Hartley skated after him. As for Davis, he turned in about the poorest exhibition we've been by the ex-Trenton lad.

Les Tice tried to tell Referee Harold Hambly that the game but with no avail. The Campbellford manager tried to tell us such a man while play was in progress but was given a two minute penalty but Referee Hartley said "no," and 'les lost a perfectly good penalty. Hartley would be well advised to read a little book once in a while.

The Juniors are scheduled to play in Campbellford on Monday night. Coach Newton Thompson has the local Cubs in excellent condition and expects a victorious team. Trenton is a win over the Northerners, then Belleville and then the Trenton side who are now leading the loop with one win and no defeats.

This week promises to be a real hectic week for both of the local O.H.A. teams. The intermediates play in Kingston against the R.M.C. Club on Wednesday night while they entertain the Gananoque "privateers" at the local Arena Gardens on the latter part. Thursday the Juniors play in Campbellford tonight and then the Trenton Juniors here on Thursday night.

The present cold snap should help the teams who have to depend on natural ice. They will have to play many games in succession if they can keep up with their games which have been postponed lately. Thaw.

All gold in respect of wisdom is as a little sand, and silver shall be counted as clay before her. The fool that cometh from her nose cometh out.

ITALIAN KING AND IL DUCE ENDANGERED

Package Taken Off Steamer Believed to Contain Bombs

EXAMINED

Two Are Addressed to King and One to Premier

NAPLES, Italy, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Three packages believed to contain bombs intended for King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini were taken off the steamer Excalibur here today. The parcels were amongst 125 bags of parcel mail the steamer brought from the United States.

Two of the bombs were believed to be addressed to the king and one to the premier. The mail was being loaded after all the passengers had disembarked. A large force of police superintended the handling and the sacks were immediately taken in charge by a specially selected guard, a mile and a half from the port for examination by explosive experts.

The passengers on the steamer did not learn of the supposed presence of the bombs until the ship reached Marseilles, where they read it in the newspapers.

Weighed Two Pounds

One of the packages addressed to the king weighed two pounds and was postmarked in Detroit the year, December 19. The second package for the king and one for the premier bore no postal indicia on which the writing was indistinct but marked December 14 or 21. The address looked like "Betterany" California, but it was thought to be "Betterwia', near Santa Barbara.

The registered package was Italian Sack No. 1944. Which by what lost so there was no way of knowing in which sack it and of the three packages was contained.

PLANES USED FOR POACHING

Poachers Are Active on Cree Indian Reserve Near James Bay

Toronto, Jan. 11—Evidence of "air-poaching" has been unearthed in connection with poaching operations reported widespread in the Cree Indian area, near James Bay, according to officials of the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries. Working through the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, provincial authorities are moving toward putting an end to the illegal raids carried out with the assistance of aeroplanes. The departure has been informed that planes fly over the Cree area, drop hunters at various lakes and return for them at a later date.

GOV.-GENERAL AND FAMILY SEE "DUMBELLS"

For sheer entertainment, the kind we like you out to yourself and makes you forget your troubles, the Dumbell concert arrive "As You Were", is in a class by itself. The boys are at the top of the bill to-night and they appear to be just as happy over the fact that Captain W. W. Pimbell has returned back to the all-men type of show, as the theatre-going public was pleased itself to be.

There is enough soldier stuff in this new revue to remind one pleasantly of the old "Biff, Bing, Bang" days, while the settings and costumes are a striking example of just how far they have advanced in the thirteen years they have been before the Canadian public.

It is great, too, to see the old gang so well represented. Once again we have the three original stars, Al Junkett, Ross Hamilton and "Red" Newman. Then we have the return of Glenn Ayian and "Scotty" Morrison, old favorites, and the introduction of Don Romaine and Joe Carr, new stars. There is also the Dumbell band, the most popular ensemble feature ever introduced into a Dumbell revue.

"As You Were" comes here immediately following successful engagements in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa. It was named city they had the splendid distinction of playing under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor-General and the Countess of Bessborough. The first being the fourth Governor-General of Canada to honour their annual visit to the Capital city.

The Dumbells will be here for one night only, January 19th at the Capitol Theatre when a capacity house is predicted.

New York Expects Accord on Power

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 11—The New York State power rights at Niagara reported to Gov. Roosevelt that it foresees an agreement with the Dominion of Canada which will give the state control of waterpower developed from the St. Lawrence project.

The commission, in a letter to Mr. Roosevelt made public last night, declared that it was unable to have what the Democratic State Administration has declared to be New York considered in any international negotiations with Canada for development of the boundary river. The power board, bespeaking Canadian sentiment, based its recent and active campaigner for public development of the St. Lawrence demanded the Federal Government consult with New York's rights in the matter before international negotiations were commenced.

World's Grain Fair Held in 1933

REGINA, January 11.—"The present intention is to hold the fair in 1933."

This was the reply of Hon. Robert Weir, federal Minister of Agriculture, when asked what plans were for the world's grain exhibition and conference to be held here. He suggested, however, that if 1932 prov ed as dry as such as 1931 there was every possibility that these might be taken as an indefinite postponement of the conference.

Originally scheduled to be held this year, the show was postponed a year.

CENTENARIAN REVIEWS LIFE

101 Year Old Clergyman Comments on Human Progress

IS OPTIMISTIC

WOODSTOCK, Jan. 11—In his annual birthday message to his fellow citizens appearing in Saturday's issue of the Sentinel-Review, Dr. Wm. T. McMullen, Woodstock's "grand old man" who today celebrates his 101st birthday anniversary says in part.

"The century through which I have lived is the most remarkable in all history with the exception of the nineteenth century. Scientific, ministry and finished work of the Saviour makes the final century the greatest of all centuries. But in point of human progress and general improvement the last hundred years has no parallel.

When King William IV lifted the throne of Britain, when I was born there was not a railroad in England, Scotland or Ireland. There were no steam ships sailing the ocean.

There were no telegraphs or telephones, no electric lighting. The postage on a letter from Canada to Britain was twenty-five cents. The present generation do not know the comforts and privileges, and yet we are passing through a time of depression. But it is purely artificial. The bounties of divine providence are as great as ever, our stores houses and elevators. But the world of men have blocked the channels of trade with high tariffs, and glutted markets and warehouses and factories. Conditions will right themselves in due course.

"LADIES AT THE BIG HOUSE" NEXT AT BELLE

Sylvia Sidney, whose excellent work in "An American Tragedy" won favorable comment from the critics, now has the leading feminine part in "Ladies of the Big House," which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Belle commencing Wednesday.

This picture is Paramount's screen version of the story of Ernest Booth, convict author at Folsom prison. It is a gripping romantic drama of two persons who are swept into the whirlpool of life's drama of life within the quarters of a great prison.

"Ladies of the Big House" follows Miss Sidney's stellar appearance in "Street Scene," a United Artists' production for which she was loaned by Paramount.

Miss Sidney gained prominence when Paramount selected her to take the place of Clara Bow in "Silky Street," when the red-haired star became ill." She also had the leading rôles in "An American Tragedy" and "Confessions of a Co-Ed."

Ladies of the Big House" forthers Miss Sidney's career as successor to Miss Bow since "Ladies of the Mob," Bootby's first screen story, served as Clara's most dramatic role several years ago.

In "Ladies' of the Big House" Miss Sidney has as her leading man Gene Raymond, who gained screen prominence as Nancy Carroll's leading man in "Personal Maid" following his stage success in "Young Sinners."

The story of "Ladies of the Big House" is a brass-ering romance of love and regeneration, centres on the two leading characters, imbued by caught in the toils of the law.

The prison scenes of this picture is furnished by Alleight, as the boy and by Miss O'Sullivan, as the girls. Both are superb, especially in their romantic scenes.

"On the Spot" the programme one of the most interesting studies of murder seen on the screen many a long day. This "Ghost" deals with the fall life at the bottom of the ocean, showing the fight of the weaker fish with the monsters as the Devil Fish, whose end is brought about by the Electric Ray-fish.

Crooked Money, a gang work ed with the smoothness of a piston in "Will Power," Her heart, forced with sympathy for her rascally husband, and her mind, considerably by the sigh of Glenn Hackett's voice in the library when she came down to breakfast. To her greeting he returned one of the utmost gravity, so Glenn, jumping instantly to the conclusion that Hackett was there talking his affairs over with his lawyer, hastily precipitated the drama, much to the relief of the principal actors.

At The Capitol

THOMAS MEIGHEN AND MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN

"Skyline" which opened at the Capitol theatre Saturday is magnificent entertainment. The story, written under the name "Rian James" West Side," is a motion picture that has within its direct drive and stunning impact of a steam pile driver. The roar of the riveting guns that fasten together the steel girders of the skyscraper where much of the film focuses is laid.

Thomas Meighen, Uncle Albright and that dainty bit of Irish femininity, Maureen O'Sullivan, Myrna Loy and Charles Ruggles portray the featured roles and Meighen adds another personal triumph to his string of successful pictures.

"Skyline" depicts the adventures of an ambitious youth of uncertain parentage, reared on a dilapidated farm and dominated by its brutal captain.

On her death-bed, the boy's mother tells him the captain is not her father, and gives him a brooch that was presented to her by his real father whom she never married. The youngster escapes by swimming to land where he finds gets a job on a New York building site.

The builders, a dynamic and forceful individual, takes a deep interest in the plucky good natured lad and finally discovers that he himself is the boy's father.

Meanwhile, the lad meets, and falls in love with the daughter of a fellow worker, but also becomes fascinated by an adventuress. To prevent him from ruining his life, the boy's father manages to get himself caught in the act in a compromising situation with the adventuress.

All this point the climax of the picture comes with a shocking force and in a most surprising manner.

The romantic interest of this picture is furnished by Albright, as the boy and by Miss O'Sullivan, as the girls. Both are superb, especially in their romantic scenes.

"On the Spot" the programme one of the most interesting studies of murder seen on the screen many a long day. Will Discuss Naming of Lieut. - Governor

Toronto, Jan. 11—Hon. George G. Henry, Premier of Ontario, said yesterday he would visit Ottawa within the next few days to have an appointment with Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister.

It is understood the appointment of a Lieutenant-Governor for Ontario to succeed Hon. W. D. Ross, who retired recently, will be one of the major subjects discussed.

JIM THE CONQUERER

"You forgot that Bill Dingle is my guest, Carawee told the foreman the guest knew they were and to engage other herders; that Bill Dingle would return soon; that Mary's lamb, dropped in the tall behind me. The foreman wanted to know who was going to pay the payroll, and Carawee told him I would."

"Isn't Easton taking a lot for granted, Don Jaime?"

"Oh, Enrico knows my pretty well. Better go to Los Algodones tomorrow, Ken, draw about a thousand dollars from the bank and pay off those sheepmen. They'll stick on the job and take good care of their sheep sheep, when they know they are being watched. Better hire half a dozen good herders for that farm too, and relieve our men who are now helping him."

"And do you intend keeping Bill Dingle and his men on your private bonanzow indefinitely?"

"Oh, no, not indefinitely. I've only invited them to stay thirty days for trespass and assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm like to be judge and jury in all matters that affect my own welfare, and if I turned Bill Dingle and his dinglets over to the law there would be the usual fuss and feathers and delay."

Bill Dingle claims that part of his remuneration as manager for Don Jaime was the privilege of the lamb crop. He'll charge you with stealing his lambs and sue you for single damages."

"But I'll give his foreman a receipt for all the lambs that may possess myself of. I'll even give Dingle a duplicate receipt. Sign it myself too."

"Don Jaime, you're hopeless. Here you are in this country, my friend there would be an overwhelming preponderance of Latin blood in the jury, and a jury of your peers is hoots in a hollow for the law, all the wants is justice and he doesn't want any justice other than the brand that appears on Carawee, John Bar-Rummynode and Don Quixote could never agree on anything."

Ken Hogart chuckled at his head and laughed. "I advise you to turn Bill Dingle and his dinglets loose. You are holding them illegally."

But Don Jaime shook his grey head. "The best I'll do for Dingle is to let him have a dozen packs of playing cards and a couple packs of dice for his Mexican and Basque herders. Now, Ken, I'll bet you a few seconds, "Yes, I'll do better than that, I'll bet a couple of the newspapers that come to the ranch every day for a hundred reading them, for of course he'll want to look at the market reports on mutton and wool."

Ken Hogart surrendered but not without protest. "How are your wounds?" he queried.

"Nothing to worry about. Providentially Tom Antrim used Apache tracked bullets fired at something over six hundred yards. One of them lets had settled in their fleshy ey but they rebounded and, so they drilled nice, neat, round little holes in the scalp and I'm quite all right. I'll be on the job again in a month."

"Well, Glenn," she said, "has Uncle Bill been telling you his sad story?"

Hackett nodded owlishly. "Can you see the slightest glimmer of a silver lining in the dark cloud that surrounds him, Glenn?"

"All appears to be lost save honor, Bobby."

Crooked Bill raised a protesting hand. "Let us not discuss it, if you please, Bobby. I am in need help now, so let us forget it and glean what little advantage of comfort and possibly be wrung from my wasted career. Remember, girl, I'm not the whimpering kind."

"I know you're not, dear Uncle Bill. You're a perfectly good old sport."

I admit I was knocked for the count at first, but now that I have my second wind——"

"Save it for your cigar, dear. I have just had a long cablegram from my lawyer in Los Algodones, Carawee. He informs me that the affairs of Uncle Tom Cobley and all are in such a shape and that he died leaving even more than was at first supposed. They have all been counted and the wood crop is being gathered and placed in safety. There are only about ten thousand lambs that will be ready for the market and which should bring ten dollars a head and there are upwards of a hundred thousand pounds of excellent mutton on the hoof. Quite a pound-age, why, it would seem that Uncle Tom's estate will run close to half a million dollars. You'll have wrinkles and grow wrinkles and gray hairs worrying."

The butler announced dinner—and Glenn Ogden fish and the cook as per agreement. Glenn Hackett suddenly laid down his knife and fork and looked across the question. Crooked Bill adroitly as to the exact nature of his relationship to the latter. And when Crooked Bill had finished with the questions and Glenn Hackett had made a number of notations in a note book, he replied in silence. Crooked Bill noted a grim little smile playing about the corners of Hackett's mouth so presently with her customary quickness, she asked him to share the joke with them.

"It's on your Uncle Bill," he replied, frankly. "I was just thinking, gracious to my host, it is my duty to inform Mr. Ogden that Uncle Bill is an antediluvian idiot and that he should not see a path out of this mess he's in—a path as wide as Yonge street in the middle of City. Let us eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow Uncle Bill will no longer be a financial corpse. He will have commenced to live a resurrection——Ay, By Jove, this is most excellent roast beef. I remember once in the old days I had beef in a restaurant out West, in the cattle country, I couldn't get my head around much less eat it, so I said to the waiter, 'Bring me beef.'

"How are you going to save Uncle Bill?" Roberta demanded sharply.

"Bring me beef, you stupid, Bobby."

"Explain now," the girl command ed. "Don't keep us in suspense. It is suffering?"

"Glenn, dear, please——"

"Well, when you talk to me that way, Bobby, I can't resist." And thereupon Hackett proceeded to out line his plan patiently and in terms of one syllable, his plan for the salvation of Crooked Bill.

"I understand perfectly, Glenn," Roberta said when at last he finished. "Uncle Bill is to disappear."

"The plan is voted," Crooked Bill declared briefly. "Providence has ever up under anything except the endorsements of notes or the swift rush of cash."

"But, Uncle Bill, if there is such a plan, you must tell us."

"No more, I beg of you, Roberta. Remember there is a difference of opinion and whether small or large, I will not have you or Glenn, who will have a bellyful of risks lately," he added explicitly, "do not crave a knowledge."

"But Uncle Bill——"

Uncle Bill raised his leonine head and his cold, steely-gray eyes flickered momentarily over the firm mouth closed with a snick, like the door of a safe. "There will be no more discussion on the subject and subject," he informed her coldly.

Burgess Discovers Amazing Drama in Meadow, Forest

Great News For Children as Bedtime Series By Great Story Writer of Nature Stories in This Paper Today.

The Ontario Intelligencer has hired a new reporter. His name is Thornton W. Burgess and his beat will be gathering the news of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest and the Old Pasture.

From time to time he will send in items from the Smiling Pool and tell what goes on up and down the Laughing Brook even as far as Paddy the Beaver's dam in the big woods.

His other words, Thornton W. Burgess's new and hitherto unpublished Bedtime Stories are to appear in the Ontario Intelligencer beginning today.

Mr. Burgess is the man who discovered a new world and peopled it with. He has delighted children. Through the magic of his pen millions of children have come to know and love the Little People of the woods and fields. Careless, curious Peter Rabbit, whose home is in the Dear Old Brier Patch, but who rarely stays there; Unc Billy Possum, thrusting his wobbly nose into other folk's business, is the creation of Mr. Burgess.

Life is full of excitement for Peter Rabbit. He is never sure and Reddtail the Hawk are forever on his trail. Jimmy Skunk and Old Mr. Toad have put on his nightcap and goes to bed with the Black Shadows that come from behind the Purple Hills. Hoot the Owl nurses him relentlessly.

But Billy Possum is the finest. That is one of the features of the Bedtime Stories of Mr. Burgess. Billy is so careful parents—there are never any troubles in them to bring children tears and impel terrifying dreams. Billy Possum is a friend, a friend in fact, indeed. He could hear a voice calling Peter Rabbit and he knew that voice; it was the voice of Farmer Brown's Boy. He knew that voice. He knew that voice sounded angry.

Now, as he crouched behind some bars in a corner and listened to the din outside his heart went pit-a-pat pit-a-pat with fright and he was almost in dead faint. He could hear the noise, but in a way he was cornered. He could not see the boy, but he could hear him. He could hear a voice calling Peter Rabbit and he knew that voice; it was the voice of Farmer Brown's Boy. He knew that voice. He knew that voice sounded angry.

PRICE ACTION IS DOWNWARD

Listless Trading Rules Mine Exchange at Midday

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—(Canadian Press)—Listless trading and slightly easier prices seldom varied from the standard at the mining exchange market in the interest session of the week today. List at midday showing a majority of small recessions among the unimportant few net changes. Noranda was still under pressure in light profit-taking, price dipping another 5 to $1.15. Softness on industrial boards was reflected in action of inter-listed Base Metals, Noranda dropping 40 to $15.85 and Hollinger 30 to $10.00.

An odd lot of McIntyre changed hands at $12.00, a new high for the recent upward movement, but other lighter-priced golds were comparatively easier, Wright Hargreaves, Teck Hughes and Granada selling off 5 cents each from Saturday's finish. Among cheaper issues Kirkland Lake gold, Lamaque and Sylvanite were somewhat firmer, while Siscoe, Lake Shore, Chesterville and Moffatt-Hall showed small declines.

Oils also displayed insignificant movements.

EASING FIRST THEN RECEDES

Slightly Lower Price Range in Light Trading

TORONTO, Jan. 11 (noon stocks)—Easing first, then recovering in the second hour, Toronto stock exchange presented a dull, irregular session today. The activity, however, was the most consistent in several days in enthusiasm. It was as light when the market was soft after the opening as it was when the turn to firmness strengthened. That, perhaps, was a favorable angle.

Of the recognized leaders, Nickel, Power of Canada and Steel of Canada basically unchanged. Brazilian just under 12. Ford at 15¼ and Nickel at 16. Walkers opened slightly lower but soon was unchanged at 3. Smelters dropped a point to 70 and Noranda was down from last week. The old stock made many lows today, not even when the general list improved. The three leaders in A. Oil, Imperial and International Petroleum were selling just under their final level of last week.

Service Stations was unchanged at 10. Canada Cement Preferred eased ¼ to 65¼ and Beauty Brothers preferred off a couple of points at 58.

RELIEF FOR EGG MARKET

Heavy Flow of Production Checked By Cold Weather

OTTAWA, Jan. 11 (CP)—For the heavy production of eggs marketed expected to follow the advent of winter weather in Canada, as the result of the warm, states the weekly report of the Dominion Department of Agriculture today, continuation of cold weather for any considerable time is expected to check the heavy flow of production.

British Columbia and Alberta, where milder conditions prevail have had very heavy production, and the prices have been brought down to a new low levels for the season. In the coast province, due to low egg values, marketings of hens have increased appreciably during the past week.

Preliminary reports of storage hold ings on January 1 from Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg, indicate total stocks of 2,123,000 dozen eggs, considerably below the figures for the same period of 1931.

Miss I. Newberry Dies at St. Louis

Former Member of Post Office Staff in Belleville

Many of the older residents of Belleville will learn with much regret of the death at St. Louis, Mo., of Miss Isabella Newberry, who for many years was a resident of Belleville and a member of the local post office staff under the postmastership of the late Mr. J. H. Meacham and the late Mr. John Taylor. Some twenty-five or thirty years ago she left to make her home in St. Louis.

The late Miss Newberry was a member of one of Belleville's oldest and most prominent families; her father, the late Mr. Isaac Newberry was for many years city clerk of Belleville. She was a woman of many estimable qualities and had many friends in Belleville as well as in St. Louis, where she took a great interest in the work of the Protestant Episcopal church of which she was a member.

The late Miss Newberry is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. G. N. Thomson, of Oakville, Ont.; Mrs. Francis Johnston of St. Louis; Mr. William Newberry, of St. Louis; Mr. Robert Newberry, of St. Louis, and Mr. George Newberry of Beverley Hills, California.

St. Andrew Church Mission Meeting

Following a meeting of the executive at which business for the coming year was transacted, the first monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W. M.S. for the year 1932 was held on Friday afternoon last in the S. S. hall with a large attendance including some very welcome visitors from a distance. The president, Mrs. Seymour, occupied the chair. This gathering is to commune with those of all the auxiliaries of the Presbyterian Church in Canada who was mainly devoted to intercession. It was opened with a hymn, followed by prayer in which those in the mission field and the sick were remembered. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. MacKay, and prayer for the mission was offered by Mrs. Fleming. An appropriate hymn was then sung and this was followed by a prayer for Canada. Mrs. Seymour reading Mrs Bell sang very sweetly a solo entitled "Peace Perfect Peace with Jesus." An especially interesting feature of the programme was an inspiring address by Mrs. Conlthe on "The Extension of the Kingdom." Mrs. Reid offered prayer for the extension of the Kingdom overseas. A hymn was sung and Mrs. Seymour led in prayer for the coming people. The circles for each month were selected and conveners appointed. And this brought a most interesting meeting to a close.

PROTEST ARREST

Cotton Brokers Say Arrest is Insult to Whole of India

(By James A. Mills)

Bombay, India, Jan 11—(AP)—All meetings of groups of more than five persons are prohibited today by a new special ordinance promulgated by the government and directed against the Civil Disobedience campaign. The new ordinance automatically outlaws all Nationalist gatherings.

Special activities in other directions curbed by the government ordinance are the boycott of foreign cloth and ed what they call "muclens parallel Government inaugurating an independent postal service between Bombay and other cities.

If this is successful, they said, the service will be extended. at only one-half the Government rates.

Reports from Indian Nationalist "War Council" announced it would organize a boycott on the country-wide campaign to persuade Indians to withdraw their postal savings and other deposits from Government institutions, transferring them to Indian banks.

Over one hundred prominent Nationalists have been arrested by Sir Frederick Sykes, the Governor, to meet with him "to discuss the Civil Disobedience and the League Open Branches

The Indian Nationalists established a branch here today for the purpose of strengthening relations between India and the League. The Indian Bureau is in charge of A. C. Chatterjee, former Indian journalist, who will keep the Indian public informed on the League's progress, policies and aims.

The Cotton Brokers Association unanimously adopted a resolution protesting the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi's arrest, which they described as "an insult to the whole of India." Members of the association were urged to discourage the use of, and trade in, foreign cloth and to exclude completely all goods from such countries as oppose Indian aspirations.

Orders were asked to invest their money in India for the benefit of local industries and to discourage the export of gold and bullion. Money in that money as the best way of preserving the country's wealth.

WEST INDIES AWAITS SHIP

Newspaper States Every Island Should Be Visited

Port of Spain, Trinidad (By The Canadian Press)—"It is a chance that will not likely occur again certainly not for many years, and it is up to the various islands to see that a vessel visits to make the most of the opportunity," declares the Trinidad Guardian in an editorial on the coming visit of the Canadian trade ship S.S. New Northland. The New Northland leaves Halifax on Jan. 8 with a full cargo of Canadian products and carrying representative Canadian business men on a mission to the British possessions in the Caribbean.

While assuring the visitors of a fine welcome, the Trinidad Guardian stresses the opportunity afforded a golden opportunity for the British West Indies in particular to extend their sales in Canada. "We should tell our visitors—and they represent the whole Dominion—what we want from Canada—what the West Indies can supply to Canada," the Guardian comments. "Last year the value of imports from Canada fell back to about the level reached in 1914, after going up to a high peak in 1929, but the balance of trade which we had with the Dominion is still in the Dominion's favor."

The Guardian stressed adequate arrangements should be made to secure full publicity to the visit, and continued:

"Canada have benefited greatly in the past from trade between Canada and the West Indies, as she does. As this trade increases, the benefits to Canada and the Islands of the West Indies increase proportionately, and though our increased inter-communication may be first at first sight only to benefit our musical stores, it will be found that samples are helping forward the higher trade of economic and self supporting Empire.

Some idea of the opportunities that exist for the extension of great experiment may be gathered from the fact that products exported from Canada to Canada quantities of beans from Florida, and similarly Canada carrots from California, lettuce from Arizona, peas and tomatoes from Delaware, spinach from Louisiana, grapefruit and oranges from California and Florida, and even such fruits and vegetables from foreign sources.

"This good-will vessel is coming here to create personal contact between the leading industrial firms of the Dominion and the people of the West Indies. Single file of the firms who have had space allotted to them, and the interest shown the great interest that Canada is taking in this cruise."

Escapes From Jail Last Friday—Has No Money

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 11— (By The Canadian Press)—Frank Hudson, who escaped from Brockville jail Friday, was arrested in the rail way station at Napanee, next here today. Hudson was cold and hungry when apprehended by Constable G. V. Clobbe of the Ontario Provincial force, and made no attempt to escape. On Friday, while prisoners were being changed from one cell to another, Hudson threw open an unbarred window and promptly disappeared.

Originally, he was arrested in Montreal, while trying to dispose of clothing which, it was alleged, had been stolen from a Brockville store.

Saint John, N. B.—Ronald V. Cobham, 26 years of age, has passed his examinations for a Saint John district pilot's license and has joined the local group of navigators, marking the first time in ten years that a new pilot has been added. The staff now numbers 11, and Mr. Cobham is the youngest.

He spent five years on the pilot boat Maverick and then a year and in voyage to the Pacific coast, the United Kingdom and New Zealand. He served on both steam and sailing vessels and is a qualified master in passenger steamers and foreign and sailing craft.

His first command was guiding the C.P.S. Princess Helene to port, after nightfall. He achieved success in this, and in guiding the steamers Florence and Anne to sea. He showed himself to be fully fitted for his responsible position.

LAYMAN SAYS FAITH LACKING

Wealthy Nation May Yet Have to Pay Storage on Gold

At yesterday morning's service of Bridge Street United Church, an impressive address was given by Mr. W. H. Goodwin, the well known business man of Montreal, now giving his services gratuitously to religious cause. He possesses an energetic and effective platform style. In this occasion Mr. Goodwin spoke upon the far-reaching influences emanating from the last October session of the nations held in Toronto by the United Church of Canada, and to which mention was made of the visit of the Prince of Wales, as well as an Christian Church and this notable year of the year."

Referring to present world conditions, Mr. Goodwin declared that a lack of faith by humanity means a dearth of fellowship likewise. Wealthy nations may yet have to pay storage on their gold instead of otherwise simply deriving interest returns. As St. Paul stated, gifts and money are nothing unless there is faith no inward blessing.

Besides the dried-out areas of the Canadian west there is a like situation in the whole church, the social, business and individual life of communities. Many who formerly contributed to the support of the church and missionary enterprises are today through the financial depression and prevailing unemployment unable to keep up to their desires and are consequently suffering mental anguish and embarrassment to such a degree that one church in Montreal has abandoned the plan of leaving the collection plate at the entrance door and rather than to pass it in the usual public manner. The value of such contributions is not to be judged by their past record in monetary way but rather from the standpoint of their personality and future possibilities. It behooves those more fortunate to help out the load. Just as in photography so in the present day human existence there is need of time exposure of love and Christian co-operation to mould the fate of nations.

BAY ICE NOW FIVE INCHES

Many Have Shacks Placed to Fish Through Ice

The ice on the bay has now reached a thickness of four to five inches and fishing through the ice is being indulged in both for commercial and recreational purposes. The little fish shacks are dotting the bay over bars and outlets. On Saturday's market, offerings of the finny tribe caught in this manner were for sale. The little pike sold for from 10 cents and 3 for a quarter, up to 15 cents each. A stranger to the waters of the Bay of Quinte or at least, one that is seldom for sale on the market, the ling was also on sale, the specimens running from 2 to 4 pounds in weight, and long by the way, its length compared with its other dimensions is the cause of the name ling—ling for long.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. McKearn's Gas preparation HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. J. S. McKearn's Drug Store says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.

Trade Gains Made in Year, Exports Lowered Imports Greatly Cut

Much Goods Sold to France During Past Year

GRAIN MOVING

Steady Improvement is Shown in Marketing of Production

OTTAWA, Jan. 10. — Substantial increases in exports to France and The Netherlands and a decline of over $263,000,000 in imports from the United States, as against a decline of $167,000,000 in sales to that country, as favorable features of Canada's foreign trade for the twelve months ended November 30 last, as compared with the previous year.

In the year ended November 30, Canada's exports totalled $631,077,-742, a decrease of $296,807,964 from the previous year, while imports amounted to $646,146,525, a decline of $434,360,110 compared with 1930, not only in the relation between imports and exports in the year ended November last, which discloses a close approach to a balancing of trade, but also in the general trend this country's foreign trade situation is slowly but steadily improving.

Exports to the United Kingdoor were $173,196,874, a decrease of over $10,000,000, and imports were $118,-000,000, a decline of over $52,000,000, but showing actually a favorable balance of trade against the United Kingdom of nearly $55,000,000.

Exports to the United States totalled $407,622,000, a decline of $180,000,000, and exports were $263,903,122, a decrease of $263,000,000. The trade position with the United States also shows improvement.

Despite the increased marketing of Canadian wheat on the continent of Europe exports to France in the year ended November 30 totalled $18,038,842, an increase over the previous year of $2,500,000, and sales to The Netherlands totalled $15,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000. In spite of advantageous exchange rates, Belgium made a favorable showing, the total sales nearly $15,000,000, about $1,500,000 less than the previous year. Owing to the continued hostilities in which China and her troops are engaged the sales by the country are considerable, the total for the year ended November being $7,600,000, about $1,000,000 less than those of the previous year, while exports to Japan were $16,600,020, about $7,-000,000 less than in the previous year. Canada's jar-famed liquor exports to Soo Pierre and Miquelon are surviving the stress of these times, the total for the year being about $9,000,000, a decline of only $750,000.

Quebec Importing Less

A division of the foreign trade by provinces shows Ontario's exports as $194,429,653, a decrease of $138,000,-000, and the imports $213,821,317, a decline of nearly $200,000,000. Quebec's share of exports was $215,200,-000, a decrease of only $66,000,000, and the imports $196,250,000, a decrease of over $90,000,000. British Columbia's share of exports was $106,000,000, a decrease of $50,000,-000, and the imports $58,000,000, a decrease of $29,000,000. Nova Scotia's exports were $44,000,000, a decrease of $15,000,000, and the imports $20,-000,000, a decline of $10,000,000. New Brunswick's exports were $47,-000,000, a decline of $10,000,000, and the imports were $17,000,000, a drop of $9,000,000.

PLAN REPAIRS TO CHURCH

Front of Thurlow Ladies' Aid Has Organization Meeting

Front of Thurlow—The annual meeting of Front Road Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 7th at the home of the retiring president, Mrs. W. A. Clarke. Owing to considerable sickness in the neighborhood there was a much smaller attendance than usual, only 12 members being present, but 13 large boxes of good warm clothing were packed ready to be shipped to the needy. One will go to Princess Lake in the north where the Ladies'Aid has previously sent much appreciated supplies, and one to North Bay in response to an appeal from a former resident of the neighborhood who asked for aid for some very needy families in her locality.

The business part of the meeting was then opened by singing "There shall be showers of blessing" followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Miss Bessie Bradshaw read the Scripture reading the 8th Psalm. Then came the Sec. Treas. report showing 37 members on the roll for 1931 which it is hoped will be increased this year. The financial report showed a balance on hand of $111.00 which is to be used toward repairing and redecorating the church this spring. The Ladies' Aid also has in view the building of a kitchen adjoining the church to provide much needed room for social and entertainment.

Election of officers for 1932 then took place resulting in the following:

President—Mrs. E. Snider.

1st Vice President—Mrs. A. Reid

2nd Vice President—Mrs. T. J. Brown.

Secretary Treasurer — Mrs. H. Greatrix.

Stewards Committee—Mrs. H. Greatrix and Miss Doris Reid.

To arrange for flowers for sick—Mrs. N. Brown.

It was decided to change the date of our meetings from the last Thursday to the first Thursday afternoon of each month. Also that a lunch committee be appointed to provide refreshments instead of allowing the hostess to do so as formerly. Mrs. H. Greatrix and Mrs. R. Bell being the committee for next month.

Arrangements were made for some work to be carried on in the New Year and plans are under way for another box soon to be forwarded to a hospital in the northern part of the county where hospital supplies and infants clothing is greatly needed.

At the close of the meeting Mrs.

Fifty in Panic at Fire Awakened Out of Sleep

TORONTO, Jan 11—Fifty persons were thrown into a panic when awakened from their sleep by calls of fire in Ellington Apartments, 50 Gerrard street east, at 4.50 o'clock yesterday morning. When firemen arrived they found women and children clinging to fire escapes, screaming for help; and others still asleep in apartments, unaware of the acrid smoke threatening them, had to be aroused by fire fighters, who shoved open apartment doors to make sure that every one might escape the danger of suffocation.

While members of the aerial crew carried young and old down ladders, firemen, groping through billowing clouds of biting, choking black smoke, carried an elderly woman down the stairs to the street.

The front of the building had all the air of a fashion "pajama parade" as young girls rescued by firemen shivered in their flimsy silk night garments awaiting the completion of arrangements to provide shelter for them in near-by buildings.

Of the innumerable rescues made by Chief Sinclair's brigade only one casualty was reported, and that was of a minor nature, a Mrs. Segar, who became hysterical, ran down the fire escape and fell a distance of about six feet from the landing to the pavement, injuring her hand. She did not require medical attention.

POLICE SYSTEM FOR TOWNS NEAR CITY OF BOSTON

Towns Near Are Facing Many Problems of Police Work

TOO SMALL

Jurisdiction at Present Time is Too Small

Boston, Mass.—A special crime committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, acting on a suggestion of Police Commissioner Gilchman, will soon attempt to devise a metropolitan police system for the handling of crime and embracing cities and towns surrounding Boston.

At present Boston and other cities and towns in the eastern part of the State are facing many problems. The jurisdiction of each community is too small. A thief in a high-powered car slips from one community to another many times before police can get on the trail.

Another problem is that of divided authority. When the road along the Charles River is finished and is turned over to the Metropolitan police there will be a roadway which can be used by crooks as well as honest people in speeding almost from the heart of Boston without passing a foot of ground on which Boston officers have authority.

The committee will also attempt to make business men work in closer co-operation with the police in case of theft, in one instance where goods to the value of some thousands were not told until a year later. Another firm hired a truck driver who stole a false name, ran away and fake references. They failed to check up and a driver of with a truckload containing several thousand dollars worth of merchandise.

The highest railway point in Manitoba is three miles east of Erickson, with elevation 2,163 feet.

A well-known English writer has stated that one of his big importations books brought him no more than $60.

When the action is natural and graceful, it is suprised in a prominent degree.—Dr. Davies.

"NOW we can advertise it"

Products are nearly always put on the market before they are advertised. Quite frequently, changes have to be made in an article before the public generally will accept it. Color, design, flavor—those are some of the things the public has to be consulted about. Sometimes a product won't sell at all and simply has to be discontinued. As soon as people show that they welcome an article and as soon as all refinements and improvements have been added, then you could hear the manufacturer say, if you could be in his office, "Now we can advertise."

When you buy advertised goods, you may know they have gone through the experimental stages. You may be sure that the manufacturer knows they are right and that he is willing to stake his reputation on them. You may be confident that you are buying goods that have sold and that would continue to sell without any advertising at all. For advertising merely lets all of the people know—now—what considerable numbers would find out by word of mouth ten years from now.

Of course, advertising goes a step farther. Word of mouth hardly ever tells all the uses of a product. It often doesn't give the real reasons for its superiority. Advertising tells people all about a product and the numerous ways in which they can use it.

. . . Whatever you buy, therefore, let the advertisements be your guide. When the manufacturer says, "Now we can advertise it," you know that you can safely say, "Now we can buy it."

MR. AND MRS— THE PERFECT WAY TO ADJUST A MUFFLER

But soon the tribe became silent in amazement and expectation. They saw the mighty white-ape wiggle upon the back of their king. With steel muscles tensed beneath the armpits of his antagonist, he bore down mightily with open palms upon the back of the thick, bull-neck. The king-ape shrieked in agony and floundered helplessly about upon the mat of jungle grass.

The little audience of fierce anthropoids heard the creaking of their king's neck mingling with his agonized roarings. Then the bullet-head crumpled forward upon the great, hairy chest. They saw the nevermet place a foot upon the ba . of the figure at his feet and, throwing back his head, give vent to the wild, uncanny challenge of the bull-ape that has made a kill.

Across the jungle rolled the terrible notes of the victory cry. The little monkeys in the tree tops ceased their chattering. The harsh-voiced brilliant-plumed birds were still. From afar came the answering wail of a leopard and the deep roar of a lion. The half-grown ape- now that their king was dead. Tarzan turned questioning eyes upon the beasts. What would their next move be?

One of the younger apes, a huge, splendidly muscled brute, was edging threateningly closer to the ape-man. Through his bared fighting fangs there issued a low sullen growl. Tarzan stood, perfectly still, waiting. He saw the beast was of wondrous proportions, standing over seven feet upon his short bowed legs. With stiff, jerky movements it began circling around the alert ape-man.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 9.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Suddenly it occurred to Tarzan to discover if the language of this tribe was the same as that of his own former ape-family. "Who are you?" he said. "Who threatens Tarzan of the Apes?" The brute addressed looked his surprise. "I am Akut," he replied in the same simple, primal tongue. "I am now king. Go away or I shall kill you. None is so great as Akut."

"Let us be friends," said Tarzan. "You cannot kill Akut," replied the other. "None shall be king but Akut." For answer the ape-man buried himself upon the great brute, who during this conversation had slightly relaxed his vigilance. In the twinkling of an eye the man had seized the great ape's wrist, whirled him about and before the other could grapple leaped upon him.

Down they went together. Slowly Tarzan brought that awful pressure to bear —upon the neck of the beast. "Ka-goda," whispered Tarzan to the ape beneath him. In the language of the apes it meant, "Do you surrender?" Akut thought of the creaking sound he had heard just before Molak, the king's neck had snapped, and, shuddering, he struggled to free himself.

But of a sudden a torturing pressure upon his vertebrae brought an agonized "Ka-goda" from his lips. Tarzan relaxed his grip and Akut rose slowly to his feet. Shaking his bullet-head and growling angrily, he waddled toward his tribe. Presently the whole pack moved off into the jungle, leaving Tarzan, sore from the many wounds inflicted upon him, alone once more upon the beach.

Professor Falls in Love

by Mary Ethel White

Myra was home again. Everybody in the house knew that for the doorbell rang often, the telephone demanded constant attention and the place resounded with youthful voices. But the one most conscious of the difference was Myra's plain sister, Beulah. When Myra was away on her numerous visits the house slept in a quiet that was broken by gaiety only when the bridge club met, and these affairs of deadly concentration could scarcely be called wildly hilarious.

Myra was busy touching up that beauty which accounted for her enviable popularity. Beulah sat on the bed and watched her sister who was candidly recounting the high lights of two weeks at the sea shore. She paused a moment to rummage through her trunk, and finally found what she sought. "Here is Philip Rooney—isn't he marvelous? You'd like him too, Beulah, he's so intelligent, so intellectual, really. I could grasp only a third of his ideas so I just looked passionately interested, and that did just as well."

"I am sure it would," murmured Beulah. "He looks as if he had a lot of sense, and he is older than most of your staff, isn't he?"

Myra's laugh tinkled. "Of course he's older—why, he has written two terrible deep books on psychology or something. He's a college professor, no less. Imagine me.... And there I where you come in, darling, I want you to answer his letters for me. It would take a brain like yours. You are clever, old dear."

Beulah threw the photograph on the bed. "Dont apply the salve so thickly, dear. If I were really clever I'd be having lots of men hanging around me, too," she said bitterly.

"Why—why I never thought you cared about men!"

"The women who don't care about men are six feet under." She picked up the picture again. "I'll write your letters on one condition—you'll have nothing to do with his replies, nor with him—unless he comes here."

Myra could afford to be generous when she was getting her way so she agreed to this unimportant bargain. When Philip did come he would be here more than ever. It bothered her a little, that surprising revelation of Beulhas. She was such a good scout, and if she really wanted a man one must be found for her. Which promptly thought ended her interest in the matter.

The answer to Beulah's first letter was brief but promising.

Dear Myra:

That a girl who looks like you could write like that! I shall answer at length tonight, but I felt I must let you know at once how beautiful your letter was. And I had thought you mentally vapid! A thousand pardons!

PHILIP.

In the letters that followed Philip Rooney enlarged upon this theme. He was amazed at the depth of wisdom of his beloved, he was astonished that she had kept all this from him when they had been together. Even her beauty which he had adored with his whole soul would have proved empty without the mind which makes beauty real and doubly precious. He became so enthusiastic that Beulah, once science-stricken, took all the letters to Myra who slipped over two and declared he was the world's worst bore and couldn't be compared with Bruce. Honestly, now, didn't Beulah think Bruce was marvelous? No, Beulah didn't. And she wanted to know what to do about Philip; this deception was very unfair to him. Myra refused to have him come there, she did not want to be annoyed with disagreeable scenes, and who started all it's, anyhow?

While Beulah was trying to decide what to do, she did not write to Philip. He became worried over her silence.

Late one August afternoon Philip Rooney arrived without word or warning. Myra was out as usual. Beulah had just come home from the library where she worked. With a thumping heart she invited Philip in and served him tool tea and cakes which he accepted absently mindedly in his anxiety to hear about Myra. Beulah made excuses awkwardly. Deftly she turned the conversation on other topics, and gradually Philip relaxed and enjoyed himself.

A burst of laughter and gay chatter filled the hall. In a second Myra, accompanied by her followers, flowed into the room.

"Philip! Imagine you popping in." Myra extended a hand. "You must meet my crowd, and Beulah—we're terribly thirsty."

For a man madly in love, Philip seemed quite content in the presence of his lady. He joined in the general conversation, then as soon as he could he turned to Beulah and asked him to powder your nose now if you are going to keep that dinner engagement with me."

Amazed and curious Beulah left to obey. She put on her prettiest dress, her newest hat and surveyed herself in the mirror thinking that if she were not over-shadowed by the gorgeous Myra people might think her not so bad looking.

Philip turned on to the road which led to the town's nicest roadhouse and got on the best of a lake.

Beulah turned her wondering gaze up at him. He met her look and smiled. "I don't understand at all" she breathed.

Philip slowed the car down. "I knew all the time it was you. I knew you have been uncomfortable about this, but I've known for a long time—a mutual friend enlightened me all unknowingly. You're just as sweet as I thought you'd be. I love you!"

A little scream. "Look where you're driving, do—"

"Not until you tell me you meant all the things you wrote."

"Yes—oh, yes."

And then the college professor stopped right on the side of the road to kiss his girl.

MYSTERY IN RUBBER BUOY

St. Johns, Nfld.—Fishermen who picked up a floating rubber bag, wooden-topped and inscribed "Cold Medal Buoy" are curious as to its use and ownership.

The so-called buoy, a heavy bag 22 inches in length was found four miles off Little Fogo Island on the northeast coast. Its wooden top measures between seven and eight inches in diameter with the inscription on a brass plate fitted into it. Liquid found in the bag smelled and looked like kerosene oil, but was much heavier. The object is royal blue in color, and painted on the side are the initials R. E. and the figure 22.

HORSE MADDENED

Rescuers Prevented From Approaching By Animal

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 11 (CP) — Terribly injured by an infuriated horse, Albert Farr, 60, died in a hospital this morning. John Manning, 68, was killed by the same animal when he tried to rescue Farr late Saturday night.

Manning had bought the horse, a heavy draught animal, recently. Saturday night, Farr entered the stall shortly before his companion to inspect the horse. Instantly the animal struck out with its feet, knocking Farr to the floor. Manning entered the stall in an attempt to rescue his friend but he was kicked and died almost instantly. He fell across Farr's unconscious form and partly protected the latter.

Nearly two hours after the men had been seen entering the stable the trampling of the animal led Frank Corke, a neighbor to investigate. He discovered the dead and injured men and gave an alarm.

Rescuers could not get close enough to remove the two for some time, for the horse was kicking and stamping and it was not until expert horsemen from the police department arrived that the animal could be quieted.

Farr was rushed to a hospital, where doctors operated on him, but he died at eight o'clock this morning.

Toronto, Jan. 11—John Manning, aged 68, of 35 Asquith Avenue, was kicked to death and Albert Farr, aged 52, of 127 Davenport Road, was probably fatally injured by an infuriated heavy draught horse in a stable at the rear of 9 New Street Saturday night. Bruised and battered, the two men lay for hours beneath the drumming hoofs of the Clydesdale, while relatives who had been keeping supper for them pondered over their absence, and failed to connect it with the constant thumping from the near-by stable.

Premonition.

In the death of Manning, there is a premonition fulfilled. Two weeks ago, in conversation with friends, he said: "Well, I've lived with horses all my life, and I'll die with one."

Continued repeated fears held by Mrs. Frank Corke, 121 Davenport Road, expressed to her husband, resulted in his going to the barn and discovering the two men, who had been kicked and stamped by the wild horse. Farr was lying on his face on the runway, back of the horse's stall, while Manning's lifeless body was resting on top of Farr.

Close to Police Station.

Belmont Street Police Station is less than fifty yards from the stable in which the tragedy occurred, and Cork gave an alarm, which brought police, relatives of the two injured men and neighbors to the scene.

The wild tattoo of the horse's iron corked shoes was still being beaten on the battered wooden stall flooring, and so wild was the beast that rescuers could not get close enough to pull the two bodies from fangs of the flying hoofs. Police were about to shoot the horse, when Mounted Constable John Dellow (177) engaged, of the Police Department, and Peter Welsh, 210 Clinton Street, well-known police rider and pioneer of the Western ranches, quieted the animal and led him from the stall into the driveway.

P. C. Dodlow, armed with a hay fork, was endeavoring to drive the highly nervous animal away in front of the stall to afford rescuers a chance of trying to pull the battered bodies from the runway. His efforts were unavailing, when Welsh, making his way up the side of another horse in an adjoining stall, took a piece of iron rod and bending one end of it reached in and grasped the side of the halter strap.

Grazed Halter Strap.

Pulling the horse's head over, he managed to grasp the halter strap, which had been torn from the iron ring on the manger. To this strap a long piece of rope was tied, with which the horse was led up to the head of the stall, and Dodlow, Sergeant E. Horton, Cork and Frank Manning, son of the man killed, were able to drag the bodies clear.

Manning's body was quite cold, and death, Chief Coroner Dr. M. M. Crawford said, had occurred some time previous to the discovery. Farr was unconscious and still bleeding. Dr. Crawford had a police ambulance rush Farr to the General Hospital. He has a triple fracture of the skull and internal injuries, and little hope was held out for Farr's recovery last night.

Sudden Weather Change Sent Folk Back Into Houses

Thermometer Registers Three Above Zero With Biting Wind

SKY IS BRIGHT

An icy, northeast wind settled down over the district early last evening, drove people indoors and sent temperatures scurrying down to new low levels. Throughout the night its chilling breath could be felt, and with the arrival of morning the mercury could be seen hovering at zero — three degrees above at seven o'clock, to be exact. Where the full force of the wind could be felt this mark seemed lower than that owing to the peculiarly penetrating quality and the fact that it was such a sudden change from the April-like weather this district has been experiencing for the past week.

On all the windows of homes and stores throughout the city Jack Frost has drawn his fantastic and delicate tracery, and furnaces which have been allowed to merely coast along for weeks are now being fired up full blast. Coal dealers early this morning have been receiving calls with urgent requests to have the loads delivered sometime in the morning. On the Moira river a heavy fog rolls up from the warmer water to be biting air above it, and great masses of anchor ice are starting, floating down to meet the bay, which is again thickening the somewhat rotten ice the warmer weather and the light are softened. A few car owners were caught napping with radiators carrying a weakened solution of anti-freeze, and garage corners have reported sales once again in such volume, that extra supplies have had to be ordered. With the promise of ice of snow although the sun is again shining as bright as ever, and the wind still keeps up, it looks as if after all there will be some winter before Spring officially sets in. This colder weather is expected also to materially increase the amount of sickness and common colds, that have been so prevalent the past few days.

MANY BARGAINS AT HOTEL AUCTIONS

Montreal, Que. (B The Canadian Press)—Most men are spoiled by the use of domesticity, declared an observer who watched a sale of articles and laundry left in a leading hotel for three months.

The aggrievance of the last is explained not by a widespread desire among hotel guests to get out of paying their bills, but, men accustomed as they are to finding their laundry returned in some mysterious fashion fresh and clean to their bureau drawers, they send stuff out and leave the hotel before it returns bleaching confident that all will be well as usual. Among the buys made at the auction was a dilapidated club bag, bought for slightly under $1, in the hope that it would contain something worthwhile. But to the purchaser's great disappointment all it held was a broken statue—a mixture of the Venus de Milo. Another purchaser more fortunate got a solid leather club bag with flannel dressing gowns, curling irons, a tin of sardines, two pairs of socks, three shirts and a tooth-brush—all for $2.

Delegates Make Real Progress

Agreement Will Be Submitted to Respective Governments

Honolulu, Jan. 11—Agreement on numerous matters affecting trade relations between Canada and New Zealand have been announced by representatives of those countries who withheld details.

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Hon. William Downie Stewart, Minister of Finance and Customs of New Zealand, said they had made considerable progress since their conferences began here on December 26th.

Both ministers said the agreement would be submitted to their respective governments for concurrence on their return from Honolulu, and then it would require ratification by the parliaments of the two Dominions.

THIS CLERGYMAN IS ACTIVE WORKER AND BICYCLIST AT 93

A correspondent of the British Weekly tells of Rev. Frederick Hastings of Eastbourne who at the age of 93 may safely be acclaimed as the oldest active bicyclist in Great Britain. Mr. Hastings is still able to preach twice each Sunday. The same correspondent tells of 9 other bicyclists who are more than 80 years old and under 70; 20 are 70 or over and under 80 and 3 are 80 or more years old, amongst them being Mr. Albert Arthur Carter, a Bristol evangelist, who will be 89 next March. Among Britain's oldest cyclists the same correspondent mentions a remarkable Yorkshire woman who at the age of 95 continues to cycle her two miles a day, but, as her machine is a tricycle, he does not consider that she should be classed with the others.

All of these Veteran Cyclists, says the British Weekly, will agree with Professor J. B. S. Haldane, the famous biologist, who writes that "for the business man who has no time nor, perhaps, inclination for exercise a short ride on a cycle ride is the ideal solution to this problem of keeping fit"; and when he adds that "many of our ills of civilized life would be cured if the invalids' would take up cycling."

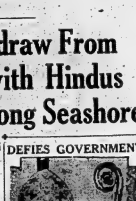
DEALER FACES ATTEMPTED ARSON CHARGE

Nationalists Struggle with Police at Bombay

Police Withdraw From Conflict with Hindus In Riot Along Seashore

Natives Fight Back Until Dispersed But Return to Fray

QUIET AT NIGHT



Natives at Bombay Patrol Throughout The City

Bombay, India, Jan. 12— (AP)— Several hundred Nationalists defying the law against public meetings, held a gathering along the sea shore this afternoon and clashed with the police. The officers used long sticks in the first rush of charges but finally, with a view to averting more serious disorders, the police withdrew.

When the charges were made the natives fought back until they were dispersed, but they returned to the fray each time. When darkness came the police retired. The natives then raised one more party and their speakers harangued the crowds urging them never to rest until Gandhi was set free.

The natives then paraded through the city, shouting taunts as they marched past the police station. The police did not interfere although during the day they had arrested 46, including 30 in one batch.

The police have refrained from enforcing the strict terms of the new ordinances forbidding political meetings and the picketing of stores.

DEFIES GOVERNMENT

Hurling open defiance at the new government edict limiting the number of clergymen who may function in the Federal District to one for every 50,000 inhabitants, Archbishop Pascual Diaz, Primate of the Roman Catholic Church in Mexico, has issued orders to his flock to ignore the new law. In practice the edict would close 219 of Mexico's 244 Catholic churches.

WM. EXLEY HAS THIGH BROKEN HIT BY MOTOR

Driver Allowed to Proceed After Accident on Street

UNAWARE OF CAR

Brakes Applied By Driver Cannot Prevent Accident

While attempting to cross the road almost in front of his place of employment, Mr. William Exley, Inspector for the Liquor Control Board of Ontario was knocked down by an auto early this afternoon, driven by Mr. James Robertson, salesman, who resides in Kingston. An ambulance was at once summoned and the injured man was removed to the Belleville General Hospital where Dr. J. A. Faulkner, assisted by Dr. Gibson, attended him. A broken right thigh bone was at once reduced and severe lacerations of the scalp and hand were also treated.

Mr. Robertson at once reported to the police station where he was questioned at some length, but as it is understood that no particular blame could be attached to the driver he was allowed to go after the report had been made out. It is understood that Mr. Exley, who is employed at the office of the Budweiser Brewing Company, was attempting to cross immediately in front of the building and was unaware of the car, which was approaching. The driver immediately put on his brakes when it was observed that there was likelihood of there being an accident but a stop could not be made in time and Mr. Exley was struck quite heavily. The accident was witnessed by several bystanders who at once rendered what aid they could.

Police Discover Burning Candle Set in Papers and Rags in Shop

Flame Within Half Inch of Papers Hidden Between Partitions

FIND FORTUNATE

Veterans' Memorial Home is Endangered But For Officer

Discovery by Police Constable Fred Isaard of a wax candle burning among papers and rags and between two partitions in the feed store of Richard James, Smith 189 Front St., last night at 9.10 o'clock undoubtedly prevented a conflagration which might have destroyed the Veterans' Building and menaced the lives of the caretaker and about twenty-five or more member of the Legion Auxiliary who were holding its annual installation of officers until about eleven o'clock and also the night man and up to as many as twenty-two transients which slept overnight in the basement of the building now known as the home for wayfarers.

The candle was burning within an inch of the paper on which it seemed to rest and if it had not been discovered would have burned down to the paper within half an hour or so according to the police.

Proprietor Arrested

The arrest of the proprietor of the store R. J. Smith, aged 63 years, followed on Queen Street, shortly after ten o'clock as he was walking north. Inquiry had been made at his home on St. Paul Street earlier in the night after the discovery of the candle, but he was not at home at the time. According to the information he gave the police he left the shop shortly after eight o'clock.

Smith has retained Mr. John O'Flynn to defend him. The charge is that he "did attempt to set fire to the premises situated at 189 Front Street, Belleville, contrary to the criminal code." He was arraigned before Magistrate Mikel in court at ten o'clock this morning and remanded for one week. At noon today Crown Attorney Donnan, after an inspection of the premises with Deputy Fire Marshal Jordan, who had been summoned from Toronto last night, set the bail he told Mr. O'Flynn, at ten thousand dollars. Bail was arranged this afternoon.

Mr. Smith was not asked to plead today.

Previous Fire

This is the second time that fire has been discovered in this building. A couple of months ago a bag was found blazing within a few feet of where this candle was found across the passage. On that occasion it is said the fire broke through the flooring, but the fire was put out without difficulty.

The stock of feed and flour which Mr. Smith carries is a small accord-

SAFEGUARD FOR BURMA IS BRITISH VIEW

Burmese Round Table Parley Brought to Close

OUTLINE GIVEN

Prem. MacDonald Urges Need of Firm Foundations

(By George Hamilton)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Jan. 12.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today offered Burma self-government, but a self-government less than offered India, tempered with safeguards.

As in the Old Palace of St. James, the Prime Minister today brought the Burma round-table conference to a close, he urged the need of laying the foundations of the new structure securely and well.

"Take as much as is necessary to give your constitution a stamp," he pleaded. "Take as much as necessary. The great fabric of British Liberty has not been built up by putting the roof on first never in history has a people attempted to one leap its conception of what it ought to be and where it ought to be.

The sun streamed through the great windows of Queen Anne's drawing room, lighting the rose hangings with streaks of gold. The brightly colored robes of Burma mingled with the more sombre coats. Miss May Oung, Burma's one woman delegate, sat near the head of the table airily smoking a cigarette. With a smile she hid it beneath the table as the camera shutters snapped.

Burma will be separated from India if separation is approved by the Burmese people.

CAR STOPPING NOT BY O.P.P.

Denial Given Story Published in Outside Press in This Regard

John E. Smith, the young Toronto man, who was arrested at Montreal recently charged with having held up and robbed two men in Oshawa and also with stealing their car and later holding up and robbing a druggist in the same town on Wednesday night last, is reported in the press to have said that in making his 'get-away' he was held up eight times by guards from Portsmouth penitentiary and provincial police officers in the Belleville district, who were searching for Gordon Calvert, the escaped convict from the penitentiary.

District Inspector Loughead of the Belleville district office of the Ontario Provincial Police states that there were no provincial police on the highway stopping cars — that they were otherwise engaged in working on the Calvert escape and that Smith must have taken the Preferred Class prison guards from Collins' Bay for provincial constables. This might easily have been done, the Inspector says, as the Preferred Class guards were dressed in blue uniforms with red stripes on the trousers.

SENTENCED TO DEATH FOR ATTACK ON WHITE GIRLS

Great interest has been aroused by the trial at Scottsboro, Ala., of the nine negroes shown above on a charge of criminally attacking two white girls. Eight of the negroes were sentenced to death, but the cases have been appealed, it being alleged that the charges against the condemned men were prompted by labor disturbances. Social workers and negro leaders are actively interesting themselves in the appeal which is scheduled for hearing in the Supreme Court of the United States on January 18. TASTE CRITIC IS CONFOUNDED

Water Not Tasting of Chlorine, Water Works Manager States

A recent explanation by Mr. E. T. Austin regarding the present taste of the city water, which was thought by some to have been an overdose of chlorine at the plant, but was given by Mr. Austin as caused by an excess of vegetable matter in the water, with point of origin in Lake Simcoe, and which was driven down from that lake into the Bay of Quinte by warm weather some time ago, has not been accepted by some who claim that the taste is peculiar to chlorine alone. However, this is not so, according to Mr. Austin, who was again asked yesterday, and is caused solely by the marine matter, as explained.

"It is not a local condition," explained Mr. Austin, "but is a provincial one which has been attracting the attention of the Provincial Department of Health, under the supervision of Mr. Dewey, provincial sanitary engineer, who is using Belle Ville as one of the focal points of his investigation. Further information will be forthcoming from him soon and will be made public as soon as received. And as far as bacteria is concerned, the water is safe as it has always been."

Mr. Austin has been working in conjunction with Mr. Frederick Dewey Berry of the Department of Health, as well as the firm of Gore, Nasmith and Storrie, who designed this plant and since operations have commenced, have been supervising its control in the matter of proportions of chemicals necessary for treatment of the raw water, when received. They have constantly advised in all matters pertaining to these treatments the water has undergone, and are conceded to be national experts in all matters pertaining to water control.

James G. Shepard Not Guilty of Issuing False Prospectus

Judge Deroche Hands Down Judgment on Saturday

LENGTHY DETAIL

Find Testimonials Are For Brick Made and Not Company.

On Saturday His Honor Judge Deroche gave judgment in the case of the King's Bench vs. G. Shepard charged with circulating or publishing a prospectus, which he knew to be false. The case has created considerable interest in the district and much evidence was adduced by N. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney and H. E. Hourse, counsel for the defense. His Honor found the accused not guilty and followed is the text of his judgment.

This man is charged under Section 414 of the Criminal Code that being a director and manager of the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company, Limited, did make, circulate or publish or concur in making, circulating or publishing a prospectus which he knew to be false in a material particular with intent to induce persons to become shareholders of the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company, Limited.

The accused admits that he was a director and manager of the company and did circulate or publish the prospectus in question.

Was the prospectus false in a material particular to the knowledge of the accused, and did he circulate the false statement with intent to induce?

He was first employed as manager of the West Lake Brick Company at a salary of $3,000 a year and with the idea, he says, of moving the plant from the Sand Banks to Wellington. A distance of about seven miles. There seemed to be two reasons for the proposed move, the cost of hauling to and from the railway, and because the Sand Banks were encroaching upon the plant, the site having since been buried by the sand.

About this time the accused offered to buy the plant good-will and sand rights from the West Lake Company, which he did, forming a limited partnership for the purpose, the latter the partnership in his mind was always to be considered as a starter, looking toward an incorporated company. Later the partnership was changed to the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company. Shepard continued as manager of the partnership and also of the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company.

From the beginning of operations of the West Lake plant Shepard ran through the partnership and from to time as general representative of the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company. Improvement was made with some improvements in the machinery. Orders from time to time, the same as brick was manufactured, the same ingredients and made by the same process, and under the direct personal supervision and management of the accused Shepard from the time he first became associated with the West Lake Company.

It is the prosecution's duty by him of the Wellington Marbelite Brick Company, which is another distinction. All the officers and directors of the company were now called as witnesses expressed considerable surprise, the accused, both as to business ability and integrity. Several very respectable citizens also gave evidence as to the reputation for honesty borne by the accused, with no evidence to the contrary, I think, therefore, I should scan very carefully the suggestion of dishonesty, for, if the accused made false statements in the prospectus believing them to be false and with the intention of inducing people to invest on the strength of those false statements, then he is not honest.

With the exception of a few months the salary of $300 a month was continued through the three organizations to date. During the time of his arrest, being paid him irregularly, but $300 was paid him still owing to him at that time.

The Crown admits that:

1.—That the picture of the plant in the first page of the prospectus is false, but, it is said, does not discuss this in detail; it was practically accurate when the picture was sent. The fact is that the plant is now much improved over that shown in the picture, and there is a good looking false in the picture.

2.—That the statement: "No promotion stock is being issued to any person" is false, the Crown again claiming this to be false is the fact that the partnership was changed to the present incorporation and the shareholders of the partnership were allotted to choose between one share of preferred or five shares of common. The fact is that they have put before the public in the agreement, I do not think this is "promotion stock." Quoting from Chitty's Contracts, Chief Justice Cockburn defined a promoter to be "One who undertakes to form a company with reference to a given project and to set it going and who takes the necessary steps to accomplish that purpose." Shepard performed and promoted the partnership and he alone had the idea at that time of ultimately converting it into an incorporated company, and he alone did promote the new present company. He received nothing as promotion stock. The shareholders of the partnership really sold out their shares to the present company for certain shares in the new company. They had nothing to do as such shareholders, with promoting the new company, and I think the statement in the prospectus to be true, and in any event Shepard certainly believed it to be true.

3.—That the statement "Hundreds of thousands of these brick have been manufactured from this sand which are now standing in buildings in different parts of the country and which have proven satisfactory in every respect" was false.

"These" brick means marbelite brick; that is the kind of brick the present company is making. It is called marbelite because it resembles marble. There are hundreds of thousands of these marbelite brick that have been manufactured from this sand, part by the West Lake Company, part by the partnership and now to be continued by the present company. I think when the accused made this statement in the prospectus he did so merely to satisfy prospective purchasers of stock that the brick they were to manufacture in the future would not be a new, untried thing, but something that was favorably known, which was true.

4.—That the statement "past operations have shown that the present plant is capable of earning at least $200 per day, operating at a production of 40,000 bricks per day and based on 40 week producing days each year" was false. This statement, I think, refers to the plant being tested out to the amount stated. It was manufacturing more brick than this, the accused, when he sold stock originally, apparently made it clear that the plant was not now producing that amount, but with sufficient capital would be in a position to produce that amount and with sufficient capital would be able to earn

Trend Upwards in 1932 Says Babson Official Average Up Over 1931

Signs Point Way to Briefer Depression Than Many

1931 VERY SEVERE

Shoe Retailers' Association Told of Present Outlook

Toronto, Jan. 12.—Indications on the 1932 horizon of Canadian commerce and finance justify confidence that the year will average, despite temporary fluctuations, distinctly better than last year, with a moderate though definite uptrend as the net result of the country's activity, Creighton J. Hill, in charge of Canadian studies for the Babson statistical organization, asserted at the convention in the Royal York Hotel yesterday of the National Shoe Retailers' Association of Canada.

Business trend notes, improved purchasing power in the agricultural sections, a very low wholesale commodity price, better sales volumes in most lines and a reversal in a number of the basic industries were, some of the trends Mr. Hill believed could be regarded as probable before the end of the year. He cited reasons for believing that "bonds would rarely from its heights of April, and stocks have strong upward moves in the coming year."

Bible Teaching in School Urged

Barrie, Jan. 12.—"We make a tremendous mistake in not teaching our children the Bible," said Major W. N. Knowles, School Trustee, at the Board of Education meeting. "It is the one foundation for English language and is the finest educational book we have. The stories and rads today are only murdering the English language, and if we don't study the trouble, we'll soon have no language."

Business Before Summer

Mr. Hill thought general unemployment would be most severely in the next two months, but a pickup in employment would develop before Summer. Strikes would develop as ways of meeting the building industry came up for readjustment, but Mr. Hill thought were no serious labor troubles on the horizon.

"In fact, the difficulties of this year, if any, will be diminished instead of increased in severity," Mr. Hill declared. "Members of every organization in business will generally are sick and tired of the tedious repetition of meetings on the part of Government officials, business leaders, economists and experts that the upturn of business is just ahead. You may recall, however, that the Babson chart is based on the law of action and reaction, applied to economics just as it is applied to physics or mechanics.

"The broad principle is that the volume and extent of an era of prosperity sooner or later must be equalled by an area of readjustment before the normal line of progress. It is impossible to forecast when an era of prosperity will end, but it is possible to estimate approximately the intensity of a subnormal period.

"If this principle is correct dragging along for two and a half years with business some 25 to 30 per cent. below normal, and securities and commodities still declining after they should, I would say we were in for two or three years more of declining business. On the contrary this depression has been unusually severe, with the business index showing 22 per cent. below normal, and stocks, wholesale commodities at extremely low levels.

To be Where Rapid

"The intensity of the depression now should suggest a relatively rapid sweeping out of the remainder of the depression than most people anticipate. This depression has already continued for 18 very intensely, over one-half of the readjustment having from the preceding overexpansion.

Mr. Hill advised Canadian business men to 'refuse to be licked, sawwood, protect and develop your own markets."

The report of the association secretary, Maurice S. Haugham, voiced a warning him to independent retailers against paternity agitation for special taxes and signalar legislation in favor of the existing chain store competition.

"If it can be proved that chain stores do not pay their fair quota of taxation, or that they do not use of business done by them, in comparison to other avenues of retail distribution, then a case can be made out, then a case can be successfully argued for their curtailment, or the demand for it rests entirely upon sentiment. In either contingency, there is little or no hope that legislative action will be secured, if it were secured, it is very debatable that its value such action would be to those demanding it."

FIVE FIREMEN ARE GASSED

Fire Started In Basement of Calhoun Hat Shop in Toronto

Toronto, Jan. 12 (By The Canadian Press)—Five firemen were temporarily asphyxiated while fighting a difficult blaze at the Calhoun Hat Shop on Yonge street here Monday. The shop situated on the ground floor of a three-storey building was estimated at $6,000. Traffic was completely stopped at the fire district for some hours.

The blaze is attributed to the difficulties of the firemen. The blaze apparently started in the basement of the building but the greasy smoke rolled out in clouds, preventing the firemen from seeing smoke masks.

Five women, patrons of a hair dressing establishment nearby, became panicky when the fire filled their hair still in unfinished stages of treatment.

The stock of the hat store was practically ruined. Burgers candy shop, next door, suffered heavily from smoke. Martin's restaurant, J. B. Knox and Talbot Shoe Company also sustained smoke damage.

ALL-CANADIAN ROUTE URGED AT RAIL PROBE

Exporting Through Foreign Channels Has Been Attacked

MARITIMES' PLEA

Joint Operation of Terminal Railway Facilities Suggested

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 3—Movement of this country's goods for export through foreign channels was termed "un-Canadian" in the submissions made to the Royal Commission on transportation Monday afternoon by R. E. Smith, K.C., M.P., for the transportation commission of the Maritime Board of Trade, representing the case for the greatest possible development on an "east and west trade axis." The problem of understandings entered into at the time of Confederation was restated from time to time from that day to the present, Mr. Smith said, in order to suggest approaches to the problem of reducing the operating costs and increasing traffic, from the broad Canadian point of view.

In this connection, the commission recommended efforts on the part of the railways to get Canadian shippers in respect to the use of Canadian transportation channels, expressed the belief that joint operation of terminal railway facilities would materially reduce expenses, felt that the commission's duty to guide the Board of Railway Commissioners' position in its studies, especially in regard to the expansion of powers recommended by the Duncan Commission.

It was further stated that it was often necessary for railways to raise capital outlay to cut operating expenses. The commission, Mr. Smith's submission suggested a study of rail and operating expenses as far as Sydney and Quebec, a survey at the Strait of Canso to determine the advantages of a railway bridge; a study of the use of the transcontinental from Joffre, Que. to Pacific Junction, N.B., for the handling of Canadian and export observation of the N.T.R. from Winnipeg to Moncton as a potential competitor of the all-water route.

Obliteration of the identity of the Intercolonial as a unit and the new form of management were termed a matter of vital interest to the people of the Maritime Provinces, and one which, by reputation at least, great this commission might take into consideration."

Pen Picture of Capture of Fugitive in Northern Shack

Description of Country Where Calvert is Taken

A quietness lay in the air of that north country, broken only by the faraway chitterings of a scolding whiskyjack or some jay, possibly who had invaded his piney domicile—and a single snowflake circled aimlessly down from a sky that had been pregnant with snow for days on end. Now it was turning to a steely blue that denoted the coming of night, and the cold was disquieting to wane.

The snowflake ceased his scolding as the invader flew off, and in turn came the rustle as a cold, north breese flowed through the bere branches of a solitary elm which reared gaunt to the sky, crept through the miles of rolling hills, swept over the stunted pines and beat itself out against the towering cliffs lining the western shore of an ice-locked lake—Long Lake, some sixty miles north east or Belleville as the crow flies, and one of many which dot that brooding country.

You stand on the high bank of that lake and look over miles and miles of rolling hills and more miles of solidly packed evergreen trees. You'll see other lakes like white splashes in a green and brown country, and perhaps a long eared hare or bobbing across one of the faint trails ahead of you, or maybe a gray crow stepping daintily out of the fringe of a nearby thicket, bread in and mouthful, distastefully sniffing suspiciously the air currents which carry their warnings to the wild. It is that kind of a country.

On the other side of the lake, set some distance back in a little clearing which is once more beginning to revert back to the influences of the wilderness about it, stands a small shack and the man, Ernie Whennen, is busy by wiping and and a guide and fire ranger in the summer months, now he was trapping to augment the expenses of the leisurely and simple life he led. It was a quiet life he lived back there in those hills he knew so well and it was one in which a visitor or an attendant excitement he might expect to have. He had been situated in some spot other than that one where he had chosen his lot. Such excitement he might have would come with the coming of such a moose battle another moose during the mating season, or see a bear or two, now he was getting ashead of him—or it might come through a hunt after some rare specimen of animal whose skin would be worth more value than all the other pelts of fox or anything else his might trap all season —pine marten, for example, that might have seen in a lofty fir some distance away.

Outside however there was another "guest" going on at that time even he had heard of away back where he was, and which had been going on for over the seasons with a police officer just an hour or so ago. It was a man hunt; the biggest game the 'country could pro-ver", he stated simply.

Quebec, Jan. -12 —A tax of five percent. on all meals served in dining rooms, cafeterias and other eleamships is one method the Quebec Government proposes to increase its revenue, it was shown when the Legislative Assembly resumed after the Christmas holidays.

Other taxation adjustments include an increase in the amusement tax now standing at ten per cent., and an amendment to the Quebec Succession Duties Act, Premier L. A. Taschereau announced. The amount of the increase in the amusement tax and details of the change in succession duties were not revealed pending formal presentation of the legislation.

Up to now a tax of five per cent on meals of one dollar or over has been in force. Under the new plan all meals will be taxed the five per cent. being collected from gross returns of the restaurants. The Premier explained that revenue from the five per cent had fallen by the amount of $100,000.

BLIZZARD IN WEST CAUSES MANY LOSES

One Storm Hits Saskatchewan, and Manitoba

WIRES BROKEN

Alberta Storm Blocks Highways and Delays Trains

Calgary, Jan. 12. — Spreading across the whole of Alberta and extending far into British Columbia's mountain ranges, a snowstorm and high wind Monday brought havoc to telegraph services, piled drifts in valleys and interfered with railway services. It was the worst storm of the winter, but tonight the wind was dying down and the snowfall became less severe.

The west reached its greatest velocity in the Meridene Hat district in Alberta, where the Meteorological Station registered a velocity of fifty miles an hour. Like conditions in Southern Alberta and around Calgary the wind touched between thirty and forty miles an hour. In the mountains, the wind was not quite so severe, but the snow, driving with temperatures well above zero, clung to wires, and, in places, snapped them.

Between Jasper, Alta., and points east of Kamloops, B.C., the wet snow disrupted Canadian National Telegraph services, while on the Canadian Pacific Telegraph lines the storm's heaviest toll was done midway between Lake Louise, Alta., and Revelstoke, B.C. Repair gangs are at work along both services.

Latest reports to telegraph officials were that the storm was subsiding. In Calgary, the snowstorm reached blizzard proportions in the afternoon, but tonight the cars were to go through. At Quebec Premier L. A. Taschereau told the Canadian Press he had not yet been approached to call the session.

Soviet Offers Canada Coal for Aluminum Ottawa Unfavorable

Negotiations Have Been in Progress Over Metal Purchase

PART CASH OFFER

$2,000,000 of Coal Would Have to Be Brought Here

OTTAWA, Jan. 12—Approval of the proposed transaction whereby the Soviet Republic will place an order for Canadian aluminum in return for an order for Russian coal is not considered probable for the reason that the proposed transaction conflicts with government policy. The cabinet decided about a year ago to prohibit the importation of Russian goods into Canada, and while the position has been modified to the extent that raw furs may be imported, the government has no intention of rescinding the embargo on other products from the Soviet Republic.

Montreal, Jan. 12.—The Russian government is anxious to buy $5.1 000,000 worth of aluminum in Canada, paying for it partly in coal and partly in cash, the Montreal Star said in an item story.

"Negotiations are in progress," Roger E. Pygott of Montreal, vice-president of the Aluminum Company of Canada, stated when asked if his company would comment upon the reported deal. Mr. Powell said he could only amplify the statement.

The Star stated that the proposal had been placed before the Canadian government, and arrangements were being made to bring it before the Dominion government, which would have to remove an embargo against Russian products if the deal were to go through. At Quebec Premier L. A. Taschereau told the Canadian Press he had not yet been approached to call the session.

"The terms of the offer," the Star stated, "are understood to be acceptance by the aluminum interests of $2,000,000 worth of Russian coal in exchange, the balance to be paid in gold or upon credit terms agreeable to the Canadian companies."

The paper adds the Russian end of the negotiations is being handled by Amtorg, Soviet official trading agency in New York. Amtorg officials declined to comment.

Cleveland, Jan. 12.—Revival of steam power for aeroplanes will be definitely started in Cleveland within the next thirty days.

Captain H. C. Richardson, the technical director of the Great Lakes Corporation, where steam power for aeroplanes is being developed, said preliminary designs have been completed and that the designs of the new plant started.

Two Strad Violins May Be Secured for Canada

New York, Jan. 12 —Canada within, the near future, may secure possession of four of the most treasured musical instruments in the world. Two violins, a cello and a viola, valued at more than a quarter of a million dollars, and which are considered among the finest works of Antonio Stradivari are on sale here. The instruments were brought to this country by Emil Herman, noted expert of Berlin. They were owned by the Philharmonic Mendelssohn family of the Circus Capital. At present a resident of Montreal Mendelssohn, the instruments were loaned to the Hart House Quartet, members of the University of Toronto, during their visit to this country. Last night the quartet entertained the Canadian Club, more than 2,000 musicians patrons attended, including many distinguished Canadians. Following the performance a distinguished Canadian voiced the suggestion efforts should be made to secure the instruments and place them in a Canadian institution for use by any Canadian musician in the Dominion. The movement is reported to have been with a good reception by a number of the patrons of the Arts in Canada and is considered quite within the bounds of possibility that the eighteenth century masterpieces will find a permanent home in the Dominion. One of the violins is called which the Hart House quartet will use in their first official appearance here on Jan. 14 is a violin which formerly belonged to the famous Paganini. There are only 13 Strad violas in existence, and this one is valued at $75,000. It is of the noted violinists most suitable period—1721. The Strad in one time belonged to Pawle, a wealthy British amateur. One of the violins was formerly the property of Professor Hallis, and the second violinist of Joachim The second violin was once owned by Prince Rimsnicki.

100 MACHINE GUNS ON TAXIS

Stees of Santiago, Chile, Protected as Strike

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 11. (AP)—Machine guns were mounted on a fleet of 100 taxicabs today by the Confederation of Workers Union of the Chilean State Railways, to retaliate should strike-breaking employees in Santiago, were ordered out on strike.

Santiago bus men also decided not to operate for fear of reprisals, although they threatened to do so if the strike.

Members of the street car employees said they expected their colleagues in other cities in the country would be out on strike by noon.

Conferences were scheduled to meet during the day on the Bookvard Alemeda, and the government made preparations for anything that might happen. The fleet of taxicabs is requisitioned by officials and a machine gun placed in each. Each gun manned by four carbineers and the fleet was started out through the streets by dawn. Early the government orders to break up all street demonstrations and dip early exigencies of trouble in the bud.

SERVED 61 YEARS WITH ONE FIRM

Montreal, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—Sixty-seven years with one firm is the record of perhaps the oldest sheet metal worker in this city, Charles Spinard, who commenced his time as an apprentice at the age of 12 years with a local stove company.

Mr. Spinard was honored at two special "long service" functions, one an anniversary commemorating his sixty-seventh and the other a party of faithful service. On May 24, he will be eighty four years of age. He entered the company in 1863 and has been retired at his own request.

MARTIAL LAW BOMB SEQUEL

Wife of Attorney Wounded By Bomb Explosion in Santiago, Cuba

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Jan. 11.—Martial law was declared today after the explosion of five bombs, one of them probably fatal, which wounded the wife of Dr. Rafael Stenger, prosecuting attorney of the Oriente Province Court of Appeals.

The bombs followed scattered firing throughout this city late last night as students and workmen held demonstrations on the third anniversary of the slaying in Mexico City of Julio Antonio Mella, Cuban Communist student. A number of small bombs exploded harmlessly in the earlier demonstrations.

The bomb which injured Senora Stenger was thrown against the prosecutor's home. Others struck the residence, the theatre, and a section of Vista Alegre, a suburb.

CONSIDERATION

A Montreal church according to a speaker who visited Belleville on Sunday does not pass the collection plates any more but places them at the door because of the fact that the depression has made such a shrinkage in incomes and dividends as to make many former generous givers feel uncomfortable.

The church is ever thoughtful and rightly so. It would be a pity were men who feel the need of spiritual encouragement to be held from attendance at church service because there have felt the pinch of hard times and are not able to give generously as they did in former years. It is realized that such men would give if they could and so the placing of the plate outside the auditorium may eliminate the feeling such might have that the small gifsings or lack of givings would attract the attention of others.

People who are willing to go to church and ready to give over many things must be encouraged to maintain their attendance, for they can ill be allowed to drop out of the membership and attendance at worship. They feel the situation more keenly undoubtedly than others do.

PRANKS OF FATE

Fate does play queer pranks sometimes. For instance the case of the train wreck near Moscow last week when a passenger train halting at a switch to cross over the first life by a train from the rear then by another rear end crash and finally a freight tore alongside the wrecked train on the parallel track and ploughed its way through the debris and the injured before it was realized what was taking place.

In connection with the same disaster news was withheld for some days by the Government.

WEATHER UPSET

January this year like December and November has upset the weather apple cart. There have been days of early spring except that there is less snow. Never had the sun shone so brightly as it has during the past week. Open rivers and streams suggest the most unusual winter-time within memory.

SAMPLES OF CANADA

A sample of Canada in little is making its way south to the British West Indies with the products of Canada for the people of the Indies to inspect. There are sixty exhibits of varying sizes. Speaking of the relationship of Canada and the B. W. I. to the Empire Mr. Bennett says:—

"The products of each are complementary to those of the other and are not competitive. The competition which Canadian products meet in the Carribbean comes from other countries. Our trade treaty with the British West Indies gives our products a substantial preference over others, and the visit of the New Northland will add to the material touch so necessary in the promotion of trade. Statistics for 1929, the last year for which they are available, show that of the $100,000,000 of total imports the United Kingdom supplied $35,000,000; the United States $21,000,000 and Canada $21,000,000. These figures indicate that there is room for considerable increase if Canada's exports to the West Indies, and with the cruise of the good-will ship should be of great assistance in that direction."

ACCEPTED GERMAN VIEW

Acceptance of the report by Chairman Benedicue of the Young Plan Advisory committee by the Bank of International Settlements at Basle that Germany is unable to meet the obligations through reparations on Monday when money was again advanced to Germany to settle other matters quickly to a head. This means the admission of the contention that Germany cannot pay. Under these conditions Germany cannot go on as they have been doing. The time has come for a decision.

There is no obstacle in the way appears to be the approaching election which is engrossing the attention of the politicians of the United States.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that cancellation or a scaling down of the reparations and other debts is the only sensible program to adopt in the present crisis.

Canada has a happy faculty of creating a favorable impression upon the newcomers with its possibilities. Northern Europeans find here things to test their mettle with a fair reward of earnest labor.

The winter is being tested right now, or at least people are putting the test to winter. Will he become warm after the present dip or will the mercury go down still lower?

If it does become warm will this signify a mild winter with the ice king able to do very little zero weather?

If it becomes colder will the mild weather prophets still go on predicting the state of the temperature and the possibilities of rain, sleet and snow?

Both are being tested, it seems.

MOONLIGHT NIGHT
By Aline Michaelis

Alone I went; lone, lone the world
When day her shining banners furled
The shades crept up, unfolding me.
Alone I heard the whispering sea,
The dreaming seas that tossed and sighed,
White arms upflung, unsatisfied!

Alone I wandered through the dark
Until the hushed sea murmured "Hark!"
And, at a strange wind's clarion call
I saw the thick cloud-draperies fall
And suddenly, across the night,
Artemis racing, silver-white!

Artemis racing, lithe and fleet,
The pale clouds dragging at her feet!
The world no longer, then, was lone,
No longer did the dark seem moan.
Before her grace all doubting died.
The sea and I were satisfied!

"SCHOOLBOY HOWLERS" are always funny, when the immature mind groping for an answer and finding none which seems to fit determines to make an answer anyway, with amusing results. Similarly typographical errors in newspapers are sometimes very funny to the reader but the reverse to the newspaper publisher. A book has just been published containing a number of "howlers" noted in newspapers. Here's one or two as examples from U.S.A. papers:

"By an unfortunate typographical error we were made to say on Tuesday that the departing Mr. was a member of the defective branch of the police force. Of course this should have read 'the detective branch of the police farce.'

"The skipper spat disconsolately down the engine room ventilator and dropped the engines."

"The millinery department will be on the second floor and the proprietor states that their aim will be to always have the latest and last word in women's hats at appalling prices."

"Why not let your garments elsewhere when our up-to-date Laundry can do the work more effectively."

HALF HOLIDAY FOR FARMERS. Why not? Who needs a rest more than the farmers? United Farmers of Alberta will consider a resolution at the annual convention in Calgary, beginning January 19, providing for a half-holiday each week during the summer months. The days of the Alberta farmer rose before dawn and labored till after sunset, should end, states the resolution. Machinery has lessened the work, and the opinion of the sponsors of the resolution, he should be given more opportunity of taking part in community events such as business conventions, swimming parties, and addresses on current events. All of which goes to show that the world she is not the farmers of this generation have visions of life on the farm with work and play mixed in more equal proportions than the present standard allows by ancestors who thought that sun-up until sundown was made for work only.

MIND YOUR GEARS

An Englishman on a visit to the West decided to go horseback riding. The hostler who was to attend him asked: "Do you prefer an English saddle or a Western?"

"What's the difference?" he asked.

"The Western saddle has a horn," replied the attendant.

"I don't think I'll need the horn," said the Englishman, "for I don't intend to ride in heavy traffic."—Pathfinder.

AS SLIM AS AT 20
Still Fit and Active at 55

"I have been taking the small dose of Kruschen Salts every morning for the last three years, and would not be without them in the house. I used to suffer with constipation and piles, but am never troubled in that way now, and I am 55 years, and as slim as when I was 20. I have to work very hard, as I have my family and an invalid father to attend to, and I always say it's the Kruschen that keeps me fit for my work.

There's nothing like hard work and activity for keeping superfluous fat away. Try to get the finest folks is finding the necessary energy. That is where Kruschen helps you.

After you have had your daily supply of Kruschen every morning for a couple of weeks you'll get what is known as the "Kruschen Feeling."

The urge for activity will fill your entire being—you'll not be content to sit in the old arm chair after your day's work is done.

You'll feel the spirit of youth within you—that is the joyous feeling—you'll want to take long walks, play games and your very presence will be a handship—it will become a pleasure.

Other Papers' Opinions

BLACKMAIL

There is hardly an English mail which arrives that does not bring newspapers which report cases of blackmail. In these cases the names of the complainants are not published, the idea being to encourage blackmailed persons to prosecute in the knowledge that nothing they may have reason to be ashamed of, and which generally forms the basis of the blackmail, will not be broadcast. It seems a good idea. But the name of the accused person are not withheld from the public, and when the accused persons are acquitted, as was recently a distinguished solicitor, he had suffered an injustice that he never will live down. It would be only fair to keep all the names private until a verdict is reached and then publish the name of the accused person only if he has been convicted.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

LAURA SCORD WINS BATTLE

Laura Secord has won another battle. The story of her splendid act of heroism in the war of 1812-13 goes back into the school readers, this is the decision of Premier Henry, Minister of Education. We are sure that this fresh victory for the plucky colonist and her children of Canadian heroines will delight tens of thousands of children and grown-ups. Not only in the Niagara Peninsula, but throughout Ontario and the Dominion of Canada. It is to such valued and inspiring traditions that the nation owes much of its greatness. Laura Secord has been to successive generations of Canadian children a type of what good of Arc was to France; what the boy who hold his finger in the dyke has been to the people of Holland; what Florence Nightingale has been to the British Empire and, in fact, to many nations. Her name will ever be cherished side by side with that of General Simcoe, and Isaac Brock in the General Wolfe. It always be a name with which to conjure and foster the Canadian courage and patriotism, in saying this we cast no reflection upon the historian because of the opinion of the sponsors of the resolution, he should be given more opportunity of taking part in community events such as business conventions, swimming parties, and addresses on current events. All of which goes to show that the world she is not the farmers of this generation have visions of life on the farm with work and play mixed in more equal proportions than the present standard allows by ancestors who thought that sun-up until sundown was made for work only.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

NATIVE COCKTAIL

Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals for Canada, told a meeting of the Empire Club at Ottawa: "There is no more delightful beverage on earth than a glass of cold juice of the Canadian tomato."

Many Canadians had already made the same discovery, but the high endorsement from Government circles may start a campaign of far-reaching importance. Already tomato juice is available in tins, and tends to vary to many tables or drawing-rooms in place of the older and of cocktails. It is available in some circles and much less dependable in its after effects.

Tomato juice is a cool and refreshing appetizer, with wholly good effects. It contains the precious vitamins, as well as mineral salts, needed for a balanced diet to supplementing the carbohydrates of the "starchy" foods and the peculiarly Canadian product, corn. Even more attractive as it is, but aided by the enterprise of the California orange growers, may be interrupted when tomato juice comes into its own.—Toronto Globe.

"The Skyscraper"

Written For The Ontario Intelligencer By Lilian Leveridge, Toronto.

The Ontario Intelligencer is greatly pleased to reproduce another poem from the gifted pen of Lilian Leveridge, whose poetical productions have on many previous occasions been a delight to our readers. "The Skyscraper," in blank-verse, deals with a familiar topic in a highly imaginative mood.

THE SKYSCRAPER

Once long ago—O, years and years ago—
Where now this many-storeyed structure towers,
A shadowy forest stood. All winter long
The wild birds made their nests and loved boughs.
Harping weird music to the wakeful owl
And timid rabbit in the snow-white hollow
Or in the quiet watches of the night
The gentle snowflakes clothed the trees in white—
Till every one stood like a pale, veiled bride.
The rising sun, gold in a steel-blue sky,
A grey, misty veil, perhaps, for day and fox
Might pass and snake a shower of diamonds down
From low-hung balsam bough or hazel bush.
Then in the blue-white shadows disappear.
Perchance a roving Indian might pass
On snowshoed feet, across the drifted glade,
With supple bow and arrows tipped with death;
And soon the fairy silences would thrill
With life-blood beating through every sparkling spur.
But never gun was heard, or white man's step
Invaded these primeval solitudes,

In early spring the slow-returning sun
Dispersed the snowy whiteness, loosed the streams,
And sent them singing on their tortuous way.
A booming sound of thunder, greeting day,
Startled the night, and when the morning broke,
A gleam of water sparkled through the trees.—
The vast, blue lake was open to the sky,
And quickly all the nature woke to life.
The brown buds swelled and burst in tender leaf;
A rosy-scarfed sunrise crept along
The swaying boughs that pulsed with springing sap.
Here in this very spot sweet wild flowers bloomed—

Fragrant arbutus, scenting all the air,
Gold-throat and blood-root, delicately fair,

And golden adder-tongue and trilliums white,
And purple violets, hiding from the light.

The birds returned, a happy-hearted throng,
And filled the blossoming trees with amorous song.

Robin and bluebird poured their liquid notes,
In ceaseless founts of love, from throbbing throats.

At eve the hermit thrush and whip-poor-will Rolled sweet music down the dim, darkening hill.

While here the oriole swung her pendent nest
And hushed the birdlings 'neath her golden breast.

Thus passed the seasons and the centuries
Until the white man came. Then with axe
Woke strange, vibrating echoes in the wood.
Not without a struggle did the land of dread
Passed through the dreaming forest's mighty heart.
Slowly, but surely as the fate of the
The march of civilization onward came.
The cruise of all cruelties to the earth.
And soon its sunshine soul went up in flame.
With countless comrade souls—Whither? Who knows?

Is there a heaven for trees and birds and flowers?
Why not? The universe has many stars,
Specious and splendid, set in seas of peace,
Beaming and breathing with life and light.
And why should one least life that loved the sun
Pass to eternal night and nothingness?

Where once the oriole's sheltering maple stood
A snug, one-roomed, low-raftered cot was built,
Stage for a passing drama of joy and grief.
Or idyll only by the angels conned.
Husband and wife were joined in mutual toil.
Aglow with health, her shining hair wind-lost,
At intervals she stood in the open door
And watched the great expanse of the forest fall.
She grieved at their prone splendor, yet was glad
In the spring sunshine that came, filled her heart
With strong, brown hands she helped to heap the brush
About the stems, circling the fire by night,
And kindle fallow fires that roared and seethed
In sinful beauty through the night.
Acre by acre, thus the land was cleared.

Nature forgave the pillage. Soon there sprang
From virgin soil, fertilized by ashes,
And waving fields ripened to harvest gold.
Then children came to bless the rustic home.
With tender care they watched each birth.
Neighbors were multiplied, and clearings grew,
And homes and shops and busy marts were built.
Until a settlement became a town,
Smooth, level streets replaced the golden blooms
Displaced the frail, shy children of the wood.
The man, the woman, and their children all
Fell one by one asleep and were no more.
The strangers built a big, substantial house.
Which, in the course of time, was swept away
Like driftwood on the full flood-tide of trade.
No room was left for the old pioneers
Where crowding roofs shut out the summer sun.
Commerce and industry claimed the earth.
Goods were now bought and sold, and bargains made
Above the very spot where Nature slowed
And love-life flourished—long, so long ago.

A thriving city's life now pulsed and flowed
Along the thronged and clanging thoroughfares—
A mighty city, populous and wide,
Ringing its boundaries ever farther out.
And reaching upward nearer to the stars,
Like a young Titan, throbbing with the pangs
And ecstasy of power and growth.
Commerce and Science flourished side by side;
Goodness and Evil, Beauty and Ugliness,
And Love built homes and temples everywhere.

And then it was this building sprang to birth.
First in a dream within the architect's brain.
Its gleaming walls arose; but soon the dream,
As a ring within a closed door,
Was caught by other minds, and gained from all—
Architect, sculptor, builder, artist—

The work of generation soon began—
Destruction first, to clear Construction's path.
Down crashed the clustering roofs and crowded walls:
They now were level as the sea passed long since,
With lowlier rot and chop that are no more.
Quick! Clear away the refuse! Make room, room!
Make room, more room, for the giant that is to be!
Bare the earth's rib-rock for its foundations!
And make it smooth and level as a pool
That sleeps at eve beneath the windless blue!
Screen off this labour from the passers-by;
Not for their eyes, nor yet for Man thereon,
Lest tortured earth a mortal vengeance take.
"Danger" proclaim, and "No admittance here."

For months unceasingly the work went on
And still the guarded walls their secrets kept.
Tenaciously the rock clung to its own.
But deep and deeper bit the electric drill,
Like a fierce dragon breathing sparks of fire
That lit the cavern with a blue-white ray.
Pick-axe and hammer followed hard behind,
Breaking down all that still withstood the attack.
The shovel opened wide its ponderous jaws
And hungrily devoured the rugged stone.

The excavation was at last complete—
A yawning vacuum waiting to be filled.
New workmen were brought in for this new toil,
Men a step higher in the craftsman's scale.
All work is noble that is nobly done;
But even in Heaven the angel hosts are ranked,
Some greater and some less in excellence.
And so I hold the work of building up,
Fashioning things of beauty or of use,
A little nearer to that of God.
The mighty Maker of the universe,

Then that, however indispensable,
Preliminary toil of tearing down.

Blithely the new and happier work began,
With new machines, materials and tools,
And men rejoicing in their strength and skill.
Glad of the work and of its due reward,
Substance and source of his own humbler dream,
No man but wrought with faithfulness and zeal.
Strongly and well was the foundation laid.
Down in the depths where none might ever see,
Perfection was the standard and the test.
No slightest flaw in substance or in use
Might be condoned or pass unnoticed here.
Last, in order fateful day of loss and woe,
Fortunes and lives crash down in utter wreck.
Concrete and marble, stone and brick and steel,
Prepared by other labourers skilled as these,
Came in abundant stores from far and near.
And in the growing structure found their place.

Soon might the watcher from the busy street,
Long curtain of dust and ceaseless clash and clang
But baffled by the all-concealing fence,
See a step-skeleton arise to view,
With each fresh morning's sun by day
He now beheld the splendid dream take shape
Before his eyes—a modern miracle.
He marvelled at the rapid progress now,
As months before he marvelled at the long,
Slow toil of preparation, out of sight.

Up, up and up the joists and girders sprang;
And mighty beams, that from the distance seemed
To slender for the weight which they must bear,
High on their towers became mere human forms,
Perching like birds upon a leafless tree,
Sure-footed, fearless, steady of brain and hand,
Each piled more than his own strength of limb.
The clattering car passed swiftly up and down,
A burden-bearer, laden and sure.
And, block by block, the stately walls arose.
Moulding the rough, granite fifty pound,
Mortar and bricks and fine woods, finely dressed,
Wrought in the workshops of the builders.—
Until, high up against the blue serene,
The towering, sculptured roof at last appeared.
But still the workmen toiled on, for work was Completion, unattained, was yet in sight,
And day by day more keen the impulse grew.

At last there came a morn all rose and gold
That saw the splendid plant proudly stand,
Full-grown, fourteen storeys perfect in every part.
The warm and rosy fingers of the dawn
Touched it in caressing glory—a fairy sight.
Till every window kindled like a flame.
The builders, this last day of blossoming
Of his long-cherished dream, was glad at heart.
That day he called his neighbors and his friends
And said to them: "Rejoice, rejoice with me!
Come, let us hold a 'Hanging of the Crane,'
To celebrate the finish of our work
Of this new home of industry and art."

At eve through every door and window poured
A stream of electric light. Red-carpeted floors
Added a festive beauty to the rooms.
And mellow music trembled on the air.
The guests arrived, and all went happily.
Generous praises, prophecies of good
Concerning this and other worthy works
Dominion-wide in their beneficence—
Yes, reached the farthest limits of the earth.
Mingled and blended with the music's breath
And touched a chord responsive in each heart.
With dance and feast the festive evening closed.

With feet firm rooted in the kindly earth,
And head aspiring towards the ardent blue.
With warm life-currents pulsing through and through
The many arteries from core to rim dark.
This youthful giant of the century,
This last successor to the cobweb home,
Confronts the future, hopeful and serene.

THE WASTE OF WAR

What is the greatest waste ever increasing society known as "the waste of war"? Surely it is the 'Stopped something' overseas and those who are suffering today because of what they have rendered.

We well remember the 'Call to Arms' which came to our town and when we left the trenches with our muddied clothes, the call to the young ladies vying with each other to be first in our hospital train. They literally rained our letters with flowers, chocolates and cigarettes. Fashioning things of beauty or of use,
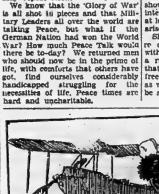
A little nearer to that of God.
The mighty Maker of the universe,

What is to be the recompense of us men who paid the price in cold cash, blood and broken bodies? 'Our heroic dead' do not wast flowers, wreaths and monuments when their dear ones comrade need bread. They died that we might live. 'Let us not forget' should apply in a very real sense to the living remnants of the Great Conflagration.

One who wasted.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:
Dear Sir:



In one of the stormiest elections in the history of our Township, we find new faces, new steps being taken. The old days of Reeve of Sidney was filled to capacity with men nominated, and on election evening, when the successful candidates made their bow to the voting public. Mistakes and successes of the past are alike futile, as they are a legend.

At the nomination and after election the women were more conspicuous by their absence, although they had been given the privilege of voting.

As a ratepayer, of many years standing, I should like to protest that our streets, and all the attention of all self-respecting voters of both sexes, should be paid women's reason for leaving the hall. Surely, in these days, there are enough serious problems to be solved, without women's rights and the interest of those who pay, that the speakers should have to resource to stories so questionable that our women voters must leave the audience. Since a condition above a grave disregard for the intelligence of the voters. To me at least it seems the question should be settled as one of fact and not fun.

Should not the discourses be in favor of government, and jests be without scurrility? I think we have a right to demand this, and ask that our public platforms shall be free from such, in order that we, the elect as our womenkind, may not be shamed in our own estimation.

CUBS DEFEAT CAMPBELLFORD BY SIX TO ONE

Very Small Following Witness Game at Campbellford

ONLY TALLY LATE

Details of Play of Interesting Game at Northern Town

Before the smallest crowd that ever witnessed an O.H.A. game the Belleville Cubs defeated the Campbellford Juniors by the score of 6 to 1 last night at Davidson's Arena in Campbellford. Although the fans were conspicuous by their absence the game was well contested on the small ice surface at the Davidson's Arena. The "Stonemen" presented a real smart team of junior players and they kept the locals travelling at top speed all through the game especially in the final period when they kept the Cubs travelling at a fast pace but despite the efforts of the junior players of both clubs.

The smallness of the ice surface did not afford the home team chance to display their best wares as they seemed to be somewhat cramped

TWO FINE ARTISTES REPEAT BIDS FOR STELLAR ROLES

Paramount presents an exceptional vehicle for intense dramatic action in "Ladies of the Big House" which will be the feature at the Belle theatre commencing Wednesday, Matinee daily.

The picture got its for its leading featured artists two talented personages who recently sprang into public favor because each possessed high dramatic ability, a distinct personality, and good looks, qualities essential to success.

Sylvia Sidney, who plays the leading woman's part, already has a strong fan following, because of her outstanding work in "City Streets" with Gary Cooper, in "An American Tragedy" with Phillips Holmes, in "Street Scene" with William Collier and in her Broadway stage success, "Bad Girl."

She has as her leading man, Gene Raymond, who sprang into prominence on the Broadway stage production "Young Sinners," which brought him a screen contract. Recently he was featured in "Personal Maid" as Nancy Carroll's leading man.

Raymond's light blond complexion is a pleasing contrast to Miss Sidney's dark tresses in the "Ladies of the Big House," which is a gripping romantic love drama of the lives of two young people who on the eve of their wedding day are cruelly separated by the law. The picture has the strong punch of authenticity in its prison scenes. It was dramatically produced by the convict-author Ernest Booth.

An exceptional program of Junior Features have been assembled for exhibition on the same program, including Pathe Review, "Unemployed Ghosts," the twin-battery of Radio-girl pets, Trilby & Svengali" gives his magic touch in the direction of "One Night-on", Screen play and dialogue are by Charles Kenyon and Maud-Fulton.

This drama of steel construction, huge production and the ultimate victory of right over treachery, will be shown at the Capitol for the last time tonight.

UNDER EIGHTEEN" AT THE CAPITOL WEDNESDAY

Manager Holmes of the Capitol Theatre announces Wednesday as the opening date for under Eighteen," which is the first starring vehicle for seventeen-year-old Marian Marsh, most notable screen discovery of the year.

Miss Marsh who is known wherever picture are shown, was a Los Angeles schoolgirl less than twelve months ago. An older sister brought her to the studios for a test which proved satisfactory. Nothing exciting happened, however, until John Barrymore, then looking for a leading lady for "Svengali," chose the tiny blonde from the host of applicants, to play the role of Trilby.

Miss Marsh's portrayal of the poor little girl who trips with misguided enthusiasm to lift herself into the society of the idle rich, amply fulfils the promise of her performances. The wistful heroine of "Under Eighteen" wins and holds the heart of everybody, and her startling adventures are followed with keen interest. The cast includes many screen favorites The romantic lead is played by Regis Toomey, recently seen in "Three Finger Points." Warren William, Broadway stage favorite, soon not long ago no the screen in "Expensive Women," and "Strictly or of the Family" depicts a wealthy lawyer with a weakness for women. Other in the cast are Anita Page, Frances Dee, Compton, Norman Foster, Emma Dunn, J. Farrell MacDonald, Judith Vosselli, Dorothy Appleby, Maude Eburne, Jean Hersholt, Paul Porcasi, Mary Doran, Murray Kinnell and Edward Brandel.

Archie Mayo, who directed Marian Marsh in her first Trilby & Svengali" gives his magic touch in the direction of "One Night-on", Screen play and dialogue are by Charles Kenyon and Maud-Fulton.

JIM THE CONQUERER

"Fumi Crooked Bill" reflected. "Sure I've spent at least a minute making up her face! Four minutes to put over her loving pice against me. The little crook!" He beamed upon her. "I'm sorry I spoke crossly to my little girl," he announced with hypocritical unction.

Bobby kissed him fondly and gave him a little hug, the butler peas and the roast beef for fresh hot cups and Glenn Hackett began a discussion of international tension, to be interrupted presently by Crooked Bill.

"I think you might tell Harms to serve some of my Pol Roger '28, Bobby," he suggested. "I'm probably be the last bottle of real champagne we'll ever drink but while we have title to the cellar let's go at it."

Had Crooked Bill lived in the days of Demosthenes there is no doubt but that he would have run the Oracle of Delphi out of business. Roberta did not know it at first dinner! However, Crooked Bill was not one to gum up his own finely laid plans, and, armed with a full realization of the truth of the old adage that honesty is the best, he with drew to his room, leaving Glenn Hackett to make progress he could with the rebellious Roberta.

But Crooked Bill did not retire. He sat down before the fire. Instead he lit a cigar and smoked thoughtfully, during which hour he knew Glenn Hackett, a creature of impulse, would be on the city. So Crooked Bill went down the back stairs, crossed the lawn and waited in the garage. Then he drove to Hillcrest, "Did it work?" he demanded.

"Overtime," Hackett responded. "He's coming. Is you some little old prognosticator, eh?"

"You certainly know every conniving trick in the book, Hackett. I'm sure I never would. She's outgone every one of my efforts so far."

"Was she nice to you after I left?"

"Nice? Why, Hackett, she—"

"Argh!" Crooked Bill growled deep in his throat, like an aged tiger. "I'll get her again. You'd be a bachelor in the South Seas tomorrow if I had a island where they practice polyandry!"

Hackett muttered and he returned to the house and mixed himself a drink of his favorite elixir.

He had a reputation. Like Pat Rafe was, in a manner of speaking, attached to accomplish a purpose.

Fourteenth Instalment

There he was, smiling and satisfying and restful to a human being as the proverbial city deed successful. Finally, nay brilliantly successful. It is not to be marveled at, therefore, that Crooked Bill's spirits did not betta slept well that night; at breakfast he was jovial. He had not looked so chipper in years, albeit he had to accomplish his pose of abandon and despair Crooked Bill found to shave, had little to say during the meal, and left the table from time to time. He caught an early train for the city, explaining that the sooner he swept up the loose ends of his affairs the sooner he could retire to the country.

Crooked Bill found the day

NATIONS MUST BE FRIENDLY

Hon. W. D. Herridge Declares Friendship Real Necessity

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 12.—By the Canadian Press)—International friendship was the keynote of an address delivered here last night by Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister to Washington, before the Pilgrim society.

The Minister, who was guest of honor at the Society's annual dinner declared friendship among nations today was a veritable necessity. Old barriers of time and space had been destroyed by the modern methods of transportation and communication, he proceeded, and reason and fair play had replaced the old animosity and distrust which marked International relations.

ROYAL SOCIETY IS NEAR 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Annual Meeting in May Will Mark The 50th Milestone

MEET IN OTTAWA

Many Dignitaries From Canada, France and States to Attend

Ottawa, Ont. (By The Canadian Press)—Plans are already well advanced for the celebrating of the fiftieth birthday of the Royal Society of Canada which will be observed at the time of the society's annual meeting on May 26, 27 and 28, 1932, in Ottawa. The Royal Society was founded in 1882 largely through the efforts of Lord Lorne, then governor general of Canada and afterwards the Duke of Argyll. There were 79 charter members of whom only two survive at this writing, Dr. J. Watson, of Kingston, Ont., formerly of Queen's University, and Ramsay Wright formerly of University of Toronto and now resident in Bournemouth, England. It is expected that representatives of some of the great national scientific and literary societies of Great Britain, France and the United States will attend the May meeting as well as delegates from many of the principal Canadian societies. His Excellency the governor general, who is Patron of the society, has graciously signified his intention of being present. It has also been announced that the Governor has decided to have the formal opening of the new National Research Laboratories on May 27, during the anniversary of the Royal Society, and has invited the Society to hold its sessions in the Research building.

Special Addresses

One of the features of the society's celebration will be a series of special addresses in which surveys will be made of the progress of Canada in various branches of literature and science during the past fifty years. The president of the society, Dr. Robert Falconer, the retiring head of the University of Toronto, will devote his presidential address to a survey of the progress of the society as illustrating the progress of the Dominion, and several other central theme will be grouped surveys by some of the most brilliant of Canadian scientists of what has been achieved in each of their respective fields. Similar addresses will be prepared by member of the French and Scottish societies. It has already been arranged that in connection with history there will be, with by Pro. Chester Martin, head of the History Department of the University of Toronto; Archaeology by Dr. O. D. Skelton, Under Secretary of State for External Affairs; Archaeology by Diamond Jenness, head of the Anthropological Department of the National Museum; Literatures by Dr. Lorne Pierce, Editor of the Ryerson Press and Statistics by R. H. Coats, Dominion Statistician. All these addresses will be published together with an introduction by the general secretary of the society, Mr. L. Lawrence J. Burpee, in a memorial volume.

It is intended to have the banquet of some of the outstanding charter members who attended the organization meeting in Ottawa fifty years ago. The original charter of the society was Sir J. W. Dawson, at that time head of McGill University, and one of the world's leading geologists. The vice-president was Hon. Sir Alex. Campbell, who had been the first Premier of Ontario after confederation and who also a man of ripe scholarship. Sir James Lemoine, historian and archeologist, was another vice-president, and Faucher de St. Maurice, one of the most brilliant French Canadian writers of the period, was vice-president. Sir Daniel Wilson, at that time president of the University of Toronto, was president of Section Two, and Goldwin Smith was vice-president. T. Sterry Hunt, who had once served as chief geologist at Laval University and afterwards at McGill, was president of Section Three; and R. C. Selwyn, for many years director of the Geological Survey of Canada, was vice-president. Sir John Bourinot was honorary secretary and George Stewart, Sir James Grant, honorary treasurer. All these knighthoods were conferred subsequent to 1882.

Famous Men Belonged

Among other famous Canadians who were among the first Fellows of the Royal Society were Alex (afterwards Cardinal) Begin; H. W. Longfellow, one of the leading poets of French Canada; Louis Frenchette and Pamphile LeMay, remembered because of their poetry; Benjamin Sulte, historian; Cyprien Tanguay, who compiled the biographical dictionary of French Canada; Principal the Abbe Casgrain; Archbishop William Kirby auothor of "The Golden Dog"; Maurice Drummond, philosopher of London, Ont.; Alphonse Gagnon, musician and composer; and a recognized authority in parliament-at law; John Reade, poet and essayist for many years literary editor of the Montreal Gazette; George Grant, professor, military historian and political scientist at Toronto University; Alfred Fleming, who built the International Railway, surveyed the Canadian Pacific, and brought about the Pacific Cable; Charles Carpmael for many years head of the Meteorological Service of Canada; Robert Bell, explorer and surveyor in Northern Canada; and Sir William Dawson, one of the most famous of Canadian Physicists.

Since its organization the Royal Society has counted among its Fellows most Canadians of the first rank in literature and science, and its membership has grown to something like three times the original number. Canadian politicians, whether they are too busy with public affairs or whatever reason do not as a rule qualify for Fellowship in the Royal Society, differing in that respect from men in public life in Great Britain. However, the Royal Society has in the past considered several Canadian statesmen among its members. Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader and former Prime Minister, is a fellow of Section Two; Senator Rodolphe Lemieux and Senator Thomas Chapais of Section One, and Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister, of Canada, is an Honorary Fellow.

It is remembered particularly in that fiftieth year of the society's history, that it has been largely instrumental in bringing about such important Canadian institutions as the National Museum, the National Gallery, the Geodetic Survey, the National Research Council, the Public Archives the Experimental Farms, the Geographic Board, the Biological Survey, and has repeatedly urged the establishment of a National Library.

MODEL HUNTING CAMP GIVEN

Montreal (By The Canadian Press)—A model of an Indian winter hunting camp such as may still be seen along parts of the St. John River, New Brunswick, was recently given to the geological Museum at McGill University by E. T. Adney, a local authority on North American Indians. The hunting lodge built on a scale of 1-3 the original size is fully equipped even to wood ready to be fired and cooking utensils. Standing against its outside walls are several wooden stretchers for preventing shrinkage of beaver, otter and mink skins.

The exhibit also includes a one-fifth scale model of an otter trap used by the St. John River Indian and peculiarly enough it is the same as that used by the Pacific coast Indian to catch beaver.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT BUILD LEGATION

One Building to House Minister and Other Legation

Ottawa, Jan. 11 By The Canadian Press)—The French Government will erect two buildings in Ottawa, to cost approximately $120,000 furnished, for its legation here. One will serve as a residence for Hon. Henry, French Minister, and the other will house the officers of the legation staff.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up for you or you can mix it at home at little cost. Apply to the hair and scalp twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to gray hair, makes it soft and glossy, Orlex will not color the scalp. Orlex is 25 cents a bottle at druggists and does not rub off.

OUTLANDISH PUBLICITY TO 'THE WET SIDE

Senator Brookhart, Prohibition Advocate Makes Statement

WONT BUY SPACE

He Believes Papers Are Winning Organized Racket Against Drys

Washington, D. C., Jan. 12 (AP)—Conspiracy by the press in giving "outlandish" publicity to "the wet side" of prohibition was charged in the United States Senate today by Senator Brookhart.

The Iowa Republican, a prohibitionist, had just come from a hearing on beer bills at which Dr. William Gerry Morgan of this city, a Democrat, appeared to urge repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"That's the secret of all this wet publicity" he said. "All the Press Associations are in it alike."

"It is time for them to look into all this unreasonable and disgusting publicity that has been going on.

He added that if they do not, a "congressional inquiry" may be forthcoming.

ZERO WEATHER IS PREVALENT

Cold Wave Felt in Every Part of Dominion

MONTREAL, Jan. 11—Chill winter air enveloped Montreal again today after a short spell of mild weather. The mercury plunged to zero this morning and the weatherman at the McGill University observatory said it was only a sample of what is to come.

Yesterday the sun was strong and the streets were bary. A few golfing zealots played around the hard turf on local courses. Canoeists paddled about on Lake St. Louis, and the roads were black with Sunday drivers.

The streets are still bare, but cost collars are turned up. The weather prophets do not expect snow for several days yet, but promise that the cold snap will continue at sub-zero levels.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Portland, Maine, was coldest at 10 degrees above zero today and Albany, Boston and Buffalo shivered at 12.

Other cities of New England, New York and New Jersey generally had brisk temperatures for the first week end of snow.

Thermometers in New York city, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit and Indianapolis registered 20. Chicago, Washington and Milwaukee had temperatures of 32.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 11. — A blizzard, which swept central and southern Manitoba yesterday, approached into—western Manitoba today, lashing Brandon district and raising mimance in Winnipeg. Temperatures slipped down to eleven below.

Strong winds from the south gave Winnipeg a taste of near-blizzard weather, but the temperature was well above zero. Rising temperatures were forecast for the wind-storm that yesterday raged over a large section of Saskatchewan.

MILITIA BUTTON SENT TO ARCHIVES

Montreal, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—The famous Glengarry Dufferin Square in this city for over 100 years, was sent recently to Ottawa for the archives of the Department of National Defence. It was as good as new after much searching Mr. Hair found out that the button was from the uniform of an officer of the 24th Regiment of the Canadian Militia, which was divided into the Glengarries after the war of 1812. On the face of the button is a Glengarry crown encircled by an oak wreath with words "British Militia" inscribed.

Mr. Hair's hobby is militia and military outfitter.

A sample of the button used by the French section of the militia is being sent to possession of the Department of National Defence but Mr. Hair's find is the only one of its kind in the archives.

START BRAILLE NEWSPAPER

New York, Jan. 12—Because he believes blindness should not thwart ambition, Bernard Krens, 20 year old blind student of Journalism, plans to found a Braille newspaper for the blind as soon as he has finished school.

Because of the high cost of gasoline in New Zealand many farmers there are storing their power machinery, having gone back to horses.

TABLETS MARK HISTORY SITES

Meeting Place of First Legislature is Marked

Saint John, N. B.—Picture a group of stately gentlemen solemnly discussing the affairs of New Brunswick and you see the first legislature of the province in 1785 in the Mallard House, where a hotel now stands.

After many years that site is marked. A bronze tablet has been placed by the Historic Sites and Monument Board of Canada through the efforts of Dr. J. Clarence Webster, M.D., D. Sc., LL.D. F.R.S.C. of Shediac N. B., New Brunswick representative on the Board.

Martello Tower at Beaconsfield on the West Side of the harbor has also been marked by the same organization, but just a few years ago the Tower never dreamed of the hectic days that caused its erection.

William A. Dougherty, a member of the N. B. Historical Society stated that the tablet was placed directly opposite Martello Tower in the site of Fort Drummond, part of the old one - time military defence of Saint John. He also played its part in diverting the threats of war from New Brunswick. Actually, the land on which Martello Tower stands extends several hundred feet across to Fort Drummond where only ruins can be found the remains of a cannon ball buried in the ground. The property, owned by the Government, has been subdivided by a road leading to Seaside Park.

MAYOR RULES TOWN 35 YEARS

Chief Magistrate is 92 and Has Policy "Pay As You Go"

Digton, Mass.—Citizens look up as the man who directs the affairs of numerous boards and one who has been such-and-such for so-and-so many years, but when Digton is rolling a total of 2,400 inhabitants for thirty-five years and at the age of ninety-two, and when it is the place of the citizens to look up to the mayor.

Such a man is Charles S. Chase, member of the legislature in 1894, and senator in 1911 and 1912, and chairman of board of select men, chairman of the board of health and chairman of public welfare of this small town.

Chase is the main cog of one of the few town governments now without bonded debt. He attributes the town's financial success to strict adherence to "pay as you go" policy and to a finance committee which he has retained since 1900 and which is under his control.

The elderly official is a former superintendent of streets, chief of police, janitor of the town hall and is known as "Father" of the bristol county training school for boys, also in this town.

It is his boast that he neither drinks nor smokes.

CANADIAN ARRIVALS LEAD ENTRY LIST

Mapy From This Country Land at Port of Boston

Boston, Mass.—Of the 49,000 persons who entered the port of Boston during the year 1931, the vast majority 41,346 of them came from Canada, according to port figures. From overseas, including Europe, the British Isles, the Orient, Africa and Australia there were 6,152, while from Central and South America were 2,201, and 802 from Newfoundland. The West Indies showed a big gain, due to the entry of the Canadian National steamships to the port, and the inauguration last year of other lines to the islands.

One yacht, nine airplanes, 1,430 steamers and 151 sailing vessels used the port.

There were 4,994 arrivals at the fish pier, with catches totaling 20,-943,840 pounds, compared with 24,-782,000 pounds totaling 254,795,856 pounds in the previous year.

Exports of fish products shipped from the port showed an increase over that of 1930. Figures show that 2,133,122 bushels of wheat, 1,000,000 bushels of corn, 1,000,000 bushels of oats—with oc 2,-924,585 bushels, went out during the year, compared with 2,000,000 bushels in 1930. Of last year's total the great bulk went to Europe and Great Britain, with three large shipments going to Brazil for account of the United States Farm Board at Washington.

Trees threatened with a disease called chlorosis, which produces a loss of green in the foliage can be saved by treatment with solutions of iron salts.

LUMBER MILLS IS PURCHASED

Mr. T. Emmerson, Moira, Buys Well-known Lumber Mill

Moira—Miss Townsend, the public school teacher for the "Little Red School" will be making her home with Mrs. Clayton Hagerman for the winter months.

Mr. Anthony Herity who has been laid up with a bad cold this week is again becoming himself. The public as a whole was keenly interested in Mr. Herity's indisposition as as much as it was his first call for medical aid in 30 years.

Mrs. Clayton Haggerman, the newly elected president of the Mr. M. S. called her first meeting on Wednesday and although weather conditions were not very propitious a goodly number attended and the auxiliary had a successful year for 1932 by one new member joining in the person of Miss Herity. Another good year is predicted for this society with capable leadership of its president and the faithful and capable leadership of the retiring president Mrs. T. Elliott to whose help and counsel this society has accomplished so much during her tenure of 3 years in office.

Work and jobs around Moira are very hard to find this year. Brockwood chopping hitherto plentiful in this wooded district is also scarce this year.

It is learned that Tom Emmerson has purchased the grist and lumber mill from Mr. Wm. Bray of Wilmington. The old mill has rendered a great service to an extensive circle of readers for many years and we recognize that the genius and distinctiveness, characteristic of the new proprietor will regain for the mill, the reputation which belongs to it.

The School report of the Continuation school here, under the supervision of Mrs. Emmerson as principal, stated by Miss E. Hunt, inspector as junior teacher commences to show merit and progress.

Following the fall of weather from blizzard to January thaw, has affected many people with colds with gripe and colds.

Mr. H. R. Wilson was elected to the chair of Deputy Preceptor at the annual meeting of the Black Knights of Ireland Orange Lodge on Tuesday last.

The police officials in search of Gordon Calvert made their headquarters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hollinger.

The annual business meeting of the Fuller United Church was held on Tuesday night last when with few exceptions the same staff of the S. S. was unanimously reappointed. The same being added to the officials of the church.

All officers were met and duly charged and both Sunday School and Church sail away for a prosperous year.

The Elders are:— Messrs H. R. Bell, Wm. Gordon Green, J. Hollinger.

Stewards:—Ben Brough, Vanniltis, F. Palmer, and H. R. Burke Treasurer.

Miss Lily Ketcheson and Miss B. Emmerson collected the sum $3.75 for the Missionary Bible Society.

Considerable excitement prevailed around Fuller and Moira by car loads of uniformed men searching high and low for a dark suit case for young Calvert.

Mrs. Clarence Mallett who has been ill for some months and was becoming worse instead of better has been advisedly affected by the continuous patrolling by police officers of their premises in the country around in search of the escaped convict whose hiding in that community they suspected. Now that the arrest is effected it is hoped Mrs. Mallett will be able to regain rapidity.

Mrs. Hallett had the misfortune of having her left hand caught in the car door while being closed and severely crushed and smashed her fingers requiring immediate medical attention.

RAIL ISSUE ARE IMPETUS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Railroads shares provided action and a further advance in the stock market today.

Prices backed up a little in the first half hour, in continuation of the reaction late Saturday, but soon pushed into new high ground. Gains came into the carriers. The advance coincided with publication of meetings of railway labor heads in Chicago, presumably to discuss wage cutting. Trading was dull during the morning, but accelerated on the advance in the afternoon.

Union Pacific pushed up more than 3 points, while other issues advancing 2 to 4 included Santa Fe, Reading, Pacific, Canada and Ohio, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Rock Island, Baltimore and Ohio, New Haven, Pere Marquette and others. American Telephone advanced two points and Allied Chemical rose 3. Motion Pictures were well bought, Radio Keith rising two points, and Warner Bros. one. Coppers were firm. U. S. Steel regained more than 2 points in the first half hour, but regained its loss.

BRINGING UP FATHER

—By George McManus.

THE BEASTS OF TARZAN, No. 10.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service)—

By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

His first need was for fire. He cut a small straight branch and scooped a small round hole in a fallen tree. Sitting astride the hole of the tree, he started spinning the slender rod rapidly between his palms. A thin curl of smoke began to rise. Next he searched for some brittle rock. From this glass-like material he patiently fashioned a primitive hunting knife.

He had noted in the forest a spot where tracks in the trampled mud told him man animals came down to drink. Hither, at dusk, the hungry speman made his silent way, swinging through the tree branches with the grace and ease of an orang. Except for the heavy burden upon his heart he would have been happy in this return to the old, free life of his boyhood.

In a great tree that overhung the trail, his lithe, muscular legs drawn up ready to spring, Tarzan crouched waiting for his "dinner" to appear. Presently here, the deer, came daintily down to drink. But more than Bara was coming! Behind the grace ful buck came another which the deer could neither see nor hear. But from his elevated position the ape-man saw Numa, the lion.

With a sudden start the deer paused for an instant trembling, in his tracks, and then with a swift bound dashed straight down the path beneath Tarzan's ambush. Not a hundred yards behind him came Numa. If the ape-man were to dine tonight, he must act quickly. Could he do it? Even as he asked himself the question, the hungry man hurried himself from his perch.

TRAILED

by Jasper B. Sinclair

Ask Jed Bennett where the biggest bucks roam among the redwoods. Ask Jed where the finest trout leap among the upper reaches of the Eel River and its tributary streams.

You could ask old Jed, of course, but it was a foregone conclusion that he would not impart any of the knowledge gained from years of tramping the hills about Mendocino. A secretive chap, was Jed.

So Andrews, in fact, felt that there were some persons particularly anxious to learn Jed's hidden haunts. The game warden, for instance. It was common knowledge, among the old timers in that country, that Jed never touched himself about securing such a thing as a hunting or fishing license. Not at least during Bill White's ten years on the job.

Times without number he had been trailed into the hills, only to disappear when the warden was apparently hot on his trail. Always mysterious, was Jed. But he never failed to come back into town complacently exhibiting an antlered deer that was easily the biggest buck of the season. And of course, was in the days before the state demanded the immediate tagging of all deer.

The season had been open a week when Jed Burnett climbed into his battered old car and rattled out of town along the dusty road that leads straight up into the hills above the right bank of the Eel River.

Behind him, another machine followed the setlasme dusty road, its driver stern-faced and grim. Bill White had determined that ten years of failure on his part were enough. This time he would compensate for all those fruitless searches of past summers.

He was not thinking, was Bill White, of his duty to county or state. This matter of catching Jed red-handed had long since become a personal matter, motivated solely by the desire for revenge. He had been long enough outwitted by old Jed to have his fighting instincts thoroughly aroused. He'd follow Jed this time, he meditated, even to the ends of the earth.

But the trail ended sooner than that. Jed ultimately stopped, turned off the road and ran his machine under the protective branches of a giant redwood.

The warden slowed up, sure that this time Jed would not escape him. Later, when Jed had had time to leave the road, Bill White drove alongside the other car, parked his own and tiptoed out.

The trail through his woods was easy to follow.

"Getting careless in his old age," mused the warden, following the path the other had chosen. "Never at it so long, he thinks there's nothing to it anymore. Fool old different this time, though!"

The trail zig-zagged up over the summit and dropped down into a canyon, deep-laid with ferns and wild flowers between the redwoods. Jed made frequent stops along the trail, hitting down to wet, apparently blissfully unaware of his tracker. On each of these occasions, the warden squatted also. There was no need for haste, he assured himself. Sooner or later Jed would start a deer and then—

Halfway down into the canyon he saw Jed stop abruptly, his gun level with his waist. From behind the vantage of a tree, Bill White watched. A large buck came out of a copse, stood poised a moment, head held high, sniffing cautiously the forest air.

Jed's gun came up to his shoulder. . . spoke once. The buck took a startled step forward, then crashed to the ground. Jed ran forward. He was stooping over the fallen animal when the silence of the glade abruptly broken.

"Nice buck you've got there, Jed," said a quiet voice.

Jed looked up quickly.

"Yep! Pretty good one, Bill," he responded, smiling up at the warden. "Didn't know you were here-about."

"One of the biggest I've seen in some time," replied the warden, ignoring Jed's comment.

Jed shrugged. "About a hundred and thirty, perhaps. Expected better this time of the season."

"All the same, it's a mighty good," Bill White went on casually. Inwardly he was gloating at the ease with which he had finally trapped Jed.

"Not bad." Jed admitted reluctantly.

"No, not half bad," said the warden. "By the way, Jed, I suppose you've got your license with you?"

He queried in an offhand tone.

"Why no, I haven't," was the surprising reply, as Jed reached into a pocket.

"Better let me have a look," the warden said.

"Sure!" repeated Jed. One after another he searched his pockets with his smile of assurance turning to bewildered frown. Meanwhile Bill White stood grinning at the other's discomfiture.

"Reckon I must have lost it," Jed admitted the fruitlessness of his search. "Had it when I left town, but—"

"That's an old story," the warden told him. "They all tell that one. I've been waiting a long time to catch you this season, Jed, and I've got you. Guess you better come along back to town with me, drag up that buck and we'll get going."

Jed shrugged again. "Don't see why I should," he said quietly, refusing from the warden to the buck and back at the warden.

"It's the evidence in this case," the warden interrupted crossly. "Pick it up and—"

"And you want me to pack back the evidence against myself?" Jed inquired.

"Sure! Why not?"

"In that case," Jed told him coolly, "I guess you better pick it up yourself. I'm not packing any evidence against myself! Not much, I'm!"

The warden grunted, cleared his throat and grunted again. He knew Jed had him there. There is no compulsion in law about any person carrying evidence to convict himself. If Bill White wanted the evidence, he'd have to bring it in himself. Jed was within his rights. This much the warden knew and, with a final snort, he reluctantly hoisted the buck on his own shoulders.

"Come on, let's get going," he said gruffly, starting back up the five-mile trail to where their cars were parked.

It was cool among the redwoods when they started, But the weight of the buck made that trail seem endless to Bill White. A noonday sun penetrated through the trees, dust stifled him, branches pricked at the averaged sailor. A thing of torture that five mile trail.

Back in town, Wearily Bill White flung open the door of the warden's office, threw the buck on the floor and sank into a chair.

"Sit down, Jed," he said grimly, as the other removed his hat and entered behind him.

"And now we'll get down to—"

"Hey! Just a minute, Bill," exclaimed old Jed, suddenly grinning as he peered sharply into the hat. One hand lifted the inside band, the other withdrew a slip of pink paper.

"Knew I had that danged license somewhere," he muttered, grinning broadly as he held it took for the warden's inspection. "Got it a couple days ago when I was down to Ukiah," he explained casually.

But Bill White was not looking at that license. He was thinking, as Jed chuckled quietly, how Jed Burnett had tricked him into carrying that buck those five weary miles. He was thinking of that long five mile trek up hill and down hill, with that hundred and thirty pound buck on his shoulders.

Jed's buck!

Alaska Prospector Confesses Guilt

Constable Finds Body Buried in Snow Near Cabin

Fairbanks, Ala., Jan. 11—Charles Christensen, a prospector found near death from exposure in the wood's three weeks ago, confessed to having slain his partner in a quarrel over mineral rights in the isolated Kantishna district.

Officers doubted the story. Weather conditions prevented an immediate check. Christensen was declared insane at a court inquiry.

Today the confession was affirmed. Deputy Burnett, returning from a trip to Little Moose Creek, said he found the body of Christensen's partner, Sam Feederson, buried in the snow in front of their cabin. Several starving dogs were tied nearby.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating brekfist this morning and ma was looking kind of sad on account of prohebly thinking about not having any cook yet, and she said to pop, by the way, Willyum, there's a new restorant up in the Avenue, its coy been open about 3 days.

I was reeding somewhere the other day about out of every 10 new restorants, 7 fal twithin a year, pop said, and ma said, Ike this one wont fail, Im sure, in fact they cant afford to fail because theyve got a lot of expensive gold tetering on the window and it wouldent be nice to have it all on the street, she said. I thawt it mite be fun to try it out, she said.

I was reeding a very intricting artikel about vitamins, pop said, It seems that the average home cooked meal contains 0 and a half times more vitamins than the average restorant meal, and you know what vitamins are, dont you? he said.

No I dont, but I know theres a lot of loose tawk going on about them, ma said. And anyway, we wouldent get any restorant meal in this restorant, I mean thats the very reason they claim to have nutting but real home cooking. The very name of the restorant is no indication of that, its called the Gaslery Kome Restorant and Lunnich Room, and I think its very unapropriate of us not to give it a trial, she said.

But yes koze, if you want home cooking why not stay home and have it in its natural surroundings instead of going out to some public restorant and eating it in a mob of strangers, pop said, and ma said, Thats an ideer, all rite, we'll have some home and Ill tell you what we'll have, we'll have some soup with some noodles thrown in and some boiled potatoes and we'll have a nice fish course of tinned salmon and then a nice cold meat of beef heash made out of canned corn beef, diced, and lovely mounding preserves on the label, and a assorted package of some kind of powder to make dessert with, and then a can of coffee I bawt yesliday, we will finish off with that, I think its called Tasty Nasty Pudding.

Ma looked doubtful, but pop won, we'll try the restorant, pop said.

With we did, not being so awful.

LITTLE ROADS

I love the little, winding roads
That lead me just anywhere,
Capricious little roads—which hide
Surprises everywhere.

I love the little paths that wind
Through field and dell and hood,
That lure me with their promises
And never disappoint.

The little paths that run and hide,
Then spring out—suddenly,
As though, in pelyful mood, they would

Play hide-and-seek with me.

Byways, through leafy solitudes,
Always my feet enmare.
They seem to say, "Oh, come away
And leave behind cold care."

The quiet ways and vagrant paths
Where woodland flowers nod,
And all the little happy roads,
That lead one close to God.

QUENCH FIRE AT TRENTON

Car Dealer in Trenton Arrested on Old and New Charge

Trenton, Jan. 12 (Special) — The Trenton fire department answered a call on Monday afternoon and due to prompt work on the part of the firemen little damage was done. The fire broke out in the home of Mr. John R. Wood, of Byron Street. He is connected with the R.C.A.F. having moved to Trenton recently. The call was received by Mr. Hubert Strong, local contractor.

The fire started through an overheated stovepipe and spread between the partitions and under the stairway. The firemen quickly broke through and using chemicals soon had the blaze out.

By the time obliging neighbors had carried the household goods out it was time to bring them back.

Mr. Roy Mack who was arrested in July, 1930, for nonpayment of a $40 board bill was then given a month to pay said bill. Having a car he went into the trading business in a big way. Trading with W. W. Weaver, local car dealer, he left Trenton and had not been heard of since until arrested by local police on his return to Trenton. The car he traded to Weaver was listed at $1,300 by a man having a previous lien covering the value of $1,000 on the car. During the meantime, had gone to Oshawa, where he left the driver's car, which was wrecked. He is held in Trenton pending trial on the two charges.

Mrs. Agnes Duff, aged 94, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. Coleman, Ridgeway Street, on Sunday. She was a native of Mr. Robert Weddell of Trenton. Mrs. Duff has lived in Trenton for the past fifty years. Her husband predeceased her eight or nine years ago, since then she had resided with her daughter, Mrs. Coleman. Due to the illness of Mr. Coleman the funeral services were held at the home of Mr. Coleman's son, Mr. Alex. Weddell, on Division St., on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m. Mrs. Duff was a member of the Presbyterian Church and interment will be made in the Mount Evergreen cemetery. The pallbearers were Wm. Mac-Vouter, Walter Smith, Jack Tinney, Robert Weddell and Wm. Hutchinson.

The return of the cold weather brought a sharp drop in the mercury in Trenton arena, so both teams were out long enough to get limbered up and shaping up nicely for their tilt with Belleville on Saturday night. The boys have their hearts set on winning that game and it looks very favorable for them.

The intermediates are working hard for their game tomorrow night in Lindsay. This will be the first league game for the intermediates, the other games with Peterboro and Oshawa having been postponed on account of the mild weather. A good many of the hockey fans are going up to Lindsay with the boys to sort of keep the old spirit.

SOUND TRAVELS IN WAVE MOTION

Chris. Holmes Gives Talk on Sound Reproduction at Rotary

"Sound Reproduction" was the subject of discussion at Rotary Monday with Chris. Holmes, manager of the Capitol Theatre, directing. Mr. Holmes gave a very lucid and interesting explanation of how sound motion pictures are produced and exhibited film sections showing that sound wave on the edge which carries the voice, music, and various other sounds, which make the sound pictures such a marvellous entertainment. Mr. Holmes said that "sound is vibration in the atmosphere set up by whatever is producing the sound."

"If we were able to see sound, we should find that it travels in wave motion, in the same manner that an object striking water will cause waves to form on the surface.

"These sound waves are, in the case of water waves, are formed in circular fashion, and are made up of dense air, followed by rarified air, then dense air, and rarified air, and so on continually.

"The distance between these waves is dependant upon the pitch of the produced sound, so that a high pitch will create closer or more crowded waves, and low pitch sends forth less waves.

"As these sound waves are circular, they are referred to as cycles, and the higher the pitch, the more cycles are produced per second.

Chirp of Ann Thesett.

"To exemplify this, a piano keyboard is available and you will find that the lowest note on a piano when struck, sends out only sixteen cycles per second, the number increasing as the various notes of higher register are struck, so that the highest note on a piano sends out as many as 3,500 cycles per second. Sound of higher pitch, such as the squeak of a door, or chirp of an insect, transmits 7,000 cycles per second, and people who are hard of hearing are sensitive to sound of this pitch.

"The number of cycles per second are referred to as frequency of waves.

"The frequency of sound waves, striking the diaphragm of a microphone, cause the diaphragm to vibrate proportionally. With a small current of electricity applied, duplications of these sound vibrations are converted into electrical impulses, and in turn, these electrical impulses operate a small lamp, known as an Aeo lamp.

"The filament of this lamp lightens and darkens with the exact rapidity of the sound waves striking the diaphragm of the microphone, and so of the electrical impulses sent forth by it.

Light and Dark.

"In recording sound on film, the lightening and darkening of this Aeo lamp filament is photographed, thereby causing white and black lines to appear on the photographed section of the film.

"This photographed strip is one-eighth of an inch wide, and runs alongside the action, pictures on the film.

"Two methods of photographing sound on film are adopted. These are the RCA and the Western Electric. The RCA use the method of peak and depressions, or variable area, so called because on inspecting the sound strip, or track, on the film, it will be seen that the black and white impressions run in wave fashion. The higher the pitch the more acute the peak, and the lower the sound, the more obtuse the peak.

"The Western Electric adopts the method of variable density, and in this case, the impressions on the sound track appear in horizontal lines of black and white. The higher pitch the more frequent the black and white lines, and the lower the pitch the wider are the lines.

Method of Reproducing.

"The primary essential of reproducing photographed sound, is sonething to exactly duplicate impressions on the film, and a small lamp is used, and is consequently called an exciting lamp.

"This lamp has a horizontal filament which is photographed by means of a lense on the sound track of the film as it passes through the machine.

"This point of focus is a slit of light one three thousandth of an inch broad, which passes through the sound track to a photo electric cell, only when the white lines appear on the film. This beam is cut off when the dark lines are present.

"The photo electric cell is so constructed as to transmit electrical impulses in exact duplicate of the light frequency created by the lines on the sound track of the film, to an amplifier.

"These electrical impulses are amplified about four hundred million times, and become the strong enough to operate a loud speaker adequately."

W. B. Deacon is Appointed Shore Gas Company Director

Second Canadian to Be Named to Executive of Company

IS NATIVE

An important business honor has been conferred upon one of Belleville's leading citizens by the appointment of Mr. W. B. Deacon to the directorate of Ontario Shore Gas Company Limited. The company has received official intimation from the head office at Chicago of his appointment, and of the honor paid upon the duties connected with the position.

Mr. Deacon is the second Canadian to be appointed to the executive of the Ontario Shore Gas Company. Last May a similar honor was bestowed upon Mr. Gerald D. Connant of Oshawa, one of Ontario's foremost bankers.

As is generally known, the Ontario Shore Gas Company is a subsidiary of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation of Chicago, one of the largest public utility corporations in the United States.

Following the purchase of the Belleville Gas System which was consummated at the result of a deal taken on the 30th of July, 1931, and the securing of franchises in the Town of Trenton and Sidney, the townships of Thurlow and Sidney, the company felt that the importance of interests to be served in the Belleville district would call for the appointment of a resident member of the executive staff, and Mr. Deacon has been chosen to carry out that mission.

A more appropriate choice could not possibly have been made. Mr. Deacon is one of our most successful business men and one of the most popular citizens of Belleville. He has been very successful in his own business but in many public capacities as well. Of interest is the fact that he served as chairman of the Board of Control when a member of the city council, and was responsible for improvements and reforms in that service which have been of far-reaching benefit. Mr. Deacon is a Member of Masonic Fraternity.

William Bleecker Deacon is a native of Belleville, being a son of the late William Deacon. His grandfather was also a prominent citizen of public and high schools of this city and at the Belleville Business College.

After graduation he took a position as salesman with the firm of W. H. Jones Co., dry-goods houses where he remained seven years. He then migrated to Chicago where he spent a number of years in the great department store of Carson, Pirie, Scott.

He returned to Belleville in 1895 and purchased the business of the late Wm. Bleecker Mfg. Co., one of retail men's furnishings store conducted by the same firm. After a period of nine years the store was sold to Mr. O. J. Symons.

The first Deacon Shirt factory was erected in 1903. This building which is one of the finest appearing business places in our city, was sold to the American Specialty Co in 1924 and the business of the Deacon Shirt Co., was transferred to the present location on Front street.

W. B. DEACON.

who has been appointed a Director of the Ontario Shore Gas Company in this district.

Mr. W. B. Deacon was joined in the business in 1905 by his brother, Mr. F. S. Deacon and later by the former's son, Mr. Fred Deacon.

The products of the Deacon Shirt and Clothing Co. are sold from ocean to ocean to all Canada. The staff operated at practically full strength for the past year in spite of generally slack business.

Mr. Deacon has always been a man of keen public spirit and has served the city and district in many important capacities.

Member of Council

He was a member of the city council for three years and in 1915-16 he was chairman of the board. He was president of the Board of Trade and took an active part in the campaign to organize a Chamber of Commerce. He was elected director of the latter organization when it was first instituted and later was elected president. He took a foremost part in the movement to establish a Technical School and had the satisfaction of seeing the progressive time of Belleville materialized as a result of the campaign. He was a charter member of the Rotary Club of Belleville and later, its president. He is a past president of the Y.M.C.A. and is a past president of the Canadian Club. He is a member of Dorcas Lodge, A.F. and A.M. For twenty years or more he has served on the trustee board of Bridge Street United church.

Notable public service was rendered by Mr. Deacon during the Victory Loan campaign during the Great War. He was appointed chairman for the district of Belleville and his untiring energy and his connection succeeded in selling over nine million dollars in Victory bonds.

The two sons, Fred and Jack. The former, as mentioned above, is associated with the business as assistant manager. The latter is attaining prominence as a vocalist in musical circles in New York and is frequently heard over the radio.

Sees Not Sever Connection

The new appointment does not mean that Mr. Deacon will sever his connection with the Deacon Shirt Company but merely an additional responsibility. His genius for organization and administration will find a congenial sphere in the aggressive movement, that has been launched to make Ontario Shore Gas Company an inter-urban public service utility of the first importance.

The company's progress since entering the Canadian field less than a year ago has been remarkable and indicates definite planning for far bigger things to come.

It was only on March 31, 1931, that the ratepayers of Oshawa decided in favor of the gas utility to this company. In the month of May, franchises were secured by popular vote in the towns of Whitby and Bowmanville. Then came the Belleville vote on July 20, 1931, when by a majority of 642, the ratepayers decided to dispose of what had been to them a source of worry and regular heavy annual deficits. On Sept. 14th, the citizens of Trenton gave a majority of 378 in favor of granting a franchise and finally the Township of Thurlow, by the almost unanimous vote of 69 to 17, gave the company the right to operate in that district.

Company Most Capable

Ontario Shore Gas Company has been going about its work and conducting its operations here in a capable, comprehensive manner such as inspires confidence and lays bounds for the hope that this great corporation, so efficiently organized and administered, will become a highly important factor in the industrial development of the large area served. Gas is not merely a convenient and effective fuel for domestic purposes but is indispensable for many lines of manufacturing. It will now be possible to attract to Central Ontario many types of industry that could not previously be considered. The huge reductions in price to wholesale users announced last Saturday night by reason of the possibility of further additions to our industrial wealth.

ing to estimate made today but tomorrow an itemized inventory will be made. Examination of the books and accounts of Smith will follow. It is stated that he had insurance of $1200 on one policy and $1800 in another, but the one was to expire at a not distant date.

Secluded Spot

The place where the burning candle was found seemed suited for the purpose of a fire. The store is in a number of sections. In the back portion, called Grindstone, it was just west of this and between this partition and the wall of a grain bin, was the spot, a corner where the candle on or near the floor had been placed. Papers and rags were about the foot of the candle while above these papers which had evidently been thrown in and would have provided a ready start for a fire. In front of this again was another main partition which showed how the fire discovery of fire from the street. Within a few feet of the candle and on the side of the open doorway of the partition was a bale of rags and newspapers were other bales and some bales of hay. The rest of the contents of the shop were such as a feed shop would carry though the quantities were limited.

Money had been left last night at the safe in the front part of the office, the money having been paid in by the customers of the general business associate of Mr. Smith. This was found intact, the sum amounted to about sixteen dollars. The candle had been left on the side of the cabin which Constable Fred Beard exercised in trying the back of the stores on his beat. When he found, the rear door of Smith's store, about four feet generally slack business.

E. VAN ALSTYNE DISCHARGED

No Evidence to Show He Was Not at Scene After Accident

Facing a charge of perjury on the evidence submitted by him during the trial of Ross Presta, charged with criminal negligence, arising out of the accident resulting in the death of Harry Little, E. P. Van Alstyne of Toronto, was today released from custody by Magistrate Casement in the local Police Court.

Magistrate W. C. Mikel was the first witness for the Crown, and stating that Van Alstyne had appeared before him and gave evidence at the recent Presta' trial, Miss Margaret Connell, court stenographer, stated that she had taken the evidence in the case and transcribed it.

Albert Titterson, who living at the corner of Herchimer Ave. and the King's Highway, stated that on the evening of November 2, 1931, when he heard a crash he looked out of the window and saw one car standing in the middle of the road. He rushed out of the house and ran to the scene of the crash and found the United car in the middle of the road. Titterson ran up the road to the Presta' car as it was partially in the ditch and satisfied that he did not see Van Alstyne, when he arrived at the scene of the accident nor could he identify the accident. Van Alstyne, as he did not see him at the scene. Titterson was cross-examined he admitted that there was no one in the car other Ave., when he returned to the Little car. He did not know who owned it.

Not Identify

Mrs. Cecelia Titterson, mother of Albert Titterson, testified that she had heard the crash and ran to the scene of the accident. She was sure that there was no one present, when she arrived except her son and those implicated in the accident. She could not identify Van Alstyne and stated that she did not see him at the scene of the unfortunate occurrence. Upon cross-examination she admitted that Van Alstyne might have been present and she would not identify him.

Mrs. Victor Robbins corroborated the testimony of the previous two witnesses and upon cross-examination stated that the Van Alstyne car might have passed her without her noticing it. She did not see the car parked on Herchimer Ave. until after assistance had been rendered to the elderly gentleman in the Presta' car. Mrs. Robbins also admitted that she had talked over the accident with no other witnesses lately.

Mrs. Verdess Hatfield, whose home is also on Herchimer Ave., testified that she saw a car turn into Herchimer Ave., and she also thought that it had come from a westerly direction. Mrs. Hatfield could not identify the accused but admitted that Van Alstyne might have been present without her seeing him She did not see or know who was in the car, which turned into Herchimer Ave. and stopped.

Carl Wagner, who lives about 200 yards east of the scene of the accident, stated that he could not say whether or not Van Alstyne was present at the time of the accident.

Lewis Loulmage, who lives west of Herchimer Ave. on the King's Highway, testified that he heard the crash and was at the scene of the accident not less than three minutes later. He saw no traffic approaching from the west. The car which struck the Little car parked on Herchimer Ave., but could not identify the accused.

His Honor Magistrate Casement summed up the case by stating that there was undoubtedly doubt in the matter, and as Grace Hatfield admitted that she knew Van Alstyne might have been present without her seeing him she did not see or know who was in the car, which turned into Herchimer Ave. and stopped.

Eliminate the Frills from Advertising!

FOLKS who are in the position to know where sales are made, where results are immediate and who demand action from advertising—continue to use space in the daily newspapers.

While others argue about the efficacy of various media, the retailer who sells direct to the consumer consistently invests his money in daily newspapers. The retailer demands dividends, and he gets them—rich dividends.

The medicine that is good for the retail outlet is equally good for national advertisers whose aim is to reach the same consumer through the retailer.

The biggest advertisers in the world use daily newspapers day in day out, year in and year out, and they must know something about successful advertising.

THE most successful national advertisers in Canada have always made the daily newspapers the backbone, if not the entire structure, of their merchandising set up. They too have found frills costly and non-productive.

There are still those who must learn by a series of experiments—do you want to be one of these in 1932?

Make no mistake, the retailer knows where results are sure, where sales are made. National advertisers will do well to keep this in mind when making plans for increased sales in Canada this year.

We suggest the elimination of frills in advertising and the focussing of attention on the markets afforded by daily newspapers where the audience is always assured.

A great deal about road making in the north these days all of which is doubtless a wise move to a needed end. To those of us who have to travel over the roads around here, it is a displeasure of greater magnitude than has been known for many years. The roads in this section seem to be getting no pleasure even before the frosts have commenced to do any harm. This being so at this early stage what may we look for in the spring?

LACHANCE IS NOW FREE MAN

Convicted But Given Only Time Spent Since Arrest

Montreal Jan. 13—Convicted of manslaughter, Medéric Lachance was on Monday allowed his freedom, when he was sentenced to the time he had already spent in jail. Lachance was convicted of killing Gerard Plante, whom he found in his home one night in October.

Mr. Justice Pelletier suggested to Lachance at the time he was found guilty that the law might be more lenient with him if he married the woman with whom he had been living for six years and who had borne him two children. Mrs. Lachance, now legally wedded to the man in the dock, was in court today to see him sentenced. Lachance showed emotion as he knelt at the sentence, but finally found his voice and said that he would do his best to be a good husband and father.

Plante died after Lachance had struck him in the face during a quarrel in the latter's cell. Evidence was that Plante was ill and that the blow would not have killed a healthy man.

It is hard to imagine the doughty Adolf Hitler, leader of Germany's National Socialist Party, in the role of a follower of Cupid. Walking beside the bride-groom is the son of his new bride, while Hitler is in the rear. Note the Fascists who lined the bridal route giving the familiar salute.

SOVIET GOV'T MAKE OVERTURE TO CANADA

Again Endeavoring to Re-establish Trade Relations

FIVE MILLION ORDER

Terms are Also Laid Down in Order for Aluminum

Montreal, Jan. 12—The Star today says: "Offering as an immediate inducement a $5,000,000 order for the Quebec Aluminum Industry, the Soviet Government is again endeavoring to re-establish trade relations with Canada.

"The terms of the offer are understood to be acceptance by the aluminum interests of $2,000,000 worth of Russian coal in exchange, the balance to be paid in gold or upon credit terms agreeable to the Canadian companies.

"Already the proposal has been placed for the Quebec Government and in receiving the consideration of Premier Taschereau and Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, Arrangements are being made to bring it similarly before the Bennett Government at Ottawa.

"The Russian end of the negotiations is being conducted by Amtorg, Soviet official trading agency in New York.

"The situation is complicated by the circumstances that two embassies are involved. After Canada had placed before Quebec Government of five Russian products, the Soviet replied by banning all Canadian goods of whatever nature." Both Russian and Canadian Governments therefore would have to rescind the prohibitory orders before the deal could go through. The fact that the offer emanates from Amtorg, the official Soviet trading corporation, indicates, however, that if accepted it would receive the full support of Russian officialdom.

While the terms of the proposal are not yet fully settled, it is definitely known that at least $5,000,000 worth of Canadian aluminum and aluminum products is involved. In return, Canada is being asked to accept Russian anthracite coal to the value of $2,000,000.

28 CHARGES IN BENNETT CASE

Eighty Thousand Dollars Involved in Action

Toronto, Jan. 13—Practice of defence counsel in seeking particulars of charges, causing delays at the commencement of trials, was criticised by Judge O'Connell as W. H. Bennett, president of Bennett-Packard Mines Limited, went on trial yesterday in General Sessions. Bennett, who faces 28 charges of theft, false pretences, uttering and circulating false statements, is standing in all approximately $80,000 pleaded not guilty.

George T. Walsh, K.C. defence counsel asked for particulars of some of the charges. "It is a reprehensible practice of counsel to seek particulars of charges just when a trial begins," said Judge O'Connell. "I am not going to grant any delays and have the court sitting idle for you. You may have particulars of the charges from the crown during the trial."

REFUSE SUPPORT FOR EXTENSION

Hitler and Hugenburg Will Not Support Government

They informed Chancellor Heinrich Bruening, who has hoped by this to avert the turmoil of an election this spring by having the Reichstag prolong the president's tenure, that they could not be a party to the plan, because they considered it a violation of the constitution.

DEPT. OF HIGHWAY WARNS MOTORISTS

A warning to motorists to secure their new motor licenses before December 15 is issued by the Department of Highways. Only some 15,000 have been issued so far since they first went on sale December 15, according to the department.

It is pointed out that in most of the states in United States the law requires motorists to secure their licenses before or by January 1. In this time of grace is allowed. Here one month's extension is granted and the department now urges motorists as well as chauffeurs and operators to secure their license as soon as convenience permits.

Return Made to Taxation Under 1924 Revenue Act

EMERGENCY GRAVE

Deficit $1,417,000,000 in 1933 is Foreseen

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 12.—(AP) — A balanced budget at the end of the fiscal year 1934 is the goal of the United States Administration's tax increase programme outlined today by Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury to the House of Representatives Ways and Means Committee.

Appearing as the principal witness in the opening of hearings before the Democratic-controlled group that will formulate broader revenue raising legislation, the veteran cabinet member urged Republican Administrations said:

"We are in the midst of a grave emergency. It is essential to raise additional revenue, not just to cover current expenditures but to maintain unimpaired the credit of the United States Government."

Selective Sales Tax

Mr. Mellon said the plan he submitted would normally a return to the taxation existing under the 1924 revenue act, as amended since then. He estimated it would return $390,000,000 additional revenue during the current fiscal year and $920,000,000 in the fiscal year 1933 beginning next July 1. It would include a selective sales tax, increases in income and estate taxes, a super estate tax, and increases in surtaxes.

"Getting the $390,000,000 defict last year, and a prospective deficit of $2,123,000,000 this year, he estimated there would be a deficit of $1,417,000,000 in 1933 despite the increase in revenue.

Coming somewhat as a surprise to the committee members, Mr. Mellon announced that "the Administration is determined, with your cooperation, to arrest this borrowing process on or before 30 next", in urging the increased taxes in order to prevent an increase in the public debt. The Administration has been borrowing hundreds of millions the last three years. In addition he recommended that the new taxes be terminated at the end of two years, when the budget is balanced in 1934.

Police Believe They Have Discovered Cutting Plant

Both Canadian and United States officials are interested in the seizure, the latter because of the probability that the product was being sold to both sides of the border.

The shipment, which was consigned by Federal agents, was consigned to the Gagnon & Company at Frenchville, a fictitious consignee. The shipper was J. H. Gorson & Company, of Philadelphia.

Kelley estimated that the cost of the alcohol was 46 cents a gallon. He said he believed it was highly flavored and bo'led to sell as Scotch and rye whiskey at prices from $5 to $8 a quart.

W. E. Tummon, M.P., Speaker at Thurlow Banquet

LARGELY ATTENDED

James F. Hill, M.P.P., Also Reviews Problems of Day

From the four quarters of Thurlow township, Conservatives (men, women and children) gathered last evening to the number of over two hundred at the Orange Hall, Canniffton, to attend the second annual banquet of the Thurlow Conservative Club. The women of the club, under their president, Mrs. Fred Clark, and ladies of the Thurlow Women's Conservative Association, with Mrs. Ernest Chambers, as their head, had everything in readiness, and provided a splendid repast, in a most capable manner, to the throng which filled the hall to overflowing capacity, necessitating the use of the basement to accommodate all the diners.

Happy Gathering

It was a happy and satisfied gathering which arose to drink the King's health, Mr. Ross Deseve K. C. Mitchell, who alluded to the advantages of citizenship in Canada, impressing more especially those of education and the privilege of being Canadian citizens in upholding their various religious beliefs, and responded to the toast to the Dominion.

Member Speaks

Responding to the toast to Tummon, M.P., after thanking the Club for the invitation to be present, Mr. Tummon and himself at their festive board, and for the honor in the fine banquet, gave one of his fine, thoughtful and well delivered addresses dealing with the present agenda compared with other countries and not suffering in the least. Figures were, under prevailing conditions throughout the world, the salutations as well as individuals had to learn by the hard school of experience. The great nation to the south had been the beneficiary during the war and the after period. Gold had flowed into her treasury during that time, which had been assiduously hoarded till today the United States held an overwhelming balance of the world's gold supply. And yet she was in a position, today, unfavorable with our own country. The aftermath of the Great War had taught that concurring as well as conquering nations suffered monetarily as well as other losses in warfare, and that no nation in the world had been can live and survive when centering wholly in themselves. The wealth of a nation was not in its stored wealth, but in the character of its citizens and its natural resources, and in no country was more richly endowed than Canada in these respects.

Bound With Empire

The future of Canada was bound up with that of the British Empire; the welfare of the rest of the world was closely linked with her future. Civilization was undergoing a new birth of Canada, as exemplified in changes in Russia, in Germany, in Italy and Spain. Changes the result of the war, and later revolutions and developments in the world's progress. The French British itself had experimented for a time, but now has a stable government once more. Changes had taken place in Canada also. The speaker then went over this country's development and in retrospection of its growth from 25, 40 and 50 years ago, the birth, infancy and development of nation. A generation was being born who will have recall, or know, but will be touched by acutely active remembrances of that troubled, exhausted time. Are we scarching out and building up this country rich in promise, happiness and steadfastness for them?

Present Possibilities

The year 1932 is one of great possibilities in the world in general, to the British Empire and to this country of ours. First—the coming parley of war debt revision and reparations. Two years ago Great Britain proposed the cancellation of all war debts, although it would have been a major monetary sufferer, today other countries are realizing the wisdom of that suggestion, more especially the United States, whose hoarded wealth was swelling it little, in this period of industrial world-wide disturbance. Second—The meeting in February next, preliminary to the Disarmament conference, and Third—that effecting the British Empire as a whole—the Imperial Conference, called to meet in Ottawa the coming summer.

In 1929 when, then, leader of the Opposition, Mr. Bennett had proposed such a conference. Last year at the meeting in London, his proposals had received thoughtful consideration, Premier Macdonald then in power, in Great Britain was not friendly toward inter-empire trade which, in the main, was those proposals the Old Land has had as elsewhere. In which Premier Bennett's outspoken stand on this subject, loomed largely. A government had been elected favorable to his proposals and other parts of the Empire have given his stand their approval with the coming conference in Ottawa. The 1932 holds promise of a greater Canada and a greater Empire.

Toast to Canada

Messrs. Earl Sayres and Wesley Gray, jointly, proposed the toast to the Dominion, Mr. Sayres in remark. In responding, Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P. congratulated the people of Thurlow on the splendid organization and then dealt with a review of dealings, commercial, industrially and other questions of the day.

Our Club"

"Our Club," the final toast was proposed by Mr. Tummon in a happy manner and Mrs. Ben Wright, responded in a manner suited in one of the best and wittiest speech of the evening, telling of the splendid growth of the organization and its aspirations of the future. After hearing Mrs. Clark's spirited and enthusiastic little address, no wonder remains regarding why the Thurlow Conservative Club is making an outstanding name for itself in the political arena of Hastings County.

The toast list was interspersed with vocal solos by Mr. Markell of Belleville; readings by Mrs. Ernest Harrison of Plainfield; duety consisting of Mrs. Ayling and Mr. Dadoe, and lively instrumental music, furnished by the Plainfield orchestra.

The Thurlow club is to be complimented on the efficiency of their organization, their co-operative spirit and the spirit of enthusiasm and good fellowship that permeates their gatherings.

JAMES ARTHUR COUGHLAN

James Arthur Coughlan, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Coughlan of 104 Chatham street, passed away at the Belleville General Hospital early this morning. Little Jimmie, as he was known by all of his playmates in Belleville, was a bright little lad and his sudden passing has cast a shadow of sadness over his home and the vicinity in which he resided. Jimmie was born in the city of Ottawa seven years ago, moving to Belleville with his parents when a baby. He attended Queen Victoria school in which he was considered a very bright pupil and was admired by all for his bright and cheery disposition.

The little lad has been ill but a short time thus the suddenness of his death was felt much more as he has been enjoying the best of health since arriving in Belleville. He attended school on Friday afternoon with his parents, and was a member of that Sunday school.

Besides his parents Jimmie leaves one sister, Elva, two brothers Billie and Douglas all who live with their parents at home.

Greatest Irrigation Dam in World Formally Opened

Sukkar, India, Jan. 13 (AP) — Rushing waters from the Himalayas roared through the sluices today while Lord Willingdon, Viceroy of India, dedicate with impressive ceremonies the newly completed Lloyd Barrage, one of the greatest irrigation enterprises in the world.

The dam is nearly a mile long and 200 feet high. It consists of 66 huge concrete spans 60 feet wide, equipped with gigantic steel gates which harness the waters of the fickle Indus River, upon which the whole of the great desert depends for its life.

For four months in the year the Indus is flooded with water from the melting snows of the mighty Himalayas, but during the remaining eight months the river shrinks to a mere creek.

Through a great arterial network of canals, 6,194 miles long the new project will furnish a steady flow of life-giving water to a large arid area. This territory is expected to produce annually 2,000,000 tons of wheat, cotton and rice. The project required nine years to build and took the labor of 47,000 men working during the seasonal period of five months in the year.

ANNUAL MEETING

Early Flower Exhibition Proves Attraction to Growers

The annual meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society was held Tuesday evening in the main office of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. There was a large attendance of the members and the excellent report of the past season's work were received with much satisfaction and plans for the year's operations were enthusiastically considered.

The society has a membership of two hundred and thirty one and the most praise worthy work is directed by officers, directors and executive members, who are devoted not only to the study of Horticulture, but who enjoy greatly the actual work necessary in the cultivation of beautiful flowers and the growing of beautifying shrubs. The society has done much to make Belleville "the city of trees beautiful and through its efforts many citizens have been enlisted to devote some of their time and care to the beautifying of their homes and gardens.

During the past season the following places of interest have been made more attractive by the planting of flowers and shrubs by the society: Bleecker Park; Roses; Nurse's Home, Climbing Roses; children's shelter, shrubs and two beds of Dahlias; Victoria Avenue hot near Front street, shrubs and annuals; Christ Church grounds bed of evergreens; Memorial Park, two beds of Evergreens and other shrubs. This past fall ten thousand tulip bulbs were placed in city parks plots. Of this number twenty-two hundred bulbs were new. In the course of regular events these tulips will bloom forth next Spring in great beauty and will be a source of much pleasure to many citizens. Early Spring bulbs.

The early flower shows at the society were very popular during the past year, in June the Iris show was held and during the first and second weeks of July the display of roses and peonies were made. These shows were held in the Y.M.C.A. building and the society feels appreciation is expressed to the kindness and courtesy of the Y.M.C.A. officials in allowing them the use of the necessary space in the building to make the display. On August the thirteenth and fourteenth the annual Flower Show of the society was held in the Armouries and it was quite successful. Seven hundred and ninety four entries were made and there were donated in prizes, besides cups and other trophies.

Plants and seeds to the value of $40.50 were distributed to members as premiums during the season.

Much regret was expressed by the members that in some parts of the city, blooms are stolen from the gardens and that in many instances bulbs are taken. Steps to stop this were practice were considered and it is hoped that next season there will not be a repetition of it.

Mr. D. M. Farrell has been for the past three years a popular and efficient president of the society and in his address to the members last evening he expressed his great appreciation of the assistance, encouragement and loyalty which had been given to him at all times during his tenure of office. Although he retires this year as the work, Mr. Farrell said, that he desired to retire from office this year and thanked the members for the honor they had conferred upon him by appointing him as their President for three successive years.

President Retires

This decision on the part of Mr. Farrell was received with regret by the meeting and the appreciation of the efficient manner in which he filled the high regard in which he is held by the society was very loudly expressed in a motion, which was proposed by Mr. C. J. Symons and seconded by Mr. Wm. Massey by Mr. Wm. Harvey. In a hearty manner which action was endorsed by the members and placed on record.

Appreciation of the work rendered by the secretary, Mr. John Watson as secretary was also expressed by the meeting and all other officers and directors were thanked also for the assistance they had given during the year.

Mr. C. J. Symons, speaking on behalf of the Belleville Parks Board thanked the society for the great assistance which it had given to the board and for its willingness to cooperate at all times in the work of beautifying the city.

On a motion, which was carried unanimously, the sum of $25.00 was donated to the International Peace Garden. This plan for the erecting of these gardens were consummated only a short time ago. They will be located on the border of Manitoba and the State of Dakota and will cover many hundreds of acres of land on each side of the boundary line.

Peace Garden Project

It was also decided by motion, that at some future date, subscription lists will be opened by the society to receive subscriptions towards the carrying out of this great and commendable enterprise. The amounts to be asked for were set at twenty-five cents for adults and five cents from children.

The committee of the Ontario Horticultural Association is to be held at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto on January 11 and 12 and the meeting unanimously appointed Mrs. George Hamilton and the retiring president, Mr. D. M. Farrell, to represent the society at the meeting. With Mr. John Watson as alternate.

New Officers

A nominating committee composed of the following was appointed: Mrs. George Bonisteel, Mr. J. B. Findlay, Mr. C. J. Symons, Mrs. George Drummond and Mr. A. R. Symons. Their recommendations were accepted by the meeting and the following are officers for the ensuing year were announced:

Hon. Presidents, Mr. A. R. Symons, Mr. C. J. Symons, Mr. C. G. Symons, Mr. W. C. Reid and Mr. D. M. Farrell.

BIG INCREASE IN CANADIAN BUTTER SHOWN

Dairy Council President Estimates 1931 Output at 30,000,000 Lbs.

PRODUCERS MEET

Grading of Cheese Held to Be Improving Quality

London, Ont., Jan. 13.—A large increase in the manufacture of Canadian butter during the past year is reported in a paper prepared by F. E. M. Robinson of Richmond Hill, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, and presented at the annual meeting of the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario, which opened here today.

"Although figures are not yet available, it is estimated the increase will be more than 30,000,000 lbs. over 1930, and nearly 60,000,000 over 1929" the paper reads. "Exports of cheese exceeded the previous year and exports of butter were highest since 1926."

Grading of cheese had been of great value in improving quality and Canada today holds a high place in the Britis" market according to Mr. Robinson.

Production of raw milk and its products called forth a united effort on the dairying industry system on a more economical basis of production and marketing and to re-establish a price structure for milk and its products that would recreate confidence and interest engaged in dairying, he pointed out. That did much to bring producers grappling with the dairy problems of the day should, and cited, as an example, the Eastern dairymen were not buying their feed in an economical and efficient manner.

Mr. Robinson advocated a national brand for export butter which, he believed, would assist its sale and at the same time tend to a high standard of quality. There was need of some organized control of export. . . .

Drowsy Patient is Puzzle to Physicians

Montreal, Jan. 13.—Doctors here are puzzled by a strange behavior of Ernest LeMay of Springfield Mass., who has been sleeping practically without interruption since Sunday morning.

LeMay registered Sunday in a small hotel and went to bed. At 9 o'clock Monday night he was still asleep, so the hotel authorities woke him up. LeMay expressed his annoyance, went out for a few minutes and then came back and went to sleep again.

The hotel people consulted the police, who took LeMay to St. Luke's Hospital. Doctors examined him and said he was a healthy man and decided sleeping practically without interruption since Sunday morning.

LeMay remained in hospital for observation.

FINDS NEEDLE IN HAYSTACK

Old Proverb Fails as Engineers Use Ex-celsior

Schenectady, Jan. 13.—A revision of familiar proverbs is steadily going on here under the relentless pressure of laboratory experiments. Science has now taken all the force out of the saying, "to look for a needle in a hay stack" by discovering, with the aid of the X-ray, an ordinary pin in the very centre of a bale of excelsior two feet square and five feet high.

The excelsior was taken to the General Electric Company's industrial X-ray laboratory where materials are constantly being radiographed. Given a five-minute exposure, the bale was made to reveal every foreign substance, including the pin, with the utmost clearness. The laboratory workers are convinced that X-rays had been known during the middle ages, this proverb, which originated in that period, would never have had a chance to be handed down.

POPE PIUS XI ORDERS VISIT

First Time Since 1904 in the Diocese of Rome

Vatican City, Jan. 12.—Pope Pius today ordered resumption of the visits of inspection in the diocese of Rome for the first time since 1904. Visits will be made to churches, schools, convents and other educational institutions, by the Cardinal Vicar Marchetti-Selvaggiani.

In issuing the order the Pontiff said he was sorry he would be unable to make the visits himself because he was too busy.

Alfonso Bans Son's Wedding

Paris, Jan. 12.—The Prince of Asturia, exiled heir to the Spanish throne, has asked the consent of his father to marry Princess Kyra Cherbourg, daughter of Grand Duke Cyril Vladimirovich. She is known among Russian emigres as the prettiest princess since Catherine the Great.

Ex-King Alfonso, who recently declined to sanction the marriage of his daughter, Beatrice, refused to have indicated that he could not approve the marriage.

The princess is of the Orthodox faith, while the Spanish royal family is Roman Catholic. The Prince of Asturia is next in his line because of chronic haemophilia, which causes hemorrhages if he overexerts. He is now in the early thirty steps a day in his bedroom and doctors said he would be able to move about by next summer.

Princess Kyra, 22, has frequently been mentioned as a possible bride for some of Europe's royal bachelors. She met the Prince of Asturia in Madrid in 1930 and they became close friends.

The flags displayed night and day on the Capitol in Washington last about a month each.

Plans Made to Vitalize Milk

Madison, Wis. Jan. 12.—The milkman of tomorrow may leave "bottled sunlight" instead of cream. Dr. Harry Steenbock, the University of Wisconsin professor, who gave the world a process for irradiating foods to install vitamin content, has taken his experiments into the cow barns and the result is a plan to vitalize milk for the human family.

If the experiment works out—and there is every indication it will, the specialist—babies can surely be happily over their usual bottle of milk, containing the "hidden health" element now derived from direct sunlight or from a dose of cod oil bottle.

Steenbock several years ago discovered that by treating certain foods with light rays he could enhance vitamin content into foods The chilatting of milk is a development from Steenbock's original discovery.

Senate Approval of Reconstruction

Washington, D.C. Jan. 13.—Overwhelming United States Senate approval of the Hoover-Republican reorganization program signalled today a general advance for the Hoover presidential programme of economic legislation.

The two-dollar reconstruction bill passed the Senate this late night 63 to 8, with only few amendments attached to it. Already in the House in the form of a companion bill, the project advanced there today with a general debate, headed for a vote late today or tomorrow.

Daughter-in-Law of Slain Man Tries to Save Him

London, Ont., Jan. 13.—Less than five hours after Samuel Weinstein, Philip Street grocery was mortally wounded by a bandit in his store last night, Walter Rammell, son of Sarnia was in the hands of the Sarnia police as the alleged perpetrator of the crime.

His arrest was effected 15 miles east of Sarnia in a car in which it is charged, he and Henry Quinn, his alleged accomplice in the affair, drove to London this afternoon.

Quinn had previously been arrested in London within a few minutes of the shooting and was arrested in the home of Clifford Fraser Maitland Street. He was booked on a vagrancy charge while in custody pending the out-come of the murder charge, with provincial constables and police of all nearby towns participating.

The police were given the number of the car in which the two fugitives were captured by Mrs. Jean Isbister and Quinn are alleged to have secured today from a Sarnia dealer.

Are Given Credit

Detective-Sergeant William McCullough and Detective James Outhwaite are credited with the work that led to both captures. They questioned Constables Inspector Thomas Bollen.

Chief Constable Harry Down left at midnight for Sarnia with McCullough and Oakley, with a warrant to bring Rammelsbotm back to London.

Weinstein died in Victoria Hospital last night with a bullet below his heart, fired at him by the gunman with whom he grappled in his store at 536 Philip Street.

Detective-Sergeant McCullough and Detective Oakley, on the scent for the condition into which Weinstein's police have served to bring this country, or to cause it to have the state of any transgression monopoly in Canada, he will find such an infringement in this Dominion from coast to coast. We will make him wish he had never taken up the reins of office."

Record of Administration

In a speech which was littered with criticism of the fiscal and trade administration of the present government, the Dominion Liberal leader discussed the record of the administration. He declared that the country's taxa economic conference, asserting that the Conservative party had simply his attitude on tariff matters, against the subsitution for the word "Canada first" the words "Empire First", Canada "must decline to become a subsidiary unit of an Empire wide industrial holding company." Our trade relations must be organized on a national basis.

The Liberal party wished a trading conference to be a success, Mr. King asserted. On the principle that there must be a new spirit of either petty or blood ing bargaining" abandoned. Conservative members Parliament to turn their attention to securing a modification of Government's "extreme position" before the end of the day that the conference might be a success.

Tariff Policy Criticized

Mr. King attacked the policy "Canada First."

"Not a day passes," he said, "if there are fresh evidences of bringing of trade. The act of 1930 is a blanket, by order-in-Council, by which the Government may, by valuation, wherever, by crack crevice, trade begins to trickle in and out of the Dominion—for it can be no such thing for any law of this kind—in any one way in some fresh effort is made to close the aperture a little more and to raise the wall of embargo a little higher. To this policy is on the near side of the valley that is the extreme of economic nationalism, that is more and more unpalatable, and just in order to make the valley be left to breathe, if not to trade, there is a counter-cry, a cry of deep shroud within which it is to be created, a new form of economic isolation, a new economic nationalism which the name 'Empire First' already has given."

ROYAL PROBE

Secret Sessions of Probe And Tariff Policy Assailed

(By Ray Brown)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Jan 13.—Liberalism will stand like a rock against every proposition, however camouflaged, which will destroy the independence and integrity of the Canadian National Railway system. Above all this country will not suffer a railway monopoly controlled by entrenched and aggressive financial interests." Thus, Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, indicated tonight the attitude of his party toward the publicly-owned system of railways.

Speaking at a dinner of the Manitoba Liberal Association, Mr. King denounced in the strongest possible terms the secret sittings of the royal commission now investigating the transportation problems of Canada.

"I do not hesitate to say that secret sessions of a royal commission relating to the great railway systems of this country is something that is wholly indefensible," he asserted. "It is a part of the star chamber methods of Parliament which has led to the tariff being manipulated as it has."
